GOVERNOR JOHNSON AT ARMORY TONIGHT

Larger Crowds Than Listened to Him Two Years Ago.

Returns to Duluth to Speak at Meeting at Armory.

One of the greatest crowds ever gathered at a political meeting in Duluth is expected to pack the Armory tonight, when Governor John A. Johnson will discuss the issues of the campaign in the interest of his own candidacy and the Democratic ticket.

Governor Johnson will be escorted to the Armory by a torchlight procession, which will give a touch of the enthusiasm of the campaigns of twenty years ago to the rally. The strains of the martial music of two bands, the shrill note of the fife and rattle of drum will be diffused through the air, and the rally will be a regular old-time, rip-roaring red, fire-burning political demonstration.

The torchlight procession will be formed in sections. The fife and drum corps of Willis A. German post, G. A. R., will go to West Duluth on a special car at about 7 o'clock, and will head the West Duluth division. The West End Democratic club will gather at Twentieth avenue west, where it will be headed by the Duluth Marine band, which will lead it to the Lenox hotel, which is the mobilizing point. The Koch Sails For Home.

New York, Oct. 14.—Dr. Robert Koch and many other delegates to the tuberculasis congress recently ended at Washington sailed for Europe yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm III.

GOVERNOR JOHN A. JOHNSON,
Who Will Speak at the Armory Tonight.

JAPANESE PREMIER FOR WORLD-PEACE

Yokohama, Oct. 14.—The Official Gazette today publishes an imperial rescript countersigned by Premier Katsura, in which the emperor says:

"The East and the West are dependent on one another for the promotion of their mutual welfare and on this account we should endeavor to cultivate the friendship of other nations. At the same time it is highly important in these postbellum days that we should be united with other countries in advancing industries. In this we shall be acting in accordance with the sacred traditions of our forefathers and our glorious national history. We trust that our loyal subjects will assist us in glorifying the virtue of our forefathers."

SHERMAN NEXT FOR ONSLAUGHT

Standard Oil Charge Made by Hearst, and He Swears.

New York, Oct. 14.—William Randolph Hearst has suddenly been summoned home from his Western trip. A dispatch, dated at Portland, Or., last night, says:

"William R. Hearst did not accompany Thomas S. Hisgen, Independence candidate for the presidency on his speaking tour to the Northwest. It was given out here that Mr. Hearst had been called to New York unexpectedly, and for that reason will not visit the Nothwest before the November election. Hearst did not deliver his scheduled address here."

It is reported at Republican national headquarters today that John Schoolcraft Sherman, Republican vice presidential nominee, is to be lambasted by Hearst as soon as the latter gets here, and the committee is preparing a defense. This morning a rumor that Hearst comes to spring Standard Oil trust letters written to and from Sherman gained emphasis. The New York World sent a representative to Sherman, asking him if he had anything to say in reply to the rumor.

Sherman did have something to say in reply.

When he had said it the World man left in haste, and now his paper is printing the Sherman "statement," which is about the briefest thing that has been "proclamated" this campaign, on the front page.

Sherman simply said:

"Tell the World to go to hell."

BOMB IS HURLED IN STRIKE OF NEW YORK'S DRIVERS OF AUTOS

New York, Oct. 14.—The bomb made its first appearance today in the struggle between the New York Taxicab company and its striking chauffeurs, which has been in progress for more than a week.

The company declares that deliberate attempt was made by the strikers to destroy the property of the company, and the strikers maintain that the missile was hurled in an attempt to turn public sympathy against them, or by some misguided sympathizers.

The bomb was thrown early today, into the big enclosure in Eighth avenue, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets, where 250 taxicabs belonging to the New York Taxicab company were stord for the night. The explosion shook buildings for blocks and hundreds of persons in the neighborhood were thrown into wild excitement. Police details from many stations were rushed to the scene, and for a time all their efforts were required to control the great crowd which had gathered in the vicinity.

The explosion tore a great hole in the ground. One of the special policemen on guard declares that he saw the bomb thrown over a high fence around the enclosure. It struck near a big tank of gasoline.

Some of the strike leaders expressed a belief that it was not a bomb at all, but an explosion of gasoline, due to the inexperience of some of the men who have taken the places of the strikers.

PALESTINE MOB BURNS

Holy Land Aroused by Austrian Annexation of Provinces.

Britain Sends Six Battleships to Island of Rhodes.

Jaffa, Palestine, Oct. 14.—A mob today attacked the Austrian postoffice heer and destroyed a number of mail carts and leter boxes. The disorder grew out of the efforts of political agitators, who dwelt on the recent action of Austria-Hungary in annexing the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The trouble began on the arrival today of the Austrian mail steamer. The lightermen of the port refused to have anything to do with her, and it was impossible to land her cargo. The mails and passengers eventually were disembarked, however, after which the people moved on the postoffice and vented their anger on the property of the Austrian government.

British Warships Arrive.

Smyrna, Asiatic Turkey, Oct. 14.—Six British warships from Malta arrived this morning off the Island of Rhodes. Rhodes is a Turkish island in the Mediterranean, off the southwest coast of Asia-Minor. The fleet which has arrived there is under the command of Vice Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg. It left Malta Oct. 9, and consists of the battleships Prince of Wales and Glory, the cruisers Diana and Suffolk, and the destroyers Angler and Banshee. They were sent from Malta by the British government to watch events. It is believed that their presence will have a tranquilizing effect on the situation in the Levant. Turkey welcomes the appearance of the fleet.

Consent Withheld.

Berlin, Oct. 14.—Neither Austria-Hungary, nor Turkey, has yet given its consent to the proposed international conference to settle the existing situation in the Near East. Austria-Hungary declines to participate unless it is agreed that the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina be not discussed, but accepted and legalized by the powers. Turkey desires a free hand in Macedonia, as well as cash compensation from Bulgaria for the Oriental railroad in Eastern Rumelia, and some other outstanding claims. All the powers are in favor of a fixed program, and a majority of them are inclined to omit from the discussions the question of the passage of the Dardanelles and the Cretan proclamation for union with Greece.

International Points Invioved.

Washington, Oct. 14.—On behalf of the Rainy Lake river boom corporation, a petition for a writ of certiorari was filed in the supreme court of the United States in the case of that company against the Rainy River Lumber company. Upon its face the case involves a charge for the storage of saw logs by the boom company, but owing to the fact that Rainy river is the boundary between Minnesota and Canada, many international points will be brought into the argument.

PULP PROBE IN DULUTH

Congressman Mann Will Come Here After Minneapolis Meeting.

Hearing in Investigation of Paper Trust is On.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman Mann, who is at the head of the congressional committee investigating the workings of the alleged paper trust, arrived here this morning to continue the taking of testimony in relation to forestry conditions, what the supply of pulpwood will be for the future, and as to the conditions of the spruce forests in Northern Minnesota. Mr. Mann will conduct his hearing while here at the West hotel, and expects to have as one of his chief witnesses F. E. Weyerhaeuser, the millionaire lumberman. After the hearing, Mr. Mann will go to Duluth, Cloquet, Grand Rapids and Itasca, Minn., to investigate conditions in the pulp mills and inquire into the conditions of the spruce forests, as to the available supply of spruce with which to keep the pulp mills in operation.

TAFT'S SPECIAL CAR REPAIRED

East Liverpool, Ohio, Oct. 14.—The Taft special left this morning, to conclude its third day in Ohio. Wheeling will be reached this evening. Judge Taft was the guest for the night of Col. John N. Taylor. During the night the injured truck of his private car was removed and repaired. The itinerary today included speeches in Wellsville, Empire, Toronto, Mingo Junction, Cadiz Junction, Cadiz, Steubenville and Wheeling. At midnight tonight the candidate will begin his journey into the South, which is to occupy him for the next three days.

NAVY SCANDAL IS UNEARTHED

San Francisco, Oct. 14.—A report affecting the transport service on this coast has been made to the war department, and startling disclosures are expected.

The alleged irregularities are connected with extensive repairs made on the Logan and other vessels of the service. In the case of the Logan, it is alleged, repairs to the amount of $90,000 were made, immediately torn out and another contract for repairs, aggregating $150,000, was awarded to the same company.

It is said the matter was brought to light by two secret service agents, who enlisted in order to gain their information.

Arrival of the stork is now awaited by her. If the duchess has a son, he inherits the title and estates of the late duke de Chaulnes et de Picquigny, who died suddenly not long after the wedding. If a daughter, her connection with the nobility of France practically terminates. The duchess is daughter of Theodore P. Shonts.

TORPEDO BOATS SEARCH SEA FOR TWO MISSING BALLOONS

Cuxhaven, Ont. 14.—The Spanish balloon Castilla, one of the three missing contestants in the race for the international cup that was started from Berlin Sunday, dropped into the ocean six miles north of Heligoland this morning. A fishing boat was in the vicinity and sent out a small boat to the rescue. Montogo, the pilot, and his assistant, Robero, were picked up and taken back to the fishermen on the day they were landed here.

Others Still Missing.

Berlin, Oct. 14.—No news has yet been received here of the two missing contestants in the balloon-race for the international cup that was started from Berlin Sunday. These airships are the Busley, German, and the Helvetia, Swiss.

Two of the competitors in Monday's endurance race also have not been reported. It is hoped that these airships escaped the changeable lower currents and succeeded at higher altitudes in reaching Russia. A report received from Wangerloog island in the North sea, says a balloon passed over there yesterday.

TAFT TRAIN IN ANOTHER WRECK

Cars Are Derailed, But Nominee Again Escapes Injury.

Cadiz, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Taft's special train was derailed again today. The accident this time occurred on a spur running from the Pennsylvania railroad at Cadiz Junction to this place.

Two engines were attached to the train and the front trucks of one of the tenders left the track. The train was climbing a steep grade all the time, but the tender went bumping along the track for two car lengths before the train was brought to a stop.

On one side of the track there was an embankment about twenty feet high.

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask the Oak Hall.

HOME FROM CONFERENCE

Dr. Clemans Expects to Have Deaconess Home by Thanksgiving.

Next Northern Minnesota Conference Will be Held in Duluth.

Dr. E. C. Clemans, district superintendent of the M. E. church, has returned from the annual Northern Minnesota conference, held at Litchfield, Minn., from Oct. 6 to 12, and has announced the plans for the new deaconesses' home which will be established in this city. It was on the suggestion of Dr. Clemans that the home was authorized by the conference.

"It is our plan to have the home established by Thanksgiving time," said Dr. Clemans. "We will not build, as has been reported, but will rent a house, where the deaconesses will reside while in the city. There will be four deaconesses to start with, which number will be gradually increased as the work progresses.

"It is our hope to eventually have a deaconess for each of the branches of Methodist church, a deaconess who can speak each of the foreign languages common in this district, to work among the different people. They will wear the garb of the deaconess and will travel over the ranges, visiting all the towns of the Duluth district, where they will call upon the sick, poor and needy. While in the different towns, they will be the guests of Methodist pastors there. But in Duluth they will have their own home.

"I expect Mrs. M. J. Kriedler to be here within a week to start the work. She will be followed shortly by three other deaconesses, one of whom will be superintendent. The deaconesses receive $10 a month and expenses for their services. They have all dedicated themselves to it for a life work."

Next year the annual conference will be held in Duluth. Minneapolis and Duluth both wanted the honor, but the vote was almost solid for this city.

Practically all of the Duluth Methodist pastors and a large number of all over the district will attend the grand reception to be given next Tuesday evening at the Auditorium in St. Paul in honor of Bishop Robert McIntyre, D. D., L. L. D., the newly appointed resident bishop. The reception will be given by the Methodists of the Northwest, and fully 3,000 pastors and laymen are expected to attend. The honor of pronouncing the invocation on this occasion has been conferred upon Dr. Clemans. Bishop McIntyre was formerly of Los Angeles, and is one of the greatest American lecturers. His home will be in St. Paul.

Dr. Clemans is now upon his sixth and last year as district superintendent, for according to the rules of the conference one man can hold that appointment only six years. For the past sixteen years he has also been chaplain of the Minnesota National Guards, with the rank of captain. Recently Governor Johnson promoted him to the rank of major.

The conference made the following changes in the Duluth M. E. pulpits: Rev. J. H. Geer of Lester Park has been transferred to Brown's Valley, and his place will be taken by Rev. C. R. Oaten of Aitkin; Rev. J. R. Davies of Grace church goes to Litchfield, and his place will be taken by Rev. M. O. Stockton of Aitkin, and Rev. S. G. Briggs of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church has been transferred to Grand Rapids. Merritt church will be supplied later.

SOUTHERN RATES ON OIL CITED

Federal Court, In Anti-Standard Case, Hears of More Juggling.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—The attention of Judge Franklin Ferriss was directed today, in the hearing of the railroad phase of the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company, to freight rates on oil from the Waters-Pierce company at St. Louis, to Alexandria, La., and other points in Louisiana.

On cross-examination the government sought to show that the Waters-Pierce company, by taking advantage of a low rate to Alexandria over the Iron Mountain road and an unpublished state rate to the other Louisiana points were enabled to ship for materially less than the through rates to the same points which were filed with the interstate commerce commission.

STATE CURES LEPERS.

Kansas City Journal: A remarkable medical report touching the cure of leprosy was presented to the Louisiana Assembly by the leper house of the state of Louisiana. Out of sixty-one lepers in the Louisiana institution in the past two years six have ben practically cured. A row of modern cottages constitute the lepers' quarters. A surgical building and a small Catholic church complete this group of leper buildings. For thirteen years four to six Sisters of Charity, practically alone, have cared for all the wants of the lepers. None of these Sisters ever has become infected with the disease, and apparently none of them fears it.

ON THE DOCTORS.

Mrs. Mary G. Baker Eddy, who of course has no faith in medicine, told a Western Christian Scientist, at one of her latest audiences, an anecdote about a friend of hers. This friend, a thin and nervous woman, could not sleep. She visited her physician, and the man said:

"Do you eat anything just before going to bed?"

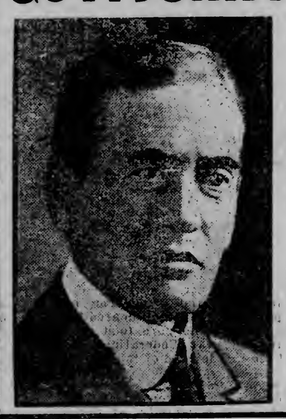

"Oh, no, doctor," the patient replied.

"Well," said the physician, "just keep a pitcher of milk and some biscuits beside you, and every night, the the last thing you do, make a light meal."

"But, doctor," cried the lady, "you told me on no account to eat anything before retiring."

"Pooh, pooh," said the doctor, "that was three months ago. Science has made enormous strides since then."

LIVING ON THE LAND.

Story of a Successful Farmer's Wife.

Des Moines Capital: So far as success goes, the wife of a farmer in the western part of the state of Iowa tells a very good story. It is a story of success at farming. With her husband, she paid for some of the land as high as $45 per acre. It is another case where constant work and the proper kind of economy won out. In a letter from Ogden, Iowa, to the Capital, "A Farmer's Wife" says:

"In September, 1892, sixteen years ago, my husband, then a young Illinois man 26 years of age, started Northwest to seek a home. Going first to Minnesota, from which state he turned with apparent disgust, returning to Central Iowa, where he secured an 80-acre farm with a three-room cottage and small stable for $2,800, paying down $1,000, money he had saved from his wages as farm hand, and giving a mortgage on the land for $1,800 for five years at 8 per cent.

"In the spring of 1893 we were married and came to Iowa to live on this farm. Starting in with two good horses, a plow and harrow, wagon and corn planter, two cows, one dozen chickens, we went to work with a determination to win. The first year we did some tilling, built a cellar, plastered and painted our cottage, bought some machinery, paid our interest and had $100 to pay as principal. In the fall of 1895 we purchased another forty acres adjoining the original eighty, paying $42.50 an acre, or $1,700.

"At the close of each year we always pay all of our debts, our taxes and interest, and always had a snug sum to pay as principle, making it a point to pay the cash for everything we buy, so far as possible. For we are firm believers in the motto, 'Pay as you go and then you won't owe.' Here never run a store bill to exceed $10. It is so much easier to pay for an article when you get it than after it is gone.

"The spring of 1898 found us free from debt, with some money on hand, so we bought another 120-acre farm, paying $45 an acre, which we have paid for by working hard and keeping everlastingly at it. This farm we have always rented out at $3 and $3.25 an acre.

"In 1901 we purchased another forty, paying $75 an acre, which we have paid for by close farming, raising horses, cattle and hogs to sell, milking from five to eight cows, raising about 200 chickens each year. We have never kept a hired man, preferring to do the work alone. In busy seasons I often help do light work in the field, such as raking hay, plowing with riding plow, and picking corn—work that I find healthful as well as profitable, having never been sick a day. I think it is a wife's duty to help meet as well as help eat, and in return the 'better half' helps me wash and churn.

"In 1905 we purchased another 80-acre tract, joining the first two named purchases, making us a lovely 200-acre home farm, paying $70 an acre with no improvements. This farm we have improved by building an addition to our house, a $1,000 barn, three wells and windmills and other small buildings, besides laying 10,000 tile on the different farms.

"We have been very busy, but yet have found time to make seven trips to Illinois to visit home folks. We do not find it necessary to work on Sundays, as some do, but find it a pleasant recreation to drive to the village church, three miles away, or rest quietly in our own home, reading good books or papers, among them the Daily Capital. We are no misers or spendthrifts, always having plenty to eat and wear. We are contented and happy. I have not endeavored to tell of hard times or misfortunes that have come to us, as will come to all, preferring to look on the bright side of life and strive on, not forgetting that the things of the world are only temporal, but 'lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust doth not corrupt or thieves break through and steal.'

"We are at present preparing to move to a small farm near town to educate our children. I have endeavored to state facts as they occurred to us, hoping some one may be benefited thereby and determined to secure a home, for what two have done surely others may do."

COURIERS ACROSS SAHARA.

Pall Mall Gazette: Though a journey across the Sahara is still an undertaking of some magnitude, the pacification of the central region by the French has been wonderfully rapid during the last five years.

Removed as it seems from the exciting influence of events in Morocco, and undisturbed by Senussite propaganda, the French officers have been able to establish friendly relations with the Tuareg and other Berber tribes, and have organized a chain of posts right across the desert connecting Algeria with French West Africa. The route for the telegraph has been surveyed and a "wireless" installation is being established.

Meantime, by the last mail from Dakar the governor of French West Africa reports that he has instituted a monthly service by couriers between the Niger and the Mediterranean. The southern point of departure will be the ancient town of Gao on the Niger, some 200 miles below Timbuktu, and the point of departure from the north Insalah in the oasis of Tuat, which is some 200 miles south of the rail head in the Sud Oranasis. Intermediate posts have been established at Agades and the Ahaggar. The oversight of the new route covers fully 1,000 miles of desert.

Much is expected in the way of accustoming the wild tribesmen of the Sahara to the new order of things from the regular running of this service, and possibly some development of trade may follow. But at present it will be useful chiefly as a means of rapid communication between the French military posts. It is intended that officers selected for service in or returning home from the Niger districts shall make use of the trans-Saharan route, which will be more direct and less costly than the journey from or to France via Senegal or Dahomey. Both horses and camels will be used on the new service.

TO KILLL TIME.

"During the London season this year," said John Mitchell to a Denver reporter, "they gave concerts at the Ritz in Piccadilly, opposite the duke of Devonshire's house, at the odd hour of 12:30. From 12:30 to 1:30 serpent dancers danced and singers sang for the smart set of the capital. And everybody praised these concerts, saying that they filled so nicely the hour of the whole day most difficult to fill, the hour before luncheon.

"Imagine people talking like that—talking like that when there is so much to do in the world. What is society coming to? Why, I begin to believe there is truth in the story about Count Truffle of Paris.

"'Where are you going, count?' he said.

"'Down here to the Rue Castiglione,' was the reply, 'to get my hair cut.'

"'Why, your hair is short enough,' the friend exclaimed.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Ibsen's "The Doll House," probably the best known of the Norwegian dramatist's works, was the subject of the lecture which was given this morning in the series of morning lectures by Dr. N. I. Rubinkham. The discussion of the play was among the most interesting of the lectures yet delivered.

"Ibsen should be hailed by women," said the speaker, in introducing his subject, "as the great literary hero of the age. He is their champion, and in the discussion and upheaval going on in the world over the change in ideas relative to woman's position in life and in society, he has been a great factor. This play, 'The Doll's House,' was produced at a time when the modern woman was just at the beginning of her struggle for a new place before the world. It was criticised, discussed, lauded and condemned, until many hostesses, at their evening parties, deemed it wisest to ask their guests not to discuss 'The Doll House.' In it Ibsen makes his plea for sincerity, social righteousness and the doing away of conventional shams, and that much of it may be brought about by the recognition of woman's new place in society.

"A doll is a plaything, an imitation of the real thing and cannot be truly loved. It is a symbol of the real thing, and the doll's house, likewise, sheltering an unreality, is an unreal thing. In this you find the entire meaning of the play. Nora, the heroine, has been the doll child of her father. She is without strong ethical training, and she is fascinatingly pretty. She might be described as unmoral rather than immoral, and with her marriage to Helmer, a most respectable man of conventional society, she becomes his doll wife. Helmer is the type of man that Ibsen most despises. He is respectable in all his dealings with life, and to be respectable you must be conservative. You are from 1 to 500 years behind the present trend of thought. To be respectable you crucify Jesus of Nazareth. You must denounce such men as Ibsen, Tolstoi, Whitman, Wagner, when he is new, and then after 100 years, when the prophet is established, you must fall in line and worship. This respectable man is the butt of the entire modern drama. He has been described as the bourgeois of the bourgeois."

The story of the play was told in detail—of Nora's ignorant forging of her father's name to save Helmer's life, and his denouncing of her when it was discovered. The recoil of her soul from the selfishness and misunderstanding of her husband comes as the climax of the play.

"In this play Ibsen has emphasized his ideal of marriage, bringing a perfect unanimity, equality and comradeship; marriage not sealed by the signing of a document, but by a mutual love, perfect sincerity, truth and freedom."

ARE GIVEN PRIZES.

Webster School Children Receive Rewards.

Yesterday afternoon was a gala day at the Webster school, for in the afternoon prizes were distributed by the committee of the Twentieth Century club to the little amateur gardeners who exhibited flowers at the school about a month ago. For several years the members of the Twentieth Century club have distributed seeds among the children of the Webster school, and done all in their power to stimulate the interest of the little folks in the neighborhood in gardening. In few of the club's enterprises has there been a keener or more loyal interest, and the annual fall exhibit is one of the most interesting affairs with which the club is in touch.

To those familiar with the drawbacks to flower gardening in the homes on lower Lake and St. Croix avenues, the exhibits which are brought to the annual show would be a great surprise. During the summer months a garden, which boasts only of the ground confined in two cigar boxes, is carefully watered and weeded, and the proverbial pride of the amateur gardener is shown in the autumn when they proudly bring their offerings shortly after the opening of school.

The annual show was held at the school some weeks ago, and yesterday the prizes were awarded. Mrs. Z. D. Scott of the committee was present to award the prizes and speak words of praise and encouragement to the children. Sixty prizes were awarded, and there were about the same number of exhibits. Twenty first prizes were given. Miss Murphy, principal of the school, has done much to interest and encourage the children in the work. There are enrolled at the school 140 pupils, and the large per cent of those who persist in the cultivation of the gardens during the summer tells its own story of their really remarkable interest.

First prizes were awarded: Frank Farmer, Myrtle Sponnick, Elsie Markus, Camilla Elstad, Joe McNicol, William Griffin, Joey Goldfarb, Alice Nelson, Arthur Sipola, Nellie Pierce, James Stark, Linnie Carlson, Henrietta McKay, Louise Blais, Elma Wikajarni, Lena Schneider, Myrtle Lane, Violet Lane, Ebba Johnson, Jacob Forsman.

Club Women to Be Guests of Saturday Club.

The members of the Saturday club have issued invitations to the other women's clubs of the city to meet with them Saturday afternoon of this week, at the clubroom of the library, to hear the reports of the state federation meeting held last week at St. Cloud. Washburn, who appeared on the program of the state meeting, will present her paper, "The Significance of the Biennial to the State Federation."

The meeting will begin promptly at 3 o'clock. For many years the Saturday club has been the annual host to the other clubs of the city to hear the reports of the state meeting, and the affair is always one of the most interesting of the fall season.

Park Point Club.

The second meeting of the season of the Park Point Improvement club will be held this evening at the Park Point Mission. The speaker will be Rev. J. W. Powell, of the Endion Methodist church, and his sugject will be a discussion of Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter." The lecture will be followed by an informal social hour. The club already has a membership of sixty.

Sunrise Breakfast.

Mrs. James Hanks entertained at a sunrise breakfast party yesterday morning at her home, 808 East Third street, in honor of Mr. Hanks' birthday. Autumn leaves were the table decorations, and covers were laid for ten. The breakfast was followed by an outing at Lester Park.

Bridge Party.

Mrs. E. L. Bradley was hostess at cards yesterday afternoon at her home, 2229 East First street. Bridge was played at eight tables, and the favors were won by Mrs. C. H. Bagley, Mrs. Whitney Wall and Mrs. G. A. St. Clair.

FLUFFY RUFFLES

The Distinctive Feature of This Season's Style.

It is always a fertile subject of speculation as to how far American women will follow the lead of Paris in matters of dress, says Mrs. Osborne in her interesting fashion talk in the Delineator. If one were to accept as an indication the breathless interest with which we hang upon the latest word from abroad, one would expect to find every whim and freak of French origin flourishing ultimately in the dress of our women. But one does not, and as a matter of fact a whole history of psychology and economics might be written around the naturalization of a Paris-born fashion.

After it has passed through the custom-house and has been exhibited and extolled by its sponsors and commented upon freely and frankly by the daily press, the American women sit in judgment upon it. Their verdict is made public at the horse show, while he who runs may read America's unbiased opinion of French fashions. In matters of dress the Parisienne will always lead, for it is she who originates, who dares. But at the safe distance at which we follow, the bizarre and the sensational of the French is subdued and lost sight of. But this autumn even the most hypercritical of us will find much to commend among the new fashions. Colorings are artistic; hats picturesque; gowns and wraps graceful and charming. Feminism is in the ascendency and the wise among us will rejoice in the return to frills and frivolity.

The Fascinations of the New Fashions.

Even tailor-mades, the most severe of all women's garments, intended for the daily promenade or morning attendance at the garden, make certain concessions to the new cult of feminine fashions. One's eyes are blinded to the straight, half-fitted backs and equally straight fronts of the coats, the severely gored skirts and simple plaited blouses, by the deluding softness of the ruche and ruffles at throat and wrist. The unmitiated will scarcely perceive that the difference between last year's suit and this lies in a straighter coat, a plainer skirt, a simpler blouse. Not in the least; it is that small bit of kilted cambric at the top of the collar and at the front of the blouse which will bring home to her the fascinations of the new fashions and make her feel at odds with her wardrobe.

A heavy ribbed serge in one of the new shades of blue—powder, cobalt or marine—is the smart material for the tailor-made suit. Skirts of broken plaids and checks of inconspicuous character, worn with a coat of plain color, threaten to become as popular here as they have been in Paris. The coats have the cutaway fronts, Consulate collars, small sleeves and a rather deep neck opening which allows a generous display of the kilted ruffles of the blouse beneath.

Fashion Notes.

Women never dressed more gracefully or more becomingly than in the present season, and it is the little accessories of fashion that count for so much in this era of the Empire. Among the furbelows that the clever woman of taste may design and make herself, are the fussy neck scarfs, which are so new and chic.

A neck-scarf as created for the present day is a bewildering combination of fur, lace, ribbon, chiffon, and even flowers—a little bit of any, of a mixture of all. It makes an exquisite setting for a pretty face, and gives the finishing touch to any toilette. The fact that it is composed of so many things, makes the scarf of the day practical home for dressmakers. Odds and ends are the amateur's materials for creation. Now fur, as a rule, is a thing not to be trifled with, but if a scarf is not too pretentious it may be developed just as readily in this medium as in any other; in fact, fur is almost a necessary foundation for a winter scarf, although many are being made of velvet this season.

If one has on old pillow muff, or a flat boa that is worn, the best part may be cut out and shaped simply into a wide, high collar that fits the neck. This should be lined with satan. A frill of lace or chiffin may finish the lower edge. The collar should be hooked, and have this fastening hidden by a huge ribbon bow, with perhaps some lace twisted through it. This constitutes the so-called boa of the day.

Boas and fancy collars are made of velvet, or cloth to match the costume with which they are to be worn. It seems almost necessary to have a boa or scarf of some kind of sort for every gown. With evening gowns, the liberty scarf is a matter of custom with the Empire gown. From this, the whole gamut is run through all sorts of ruffs, neck ruches, collars and boas.

Paris has set the seal of favor on blue serge—navy blue, of a coarse weave. Nothing is more thoroughly practical for a tailor-made suit than serge. Suits of their kind are found among the best ready-mades in smart shops. The skirts are circular, and the coats three-quarter length, and hipless. Plaid and checked silks are used a good deal as linings for the coats. Black and white checked silk makes a stylish lining.

Woman's Activities.

Federal action in the line of purifying food and drugs has been made possible in no small degree through the efforts of the pure food committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The head of this important committee is an Ohio woman, Mrs. Walter McNab Miller. Mrs. Miller, whose husband is now a member of the faculty of Missouri University, at Columbia, became interested in the matter of pure foods through her own experiences in trying to find certified milk for her baby, nearly twenty years ago. As she studied the matter she became more and more interested in the subjects of dietetics and took courses in the food sciences in this country and also abroad, says an exchange.

Ernestine Gregory, a well known German writer, has passed the examination in the Berlin Seminary in Oriental languages, as well as in the Russian language and literature. She is the first woman who has been permitted to enter these examinations in the seminary.

The Rev. Gertrude von Petzold, who for four years has occupied the pulpit of the Christian church at Leicester, England, has accepted a call to a church in Streator, Ill., near Chicago.

Many people have taken delight in the novels of Finland, which have appeared with the name of Paul Wineman as the author. It has been made public that this is a nom-de-plume. The author, whose name is not disclosed, is said to be a member of a distinguished family in Finland, and is the wife of a popular English cavalry officer.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Parsnips, 30 cents a peck.
Delaware grapes, 25 cents a basket.
Pears, $1.25 a bushel.
Tokay grapes, 50 cents a basket.
Hubbard squash, 15 cents each.
Blue points, 25 cents a dozen.
Smoked herring, 12½ cents a pound.
Domestic ducks, 20 cents a pound.
Fresh fish.

Pears by the bushel are temptingly displayed at a price much lower than Duluth people often have the privilege of buying fruit. Pears made into apple butter or orange marmalade at the absurdedly low price of a little more than a dollar a bushel, seems good to the individual who is trying so hard to keep living expenses down. But the first rules guiding the making of apple butter or orange marmalade calls for a different fruit.

Too bad!

Now, baked pears are very good. Very good! But one couldn't eat a whole bushel of baked pears. And the kind that bake best are firm and a little bit hard, and rather green. The sort which the market man is eager to dispose of at one twenty-five a bushel are mellow; very, very mellow.

Board Meeting.

A meeting of the board of managers of the Duluth Art school will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association.

the EVENING STORY

EDITHA MISSES THE TRAIN

By Frank H. Meloon.

When it comes to secrets of the heart, what woman is not more than half clairvoyant? So it was that Miss Editha Loring Jones, daughter of a baronet of England, had guessed, although snow-bound by a hyper-conventional chaperone, the love that plain John Paul—proudly an American—bore her.

It was true that Mrs. Orangela Whelpley, the chaperone, relict of the late Major Whelpley, who had obtained his final discharge at Calcutta from the hand of the world's greatest commercial general, had been strictly charged by Miss Editha's father to see that no upstart Yankee had aught to do with the young lady's affections.

It was also true that Miss Editha had sighed more than once at the difference of freedom enjoyed by the American and the English girl. If she had been born in America, she reflected, she would not have had the company of Mrs. Orangela Whelpley forced upon her. Young people are meant for young people's company, and so Miss Editha's heart went out to plain John Paul. Plain? Well, he had won a degree at college and, as the leading lawyer of the little western town of Openvale, had been sent to the state senate, so that many of his letters were properly addressed to Hon. John Paul." But he cared little for titles, being willing to dispense with even the ordinary "Mr."

As even the strictest chaperone can't make one a prisoner, it happened on an August day that when John Paul ran his new 20-horsepower car to the edge of the platform of Openvale depot, Miss Editha Loring-Jones, dainty in all the feminine "fixings," came with outstretched hand to bid him farewell.

"It's going to be mighty lonesome out here after you're gone," he announced, mournfully, when the first greeting was over.

"At least we can say good-by without that horrid Mrs. Whelpley straining her ears to catch our last words, as if one could talk of nothing but love, love, love!"

"Why, where's Mrs. Whelpley?"

"She's got aboard the train. She's horribly afraid of being left, so she's taken the tickets for both of us and secured our seats. I've no doubt she's 1 nfidgets, but she won't care to leave, although the train stops here ten minutes."

"Let's sit in the auto while we make our adieux," John suggested.

Editha complied.

"I was saying," he went on, "It's going to be mighty lonesome out here after you've gone. You see, I've got so accustomed to seeing you every day that not to see you will be like missing the sun from its accustomed place in the sky."

"If you lived in London," she retorted, "you'd get used to missing the sun, as I have no doubt you will in Openvale."

"Ah, no, the sun is too dear to us in California; it's the state of sunshine, you know, just as your city of London is the city of eternal fogs. Why," he continued, "I—in fact, the place is never going to seem the same without you, Editha!"

The girl's face flushed. He had never called her Editha before. What would Mrs. Whelpley say?. It was not conventional, but—

"Our time is short," he said, glancing at his watch. "But if I speak hastily I have time to tell you something you may care to hear, thou—I hardly dare hope you will."

The flush on the girl's face deepened, and her head was inclined forward, so that the rim of her picture hat was hidden.

"If I should miss my train—" she interrupted, nervously.

"Hang the train!" exclaimed the young lawyer, savagely. "Listen to me!" There was a new note of command in his voice, and Editha appeared resigned. Like most girls, she favored masterly men.

"In a few minutes, Editha, the train may—" "May?" she wondered—"be whirling you eastward, away from the land where I and my ancestors before me for three generations have struggled to amass the little fortune that has come to us. Your lineage, I know dates back to the time of the Conqueror, and your circle of society is the most exclusive in the world.

"See how far apart we are," he went on. "Only circumstance has thrown us together, and circumstance perhaps"—"Perhaps?" and she wondered again—"is about to separate us. Until you came I enjoyed the wild, free life of ym country. I partook of all its pleasures with a joy that saw no future when I should love and the girl I loved should be beyond my possession.

"This is changed now. For, Editha," —his voice trembled as only the voice of a very strong man can tremble under the suppression of strong emotion—"you must know that I love you!"

He paused to note the effect of his words.

"Yes?" she whispered, so softly that it might have been but the west wind stirring through the orange grove.

"At lease you do not discourage me," he said. "Now, I want to say that in this new land of ours the greatest blessing is achievement. I do not recall ever wanting anything which I have not, sooner or later, secured. It is a habit of my countrymen to lay their plans in advance, and to carry them out in the face of opposition."

He glanced at the frantic face of Mrs. Whelpley peering from the car window. Editha could not see it. She did not appear anxious to look in that direction.

The conductor struck the starting gong beside the door of the depot restaurant.

"All aboard!" he cried.

"You were about to say?" Editha asked, eagerly.

"That I want you to miss that train!"

"Why, what should I do? I haven't so much as a penny to my person!" she exclaimed.

"I will take you as you are," he persisted. "I don't want your money!"

"Oh, I didn't mean that. What I meant was that I've no way of providing for myself, if I miss the train," she explained, with a roguish smile.

"Yes, you have," he insisted, stubbornly.

"And that?"

"Is to marry me!"

Editha jumped from the auto with a low cry of alarm. The train was all ready in motion, and she had an excellent view of Mrs. Whelpley, the very picture of a disappointed chaperone, looking from the rear end of the last car.

Editha had missed the train, but John Paul was at her side. Turning toward him, she said: "Well, I did my best!"

And the two rode off in the auto to solve the problem in the most desirable way.

STARS ON SHIP FEAR 13 HOODOO

Campanini and Others Defer Landing Until Morning.

New York, Oct. 14.—The strenuous efforts of Capt. Polla, of the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, to land his load of opera singers, conductors, pianists and actresses last night, failed because the superstition regarding the fatal thirteenth proved too strong. Not one of the celebrities he had on board his ship would leave it until today.

On the Kaiser Wilhelm were Signor Campanini, musical director of the Manhattan Opera company; Mme. Johanna Gedski, one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera company; Daddi, baritone in Oscar Hammerstein's company; Mlle. Matja von Neissen-Stone, a new contralto for the Metropolitan; Josef Lhevinne, the noted pianist, and Nellie Roland, who is to appear with Marion Terry in "Divorce." Not one of them could be pursuaded to set foot on land last night.

In van did Oscar Hammerstein, who was on the dock to get Campanini, implore him to come ashore, in order that they might talk over the operatic season, soon to open.

FACES BANK LAW VIOLATION CHARGE

New York, Oct. 14.—Charles W. Morse, organizer and promoter of the American Ice company and the Consolidated Steamship company, and who until the panic of a year ago controlled several banks in this city, faced a jury in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court today.

With Alfred H. Curtis, ex-president of the National Bank of North America, Morse was indicted by the federal grand jury last March. The indictments followed an investigation into the conduct of the National Bank of North America, after that institution had been forced to close its doors, at the time of the panic. Violation of the national banking laws and conspiracy are alleged in the indictments. Should the trial result in conviction and the judgment subsequently be affirmed by the higher courts, there would be no alternative from a jail sentence, the penalty for violation of the national banking law being from five to ten years' imprisonent.

The alleged violation of the banking law, as charged in the indictments, are three in number—over certification, misapplication of funds, and the making of false entries in reports or books of account. On the misapplication charge it is alleged that Morse was allowed to overdraw his account more than $200,000.

WOMEN AGAIN CHOOSE JAIL

Suffragettes Who Besieged Parliament, Arraigned and Jailed.

London, Oct. 14.—A great crowd surrounded the Bow street police court this morning when the women suffragists and the men without work, who were arrested yesterday during the disorders in front of the houses of parliament were arraigned. In the throng were many women wearing badges with the words "Votes for Women." The three leaders of the militant suffragists, Mrs. Drummond, Mrs. Pankhurs, and Miss Cristabel Pankhurst, demanded a trial by jury. Their cases were postponed until Oct. 21.

Police Supt. Wells testified that traffic had been disorganized for four hours and that eight policemen had been injured by the demonstrators.

Miss Pankhurst acted as attorney for Mrs. Drummond and Mrs. Pankhurst, and her cross-examination of Supt. Wells furnished much amusement for the spectators. Most of the other prisoners were ordered to give bonds for their good behavior with the alternative for from one to two months.

As on previous occasions the women elected to go to jail. When one of them was offered her freedom on her personal recognizance she said to the presiding magistrate: "You won't get any of my money. I will go to prison. Down with Asquith." Another declared that she had not obstructed the police, far from it, it was the police who had obstructed her.

LAUGH AS SHOT COMES OUT FACE

St. Paul Thugs Bid Bullet Wounded Victim Cheery Goodby.

St. Paul, Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Starting to investigate the cause of pistol shots as he stepped off a car, J. M. Byrnes, was held up by thugs, and making a resistance, was shot in the face, two teeth being knocked out. He is painfully, but not seriously injured.

The thugs had just got through with Ralph Fry, son of Dr. Christian Fry, president of the board of school inspectors, and Ed Fitzgerald, a university classmate, and were firing a parting shot at their victims to frighten them further, when Byrnes appeared on the scene. With two pistols leveled at his head, Byrnes was told to hold up his hands.

Byrnes is an athlete, and under the impression that the two thugs, who were about his age, were carrying out a bluff, started to remove his coats and give the couple a good threshing.

As he was getting ready to pitch in one of the pistols was discharged. The bullet struck him in the face, shattering two teeth and badly lacerating the flesh. The bullet came out of the cheek.

The robbers thought it was a good joke and bidding Byrnes goodbye, left him lying on the sidewalk.

SUPERIOR NEWS

DAYS WITHOUT FOOD.

Man in Extreme Want Discovered in Lonely Shack.

In a lonely shack near the north end of the Wisconsin Central Nemadji river bridge, Sheriff Bird, yesterday found a man half crazed from the want of food. He was scantily clothed, and the few garments on his back were in rags.

A complaint had been sent to the sheriff's office that a strange man had been seen walking up and down the Wisconsin Central tracks near the Nemadji river most of Monday night. The stranger was lodged in the jail last night and proper food and clothes given him. It was learned by an interpreter that he was about 40 years old, and that his last job had been on railroad work. He had in some way lost his money and had been without food for several days.

DELAY IS UNLIKELY.

City Clerk Says Machines Will Take Care of Voters.

Some fear that there will be a light vote in Superior on Nov. 3, on account of the voting machines, which will be used there for the first time this election. It is thought by some that because the method of voting is new, that there will be delays.

City Clerk Wilcutts does not believe this. He says there will be one machine in each o the sixteen precincts. He figures that a vote can be cast by the voter on a machine in 15 seconds, and that the polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 at night.

It is not expected that there will be over 700 votes in any one precinct.

Tax Levy Fixed.

The annual tax levy was fixed by the city council last evening at $446,000, of which $260,000 will be required to run the city for the year, and $25,000 will be put into a new high school building fund. For the mahtenance of the public schools $161,000 was set aside. The $446,000 does not include the tax levied or sewer improvements which, according to the basis of taxation, will run to approximately $6,000.

Talks on Good Roads.

A. R. Hirst of the state geological survey addressed an audience of fair size at the Commercial club, last evening. He spoke on "Good Roads in the City and Country."

Next Meet in Superior.

Word was received last evening at the Commercial club from Deputy Game Warden John Craig, who is at Lawton, Okla., attending the meeting of the League of Sportsmen, that the National League of Sportsmen will hold their 1909 meeting in Superior. This will bring hundreds of delegates from all over the country to Superior.

Boy is Drowned.

Henry Lenroot Nichols, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Nichols, was drowned last evening in a shallow pool, but a few hundred feet from his home. The last he was seen alive he was playing about the yard at 6 o'clock. The body was later found lying in the pond. Two doctors worked over the body for several hours, but were unable to bring back life.

AERIAL WARFARE.

Harper's Weekly: While the heavier than air vessel is capable of swifter speed than the balloon, its far from completed stage of evolution and the dangers attendant on its operation must, it is considered, for some time to come militate against its use for any purposes of practical value. At best it would be limited to carrying of small weights at a high rate of speed. The speed of the dirigible balloon, on the other hand, is sufficient for all ordinary purposes, and its large carrying capacity and extended cruising radius render it the only possible medium for warlike operations in the air.

The proposal of the signal corps officers is to establish dirigible balloon stations at various points along the coast, such as Boston, Norfolk and Charleston, on the east shore; Mobile on the south, and San Diego, San Francisco and Bremerton on the Pacific, where they would form an invaluable adjunct to coast defense. Now that all the military powers of Europe are building dirigibles, it is held that the United States cannot afford to be left behind.

Contracts have been entered into with American inventors to obtain both dirigibles and aeroplanes, and a thorough trial of these will be made at Ft. Myer, Va., during the coming fall.

The construction of these air vessels by all the great powers is a striking commentary upon the action of the Hague peace conference, which prohibited the discharge of explosives and projectiles from balloons. This declaration was ratified by the United States on March 27 last, and the United States is practically the only great power which has signed it. At the same time the discharge of explosives from balloons has always been considered as against the rules of civilized warfare, even in Europe.

It is claimed that the purpose of these vessels is to observe the movements of the enemy alone; but it is self-evident that, if attacked by shell fire, the occupants of the balloon would use all human endeavor to put the hostile guns out of commission.

HOME RECIPE REPRINTED

Many Thin Women Now Pretty and Attractive.

SOCIALLY CHARMING, TOO.

Much interest is manifested by the fair sex in anything that tends to add charm and attractiveness to the human form divine. There was recently published the formula of a famous beauty doctor who became wealthy in the profession of figure culture. Many of our famous actresses and society ladies, it is claimed, owe to her science the charming and exquisite proportion of figure which they enjoy. Many so-called patent developers have proven worthless, but if we are to judge from the results obtained by several in this city, the following prescription really deserves the title "Friend to the unattractive and undeveloped."

So rapid and thorough is the treatmen that one can almost "see the flesh grow." One young matron had to prove her identity to her husband, after a month's absence, during which time she had used the home treatment. An increase of six inches is not unusual after a month's treatment. The treatment differs from all others and can readily be prepared at home.

Go to any druggist and get separately, two ounces of glycerine, three ounces of rosewater, one ounce tincture of cadomene compound, and five cents' worth of borax. Mix the glycerine and tincture cadomene, shake and let stand two hours. Then add rosewater and a teaspoonful of borax. Apply morning and night, rubbing until absorbed; then wash with hot water and soap; dry thoroughly. Continue a few weeks and beautiful development rewards the effort.

SUIT OUTGROWTH OF MINNESOTA CASE.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 14.—In the United States district court was begun the trial of the suit of Theodore R. Converse, receiver against Edward H. Tibbetts. The amount claimed is $22,000. This case is the outgrowth of the financial difficulties of the Minnesota Thresher Manufacturing company, the defendant, as owner of stock, being sued to recover assessments amounting to $19,584, with damages of $2,500. About 200 suits will be brought in this state by the receiver.

The company was organized in 1884, and stock to the amount of $7,000,000 issued. In 1901, Mr. Converse was appointed receiver. The case is being heard before Judge Platt and a jury.

Had a Close Call.

Mrs. Adda L. Croom, the widely known proprietor of the Croom Hotel, Vaughn, Miss., says: "For several months I suffered with a severe cough, and consumption seemed to have its grip on me, when a friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. I began taking it, and three bottles effected a complete cure." The fame of this life saving cough and cold remedy, and lung and throat healer is world wide. Sold at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

AUTHOR WILLED HIS BRAIN TO COLLECTOR.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 14.—The brain of Dr. Alexander Wilder, the journalist and author of many works on evolution, philosophy, physiology and medicine, was bequeathed to Prof. Burt Green Wilder of Cornell university by the will of Dr. Wilder, which was filed for probate. Dr. Wilder was president of the School of Philosophy of New York. He declared in his will that if Prof. Wilder of Cornell desired to add his brain to the professor's collection, he desired it to be done. Prof. Wilder has an unusualy complete collection of brains.

Wives and Mothers

Cure the Drinking Husband by Using Orrine—Can be Given Secretly.

No more terrible affliction can come to any home than the craving of husband, father or son for strong drink. We appeal to wives, mothers and sisters to save the husband and father or the brother or son with Orrine, a scientific treatment for drunkenness.

If your husband or son has fallen a victim to the drink habit, stop pleading, scolding and crying. Use Orrine, which is recommended by thousands of leading druggists throughout the country because they know the good it has accomplished.

For Every Man Who Drinks Some One's Heart is Aching.

Hundreds of letters attest the remarkable cures made by Orrine. Polk Miller Drug company of Richmond, Va., write: "Mothers and sisters have told us of husbands and brothers, who since they were given Orrine (in most cases without their knowledge), seem to have lost all desire for drink. Thus your preparation has brought much comfort and happiness to once desolate homes."

The patient voluntarily takes Orrine No. 2 in pill form; or the secret remedy, Orrine No. 1, which is in powder form, and as it is perfectly colorless, tasteless and odorless, can be given in food or drink without the knowledge of the user. The price of either form is $1. The craving for strong drink will be destroyed; in fact, the drink is not missed when Orrine is used.

You run no risk whatever in using this remedy as it is sold on an absolute guarantee to effect a cure or money refunded. There is no loss of time or absence from home or business, no sanitarium treatment. In fact, Orrine strengthens the nerves and restores general good health while curing the drink habit. Booklet on how to cure drunkenness, free on request, mailed in plain sealed envelope. Correspondence confidential. The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C.

It has been sold for a number of years at Kugler's Drug Store and is reported as having done much good in this city.

WANT FRESH AIR AT THE ARMORY

Many complaints were made regarding the bad ventilation of the Armory on Monday evening, when Governor Cummins spoke. The air was stifling, and many persons were forced to leave because of the discomfort which they experienced. The Herald has received several letters complaining about this state of things, and expressing the hope that the committee in charge of Governor Johnson's meeting tonight will see that the windows are opened so that the audience may have plenty of fresh air.

BUILD FACTORY IN THIS PLACE

Montpelier, N. D., cO.t 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry J. Deere has returned from Duluth and the East where he has been for a month organizing a company to handle his patent lubricators. A company has been organized and it is expected to be in its own building and manufacturing plant by April 1. The capital is placed at $50,000 and the incorporators are Henry J. and Louie T. Deere, of Montpelier, Prosper Deere, Joseph Ryan and A. T. Park of Duluth. The officers of the company are as follows:

The company is incorporated under the laws of Minnesota to run for thirty years and the indebtedness is limited to $30,000. The principal places of business are at Duluth and Montpelier. The lubricators are force feed and may be attached to lubricate the gears. A plant costing $15,000 to $20,000 will be erected at once and Manager Deere may spend most of the winter in Duluth superintending the work.

CLEWS OPPOSES GUARANTY PLAN

Says It Would Place Premium on Unsound Banking.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 14.—"I am most strenuously opposed to the government guarantee of bank deposits, as it is a measure unsound in principle and fraught with great danger, both to the government and the business of the country."

So said Henry Clews, of New York, in opening an address before the Baltimore chapter of the American institute of banking.

"A guaranty system would destroy," he said, "the increase of sound banking and place a premium upon unsound banking, so that the reckless and inefficient banker would be on the same footing with the prudent and experienced banker. It is socialistic in its tendency and a far-away cry from true democratic principles, which oppose excessive centralization of power."

NEW YORK ASKED TO PAY OLD NOTE

Paper Bears Date of 1771 —Now Amounts to Over $39,000.

New York, Oct. 14.—A ten pound note of the English colony of New York, issued Feb. 16, 1771, before the Declaration of Independence, has been presented to Comptroller Metz with a request for payment. He is staggered by the figuring of his experts, who inform him if the city is obliged to redeem the note, with compound interest to date, it will have to pay over $39,000. Metz has asked the corporation counsel for advice.

The note was sent to the comptroller by a commercial agency. It is in a good state of preservation, and bears the following:

"By the law of the Colony of New York, this bill shall be received in all payments in the treasury for 10 pounds.
"February 16, 1771.
"Walter Franklin,
"Samuel V. Hancock."

The bill has the number 15,466, and carries also the ominous warning: "'Tis death to counterfeit."

BONAPARTE MAKES REPLY TO DANIELS.

GIVES TRUST PROSECUTIONS.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Attorney General Bonaparte has replied to a letter from Josephus Daniels, chairman of the press bureau of the Democratic national committee at Chicago, in which he complains that in the attorney general's answer to his first inquiry as to trust prosecutions he had not differentiated between the prosecutions under the Sherman anti-trust law and those under other laws.

Answering the inquiry specifically the attorney general stated under the Sherman anti-trust law passed in 1890 there have been sixty-five proceedings in all, fifty-six under Republican and nine under Democratic administrations, forty-six since Mr. Roosevelt became president in September, 1901 and nineteen during the preceeding eleven years. Among the prosecutions of the Democratic administration the attorney general says, is included resistance to the petition of Eugene V. Debs for a writ of habeas corpus. It is also asserted that five out of nine proceedings under Democratic rule were directed against labor organizations and their leaders and that under Republican rule there have been in all three such proceedings out of fifty-six.

DIVER BOUNDS FROM NETTING, IS KILLED

Decatur, Tex., Oct. 14.—Ollie McKenzie, professional high diver, was almost instantly killed at the fair grounds, when he dived eighty feet, striking the netting feet foremost. McKenzie rebounded high in the air, falling head foremost on the outside, crushing his skull and breaking his neck.

DUKE BROKE ENGAGEMENT.

Report Says It Was Nobleman Who Ended Elkins Romance.

Rome, Oct. 14.—It was from the Italian end of the Abruzzi-Elkins romance that the affair was called off according to reliable information. It is announced that the duke of the Abruzzi will not go to America to claim the daughter of Senator Elkins as his bride.

The queen is said to have played a part in this fiasco of Cupid. It is even said that Louise Lonsdale, the actress who sued Blaine Elkins for breach of promise, had the ear of the queen and poisoned her mind against the American alliance.

WARNING TO TAFT

Not to Talk on State Issues on Connecticut Tour.

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 14.—The manufacturers who filed a written protest against the nomination of George L. Lilley as the Republican candidate for governor have again entered the field, sending to the national committee a protest against permitting Mr. Taft to say anything savoring of indorsement of Lilley when the presidential candidate makes his one-day tour of the state on Oct. 27.

The manufacturers say they would prefer that Mr. Taft keep out of the state altogether, but that if he does come the program should be changed so that Candidate Lilley shall not act as his pilot and fellow speaker.

It is estimated, too, that the manufacturers who contributed $25,000 to the national campaign fund may charge breach of faith on the part of the national committee. They say they stipulated that not a cent of their money should be used in the state campaign and that Mr. Taft's flying visit with Mr. Lilley on board the special train, and publicly on view as the presidential candidate's friend and coworker, is worth much more to the Lilley cause than would be any sum of money.

In their letter they assert that the state is now safe for Taft, but that his open indorsement of Lilley may cause a revolt.

CRUELTY IS CHARGED.

Mrs. August Ramstad Asks Divorce From Her Husband.

Mrs. Augusta Ramstad, through her attorney, J. H. Whitley, filed a suit for divorce Tuesday against her husband, Charles Ramstad.

She says that she is 28 years old, and that her husband is 36. They were married in Superior, in October, 1896, and have one child, a boy, 7 years old.

The petition says that he has repeatedly abused and beaten her and that life with him is no longer bearable. Mrs. Ramstad says that her husband is a plumber, and is employed at a salary of $110 a month by the American Heating company.

She asks that the court give her the custody of the child and an interest in $2,400 worth of stock in the American Heating company, owned by her husband.

STRIKERS LOSE JOBS.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sixteen laborers, part of the night crew working on the new power station, Saturday afternoon, demanded an increase of 5 cents an hour. The men were being paid 20 cents an hour. Upon being refused they failed to go to work. The company say that they can get all the men they want at the wages they are paying and that they have discharged the strikers and will put on new men.

People Will Talk You Know

And that's the reason why Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines are advertised so little now-a-days. They have made hundreds of thousands of cures in the past 40 years, and some of the grateful people whom they have restored to health are to be found almost everwhere. There's scarcely a hamlet that don't contain some. Look them up. Interview them. They are living, walking, active advertisements

For Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines.

You can believe your neighbors. Therefore ask them. What cured them will very likely cure you, if similarly afflicted—only give them a good, fair trial.

It's a good, sound, common sense policy to use medicines only of KNOWN COMPOSITION, and which contain neither alcohol nor habit-forming drugs. The most intelligent people, and many of the most successful, conscientious physicians, follow this judicious course of action. The leading medical authorities, of all schools of medicine, endorse the ingredients composing Dr. Pierce's medicines. These are plainly printed on wrappers and attested under oath. There's no secrecy; an open publicity, square-deal policy is followed by the makers.

We have a profound desire to avoid all offense to the most delicate sensitiveness of modest women, for whom we entertain the most sincere respect and admiration. We shall not, therefore, particularize here concerning the symptoms and peculiar ailments incident to the sex for which Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has for more than 40 years proven such a boon. We cannot, however, do a better service to the afflicted of the gentler sex than to refer them to Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a great family doctor book of 1000 pages, bound in cloth and given away gratis, or sent, post-paid, on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps—to cover cost of mailing only, or 21 cents for paper covered book. All the delicate ailments and matters about which every woman, whether young or old, single or married, should know, but which their sense of delicacy makes them hesitate to ask even the family physician about, are made plain in this great book. CAPT. STEVENS IS SATISFIED

Will Not Ask Investigations of Alleged Election Frauds.

It is understood that Capt. D. E. Stevens has given up all thought of asking for a grand jury investigation of alleged election frauds at the recent primary election in the Hibbing district. While under the impression that he had not received a single vote in Hibbing or the township of Stuntz, he said he would ask for an investigation, but when the official records were shown him, proving that he was credited with fifty-seven votes in Hibbing, and 113 votes in the township of Stuntz, he changed his mind.

"When I spoke of taking the matter before the grand jury I thought I had not received a single vote in Hibbing," said Capt. Stevens, who was a candidate on the Republican ticket for the nomination for sheriff. "I got this impression from published reports, which I took to be correct, and which seemed to show that not a single ballot had been credited to me. I knew I could produce forty or fifty affidavits that as many men had voted for me, and felt that I would be justified in asking the grand jury to look into the matter. The fact that Hibbing really gave me fifty-seven votes, as shown in the official returns, and the township of Stuntz 113 votes, puts a different complexion on the situation."

COMMISSION TO MEET THURSDAY

Chisholm Will Ask for All of Fire Relief Fund.

A delegation from the Chisholm, Minn., Commercial club will appear before the fire relief commission appointed by Governor Johnson tomorrow, to ask that all money raised for the relief of fire sufferers be expended in the burned-over districts.

The delegation was to have been in Duluth today, but it was so late before arrangements could be made that the meeting was held over until tomorrow. The commission will get together in Mayor Haven's office at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and will receive the Chisholm men.

The Chisholm organization maintains that if any money is left in the relief fund after the actual needs of the sufferers are taken care of, it should be turned over to the business interests of the town, for them to use in making a new start. The likelihood of this being done is not considered very strong, however.

MUCH SMOKE, BUT LITTLE FIRE

Thick, choking smoke, almost as oppressive as that which was blown into the city during the disastrous forest fires on the range early in September, filled the air yesterday afternoon and caused much speculation as to the possibility of dangerous forest fires existing in the vicinity of the city.

Thus far, nothing has developed to indicate that a renewal of fires of the early fall is likely. People coming in from the woods report that small bush fires are burning, but they are not at all menacing and there is little danger of their assuming threatening proportions. The woods are still quite dry, however, and settlers are on the lookout.

The amount of smoke in the air is no criterion on which to base estimates of the extent of the forest fires. A very small blaze in brush will create a large volume of smoke and while Duluth people may cough and rub their smarting eyes feverishly, the flames, which produce the smoke, are doing little damage.

KICK ON DRAW OF INTERSTATE

Street Car Passengers Say Needless Delays Are Frequent.

It required exactly 1 hour and 35 minutes for a street car to make the trip from Superior to Duluth this morning. Passengers on the belated car left Superior at 9 o'clock and reached Duluth at 11:35. The cause of the delay was the slow working of the draw of the Interstate bridge.

Complaints have been received over the slow method of operating the draw. It is said that when the whistle blows for the draw of the Northern Pacific bridge, the bridge tender of the Interstate bridge opens his draw and keeps it open, even if a vessel is a mile away from the bridge.

Delays have been frequent of late, it is said by passengers who have had occasion to use the street cars, and there is a general complaint against the methods of detaining cars a needless length of time.

POLICEMAN WHO SHOT, EXONERATED BY JURY.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After making a thorough investigation of the circumstances surrounding the case, and hearing the testimony of a number of eye-witnesses, the grand jury of Hennepin county has exonerated Patrolman John Connelly of all blame for the killing of little Theodore Hedine and the wounding of Miss Julia Churchill by bullets from the officer's revolver. The jury refused to indict Connelly for criminal negligence, returning a "no bill."

The officer is to be restored to his position on the police force, but Chief Corriston has not yet announced whether or not he will be put back on his old beat where the shooting occurred.

Those New Models in Warner

CORSETS

'Taking' Very Well at $1 to $3

There is much to know about corset models this season. There is a nicety in the adjustment that has not been needful before. To fit is one thing—to fit and create is another. These are the essentials in corset selection this season. The figure must be made and, in the vernacular of the day, "it is up to" the corset to build the base.

Slenderness is the proper contour, straight lines—that is, over the hips—the waist, of course, round and small as compatible with preserving the proportions.

We thought for you and actually have the make of corsets that combine the essentials. These models are here this week in full array and we but await the opportunity to show them to you. Salespeople trained in corsetry are ready to serve you well. The range of prices is from

$1.00 to $3.00

WANTS A JURY TRIAL.

David Christopher Charged With Selling Liquor Without License.

David Christopher, charged with selling liquor without a license, was arrested and taken into police court this morning. He pleaded not guilty, and asked for a jury trial. If the charge had been selling liquor after hours or on Sunday, there would have been no question as to his right to a jury trial, but it is claimed to be doubtful if he can demand a jury trial under the other offense. Judge Cutting, before whom the prisoner appeared, did not announce his decision one way or the other this morning.

Chistopher's place of business is at 228 Lake avenue south. The offense with which he is charged is claimed to have been committee Sept. 26. The reason for the long delay in making the arrest has not been given out. Chief of Police Troyer swore out the complaint, charging Chistopher with having sold two quart bottles of beer to one Julius Kleven.

CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Mart Adson Says Western Country is Again Prosperous.

Mart Adson, general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, returned this morning from a business trip to the Pacific coast with the information that business and commercial activity is showing a decided improvement in every part of the West.

"Crops are good in all of the western states," said Mr. Adson, "and there is a feeling of confidence among the people. Railroad construction is going ahead and there is a demand for labor, something that was not true at this time last year. The fruit crop of Washington was very good, and though the market conditions out there are not very good at the present time, the fruit growers are in a very much more prosperous condition than they were last fall.

"The lumber situation is undergoing a gradual improvement. The lumber men of the Pacific slope look for a gradual increase in the price of lumber and a steady increase in demand after the national election is decided. There is a steady demand for labor in the lumber industry and it is the opinion on the coast that many of the mills that have been closed since the business depression of last October, will reopen after the election.

"Washington has become a wheat raising state within the last few years, and the wheat crop was very good this year. Seattle and Tacoma have resumed their usual activity, having entirely recovered from the effects of the panic of last fall. They are making preparations for the Yukon exhibition at Seattle. The citizens of Seattle expect to entertain thousands of Eastern and Middle Western visitors next summer."

J. R. JOYCE BEING TRIED BY JURY

He is Charged With Selling Intoxicants on Sunday.

The case of J. R. Joyce, charged with selling liquor on Sunday at his saloon, 14 Second avenue west, is on trial before Judge Windom in municipal court today. The jury was drawn at the morning session of court, and Officer W. B. Bonham was examined before the noon hour. He testified as to conditions surrounding the arrest.

It is claimed that Mr. Joyce had his place of business open Sunday, Oct. 3, and that he sold intoxicants to customers, contrary to law. The police say they saw several men go in and out of the place, and that when the arrest was made several customers were in the saloon. A police officer gained entrance to the saloon, and then opened the door for brother officers to enter. Mr. Joyce claims he was giving the saloon its customary Sunday morning cleaning when the policemen appeared on the scene, and that he sold no liquor.

MORE TROUBLE FOR BULGARIA

The Diplomats at Sofia Think It Has Only Begun.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 14.—The German and Austro-Hungarian diplomatic agents in Sofia have made oral representations to foreign Minister Poprikoff asking Bulgaria to settle the dispute over the Oriental railroad, in Eastern Rumella, and indemnify the stockholders of the company before the question of the recognition of the independence of Bulgaria can be discussed. The government is willing to accede to this request insofar as the utilization of the line is concerned, but it will demur to the paying of parallel claims for property rights in this railroad to both Turkey and the stockholders.

Diplomats in Sofia are of the opinion that the troubles and embarrassments of Bulgaria have only begun.

Just a little while now and you can pick up the profits of your tailor and the ready-made clothier when I open my new store here on Superior Street, Saturday, Oct. 17.

That's the day that I'm going to open up in Duluth.

I'm going to make a suit or an overcoat to order from genuine Scotch goods for $15, and for $20 I'm going to make a suit or an overcoat from the real English material with the positive guarantee of perfect fit and in the very latest style to your liking—trimmings and finish of the very best.

I want every man in Duluth to understand that I'm strictly orthodox when it comes to business. My word is as good as money in the bank. I want you to be sure and come to my opening on Saturday, Oct. 17.

Take a peek at my materials—it will do your heart good. Put me down on your shopping list for Saturday.

Yours truly,

THUMBMARK SIGNATURE.

Goverament's New Method for the Indians.

Devils Lake, N. D., Oct. 14.—The first National bank of this city has received a check with the most peculiar signature that has ever come to the notice of local business men. The signature consists of the thumb mark of an Indian, made upon the check by pressing the thumb, covered with indelible lead, upon the surface of the paper.

It is said that no two men have the same kind of a thumb and that the tiny lines shown by the impression serve as an excellent identification. The check was cashed by the officials of the bank after the Indian had given proof of his identity by making an impression on another slip of paper, and the check has evidently been accepted, as nothing further has been heard of it. This system has recently been introduced by the government and works very satisfactorily where the Indians are unable to write.

CROOKSTON TO WELCOME

Young Men's Johnson Club Adopts Strong Resolutions.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Young Mens' Johnson club is making elaborate preparations for the appearance here of Governor John A. Johnson next Monday evening. There is to be a great torchlight procession and other features, the 150 members of the organization, which is composed of young men without regard to political affiliations, being determined to make the gathering the biggest political demonstration seen in Crookston for years.

The club at its meeting last evening adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The members of this club, regardless of political affiliations, believe that citizenship is of more importance than partisanship, and party loyalty is not equivalent to patriotism, be it

"Resolved, That without regard to political affiliations we hereby pledge ourselves to use all honorable means to secure the election of the Hon. John A. Johnson as governor of the state of Minnesota at the election to be held in said state, Nov. 3, 1908.

"In taking this step we fully relaize its import, and thoroughly understand that in doing so we are manifesting a spirit of independence in politics. We believe in state development; we believe that our first duty next to the nation is to the state; that our citizenship requires that in casting our ballot we be guided solely by the public welfare and not by mercenary or partisan motives. We concede that party organization is justifiable and perhaps necessary in our system of government, but we do not concede that the party label is of itself the supreme criterion. In its government the state, in our opinion is presumed to put forth one of the best if not its very best representative citizen.

Governor Stood Test.

"Governor Johnson has been tested in the highest office in the gift of the state, and has met every call whether at home or abroad with much ability, dignity and broadth of understanding that today Minnesota is in the forefront of the states, and the eyes of the nation are turned to it in a manner never before equalled in its history. His administration of his office has tended to the advancement and progress of the internal affairs of the state, and any citizen of the state can with pride point to such citizenship and to the great governor of the state in any assemblages, or at any place in the nation.

"Without disparagement of Governor Johnson's opponent, we therefore believe that we are justified in our political action in this respect, and so believing form this organization, nor do we concede that in so doing we in any manner betray our allegiance to the principles of the platforms of the respective national party to which we may belong, for to our opinion Governor Johnson is the personification of the best American citizenship, and good American citizenship is never inimical to the good principles of any national party. We therefore unanimously pledge our efforts collectively and individually to the success of Governor Johnson at the coming election."

SUICIDE UNEXPLAINED.

Minneapolis Bank Clerk Kills Self for No Known Reason.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—Despondent over troubles unknown to his parents or intimate friends, Arthur P. Peterson, clerk in the Security National bank, committed suicide Monday near the city limits at Forty-second avenue north.

The body was found in a grove some distance from the street by workmen who were walking through the woods on their way home.

Neither Peterson's parents nor friends could tell the police why he ended his life. He was in good health, and business troubles could not have worried him, because he was a statement clerk and had no access to the funds. He was well thought of at the bank, where he had worked four years.

KRAUSE HAD WEAPON.

Convicted Man Would Have Taken Life With Knife.

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 14.—All unwittingly, J. E. Lehr, counsel for Paul Krause, convicted of the murder of his divorced wife, saved the prisoner from committing suicide.

While being taken to the state prison the murderer confessed to the undersheriff, George Houser, that he had a caseknife all sharpened and ready to slit his throat hid in the cushion of his chair.

His counsel had told him he would have him out in a year through an appeal to the supreme court. This caused him to hold back from suicide, and after sentence was imposed, he was guarded every moment and had no chance to use the knife.

Search of the chair referred to brought forth the blade of a caseknife, sharpened on the cement floor of the cell, until it was as keen as a razor.

BIG STATE LOAN IS MADE AT LOW INTEREST.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—The highly favorable condition of Minnesota finances is reflected in the announcement made that the Capital National bank has just bought from State Treasurer Dinehart $1,000,000 worth of state warrants, bearing interest at the low rate of 4 per cent.

The details of this big transaction are equally flattering to the financial condition of the bank, of the state government, and of the business community.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the annual meeting of the Northwestern Consolidated Milling company yesterday, Brayton Ives of New York was elected president to succeed Albert C. Mr. Loring, who recently appointed one of the receivers of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills company, limited, said today that it was considered better that he should not have interests with the Consolidated company and with the Pillsbury-Washburn company at the same time, so he withdrew from the former.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A prominent young man of St. Cloud, who is a Republican, and whose business takes him into the northern part of the state, reports that he finds the sentiment for Johnson very strong.

"Another man and myself have taken a great many polls on the trains in the northern part of the state," he said. "We polled the train that left Brainerd the morning after Jacobson spoke in that city. The vote stood, Johnson, 29; Jacobson, 8. On president it stood Taft, 22; Bryan, 10; Debs, 6, and Moore, 2. In many of the polls we have taken, Bryan leads for president and I have been very much surprised at the large percentage of votes for Debs."

AMONG HIS FRIENDS.

Governor Johnson is in St. Louis county today, completing his tour of the iron ranges, and tonight he will appear before the voters of Duluth at the Armory.

His trip yesterday and today through the iron country has been a triumphal progress, attended at every step by unbounded enthusiasm, large crowds appearing everywhere and testifying their appreciation of his record and their pride in him by the warmest greetings ever extended to a public man in this county. Everywhere the warmth of his reception exceeded even that of two years ago, when after a similar heart-to-heart association with the voters of this country he was given a tremendous vote at the election. The indications now point to a far greater vote for him at the coming election, which should at least double his majority in this county of two years ago.

It is not remarkable that the voters of Duluth and St. Louis county should make their reception of Governor Johnson enthusiastic. He has been their friend, as he has been the friend of all sections of the state. He has done more to forward the development of Northern Minnesota in his four years as governor than was done in all the previous history of the state. He has stood for broad and enlightened policies that have brought tangible benefits to Northern Minnesota and St. Louis county. He has made a splendid state executive, and the state is proud of the national fame that has come to him. On the other hand his opponent has always been a consistent and vindictive opponent of Northern Minnesota, opposing measures that promised it good and supporting measures that promised it harm.

Governor Johnson is thrice welcome to St. Louis county and to Duluth, and he is assured that this section yields place to no other in its loyalty to him.

Nothing so marvelous, and at the same time so promising, has happened in the history of American politics as the present tendency of partisans to become citizens and of voters to place character and principle above mere party considerations.

It is marvelous because of the long years of straight voting with men who voted as they pleased classed contemptuously as "mugwumps," that preceded it. It is promising because just as under the rule of blind partisanship the parties went wrong and turned their machinery over to the agents of selfish privilege, so under the rule of independent voting the parties are being forced back to their allegiance to the people.

When the voters swallowed blindly whatever candidates and principles the bosses presented to them, and the campaign funds were provided by special privilege, the parties worked for special privilege and not for the people, who were puppets in their hands. The voter who continued that condition by his negligence was doing ill not only to his country, but to his party; because sooner or later corruption was bound to become so great as to imperil the very life of the party guilty of it.

On the other hand, the voters have found that the best way to keep their parties in the right path is to rebuke them when they go wrong. If the voters will blindly accept bad and inferior candidates, the parties will furnish them. If the voters intelligently and persistently demand good candidates, the parties must furnish them or die.

So there has come about in this land a breaking down of party lines. Blind, unseeing bosses still persist in attempting to foist untrustworthy and unworthy candidates upon the members of their parties, and when they do the voters reject them. So it is that in Minnesota we have had a Republican electoral college, but a Democratic governor. So it is that in Oregon, in Massachusetts, and in other states, we have had similar conditions that would have seemed astounding a dozen years ago but are now every day matters.

So it is, for instance, that the Republican machine in Minnesota, having resorted to the experiment of appealing to the voters with an inferior candidate for governor, a man by no means representative either of his state or of his race, are facing another crushing defeat.

JACOBSON COMING TO DULUTH.

The local Republican organization has given it out that J. F. Jacobson is going to visit this community during the campaign, and that about Oct. 22—the dates are not definitely fixed yet but we await with palpitating interest the pregnant details of this momentous event—he will appear in Duluth and upon the ranges.

This is splendid news. Governor Johnson is in St. Louis county today, and he will speak at the Armory tonight. The people of St. Louis county are having a chance to hear and to see him. After that, it is only fair that the Republicans should give them a chance to see Jacobson, too.

This is essential to a fair consideration of the issues of the governorship campaign, which issues are Johnson and Jacobson. Having seen and heard Johnson, the people should hear and see Jacobson; and after a calm comparison of the two men, they will vote their convictions as to which of the two will make the better governor. For after all, that is the only question before the people in this campaign. Let every voter go to the Armory tonight and see Governor Johnson, and then go and see Jacobson when he comes.

But there are other reasons why it is good news that Jacobson is coming to St. Louis county. The people want to hear from him. He has a record. The Herald has been doing its best to lay that record before the people of Northern Minnesota. It isn't through yet, and the record is long, but the salient points will be placed before the voters before election day dawns. In giving that record it has become necessary to touch upon matters of vital interest to the people of Northern Minnesota. As to these matters, the record of Jacobson is one of consistent and bitter hostility.

The people want to hear from Jacobson about these things. There are doubtless some pointed questions they would like to ask him. Not only this section, but the entire state will be interested in his answers, and therefore it is good that his appearance is scheduled for next week, far enough ahead of election day so that the knowledge of his explanations need not be confined to this corner of the state.

ANOTHER NEW YORK SUN FIT.

Says the New York Sun: "Since the war of secession and the reconstruction period no two men have wrought or planned more injury to the reserved rights of the several states and their people than Roosevelt or Bryan. No patriotic American should shut his eyes to the tendency and ultimate consequences of their 'policies.' In the present crisis of our affairs every conservative voter should cling to the letter and spirit of the existing Federal Constitution as the shipwrecked mariner clings to the rock of safety. Roosevelt and Bryan both urge amendments to that Constitution.

"It is difficult to understand how any voter who has a head on his shoulder capable of forethought can now contemplate, without a shudder, a call by congress on the states to send delegates to a convention to propose amendments to the Constitution, and the assembling of such a convention."

Thus, in double-leaded hysterics, does the Sun dash madly to the attack on Roosevelt and Bryan for their friendship to the people and their treason to enthroned Property.

This scream from the accredited spokesman of the "interests" would be more luminous with a slight amendment, which The Herald takes the liberty of making. The last paragraph would then read as follows: "It is difficult to understand how any voter with a head on his shoulders AND OTHER PEOPLE'S EARNINGS IN HIS POCKET can contemplate without a shudder" the thought of amending the Federal Constitution.

But most of us have no earnings of other people in our pockets, so the prospect of a constitutional convention—if there is any such prospect—will be generally received with comfortable equanimity.

Why should the proposal to amend the Constitution be received with horror? Is this people tied hand and foot to a Constitution formed at a period when present conditions were not even dreamed of? If they find that there are parts of that Constitution that stand in the way of popular government and real economic equality, shall they hesitate to change them? The most immediate prospect of change is in the method of electing senators. It is proposed to substitute popular election of senators for legislative election of senators. Will the republic totter to its fall if this change is made, and if democracy is extended a little further out of concession to a people that has advanced much since the framers of the Constitution fearfully surrounded democracy with rigid restrictions? If there is such danger, then this is no republic, and this is no free people.

On every hand the movement for fair play to humanity and for curbing the tyranny of congested Property is met with that dread word "unconstitutional." Though every man in the nation may demand a particular reform, and may deem that reform essential to the real security of the republic, when the courts hurl down that anathema it stands in the way like a Chinese wall. If the courts properly construe the Constitution, it needs changing; otherwise there can be no progress. Should those who can hope for better things only by progress "cling to the letter and spirit of the existing Federal Constitution as the shipwrecked mariner clings to the rock of safety?" Or should they steer for the beacon light of constitutional amendment and seek refuge in the harbor of fair play to humanity?

THE NEWS TRIBUNE'S ANIMUS.

It is all very clear now, though we must confess that for a time we were puzzled to know whether the News Tribune's inability to distinguish between a royalty tax and a tonnage tax was due to characteristic deceit or to characteristic stupidity—for the deceitful are always more or less stupid.

But it is now made perfectly clear that the News Tribune is not talking for the plain people who would be injured by a tonnage tax such as Jacobson has stood for, but for the wealthy recipients of rich royalties who would be affected by a royalty tax if it could be practically applied.

The tonnage tax is a tax levied upon the iron ore produced from the mines—so much for every ton to go to the state and therefore so much per ton to be taken away from the local governments. It is a tax upon tangible property, and to take it for the state is to rob the local government of their just share of the taxes paid by the iron interests. Against this tax Governor Johnson has always stood firmly, while Jacobson has always supported it.

The royalty tax, on the other hand, is a tax solely upon the incomes of fee-owners, who are paid royalties amounting to so much per ton for every ton of iron ore produced. Governor Johnson's suggestion was that as those who receive these royalties pay no taxes on them, it would be a good thing if they could be reached. However, there are practical difficulties in the way which he carefully pointed out in his message of two years ago. For one thing, it would be unfair to hit Minnesota fee-owners while letting those who live in other states escape.

But the News Tribune's attitude is very suggestive. Can it be that its proprietor would permit his ownership of iron mines to influence the editorial policy of his newspaper?

The Herald has repeatedly beseeched the News Tribune to furnish a single reason why Jacobson should receive a single vote in Northern Minnesota. Why is it so dumb upon that subject?

Can you beat this weather anywhere?

The endeavor to find an issue against Governor Johnson is forcing the morning paper into very deep water.

Governor Johnson's tour of St. Louis county is a procession of triumphs that will reach its climax at the Armory tonight.

The issue in the governorship campaign is this and this alone: Will it profit the people better to re-elect Governor Johnson or to elect Jacobson? See and hear both, and vote accordingly.

An enormous mob of "suffragettes" has been making life miserable for the British parliament. Very likely the British authorities will have to extend suffrage to women as the price of peace.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"If you will take a county map of Southern Illinois and find out the county Centralia is in, I have forgotten the name of the county, you may be fortunate enough to spot the little dot that stands for Furni," began a traveling man at the Lenox last night.

"Furni is down near the Missouri line. It can't be called a town exactly, for its appeal to humanity consists of a general store, where the goods upon the shelves haven't changed since the war; a blacksmith shop and a few deserted houses. I forgot to mention the fact that a deserted shack that caused the fall of Furni still stands in lonely ruins, but Furni is so small and uninspiring that everything that can be claimed for it should be given.

"Poltay Furni is a quiet and prosaic place. No ripple of excitement causes the drowsy inhabitant to lift his head in startled wonder. Life runs on in an even and uneventful current in Furni; no echo of a petulent or excited outside world ever penetrates to the drowsy, calm and undisturbed precincts of Furni.

"It was here, however, that passions once raged and the flowing bowl drowned the uneventfulness of Furni in generous quaffs of Missouri rum and other equally stimulating spirits. Furni, before the days of the great revival, had a hard name even as far into the outside world as Centralia. Its reformation was complete and enduring.

"Hank Bowers started the whole thing. He built better than he knew. Hank was the hardest toper for miles around, and when he came to Furni, the citizens of that rambling imitation of the abiding place of men knew that things were going to happen. Nor were they disappointed upon the occasion I am to tell of. Hank was well filled with Missouri bitters before he routed up the first near-civilized pig that burrowed on the outskirts of the town. He was loaded, and he meant to become still more encumbered with the stuff that passed for liquor in Furni.

"Hank first stopped at the blacksmith shop and gassed a spell with old man Simmonds. He invited the old man out to have a drink. There was nothing in this world that the old man loved much better than he did a generous touch of the nose paint that they manufactured down across the Missouri line, and he readily followed the careening figure of Hank toward the gin mill.

"On the way to the hovel that passed for a drink abode the two men encountered Cy Young—no relation to the ball player—and it did not take much oratorical effort on the part of the two men to persuade Cy to darken the doorway of the liquor lodge. The three men had not been in the place more than an hour until the sound of their shouts and laughter caused the echoes to reverberate through the hamlet like the sound of hail in a tin pan. The population was curious and ventured to investigate.

"One by one the male members of Furni—there weren't very many—were gathered within sound of the rasp-like guffaws of Hank Bowers' voice. The lust of excitement was strong to their natures and they gathered like bees around the succulent honey. One by one they partook of the bounty of Hank. One by one they succumbed to the inviting generosity of the prodigal of Furni, and alas, say it gently, one by one they began to feel the stimulating effect of the strong spirits. In fact the whole of Furni's male population together with some settlers, who had come to Furni on various errands, was intoxicated, roaring, raving, drunk. That old Missouri liquor never did things by halves.

"There is a dispute in Furni today, as to the length of time of the Hank Bowers' orgy. Some aver that it lasted nigh onto five days; others say that the revelers came back to earth at the expiration of the third day of the Bowers' party. But three days is the conservative recollection. For at least that time the male population of Furni wavered between the condition of roaring, howling crazyness and a condition of deep and befuddled slumber.

"Local tradition says that women folks looked on distraught. Stories differ as to that. One story says that old woman Bowers came trudging in from the Bowers' farm and whaled her old man until the fumes of the Missouri liquor escaped with air-piercing howls he let forth. Anyway, the orgy came to an end. And like the sun after the storm, good came of the great evil of the men of Furni.

"Of course Hank Bowers received the blame of the affair. But then the others were forced to admit that the flesh was weak, and to this end it was resolved at the penitence meeting, that liquor should never more play a history making part in the affairs of Furni. The women folks helped wreck the saloon. It is said that even the saloonkeeper didn't dare to enter a protest. Furni purged itself of a cruel reminder of its fall into the paths of the unwary, and wrom the time that the men of Furni recovered from the headaches of the Missouri whisky, there has never been any use for the stuff among its citizens. The reformation was decisive and Furnia quit forever.

THE WEATHER.

The weather is still charming beyond description. This morning it was clear warm and splendid. The lack of rain is ringing dust and smoke again, and these are the only flaws in conditions. Yesterday's highest temperature was 68 degs. and last night's lowest was 54 degs. The weather man says it will be fair with moderate temperatures tonight and tomorrow. A year ago today it was bright and bracing.

The sun rose this morning at 6:25 and sets tonight at 5:23 making 10 hours and 58 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The storm in the Far Northwest is stationary over Alberta and British Columbia. During the past twenty-four hours it caused further rains over Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Western Montana, and warmer weather over Nevada and Utah. Falling pressures in the lake region, Ohio and Mississippi valleys are attended by higher temperatures. Rainy weather continued over Southern Florida and to the disturbance central over the West Indies. Generally fair weather and moderate temperatures may be expected in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight and Thursday."

GOVERNOR JOHNSON.

Thief River Falls Press: In November thousands of voters will give Governor Johnson their votes, not because they believe in Democracy, but because they believe in a big man for a big position, a man who has been and will be a credit to the state at every stage of the game. In this connection let us consider a common sense question. If a man capable and trustworthy in every particular, had worked for you four years, would you discharge him simply because another, even though he have the best of recommendations, wanted the job? To attain the same end, would you take chances when you had a sure thing.

Moorhead Independent: A man who is good enough to be a presidential possibility of this nation is good enough to be a governor of Minnesota. Don't you think so? Think it over.

Middle River Pioneer: The Thief River Press comes out strongly for Governor Johnson. The Press is one of the few Republican papers that is not driven by the party whip to support every nominee of the party regardless of their fitness. It recognizes the fact that Governor Johnson so completely overshadows Mr. Jacobson in qualifications for the governorship, that all question of party, so far as the governorship is concerned, should be cast to the winds.

Warroad Plaindealer: As good a thing as need be said of Governor Johnson, is that in his four years' record as governor his opponent can't find a single thing to make the basis of a common sense issue against him. Poor Jake! It's hard lines. And after you'd gone over to the interests in order to get that nomination, too.

Crookston Journal: The people of Minnesota are proud of John A. Johnson and his record is an asset which the people are satisfied with. That he will be re-elected in November is certain and it is equally certain that he will secure from Polk county a vote that will surprise many of the party politicians who believe themselves to be wise.

Breckenridge Gazette (Rep.): About the only thing that is urged against Governor Johnson in this campaign is that he has had the office long enough. This brings up the question, "Is it possible to have too much of a good thing?

Albert Lea Standard: Every intelligent citizen of the state now perfectly well realizes, and if he is candid, freely admits that Governor Johnson will be elected—there is not the least doubt of it, the fact is all-pervading in almost every community, and the only question remaining is the size of his majority. Whether it is to be 50,000 or 60,000 makes little difference; nevertheless no level-headed voter is likely to waste his vote and will take pride in the honor of helping to swell the majority to the biggest proportions.

Waverly Star: To defeat John A. Johnson this year would be to give a black-eye to your own state. No man in Minnesota's history has gained such national prominence as Governor Johnson, with such a record behind him and a promising future to face, it would be doing this state an injustice to defeat Johnson and eliminate Minnesota from national recognition by putting a man like the Republican candidate in office, who has no chance of ever benefitting his state to the extent that Johnson has, or who could never become a national figure. On the other hand, John A. Johnson is a national figure. He has all the qualifications of a statesman, and if elected this term will be the leading candidate for the nomination for president in 1912. Elect Johnson for governor this year and you have picked a president for 1912.

Breckenridge Gazette (Rep.): We are advocating Johnson's election because we believe he is the best man for the place. He has been governor of this state for four years and there is hardly a man in the whole commonwealth that will deny that he has made a good executive. His administration has been as free from the taint of graft and scandal as any in the state's history.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••Another chapter in the Shannon-Tribune fuss occurred yesterday afternoon on Superior street. Editor R. C. Mitchell, when in front of Parson & Hicks' meat market, was met by Charles E. Shannon, candidate for attorney general on the Prohibition ticket, who, without saying a word, grabbed Mr. Mitchell and gave him a right-handed blow squarely in the face. He then walked on, while Mr. Mitchell staggered against the building from the force of the blow.

•••Dean Hayes has signed a contract with the Eastern Minnesota railroad for the construction of the elevated track, from the Northern Pacific bridge to Sixth avenue west. The cost will be about $100,000. It is intended to build with wood, in order to save the delay made necessary by iron construction, and later the wooden trestle and trusses will be replaced with iron.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Nashville American: "A woman's 'No' means 'Yes.'"

"You think so?"

"I know so. Don't you?"

"No; I am all over that illusion. I am married."

"Nope," answered the farmer. "Babies is all growed up an' married off. How'd you like to put in the forenoon plowin'?"

"It isn't necessary," replied his wife. "I can tell you've been drinking without that."

Philadelphia Ledger: "So you discovered the North Pole?"

"I can hardly claim that," replied Peary modestly, "but I was there."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, I found that a miner had footed it from Alaska and was using the pole as a stake at one corner of his claim."

Houston Post: "It seems to me that you trust that convict beyond the bounds of prudence."

"Oh! he wouldn't dare to escape!"

"Why not?"

"Two wives are waiting for him to come out."

ROOSEVELT IS CHARGED WITH OFFERING JOB TO GET LABOR LEADER'S VOTE

KEEFE DENIES ROOSEVELT OFFERED HIM A POSITION

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 14.—President Keefe of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' association, when informed of the statement made at national Democratic headquarters in New York that he had been promised the position of commissioner general of immigration in return for his advocacy of the presidential candidacy of William H. Taft, entered a vigorous denial. After having the statement read to him, Mr. Keefe said: "I was not closeted with President Roosevelt at all. I did see him Oct. 3, but it was only a four or five minutes' audience at which several others were present. These included H. P. Morrissef, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and Gen. Powell Clayton. There were others that I did not know. I am of the opinion that every word that was said to me was overheard. The president did not offer me the position of commissioner general of immigration directly or indirectly then or at any other time. The executive council of the American Federation of Labor did not to my knowledge send out any circulars as is referred to in the dispatch from New York, consequently I could not have indorsed it."

Taft Refers to Keefe.

East Liverpool, Ohio, Oct. 14.—In his speech here, Mr. Taft said: "Mr. Daniel Keefe, head of the Longshoremen's union, with whom perhaps a number of my audience are acquainted, does not thiuk that I am a devil with horns. He is going to support me for the presidency because he says he has found in his dealings with me (we have had a good many), that I am just and fair to the interests that he represents as the head of the Longshoremen's union and one of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor."

True, Says Gompers.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 14.—President Gompers, when shown the statements of Keefe and the Democratic committee, refused to say anything except that he is preparing a statement which will be given out in a day or two and which will show the motive for Keefe's course. Gompers said that the charge set forth in the Democratic statement has been known to him for several days, and that he believes it to be well supported.

New York, Oct. 14.—The Democratic national committee, through John J. Gordon, assistant and acting chief of the press bureau at headquarters, last night made public the following statement:

"It is stated at national Democratic headquarters that President Roosevelt, by promise of office, has succeeded in having one of the big men of the American Federation of Labor desert President Gompers in his advocacy of the election of Mr. Bryan for the presidency.

"The labor leader in question is Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit, president of the International Association of Longshoremen, and one of the vice presidents of the Federation of Labor.

"The Democratic national committee alleges that Keefe and the president were closeted for several hours in Washington Saturday, Oct. 3, and the offer of being named commissioner general of immigration, made vacant by the death of Commissioner Sargent, was made in consideration of Keefe repudiating Mr. Gompers and the executive council of the federation.

"Keefe last Saturday issued a statement in which he said:

"'I am going to vote for William H. Taft.'

"It is pointed out that on Sept. 28 last the executive council of the American Federation of Labor issued a circular calling on organized labor to work for the defeat of Mr. Taft and Republican congressmen seeking reelection, and Mr. Keeefe authorized his signature to be attached to it."

HUNTERS GET BOUNTIES.

Upper Michigan Nimrods Draw Large Amounts.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Grenier and Ed Bushman, hunters, of Duncan township, were in Houghton for the purpose of applying for the bounties on four wolves and a wild cat. They delivered the scalps of the animals at the office of the county clerk and at the meeting of the county board received an order for $183, the total of the bounties, wolves at $45 each and wild cats at $3.

The hunters were picturesque appearing men. Bushman wore a big Stetson hat, a scarlet corduroy shirt and a yellow corduroy suit with tall yellow cruising boots to finish the picture. Grenier was shy the yellow suit but was otherwise clad uniformly with Bushman. The hunters say there are a lot of partridges near Silver mountain, where they killed the wolves, but that the deer will be scarce this fall owing to their having been driven out by forest fires.

BEMIDJI MAN FINDS MONTANA RATHER QUIET.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. A. McDonald has returned from Kallspel, Mont., where he went to look over the situation relative to lumbering in that state.

He states that the conditions as he saw them were far from being desirable to anyone looking for a change of location.

According to Mr. McDonald, there were about 2,000 men lying around who are out of work, and could not secure employment. The best offered to men who work in the woods was $35 per month, and as there was no buying of timber or cruising to speak of, there would be no demand for any kind of help in the lumbering operations.

North Dakota Register Day.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Voters who failed to participate in the primaries have an opportunity to register for the general election Oct. 27. It was generally construed by officials that those who failed to take advantage of the primaries could not register and vote till an investigation disclosed the mistake.

Lord Bacon Said, "Digest"

This is the Secret of Life in Business Or in Health.

It is claimed that Lord Bacon struck the prime keynote of life when he wrote: "Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested."

He wrote of books; many who have followed him have written likewise of life. The man who digests his business, makes success; the actor or actress who digests his or her art brings fame; the man who lives life and digests it as he should, lives as was the intention he should live.

It is not the food you swallow or taste that brings happiness to you; it is the food you digest.

If you swallow and taste and don't digest and chew, Nature cannot give you health, for you do not furnish the ammunition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain in pure, concentrated form the essences which, when they reach the stomach, turn dyspeptic conditions into those of healthy digestion.

These little tablets are dissolved in the mouth by saliva; they mix with this fluid and are passed down into the stomach, where they immediately set to work upon the food and digest it. They are many times more powerful than the human digestive fluids, and thus replenish Nature with those juices which sickness, abuse or wrongful eating have exhausted.

The world's best chemists in Europe and America agree on the ingredients best adapted to perfect digestion. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are these ingredients presented to the stomach in the most pleasant and lasting form.

Powders and liquids soon lose their effectiveness through chemical actions and decay. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made under terrific pressure, and their qualities are thus made lasting.

Forty thousand physicians prescribe and use these tablets, and every druggist sells them. Price 50 cents. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

"PUBLIC NOT INTERESTED IN IT," VIRGINIA HARNED ON DIVORCE

Private Life is Her Own, Declares the Actress, Refusing to Discuss Action of Nevada Judge.

"My public life belongs to the public, but my private life belongs to me. There is one thing I will not talk about, and that is my divorce action. The public is not concerned in it in any way and I refuse to discuss it."

VIRGINIA HARNED.

New York, Oct. 14.—Actress Virginia Harned, whose suit for divorce against Actor E. H. Sothern failed of success for the time being at least, gave expression to the above, after the evening performance at the Victoria, where she is appearing in a skit called "The Idol of the Hour." The Nevada judge, who holds her petition in abeyance does so because he does not propose to grant divorces to persons, who do not take enough interest in the proceedings to appear personally.

AERIAL BRIDGE TRAVELS AGAIN

Park Pointers Want Rakowsky Reinstated as Bridge Superintendent.

The aerial bridge is again running. It was put in commission at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The broken cable was spliced, and will be made to answer until a new cable arrives.

Park Point residents are very much dissatisfied with the numerous breaks of the aerial bridge, and they are circulating a petition which will be presented to the board of public works, in an effort to have Gustave Rakowsky reinstated as superintendent of the structure.

Mr. Rakowsky has announced positively that he does not want the job. Mrs. Rakowsky, in a visit to The Herald Monday to explain her husband's position, said he was already earning $35 a day at Two Harbors. This being true, he could not very well come to Duluth to work for $100 a month, even for the pleasure of living at home.

MUCH BUILDING IN UPPER MICHIGAN COUNTRY.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to a Marquette architect and superintendent of construction, the upper peninsula this season has had the best building boom in years; despite that in common with other regions throughout the country the district has experienced a serious business depression. He attributes the almost unprecedented building activity largely to the fact that the cost of both material and labor has been less than ordinarily is the case.

LONG IN POOR HOUSE.

Olmsted County Man Inmate for Twenty-Three Years.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 13.—Lewis Sinkfield, an inmate of the county poorhouse, and a man so old that he had forgotten his age, and only imperfectly remembered his name, is dead. A record of twenty-three years at the county poor farm is ended. Undoubtedly the aged man was 90 years old, for he was feeble when received into the county's care by Superintendent Moulton, on Nov. 5, 1885. He has been an honest, faithful soul, working as long as his strength would permit. His self-appointed task was to keep the wood supply up, and it was a point of honor with him never to neglect his duty. All trace of the relatives who cast him off years ago, has been lost. He died after some weeks of exceeding feebleness, due to his weight of years.

SAYS CANCEL OIL LEASE

Haskell Fires Another Hot Letter at the President.

Demands That Osage Indians be Given Just Compensation.

Kansas City, Oct. 14.—Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, who arrived here today from Guthrie, gave to the Associated Press a signed statement, addressed to President Roosevelt, contributing another chapter in the controversy arising from the leasing of 68,000 acres of Osage Indian oil lands.

"I shall," says the governor, in the course of his statement "insist upon the cancellation of this lease in the interest of these citizens of our state, or that congress take action to declare this improvident and unjust lease void, and secure for the Osage nation the just and reasonable compensation that other owners are receiving." The letter in full follows:

"To Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, President, Washington, D. C. Sir: I have just received a letter from Frank Pierce, acting secretary of the interior department, dated Oct. 9, stating that my letter to you, asking for an explanation as to the oil lease on the Osage lands, had been referred to his department.

Explanation Not Satisfactory.

"He attaches an explanation, which is not at all satisfactory. It contains practically nothing in conflict with my complaint. I agree that in 1896 the Democratic administration made a lease to E. B. Foster on the entire Osage nation for ten years, at 10 per cent royalty. At that time the nearest known oil production was about 700 miles from the Osage nation, so that the Foster lease in 1896 was a rank wildcat proposition and, of course, the usual pioneer royalty of 10 per cent was allowed. But, during the ten years, the field was developed and found to be unusually rich, and ten years at this low royalty was an ample reward to those who developed it.

"By 1905 Foster had transferred his lease to the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, a well-known branch of the Standard Oil company.

"Development showed that oil covered 680,000 acres, being the east part of the Osage nation, also extending north into Kansas, east into Indian Territory, and south into Oklahoma, and the whole era is known as the richest oil country in existence. The remainder of the Osage nation was barren.

"Congress gave you the power to fix the consideration that the Osage people should receive as their part of the oil value after the expiration of the ten-year lease. It was well known to you at that time what the sub-lessees were paying for small tracts in the Osage nation, and adjoining lands in the Cherokee nation, as the Cherokee leases passed through the interior department and their approval and the royalties and bonuses received by the land owners were a matter of record and approved in the interior department records. It is scarcely possible, that with these records before you, you failed to notice that $10 per acre cash bonus and one-sixth royalty was much below the average compensation of from $50 to even $100 per acre were received by the land owners.

Cites Cases On Record.

"A few cases found in the interior department records are as follows:

"The Lannon family, 700 acres, Cherokee nation, immediately joining the Osage nation, interior department lease made in 1903, cash bonus $40,000, royalty one-eighth.

"We have eight or ten similar leases where general public information shows cash bonuses substantially as large as the above and royalties running one-sixth, but your subordinate officers in charge of the Indian office at Muskogee, on orders from the interior department this morning, refused to permit examination of the records to confirm the same accurately, but they are subject to your investigation and you will find no doubt, that the Lannon lease was only an average lease.

"And numerous other leases adjoining the Osage nation, give you the opportunity to know that a bar on the eighth royalty, without any cash bonus to the Osage nation, was a gross outrage on that nation.

"Congress no sooner gave you the authority to fix the amount of compensation than the Osages filed a written request with you for an opportunity to be heard and produce evidence, which they could easily have produced, showing you that a cash bonus of $7,000,000 and one-sixth royalty would be indeed a moderate compensation to them.

"You neglected to give the Osages any opportunity whatever to me heard. The fact that 680,000 acres of rich oil land was the stake that the Standard Oil company was playing for, and the land owners denied the right to be heard, is something that will require a more lucid explanation than Mr. Pierce has seen fit to give.

Far Greater Value.

"Any practical business is ready to recognize that 680,000 acres in one tract of land is far greater proportionate value than the small tracts of a few hundred acres each, and therefore, the greater surprise that you should have fixed a royalty, (without any cash bonuses) much lower than the individual land owners were securing on small tracts. There were no such improvident leases being made in that whole combined field.

"Mr. Pierce suggests in his letter to me that as a matter of fact it was not known at the time that Sandard Oil was the real party in interest. I submit to you that the very fact that Messers. Guffey, Earnsdale and Senator Depew, well known Standard Oil representatives, with others of the same odor, making a personal appeal to you for this low royalty to the land owners, should have been ample evidence that Standard Oil was the real beneficiary.

"It was the same Senator Depew who induced you to grant the Prairie Oil & Gas company franchise over the protest of Secretary Hitchcock, less than one year before that time; and in this one transaction you gave the Standard Oil company a donation from the property of the Osage Indians of more than enough to pay for the famous twenty-nine million dollar fine.

"I shall insist upon the cancellation of this lease in the interest of our citizens of our state, or that congress take action to declare this improvident and unjust lease void, and secure for the Osage nation the just and reasonable compensation that other owners are receiving.

"Marvelous as it may seem, the difference between the royalty you fixed for this new lease, and the average amount received in the balance of the oil field, by land owners controlling their own property, is fully equivalent to a net loss of $10,000 to each and every member of the Osage nation and whether this gross injustice to our people was accomplished by your lack of consideration or in any other way, the authorities of the state of Oklahoma will not rest until this lease has been cancelled and justice done our people. Respectfully,

"C. N. HASKELL,
"Governor."

MENOMINEE COUNTY SAVES.

Doing Away With Fee System is Wise Move.

Stephenson, Mich., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—By cutting off the fee system under which justices of the peace and deputy sheriffs formerly were the beneficiaries in criminal cases, and by putting the sheriff on a salary, Menominee county has saved $11,000 in two years. Yet the shrievalty is still the best paying job on the list. Under the old order of things, the county jail was crowded most all the time, and for the care of each person confined therein the sheriff was allowed 50 cents a day; now it is a rare occasion that the prisoners number more than half a dozen. The sheriff is paid a salary of $100 a month, and he is allowed $150 for caring for prisoners and $50 for janitor's services. Aside from this, he has the use of a fine residence.

FIRE CRACKER IN BARREL CAUSED EXTENSIVE DAMAGE

De Smet, S. D., Oct. 14.—One man severely cut and bruised about the face and body, another with the bones in his hand shattered, and a building partly demolished, was the result at Oldham of the combination of a firecracker, a small boy and an empty gasoline barrel. The boy dropped the cracker into the barrel. The head of the barrel shot across the street, breaking the windows in the building opposite, while two bystanders were hit by the flying debris. The boy was not hurt.

AFRAID TO EAT MEAT?

Give Your Stomach a Good Eat Without Fear of Misery.

Let Diapepsin Digest Your Meals Until Stomach Gets Strong.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep a case of Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and regulate a sour Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why they cure Indigestion Sour Stomach, Heartburn and prevent at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion with the common every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe theirs is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which will putrefy in the entire digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

One candy-like Triangle, taken after eating, will promptly digest all your food, the same as a strong, healthy stomach would do it.

WOULD WORK INDIGENTS.

Plan Being Considered by Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city of Thief River Falls will spend $2,500 this year in caring for its poor. This amount is an increase of $1,000 over that of the last year, and the increase is causing the city council not a little worry as to the means of caring for this item of expense. In debating some means of overcoming this large and growing expenditure the council has about reached the conclusion that a poor farm, operated by the city itself and on which all the indigents might be placed and, where health would permit, be compelled to work for their maintenance, would be the best solution of the problem. By purchasing land now when it is held at a comparatively low figure, the investment would never prove a loss to the city, the poor could be made to a large degree self supporting, and the number applying for aid would be materially diminished. The matter has been taken up in earnest by the council and W. W. Prichard president, has appointed a committee consisting of Aldermen Ferder, Hoag and Ramstad and two citizens, Messrs. Bishop and Harlow, to investigate the proposition and make report at the first regular meeting of the city council.

SCRIBNER GOOD LOSER; CONGRATULATES OPPONENT.

Walker, Minn., Oct 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The decision of Judge McClenahan whereby Funck of Cass Lake was declared the Republican nominee for county attorney over J. S. Scribner of this city was received here yesterday.

When informed of the result, Mr. Scribner said, "I am a good loser; I congratulate Mr. Funck and I will give him my hearty support at the polls."

WOMEN WOULD-BE VOTERS RALLY 100,000; PARLIAMENT BARRICADES.

Mrs. Travers Symonds, Leader, Carried Bodily From Hall of British Lawmakers.

London, Oct. 14.—The climax of the suffragette campaign was reached when an normous mob hemmed in parliament and stopped traffic in all streets leading to Westminster. For more than three hours the crowds scuffled good naturedly with the police, interfered with theater goers, broke windows and disorganized things generally in the center of London.

The heroine of the day was Mrs. Travers Symons, formerly secretary to James Keer Hardie, the Socialist and independent member of parliament, who reached the door of the house of commons by strategy. The house was solemnly debating a bill to prevent children from cigarette smoking, when two women dashed past the doorkeeper to a position in front of the speaker's chair and shouted shrilly:

Three officials seized Mrs. Symons and carried her out bodily. She was then led to the outer door and dismissed. As a result of the coup, an order was issued that hereafter women shall not be admitted to the building on any pretext whatever.

The appeal issued by the suffragettes, a few days ago for 50,000 persons to help them "rush" parliament, was the most successful stroke yet. Not less that twice that number responded to their call, and nine-tenths of these were young people, who came to see the fun. There were also a few hundred of the unemployed and their sympathizers.

Parliament was in a state of siege. A close triple line of police was drawn around the three sides of the square in front of the building. The yard in front of the gates swarmed with people, and 200 guarded the gates against assault by water, which the women twice attempted. A small fleet of police boats also patrolled the Thames approaches.

All the mounted police in London and suburbs had been mobilized at this center and loads of hay were unstacked in the strees for the horses. The whole police force, together with cavalry, infantry and marines, numbering more than 5,000, was kept busy in restraining the pushing, struggling masses, especially about Trafalgar square, where the Nelson monument looked down upon dense crowds in all directions, with buses, motor cars and cabs, mostly filled with sight-seers, trying to thread their way through.

The police kept the streets adjoining the house of commons clear; elsewhere they endeavored to the best of their ability to keep the people moving. The crowds cheered, sang songs and hooted, giving voice to all the sarcastic remarks that a London crowd is capable of. These were aimed in a semi-good natured manner at the suffragettes, who, distinguished by their orange hats, swarmed about distributing tracts.

A delegation of thirteen suffragettes, which approached the police cordon and was formally refused admission to parliament, attempted a football rush, but the police chivalrously repulsed the women with the least possible roughness. Two bodies of the unemployed, however, which approached the line, were driven off with little saving grace, one across Westminster bridge and the other to St. James Park.

The police were pelted with vegetables and some stones in a few minor skirmishes that occurred, but nobody was seriously hurt. Twenty-four suffragettes and twelve of the unemployed were placed under arrest. Many persons fainted in the crush; a few were trampled upon and taken to the hospitals.

Mrs. Hankhurst, Miss Christabel Hankhurst and Mrs. Lawrence were summoned to court yesterday for inciting a breach of the peace; this morning the ycoly refused to obey the summons, but agreed to surrender themselves at 6 o'clock in the evening, which they did, spending the night in the Bow Street station.

The suffragettes and unemployed kept practically the whole police force on duty forty-eight hours.

WEST END

EBERHART WILL SPEAK

Lieutenant Governor is to Talk in the West End.

West End Republican Club Will Conduct the Rally.

Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart will be the principal speaker at a rally to be given in Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, Friday evening, under the auspices of the West End Republican club.

The committee appointed by the club at its last meeting, to make arrangements for the rally reported to the members, at the regular session in Sloan's hall last night, that the lieutenant governor would be present to deliver the principal address.

Richard F. Grant, candidate for the legislature, will give a short talk and there will probably be other speakers.

A number of candidates were present at the meeting in Sloan's hall last night. Among those who spoke were Sheriff Bates, J. T. Johnson, Aldermen Peter Olson and Alex Kennedy of the Sixth ward, Anton Borgen, Joseph W. C. Cumming and Roy Hood. President George M. Jensen presided.

The precinct organization was perfected, also. Andrew Horngren is chairman of this branch of the work in the Sixth ward and Angus MacAuley is chairman in the seventh ward.

MEETING IS POSTPONED.

Bema Clubmen Attending Political Gatherings This Week.

With political meetings coming so thick and fast this week, the members of the Bema club decided to hold no meeting. That being the case, there will be no session of the organization until next Monday, when the faithful will probably gather in Dr. Oredson's office to debate and, mayhap, to elect officers for the ensuing year.

The Bema club being a debaters' organization, the members are all interested in public speaking and most of them attended the Cummins meeting Monday night and will be on hand to hear Governor Johnson at the Armory this evening.

MINING FATALITIES.

Fifty-Eight Lost Lives in Copper Country During Year.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual report of Mine Inspector Dawe shows that during the year covered by the report there were fifty-eight mining fatalities in the Copper country.

The Italians figured prominently in the fatalities, eighteen of that nationality having been killed. This equals the high record for fatalities in the county. In 1905 the number was also fifty-eight, but during the year just closed there were 1,969 more men employed than in 1905. A number of minor accidents were also reported to the board.

IT MAKES FINE PAPER.

Minnesota Flax Straw Experiments Give Satisfaction.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eastern parties, who have been experimenting with Northern Minnesota flax straw find that the straw is producing a much finer grade of paper under a new process and they are greatly pleased by the outlook.

In samples sent they have found great variations. Further experiments are to be made with straw from different localities. The Easterners want several five-pound samples and the matter of securing the samples has been left to Secretary Thomas R. Brown, Jr. He expects that he will receive many of the samples. It is desired that the samples shall not be selected—just taken at random from the flax.

The progress of the experiments with the straw is causing a good deal of interest in the Northwest. Should it be definitely established that paper can be produced that can be sold profitably a factory will be established here.

Wright, state superintendent of public instruction, whose topic will be "The Trend of Public School Education;" Miss Emma C. Davis, supervisor of primary and kindergarten work at Cleveland, Ohio, who will tell of "Language Work, Its Promise and Purpose in Education," and Prof. F. D. Davis, superintendent of the Escanaba schools, who will speak upon the subject, "The Delinquent Pupil and the Vacation School." Sessions of the ten sections of the association will be held during the progress of the convention, and at these many papers will be delivered. The new officers will be chosen Friday afternoon, as will the place of the next annual meeting.

CLEANS UP NICE SUM.

Man Who Settled on Farm Eight Years Ago, Sells Out.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. D. Wolverton, who came to Minot with his family in 1900 and settled on the North Prairie six miles north of town, has sold his 320-acre farm to Vere Hoyt of Kalamazoo, Mich., for $7,000. The farm is well improved and the general opinion is that it sold at a very low figure.

The Wolvertons will leave North Dakota for Oregon, where it is thought that the climate will be conductive to the health of A. E. Wolverton, the son, who has not been well during the last year.

Where Bullets Flew.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitter have done is worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at all drug stores.

Rich Farmer Takes Life.

Ortonville, Minn., Oct. 14.—J. H. McGaughey, a wealthy farmer, residing five miles north of this city, was found dead in his home, having shot himself with a shotgun, the charge entering his left side. He was in poor health, and it is probable that was the cause of the suicide.

EVERY MAN TO HIS LINE

My line is making men's tailor-made suits and overcoats to order,

The entire tailoring fraternity acknowledges me to be "the prince of tailors."

My business methods are successful, because they are in the interest of the purchaser.

My new store here in Duluth will be a success from the very start.

I have the best trade in Minneapolis and St. Paul cornered.

Once I get a customer no other tailor can measure him.

I am going to give the men of Duluth and surrounding country the advantages of my Minniapolis and St. Paul prices. Money talks.

The best made suit or overcoat, from the best cloth, made to order, with the guarantee of a perfect fit for $15 and $20 that cannot be duplicated on Superior street or anywhere else for $30 to $40.

That tells the story. Cloth of your own selection.

No hand-me.down, ready-made suit on earth can begin to compare with my garments in looks, fit, wear or shape. No matter what "brand" the sweat shop may put on them, they are "not in it" with my tailor-made-to-order suits and overcoats. They are swell.

It is this supreme satisfaction to the people that causes my trade to grow.

Men come into my store, who have been "fleeced" by the high prices of other tailors and by hand-me-down, ready made clothing dealers and show me "the stuff" they got and tell me what they paid for it, and it is a shame, a measly shame.

The best goods, the best workmanship, guaranteed satisfaction for the least money, is my "business platform."

If you are thinking of getting a suit or overcoat just drop into my store and let me show you what I can do for you.

Open for business Saturday, October 17th, at 18 East Superior Street, the old Y. M. C. A. Building.

Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw; one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weigh in gold. I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c at all drug stores.

STRAIGHT FOR POLE, WRITES DR. COOK.

New York, Oct. 14.—The first message from Dr. Frederick E. Cook, the Arctic explorer, since he started for the pole from a point north of Etah Feb. 26 last, is received here. It was brought by Rudolph Franke, who accompanied Dr. Cook on the early stage of his journey and who received it from the explorer by messengers whom he sent back to the winter base after he was well on his way to the farthest North. The message was written March 17, three weeks after Cook had started on the last stage of his journey. It was dated "Polar Sea, north of Cape Hubbard," and said that up to that point everything had gone very well, although the weather was extremely cold. He was making a straight line for the pole at that time, he said.

Preserves Battlefield.

Washington, Oct. 14.—To preserve in its original shape the features of the battlefield of Gettysburg, the Gettysburg national park commission in its annual report today states that in pursuance of the fixed policy of that body, large tracts of woodland have been purchased, old road lines have been so altered that they now parallel the lines of battle and the positions of both armies have been marked by guns of the kind used in battle.

Resinol Soap

Offers you new possibilities of cleanliness. Looking at the soap-question broadly, after trying all kinds, you'll be inclined to believe—as thousands do—that there is really only one other kind, and that its name is "just soap." The "just soap" kind can't begin to do the good things for your Skin that RESINOL SOAP does—for it's the "RESINOL" and the pure vegetable oils that really produce the splendid results. There is only one RESINOL SOAP, but if you use it once and see how extra clean it gets you and how wonderfully refreshing it is, you're hardly likely to ever go back to the other kind. Remember the only Soap that is medicated with RESINOL is

TO LAY CORNERSTONE OF DULUTH ELKS' HOME

J. T. Schusler to Officiate and Justice Jaggard to Speak.

Ceremonies Will be Followed by Social Session of Lodge.

With the full ceremonial of the lodge, the cornerstone of the new Elks' home on the north side of first street, just west of Third avenue, will be laid tonight. Past District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler J. T. Schusler of St. Paul will lay the cornerstone, and Hon. E. A. Jaggard, justice of the state supreme court, will be the orator. Rev. Roderick J. Mooney will give the invocation.

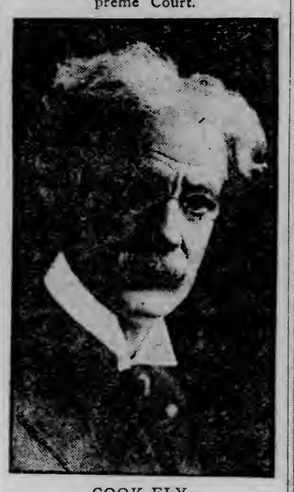

The cornerstone will probably be laid about 8 o'clock and the ceremonies will extend over an hour. The members of the Duluth lodge will meet at their hall at 7 o'clock, and shortly after that time, headed by the Third Regiment band, they will march to the building.

Following the laying of the cornerstone, the lodge members will march to the St. Louis hotel, where a social session will be held. E. L. Millar will be toastmaster, and short talks will be given by Joseph B. Cotton, Andrew Nelson, A. E. McManus, Clarence B. Miller, John A. Keyes and other members of the Duluth lodge.

The new Elks' building will be a cosy home. It is to be of reinforced concrete, and will cost, complete, in the neighborhood of $40,000. The plans were prepared by Radcliffe & Price, and John Hilliard has the contract for the construction.

Associate Justice of Minnesota Supreme Court.

Big Crowd at Tower.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson is still packing them in. At Tower this morning, in spite of the fact that he was billed to speak at 9 o'clock, the hall was totally inadequate to accommodate the crowd. Mayor John D. Murphy introduced the governor. Following the meeting at the hall, the governor spoke to the school children and got away before 10 o'clock for Ely. At Tower this morning a deelgation appeared from Soudan and insisted that the governor speak there, which he promised to do on his return from Ely. Up to the present time the governor has addressed fully 5,000 voters on his range tour, and fully as many have been turned away. Chisholm was the only town, outside of Proctor, where the halls were anywhere near large enough. In every town visited the crowds have been larger and more enthusiastic than two years ago. Even the staunchest Republicans cannot but admit this. The governor is a little hoarse, but in good spirits and is throwing himself into the campaign with unusual vigor.

Large Gatherings at Ely.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson was met at the depot at Ely by a band and an escort of citizens, and went direct to the high school assembly hall, where he spoke to fully 500 school children and their parents and teachers. From the school he went to the Finnish hall, where an overflow meeting of fully 200 people was held. Both halls were crowded and many people were turned away. Capt. Trezona of the Pioneer mine was one of the reception committee, and Principal Newberry introduced the governor at the high school.

At Biwabik.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Chibim, Chibum, Chibim, Bum, Bah, Biwabik High School, Rah, Rah, Rah, Johnson!" This cry from the students of the Biwabik high school greeted Governor Johnson as his special train pulled into the depot at Biwabik shortly before noon yesterday. About 100 children from the Biwabik schools were present at the depot to greet the governor, and they gave their school yell for him when he was introduced by Chairman Andrew Nelson. About 350 people were present at the depot when the special pulled in and gave the governor a rousing reception. In spite of the high wind the governor's voice carried well, and all heard him without difficulty. His speech was along much the same lines as that made at Proctor, and his remarks on the tonnage tax aroused much enthusiasm. He reiterated his promise that he would veto any measure calculated to take from Northern Minnesota 1 cent of the income now received from taxes for the support of the schools and the local governments.

At Eveleth.

At Eveleth nearly 1,000 people and the Eveleth city band were present at the depot to meet the train. The governor and his party were escorted to Vail hall, which was crowded to the doors when the governor reached there shortly before 1 o'clock. Fully 700 people crowded into the hall, which two years ago was scarcely half filled, and even standing room was at a premium. After touching on national issues the governor gave an account of his stewardship. "The only crime charged to me by Jacobson is that I was a democratic governor, while we had a Republican legislature," said the governor. "Jacobson says he stands upon his record. What is his record? For the last ten years he has consistently opposed the development of Northern Minnesota."

The governor read an extract from the Eveleth Star attacking him on the tonnage tax. The manner in which the governor tore it to pieces was greeted with hilarious shouts and loud cheers. He reiterated the statement made at Proctor and Biwabik that he was opposed to any tax that would take one dollar from local revenue.

Enthusiasm at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor John A. Johnson and party arrived here yesterday from Eveleth at 1:45 o'clock and were at once escorted to the Fay opera house, headed by the Eveleth band of twenty-two pieces, which accompanied them here. Several hundred people were at the train to greet the governor and his appearance caused round after round of cheers for our next governor. At the opera house he spoke for upwards of an hour to a packed house. E. M. Tredway introduced the governor in a few well chosen words, and the latter's speech was listened to with a great deal of interest and attention. The governor laid particular stress upon the famous tonnage tax bill of which his opponent is the father, and reiterated his previous statement that he would never sanction a bill that would deprive the ranges of the revenue derived from taxation, which rightfully belongs to them.

The governor devoted some little time to national issues and spoke in high praise of the standard bearer of the Democratic party, William Jennings Bryan.

The governor was frequently interrupted in his talk by outbursts of applause, showing that he is very popular here among the Republicans as well as Democrats. The sentiment here is very strong in favor of the re-election of Mr. Johnson and Virginia will no doubt give him a good majority of her votes next November.

Meeting at Chisholm.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson was given a great reception here last night and the meeting at the Power theater, which ended his tour of the Mesaba range, was the largest of the day and was not excelled in enthusiasm by any. After leaving Virginia, the party went to Chisholm, which presented a rather desolate appearance on account of its recent devastation by fire. But there were signs of building activity on every hand and the people looked cheerful in spite of their severe affliction and they were enthusiastic in greeting the governor. The meeting was held at the schoolhouse, and considering the conditions in the village was well attended. The arrangements were in charge of C. A. Munroe, who had left nothing undone to make the gathering a success. There was a procession to the schoolhouse, headed by a band and a large number of school children.

Martin Hughes of Hibbing acted as chairman at the request of the Chisholm people and was loudly applauded when he introduced Governor Johnson. The governor was enthusiastically received and his speech was repeatedly punctuated by applause. He praised the courage of the citizens of Chisholm in recovering so quickly from their disaster and starting to rebuild the town, and praised the generosity of the people of Minnesota who had contributed so liberally to the relief of the fire sufferers. Governor Johnson spoke for about an hour on state and national issues and dwelt at length on his position regarding the taxation of royalties and a tonnage tax. He reiterated his opposition to any system of taxation which would deprive township, village, school district and county governments of a reliable and continuous source of revenue.

The Hibbing Meeting.

With each town that the governor touched the enthusiasm seemed to increase. At Proctor the workmen in the Missabe road shops gave him a rousing reception. At Biwabik the citizens turned out in force. Eveleth supplied a band and all kinds of enthusiasm at a crowded meeting. At Virginia hundreds of citizens were turned away from the hall, unable to get in. Chisholm—queer, picturesque, rough little Chisholm rising in its ashes—managed to find time in its task of rebuilding to turn out en masse and pack the spacious high school assembly hall for the governor's visit.

But the climax of the tour was the Hibbing meeting. For an hour and a half the governor stood upon the platform of the Power theater and pounded facts and logic into the receptive minds of fully 1,200 people. There would have been 1,200 more if they could have gained access to the theater. The governor piled fact upon fact, and drove home his arguments with a relentlessness that would not be denied. He swept from argument to pathos; from pathos to humor; from humor back to argument; all the time tearing the platform and the speeches of his opponent to shreds, and laying bare the pitiful weakness of the arguments of the papers which have opposed him. Any man who heard him could not doubt his honestry or his sincerity. It was a straightforward talk on such a high plane, and of such a lofty, honest tone, that it could not fail to impress. It took. There was no questioning that fact. Silent, intent, hanging upon every word of the speaker, sat the audience, scarcely stirring from the time he began his talk until he finished, except to occasionally break into a storm of applause as some argument or burst of oratory swept them away. When the governor stepped upon the platform and again when he closed his speech he was greeted by an ovation that lasted fully a minute.

It was the kind of a reception that would warm the heart of any candidate. It was sincere, whole-souled. It was the welcome of the people of Hibbing to "our governor" and they meant it. There were votes behind those hand-claps, and honest admiration behind their flattering silence and hearty applause. It bore almost the color of hero worship.

His Hibbing speech contained practically all of the points made in the other towns and many additional ones. It was evidently the governor's piece de resistance, and he outdid himself.

The Hibbing Speech.

"The first time I came to Hibbing, I spoke from the top of a barrel," said the governor after he had succeeded in securing silence. "I have been here many times since, and I am grateful for the many courtesies the people of Hibbing have shown me.

"I am not here as a candidate for a political office. I am here as a candidate in a political campaign for a state office, the highest within the gift fo the state. Naturally, it is my duty to give you an account of my stewardship.

"But first I want to say a few words along national lines. I am not foolish enough to believe that all the people here tonight are here because they agree with me, or that they will vote as I might tell them to. There are probably Prohibitionists here. I have no doubt there are some Socialists, and probably a few Democrats, and probably some Republicans. I think more of the man, who would disagree with me for a reason, than the man who would agree with me without any reason other than the fact that he wanted to think as I did.

Patriotism of Peace.

"I am one of those men who believe we should have political organizations, but I am not one of those who believe we should have government by the parties for the parties. I believe we should have a government of the people, by the people and for the people. I hope the time will come when the people of this country will hold civil duty above party duty, and the interests of the country above party interest and even above personal, selfish interests. Then we will have a patriotism of peace and not a patriotism of war.

"I haven't much faith in the man who votes with a party because his fathers did, or because it is the largest party.

"The beneficiaries of certain laws have built up in this country an aristocracy of wealth. Against this predatory wealth such men as La Follette in Wisconsin, Cummins in Iowa, and Folk in Missouri are fighting in the interests of the common people. We have come now to understand that there is no difference between a good Democrat and a good Republican or between a bad Democrat and a bad Republican. The good Democrats and the good Republicans are voting for the good of the state and not for their personal aggrandisement. Study the platforms, I say. You can all read. Get the platforms and find out what is best for Taft or Bryan? No. Find out what is best for you, for your family, for your county and country. I am confident that you will find that in the platform adopted at Denver.

CLOQUET THEATER LOSS WAS HEAVY

Nearly Five Thousand Dollars With One Half Insured.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire which destroyed the People's theater in this city, early Tuesday morning caused a total loss of about $4,700, covered with insurance, amounting to $2,500. The cause of the fire is still a mystery.

Krans Bros., managers of the theater, who were forced to leap from a window to free themselves from the suffocating smoke, were not injured to any great extent.

FIREWORKS AT COUNCIL MEET

Crookston Aldermen Tackle Couple of Live Wire Matters.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two matters of vast importance to this city came before the council last night. One was the application of the Tri-State Telephone & Telegraph company, for a franchise to use the streets and alleys for long distance connections. This has been fought over for years, but has not been before the city council before for two years. As far as it got this time was to have the whole matter referred to a committee consisting of President Snyder and Aldermen Christianson and Harris to report later.

The other matter was a resolution presented by Alderman Harris to the effect that whereas the Crookston Water Works, Power & Light company had repeatedly refused to lay extensions of mains as ordered by the council, that City Attorney O'Brien be instructed to commence action at once to declare the franchise of the company forfeited on said grounds.

City Attorney O'Brien strongly urged against any such action, as he has taken the stand in the suits now pending against the Water Works company, that they have no valid franchise and never did have one. He contended that the resolution recognized such a contract and the Water Works company could use such a resolution effectively in any litigation against the city. After thirty minutes of fireworks the resolution was withdrawn by Alderman Harris, with the understanding that it would be presented again at the next meeting.

Bids have been called for the ereection of the $75,000 federal building in Crookston.

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask the Columbia.

HUNDRED NARROWLY ESCAPE MINE FIRE.

Koenigshuette, Oct. 14.—Fire broke out this morning in one of the galleries of the Koenigsbrube coal mine. One hundred men weer in one of the deep galleries, and it was thought for a while they would be lost. They managed, however, to make their escape through an adjoining shaft. Twenty-three men, in another gallery, were brought out unconscious from suffocation. Twenty of these were revived, but three succumbed.

main division will be led by the Third Regiment band.

Governor Johnson and his party will arrive from the range at 7:30, and will be met at the depot by a delegation of Duluth Democrats, with automobiles. The governor will be taken to the Lenox hotel, the Democratic county headquarters, where he will remain until ready to proceed to the Armory.

After the different divisions of the torchlight procession have been gathered together, the governor will be taken in an automobile to the Armory, the procession moving down Superior street. Hundreds of men will be in line with their torches, and the scene will be one of inspiration, both for those who have and have not memories of campaigns that have gone.

At the Armory, Charles O. Baldwin will preside and will introduce the governor, who will be the only speaker. The speaking is expected to begin shortly after 8 o'clock.

Seats for old soldiers will be reserved on the stage of the Armory, but others must take chances on getting seats, and it is expected the big auditorium will be packed to the ceiling. The governor has announced that he will deal with all the issues of the state campaign and will pay particular attention to the tonnage tax and royalty tax question.

Governor Johnson has been invited by the officers of the Duluth Lodge of Elks to visit the lodge in social session, at the St. Louis hotel, after the Armory meeting. It is believed the governor will accept. Afterwards, he will retire to the Lenox for a good night's rest, after two of the most strenuous days of the campaign. He will leave tomorrow morning, at 8:45, for Bemidji and Northwestern Minnesota points, where he will spend the remainder of the week.

WANTED TO KNOW

The Truth About Grape-Nuts Food.

It doesn't matter so much what you hear about a thing, it's what you know that counts. And correct knowledge is most likely to come from personal experience.

"About a year ago," writes a N. Y. man," I was bothered by indigestion, especially during the forenoon. I tried several remedies without any permanent improvement.

"My breakfast usually consisted of oatmeal, steak or chops, bread, coffee and some fruit.

"Hearing so much about Grape-Nuts, I concluded to give it a trial and find out if all I had heard of it was true.

"So I began with Grape-Nuts and cream, 2 soft boiled eggs, toast, a cup of Postum and some fruit. Before the end of the first week I was rid of the acidity of the stomach and felt much relieved.

"By the end of the second week all traces of indigestion had disappeared and I was in first rate health once more. Before beginning this course of diet, I never had any appetite for lunch, but now I can enjoy a hearty meal at noon time." "There's a Reason."

The day of high prices in clothes made to measure is over in this town. Heretofore the man, who wanted a suit made to order that would really fit him had to pay the price of $35, $40, and $45, or whatever his tailor could trim him for.

JOHNSON SENTIMENT

Reports Received at Democratic Headquarters Satisfactory.

Republican Committee Will Attempt to Secure National Speaker.

Reports of the decidedly favorable impression made by Governor Johnson, in his tour of the range, were received at the Democratic headquarters this morning. A large batch of letters reached the headquarters this morning telling of the progress of the governor, and in every instance these communications were of the most optimistic nature. The range trip of Governor Johnson, according to the reports received at headquarters, has stirred up the voters and has resulted in furthering the cause of Democracy as no other cause could have done.

Judge Lekve was a caller at the headquarters yesterday. The judge reports that conditions at Virginia and other range towns are all that could be desired. He reports that the feeling is very strong for Johnson, who will carry the range by a good vote, and also that Charles Jesmore, Democratic candidate for sheriff, will receive a heavy vote on the range.

Several traveling men who make the range towns, were callers at the headquarters this morning. They report that the sentiment for Governor Johnson is almost unanimous and that every indication points to a solid support from the range district.

According to the reports, both verbal and written, Lake and Cook counties and the northern part of St. Louis counties, are strong for Johnson.

John Lowe, Democratic candidate for county commissioner in the Fifth district, who has been over the range and the outlying precincts of the Fifth district, states that there is a strong sentiment for the head of the Democratic ticket.

A report received today from West Duluth indicates that there is a strong Johnson sentiment there. The members of the West Duluth Democratic club have taken off their coats and are working hard for the success of the Democratic state and county ticket. They have requested the county committee to provide a strong speaker for a meeting to be held in the near future, and arrangements are being made to secure some well known speaker to speak before the club.

Upon the return of Andrew Nelson from the range, efforts will be made to secure a speaker from St. Paul for either the West end or West Duluth. The Democratic state central committee has promised Mr. Nelson to send a speaker to Duluth and efforts will be made to arrange a West Duluth appearance for next week.

Robert Block, son of Julius Block, ex-state treasurer and Republican candidate for governor two years ago, is in the city today. Mr. Block came here to organize a Taft and Jacobson club. A meeting will be held in the city hall tomorrow evening. Mr. Block and W. E. Culkin, chairman of the Republican county committee, will address the meeting. It is planned to organize a club of over 200 members here. Mr. Block has been instrumental in organizing several Taft-Jacobson clubs in different parts of the state, and the report he brought to the Republican headquarters this morning was very encouraging to the committee members.

The members of the Republican committee are busy securing speakers for meetings arranged for next week. Harvey Clapp has been secured by the committee to get out and make some speeches the coming week, and the members of the committee announce that they have secured some very good speakers to address meetings that will be held in the outlying precincts next week.

No definite date has been set for the Jacobson appearance in this city. The members of the local committee have been told that the Republican candidate will appear in Duluth, Oct. 22, or that is the present time they have been unable to learn from the state central committee the exact date.

W. E. Culkin, chairman of the committee, is in communication with the state central committee relative to securing a speaker of national reputation for a local appearance. Just who this speaker will be, should Mr. Culkin be successful in his efforts to secure a man of national reputation, is not known. It is not known at the Republican headquarters whether J. Adam Bede will speak for the national and state ticket in this district.

Several meetings have been arranged for next week and the members of the committee are busy completing the schedule of next week's political activity.

Says Roosevelt Did Not Promise Job for Taft Support.

Washington, Oct. 14.—While no formal statement was issued from the White House, Secretary Loeb today denied that President Roosevelt promised the office of commissioner general of immigration to Daniel J. Keefe, of Detroit, president of the International Association of Longshoremen, in consideration of Mr. Keefe's action in declaring for Mr. Taft in opposition to the pro-Bryan campaign of President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor.

Mrs. Langtry's Horse Wins.

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Langtry's Yentoi won the czarewitch stakes, two and a quarter miles, for 3-year-olds and upwards, on the Newmarket track today. Pure Gem was second and Glacis third. Sixteen horses ran. Pure Gem was the favorite. The betting was 100 to 6 against Yentoi and 7 to 2 against Pure Gem. This is the first classic event Mrs. Langtry has won since the heyday of her racing career a dozen or more years ago.

AN IDEAL CAMPAIGNER IS GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Makes More Votes at Every Place Where He Speaks.

Honest and Sincere and Recognizes No Section or Class.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ideal campaigner is Governor Johnson.

Every mile that the Johnson special travels, every little hamlet that the governor stops at, can be counted upon as meaning just so many votes for him at the coming election.

He is a "mixer" par excellence, but the new type of "mixer." In the old days in the political game a "mixer" meant a man who could hook his foot over a railing of a saloon and keep it there as long as anyone would stay with him. The governor's mixing is of a different type. He is as much at home and as natural with a mining or railroad official as with the porter on the train. He is the same to a woodsman or a day laborer from the mines as he is to the president of the mining company, and he is himself to both. That is the quality in Johnson that first strikes the observer—his charming naturalness. No man can live two days with Johnson in a 90-foot car and not be impressed by it. Johnson is himself all of the time. He wears no mask; he has nothing to hide. The day laborer knows it; the wife of the settler with whom he stops to converse knows it; the children know it—they know it and feel it more quickly than their elders, and no place does the governor make friends more quickly than he does among the children. At Chisholm, after the meeting there, this fact was emphasized. A little party of about fifteen boys of about 12 or 14 years of age spotted the governor as he left the meeting, and followed him to the train, casting admiring glances at him as he strode along with Andrew Nelson, chairman of the county committee. The governor was just as big a man with them that day as "Christy" Mathewson or "Battling" Nelson. The governor had apparently not seen them when he reached the train, but he suddenly turned and reached out his hand. "Good-bye, boys," he said, and shook each lad by the hand. They had followed the governor merely for a sight of him, and hardly hoped for such good luck as a friendly word and a handshake. And there wasn't a voter in sight to witness the act, for the governor was the first to reach the train after the meeting, and the crowd had not yet arrived to bid him farewell.

Honest and Sincere.

A few hours in the governor's company cannot fail to convince any man of his sincerity and absolute honesty. The laboring man is just as good a man in his eye as the bank president, but no better. That is the secret of the instinctive liking the men feel for him. The laboring man is used to being cajoled and begged for his vote, to being flattered by political campaigners, who soon forget their campaign promises. Governor Johnson refuses to stoop to flattery. The laboring man is to him the equal of any other man—but he is no better, and the governor does not pretend that he is, even on a campaign tour in an industrial district.

The eagle hasn't screamed once on the range tour of the governor. The great national bird has been allowed to peacefully repose in its aerie. The governor hasn't "viewed with alarm," or hasn't pictured the trusts riding upon the necks of the laboring men. Pomposity, demagogery, and all the brass band tomfoolery, and handshaking drivel of the usual campaign tour are noticeable by their absence. It is a new system the governor has followed—honesty and sincerity, and it takes. It is making votes by the scores and hundreds with every stop that the special makes.

Life of the Party.

Governor Johnson is the life of the party. He joins in all the jokes and participates in the discussion of every subject, whether it is on politics, religion, science, mining or drainage. It does not take one long to discover the true secret of Johnson's success after having enjoyed an hour of his charming companionship. His versatility makes one marvel at the man.

In the repartee passing between members of the governor's party his brilliancy becomes most manifest. His clean, upright manhood asserts itself every time a story is told which does not ring quite true, and the narrator seldom attempts a second.

His moral courage in discussing a ticklish question also indicates the true character of the man. Every one knows that the tonnage tax question, while vital to Northern Minnesota, is looked at from a different standpoint in other portions of the state.

The governor takes up the issue and handles it without gloves. That he is thoroughly informed upon the subject is evident from the manner he handles it. His speeches on a tonnage tax which he delivered on the Mesaba range, could be given in any city in the state with the same consistency.

Governor Johnson is no demagogue. He doesn't attack the Steel corporation, nor does he play to the galleries for the labor vote. What he has to say is said "right out in meeting." That he is governor of all the people of the state one discovers. He recognizes no section and no class.

A Splendid Opening.

This is readily seen when he takes up a discussion of the strike on the ranges last year. The News Tribune left a splendid opening for the governor when it charged that the governor permitted the Steel corporation to violate law relating to the employment of non-citizens as peace officers.

It evidently did not figure on the part played in that affair by the Republican candidate for sheriff, Mr. Bates. Governor Johnson veritably "burns it up." He relates his part in the strike with a feeling of pride. He was the first governor of Minnesota to refuse the state militia, when called upon by the interests here. His presence on the scene had everything to do with preserving order. Then he recited the final part. After he had refused the militia, the sheriff as the chief peace officer of St. Louis county, swore in a number of deputies.

Reports reached the governor that many of these were non-citizens, which is against the law in Minnesota. Sheriff Bates was requested to furnish the governor with a list of his deputies, giving their place of residence. The sheriff, under oath, certified that all were citizens of the state. Then the governor gets in his work, and his audience is firmly convinced that the governor did his full duty, and that if there was any violation of law the sheriff was to blame.

"The producers of the country have been paying tribute to a few men who have a monopoly of some of the industries. All agree now that the tariff must be revised. Some say it should be revised by its friends. I say it should be revised by the friends of people of the United States.

"Just a word on the subject of bank deposits. I cannot see why a man who has $50 say in the bank here at Hibbing should object to a law which would make that deposit safer and would assure him that he could get his own money when he wanted it.

"And shall the people rule? If you feel that you haven't intelligence enough to elect your United States senators you know where you belong.

"I was talking to a conductor recently on the Sante Fe railroad. He said that he had voted the Republican ticket for years, but that this year he was going to vote for himself. There is the keynote of the whole situation. I don't care whether you vote through me or through Jacobson. All I ask is that you study the platforms and vote for your own best interests as you see them.

The Commoner.

"And now one word as to the Democratic standard bearer. You may have differed from him in 1896 and you may have differed from him in 1900, but William Jennings Bryan has won his way to the respect of the people of the United States. They know him for an honest man and for a man who has the interests of the people of the United States at heart." The governor reference to the Commoner was greeted with a tremendous outburst.

The speaker then turned to state issues. He first proceeded to read from The Herald the letter of Attorney General Young published during the preconvention fight, in which Mr. Young charged that the Republican party was being ruled by the corporation interests. "This is a serious charge to make said the governor, "and I don't make it. But it has been made by a member of that party.

"When a man is nominated for the office of governor," continued the speaker, "it is customary for him to make a keynote speech outlining his policies on important public questions. It is right that he should. I did this at my speech at Montevideo, at a public hall. My opponent did not do this. He delivered his speech at a banquet given in West Duluth and some politicians in Duluth are now trying to excite the good women of West Duluth over the fact that I called it a Belshazzar feast. They claim it was a respectable feast. Why, who said it wasn't? If the women of the West Duluth church served it, or if the women of any other church in this state of ours served it, it must have been respectable, no matter where it was served or when. But I don't care who served it, or whether they served nuts or pie, or how they ate it. I called it a Belshazzar feast because from the people who were there and from the utterances they made, somebody must have seen the handwriting on the wall. Who was at the speakers' table? Some candidates for federal office, and some federal officeholders; some state officeholders and some who are candidates for state office; some county officeholders and some more who would like to hold county office. Outside of them there were only some representatives of the United States Steel corporation.

Jacobson's Speech.

"But I am chiefly concerned about what Mr. Jacobson said. Did he talk about commodity freight rates, or timber trespass, or the tax on iron ore? Did he discuss any public question and give his stand upon it? No he didn't discuss a single question of public interest, and during the two months since then he hasn't raised his voice on any of these great public questions. When he was charged with being painfully silent, he replied that the people knew where he stood, that he didn't have to tell them his position every two weeks, and that he stood upon his record. No, friends, he doesn't have to tell his stand every two weeks, or every four weeks, or every sixteen weeks, but he does owe it to the voters of this state to tell where he stands on these questions at least once during the campaign.

"A man who is not willing or can't do that has no right to go to the polls and ask for your support."

At this point Governor Johnson quoted from Jacobson's speech where he complained of the Republican voters scratching the ticket and voting for who they thought was the best man. "I can't take issue with Mr. Jacobson on this score," said the governor, smiling, "because he admits that in the last two compaigns I was the best man, and as he didn't push the argument further, I infer that in the present campaign he thinks I am the better man.

A Strange Paradox.

"He charged that because of the divided responsibility I had increased the expenses of the state. He doesn't charge that I was incompetent or dishonest, but he charges that because the voters of this state elected a Republican legislature and a Democratic governor, that the Republican legislature was extravagant. Here we have a paradox indeed. We have a Democratic governor who must go out in a Republican state and defend a Republican legislature from the attacks of a Republican candidate for governor.

"Why, there is no divided responsibility. I told the legislature in my inaugural message that although we had been elected by different parties, we were there to serve the same master, the people of the state of Minnesota. I am sure that they did. In my judgment the legislature of 1907 placed more good, constructive legislation upon the statute books of Minnesota than any other legislature in the history of the state. At my request they passed, among other laws the two-cent fare bill which has saved the people of Minnesota more money than any other measure ever passed since the state was organized."

At this point the governor went into details in regard to the increased expenditures, and showed that the greater part of them were due to recommendations made by the board of control, of which Mr. Jacobson was chairman.

"There were many extraordinary expenditures" continued the speaker. "Among other things was $16,000 voted for the hospital for crippled children. Would you have vetoed that? Not if you had seen one of the deformed little waifs whom the state is trying to help become useful citizens. Fifty years ago, it might have been necessary for this state to be stingy, but it is not now."

The governor then went into details of the work of the various departments of the state government, showing the saving that had been made by the state insurance commissioner, and the bank examiners' department.

The Tax Question.

"There hasn't been a dollar lost in the state banks subject to state inspection since I have served as governor," he said. "But I have raised taxes, they say," continued the governor. "That is the heinous crime with which I am charged. I have raised taxes, but not yours. When I was elected governor the first time I made a promise that I would try to equalize taxes in Minnesota. The mining companies were then assessed on a valuation of $42,000,000. The officers of the United States Steel corporation came to St. Paul and said they were willing to pay their fair burden of the taxation, but didn't want to pay more than their share. Well, we thought we would let them, so we raised the valuation from $42,000,000 to $190,000,000. I don't say that because I am opposed to the mining industry. Do you think I would do anything to discourage the mining industry? No. But they must pay their fair share of the taxes, and will pay every dollar of it, but not a dollar more.

"If you own the Twin City Rapid Transit company, we have raised your taxes. If you own the Swift Packing company, or the Western Union Telegraph company, or the Pullman Car company, we have raised your taxes, but not if you own a little store or a house here in Hibbing, we have not raised your taxes, but lowered them.

The Tonnage Tax.

"The Duluth News Tribune has recently made a new issue in Northern Minnesota. It said that if you elected me governor I would pass a tonnage tax and that all the taxes from the mines here would go down to the southern part of the state and you would have to dig up out of your own pockets for the support of your local institutions. Isn't that an awful thing to consider, and I never even once declared myself in favor of a tonnage tax on iron ore."

The governor here read an extract from his message to the legislature, which was as follows:

"The proposition which some have suggested, that the direct tax should be abolished and a tonnage tax substituted, to provide for all revenue, both state and local, is objectionable because of the jeopardy of revenue for local government during a period of industrial depression or in a year of possible lockouts and strikes. I wish it to be understood that I clearly oppose any system of taxation which will deprive local township, village, school district or county government of a liberal, reliable and continuous source of revenue.

"And let me add this statement, which I make now, and which I would be glad to make in any part of the state," continued the governor, "that if elected governor, and a legislature should pass a law depriving this or any other section of their full share of taxes for local purposes which they enjoy now, I should most certainly veto the same.

"That was all I said about it until today, when I said, and I repeat it here: No man is big enough or broad enough to stand for election as governor of the state of Minnesota who would try to take away from you or your district your share of the state taxes. If elected governor, and the legislature tries to pass a law which would take away one of your rights and privileges in that regard, I would veto it.

"Is there any man in the room who doesn't understand that?" asked the governor, leaning forward and waiting for an answer. "Is that clear?" There was no reply but a burst of applause.

"That's my position," said the speaker, when the applause had subsided. "Jacobson is yet to be heard from. He stands on his record, he says. His record in the legislature shows that he introduced a tonnage tax bill."

News Tribune Scored.

The governor continued to pay his respects to the News Tribune, much to the delight of the audience. Every reference to the Duluth morning paper was greeted with laughter and applause. He next took up the recent attack made upon him by that paper for his actions during the miners' strike.

"I dislike to refer to this matter," said the governor. "I had hoped that the strike was a thing of the past. Why didn't I prevent the United States Steel corporation importing armed deputies into Minnesota? the Tribune asks. Why didn't I? I'll tell you. I don't run the United States Steel corporation, and let me tell you just as emphatically, they don't run me.

"After the strike had been all settled there were some charges made that guards had been imported. I asked Sheriff Bates for a list of all his deputies. He furnished me with it and gave a sworn statement that all of the men were residents of the state of Minnesota. If the charge of the News Tribune is correct then Mr. Bates is not serving the people of the county, but the United States Steel corporation and if the News Tribune can prove that the charges are correct and that Mr. Bates is therefore guilty of perjury, I will remove him from office before the first of the year.

"Now just a word in closing. I did not enter the fight of my own volition, but I am in the fight and am in to win. I am going to win and if I do I have just one more pledge to make you. If I am re-elected I will in the future, as I have in the past, dedicate myself to the service of the people of the state, not the rich or the poor or the middle class, but all the people of the state."

The Triumph of Wholesale Tailoring

Organization, high salaries and skilled men have so lifted up modern wholesale tailoring that today you can be properly fitted in high-grade ready-to.wear clothes with results far beyond the power of the ordinary tailor to equal.

We agree that good custom tailors can be found existing here and there in the world, but to hear a second or third-rate tailor rile against "hand-me-downs" in the year of 1908 is like the builder of a stage coach decrying the Pullman car, or like a small cobbler talking against Hanan shoes.

It's really funny when you come to consider that many small tailors and nearly all of those who do loud advertising or house-to-house soliciting furnish their customers with clothes made by Chicago wholesale tailors (and not by wholesale tailors of the first class, either). The prince of fakirs of our time is found in the "made-to-measure" clothing business.

Foremost among the successful wholesale tailors of America is the Stein-Bloch Co., whose smart clothes will fit most any man, with less alterations and more satisfaction than any others.

Our enormous stock of the various Stein-Bloch styles for fall and winter, in business suits, semi-formal and formal suits, overcoats and rain coats is ready for you at the store of the

BRYAN HAS FUN WITH VICTOR ROSEWATER ON THAT EDITORIAL

Touring Home State, Nominee Tells Nebraskans Article is Most Truthful Bee Has Printed in Years.

Wahoo, Neb., Oct. 14.—Accompanied by all the Democratic candidates for state offices, William J. Bryan campaigned in his own state, and at this place completed the first of his three day's Nebraska tour.

Big crowds greeted him at every point, and when his day's work was over he had delivered twenty-one speeches, varying in length from five minutes to an hour. His arguments were confined mostly to answering the statements of Mr. Taft and Governor Hughes, who but recently visited Nebraska. The audiences were mostly farmers and the Democratic candidate frequently moved them to applause. The route traversed was through numerous Republican strongholds. A carload of speakers was brought along out of Omaha and at each place visited by Mr. Bryan one was dropped off to complete the work of expounding Democratic doctrine. Mr. Bryan accused Mr. Taft of not making the speech in Nebraska that he had been making in other parts of the country.

"He did not discuss the guarantee of bank deposits," he said, "doubtless because he was informed that the people of Nebraska are in favor of the guaranteeing of deposits. He appealed to the farmers and based it upon the fact that the farmers have had good crops and fair prices, but did the Republican party give you good crops. All who think the Republican party is responsible for good crops should thank the Republican party. Those who believe as we do, that the good crops are due to the fertility of the soil, to sensonable rains and to the warmth of the sunshine, should thank the Almighty."

He asked his audience if the Republicans had given them high prices. "Are not the agricultural prices," he inquired, "as high in Canada as they are here? Are not agricultural prices as high in England as they are here. Have not values increased in Europe as well as in America? You must find some cause that is as extended as the results which you are trying to account for, and the influence of the Republican party is confined to the United States. The farmers should not be deceived by the argument now addressed to them, for a similar argument was

The Republican party, he declared, has no policy that promises benefit to the farmer, "but he is the victim of all the abuses that have grown up under Republican rule. What do they say in their platform now? Why, I am almost ashamed to tell you what they say. What they say is so awfully bad that the Omaha Bee thought I said it, and wrote an editorial against it. Now isn't that pretty hard to have a Republican platform so bad that it would be mistaken for one of my speeches? The Bee thought I said it, and how that Bee did lambast me! There was more truth in that edtorial of the Omaha Bee than I have seen in it for the last twenty-one years.

CUBS WIN AT DETROIT

Tigers Lose for Third Time on Their Home Grounds.

Summers Pitches Well But Has One Bad Inning.

Detroit, Oct. 14.—Chicago crept one game closer to the world's baseball championship Tuesday by defeating Detroit 3 to 0. Chicago has now won three games of the series, as compared with the one annexed by Detroit at Chicago Monday.

"Eddie" Summers of Detroit and "Miner" Brown, the premier pitcher of the Chicago team, opposed each other and the latter had all the better of the argument, although Summers pitched excellent ball in all but one inning. In the third Summers passed two men on balls, some of which were very near strikes. He cut corners in whirlwind fashion. Chicago got two men on bases in the first and one in the second without the situation, however, growing precarious.

In the third, after Sheckard and Evers, as a result of the sprightily efforts of Messrs. Coughlin and Schaefer had been retired, Summers wavered ever so little, and Schulte was presented with standing room on the initial bag. The Chicago right fielder promptly concluded to try out Schmidt's throwing arm. Said arm was tired and found wanting.

Schmidt's unsuccessful throw to second was the first of four similar failures. Chance, the next man up, was also allowed to walk, despite the strenuous objections of the Detroit battery, to say nothing of the crowd. Singles by Steinfelat and Hofman followed, sending Schulte and Chance across the plate. Steinfeldt took third and Hofman scored during the process of run-getting, but the best Tinker could do was a grounder to O'Leary, who threw him out.

Chicago's next and final run occurred in the ninth inning when Winter took Summers' place in the pitching box. The change in "seasons" made no difference to the Chicagos. With two out, Evers singled to left and stole second, coming home on Chance's single to right.

Detroit threatened to score only once. In the fourth innnig Brown found himself in a pretty tight hole when singles by O'Leary and Crawford placed these gentlemen respectively on second and first bases with none out. Capt. Chance left first base and Joe Tinker came to confer with Brown. If the conference concerned the handling of an expected bunt it was successful. Cobb, the Detroit right fielder, who batted so strenuously Monday, came to bat and bunted.

The ball rolled steadily toward Brown, who rushed up on it, and without even looking at first, shot it on a line to third just in time to force out O'Leary. Crawford, who had taken second on the play, is known locally as the "Old Reliable." It is said of him that he may be depended upon to do the right thing at the right time almost invariably. Taking a lead off from second, the "Old Reliable" for once in his life did the wrong thing at the wrong time. He chose this occasion to refresh himself with the traditional "forty winks."

This was some thirty-five winks too many. Kling observed the runner's nonviolent expression and the violent efforts of Joseph Tinker to attract attention without making a noise. The Chicago backstop swung his arm powerfully and the ball shot down to Tinker secreten a line, rudely disturbing the rest of Mr. Crawford, spoiling Detroit's only chance to score, and perceptibly depressing the spirits of the spectators. Crawford retired to the bench very crestfallen, for there had been two men on bases with an excellent chance of scoring, there were now two out with only Cobb on first. Cobb started to steal second at the same time that Umpire Connolly called a third strike on Rossman. Presumably Kling did not hear what the umpire said, for he threw to Evers and Umpire Klem called Cobb out. The play, however, did not count as Rossman had already made the third out. In the fifth inning Coughlin was hit by a pitched ball, but got no further than first. In the sixth O'Leary got his second single but was immediately doubled. In the next three innings Detroit went out one, two, three.

The pitching of Brown was clearly up to his usual standard. His only wildness was in hitting Coughlin. He allowed only four hits, two of which went to O'Leary and two to Crawford, one of the latter's being a double. He struck out four men, besides accepting four fielding chances in perfect style.

While the crowd yesterday was larger than that which turned out to view the opening struggle of the series here, it was not so large as had been expected in view of Detroit's victory Monday. The turnstiles registered 12,907 paid admissions, from which the gross receipts were $19,231. The ground immediately in front of the grandstand was still muddy from Saturday's rain, but the diamond was in good condition and the weather almost ideal for spectators and players alike.

STAGG LOOKS FOR TOUGH GAME

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Commenting on the games in the west on Saturday, Coach Stagg said he thought Wisconsin and Chicago had made the best showing of the big-eight teams, but anticipated the same old hard struggle with Minnesota.

"It is impossible to say now which teams are best, but on the face of things Wisconsin and Chicago seem best," said Stagg. "That does not mean that Minnesota won't give up a hard game. The contrary is true. We can expect—we always can—a hard fight with Minnesota.

"Last year at this time Minnesota was in much the same position, and then consider how tough a fight the gophers gave us. We can't worry now about Wisconsin, because the game is too far off and we have too much to occupy our minds with Illinois, Minnesota and Cornell."

With all his players in fairly good shape from the Indiana game, Stagg will give his players a hard workout in preparation for the Illini. Among the new features will be a score or more of new plays which will be taught to the maroons. Some of the more complex features of the forward pass are promised for Saturday.

The ball bug has the country from one end to the other. Down in New York the other day, the occasion being the deciding game between Chicago and the Giants, the great crowd was unable to get in through the gates, and the disappointed ones tore down a portion of the fence, and several hundred had gained the inside in safety before a cop with a hose could be stationed at the opening while workmen repaired the damage.

Jimmy Britt is going to start a fight club over in London. It seems that Jimmy has made a great hit in London with his elegant manners and "gift of gab." He says he moves in the very best sporting circles, and is getting accustomed to having people look at him on the street. He says that the money over there is about the easiest he has struck in some time, and that he expects to wallow in the feathery down for the time being.

The manly art of self-defense, or pugilism, as it is more commonly known, was handed another knockout wallop last week, when Governor Davidson of Wisconsin ordered all boxing bouts in the state stopped. The blow came as a great surprise, and those closely connected with the pugilistic game can hardly realize that the movement is true. Milwaukee receives the hardest blow through the governor's orders, the Papke-Kelly contest, scheduled for next Tuesday night, coming under the ban. It is learned that the governor acted on the advice of the ministers, who protested against the holding of pugilistic encounters in the state of Wisconsin.

The trouble began two weeks ago, when the Milwaukee promoters held a fight on the date scheduled for the address by Taft, at which Governor Davidson presided. Upon reaching Milwaukee Governor Davidson found that the prize fights and the Taft speech were ranked about on a par as attractions, and he forthwith ordered Sheriff Knell to attend the fight and make a detailed report to him.

The fight scheduled that night was between Johnny Coulon and Terry Edwards, and Sheriff Knell reported to the governor that he could see nothing objectionable in the fight.

Governor Davidson refused to talk of the decision, saying that his orders to the sheriff were simple but precise, and that the so-called boxing exhibitions which had been held about the state were held in evasion of the law forbidding prize fights. He declared that a prize fight was not a bit different from the limited round affairs that were held in Milwaukee under the class of exhibitions, and that the Milwaukee shows were tending to demoralize the people. Further than this he would not talk, and even this was given out through his secretary.

The question now is what Milwaukee will do. It is believed that all the boxing clubs will disband and make no effort to evade the terms of the governor's order. The sheriff has been told to notify the promoters that any attempt at evasion will be met with the arrest of the principals and all concerned, and the question of legality will be fought out in the courts before any fight is held, not afterward.

NEBRASKA NEXT ON GOPHER'S LIST

Minnesota Working Hard for the Cornhusker Contest.

Minneapolis, Oct. 14.—With Ames out of the way, Dr. Williams and his assistants began yesterday to whip the gophers into shape for the battle against Nebraska on Northrop field next Saturday afternoon. The players came through Saturday's battle in fairly good condition, and outside of a few minor bruises, the whole team is in good shape. The coaches and players are satisfied with the showing of the green men in Saturday's game and while little is said about what to expect, it is generally believed that Dr. Williams is looking for a victory over Nebraska.

The cornhuskers have been playing a great article of ball, despite the fact that "bear" stories are coming from the Nebraska camp, and Saturday's victory over the strong Grinnell college team satisfied the gopher coaches that Nebraska is a dangerous enemy and that the stories of weakness are all of the fake order.

Walter Eskersall and other Chicago writers are doping things out to suit themselves, everyone putting Minnesota at the bottom, but this kind of dope seems to please Dr. Williams. Eckersall sees nothing but Chicago and Wisconsin in the fight for the western championship, although he has not seen any team other than the maroons. Chicago is all that the windy city writers really know about, but all of them are comparing the relative strength of the conference teams.

Assistant Coach Elliott of the Nebraska team attended the Minnesota-Ames game Saturday, and it is a safe prediction that King Cole will spend the current week in drilling plays into his team that will tell against the gophers. Minnesota's offense undoubtedly will be worked against as far as was exhibited in Saturday's game, but a week may bring about a wonderful change in Minnesota's style. Secret practice will be continued at Northrop field and the rooters will have no opportunity to see what is doing until the regular Saturday games. This season the gates are sealed tight and nothing is leaking out for the ever-ready ears of the opposing teams' coaches.

M'FARLANE MAY RE-ENTER SCHOOL

Big Tackle May be Included in the Saturday Lineup.

The students of the high school are making a desperate effort to induce McFarlane, the star tackle, who left school Monday, to return to his studies, and again don his moleskins "for the honor of the school."

At first he would listen to no reason, but a number of the older students, and some of the alumni have been after him, and while he has not finally decided, the probability is that when the team lines up against the strong St. Cloud eleven Saturday afternoon at Athletic park "Dave" will be back in the line.

Another stiff practice was held last evening, and the boys got down to business in good shape. They ran off their signals like veterans and there was nothing to it when the second team lined up and attempted to hold them.

It is expected that both Helmer and Quinn will be back in the game before Saturday. The cloud of deep gloom that has hung over the school during the first of the week has partically lifted, and the students are again becoming enthusiastic over Saturday's game.

TINKER IN TROUBLE.

Cub Short Stop is Having a Mix With His Creditors.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—The legal trouble of Joseph Tinker, shortshop of the Chicago National League Baseball club will cause the sittings in the bankruptcy court next week of Ban Johnson, Harry C. Fulliam and August Herrmann, of the national baseball commission, who have charge of the finances of the world's championship series.

Citations for Tinker and the National baseball commission were issued yesterday on the plea of a liquor dealer who holds a judgment for $350 against the ball player. The debt was contracted while Tinker was a saloon keeper in Chicago. The plaintif asserts that Tinker has declared himself without funds. An effort will be made to attach the player's share of the gate receipts, or enough to satisfy the judgment.

Dan Patch Fails.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 14.—The feature of Tuesday's sport was the remarkable, but unsuccessful attempt of Dan Patch to lower his record of 1:55, although he won the mile in 1:55¼. Considering his age and condition, his effort is said to have been more remarkable even than his record-making performance. He was very tired at the finish.

FAMOUS LYNCH CASES DROPPED

Federal Supreme Court Acts, Due to Failure to Identify.

Washington, Oct. 14.—On motion of Solicitor General Hoyt, the supreme court of the United States ordered the discharge from custody of seventeen of the twenty-seven defendants in the proceeding charging Sheriff James F. Shipp, of Hamilton county, Tennessee, and twenty-six others, with contempt of the supreme court, because of the lynching in 1905 of a negro, named Ed Johnson, after the court had taken cognizance of his case. Most of the dismissals were based on the failure of the testimony to identify the defendants with the crime.

HECLA OPINION PLACED ON FILE

Federal Judge Records Order Dissolving the Bigelow Injunction.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 14.—United States District Judge L. E. Knappen filed his opinion and order, making of record his opinion recently announced dissolving the injunction secured by Albert S. Bigelow of Boston, which prevented the Calumet & Hecla Mining company from voting the share it has acquired in the Osceola Mining company. The injunction remains in force ten days, and is further continued pending an appeal, under the following conditions:

"That the appeal be perfected within ten days and a bond for $5,000 be filed, and at the time of perfecting the appeal, an additional bond of $25,000 conditioned for the payment to the Calumet & Hecla Mining company of all damages sustained by reason of the injunction, if the injunction is dismissed by the higher court. A similar bond, protecting the Osceola Mining company must also be filed at the same time."

At the time of perfecting the appeal, the complainant must file an agreement to make application in the appellate court within seven days after the return of the appeal, and to move an advancement of the case in the docket within seven days after filing, and the service of briefs on both sides.

UNITED STATES SENATE CORRUPT, AVERS GRAFT-DISCOVERER FOLK

Governor, Seeking Toga, Says Upper National House is Worse Than St. Louis or Missouri Lawmakers.

JOSEPH WINGATE FOLK.

Goldfield, Mo., Oct. 14.—Governor Folk, in his campaign speech here, said the United States senate is more corrupt than was ever the Missouri legislature or the St. Louis municipal assembly, in both of which Mr. Folk, when circuit atorney of St. Louis, unearthed extensive bribery. The governor said in part:

"The great work of the next few years in the battle of the people against the enemies of the people, will be on the field of the senate of the United States. There is no place in all this world where there is more to be done for the people against graft, greed and lawlessness than there.

"While there are no doubt many good men in the senate, there is undoubtedly more rottenness there than there ever was in the legislature of Missouri or even in the municipal assembly of St. Louis. Instead of being senators of the people, too many of them have beensubsidized by special interests to represent them instead of the people.

"If the Democrats of Missouri wish me to continue in the United States the work commenced as circuit attorney of St. Louis and as governor of Missouri, I shall do so."

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA, ACNE, TETTER ETC.

The skin is an index to the quality of the blood. Eczema, Acne, Tetter, pimples, rashes, eruptions, etc., show that some unhealthy humor or acid impurity is diseasing and corrupting the circulation, so that instead of supplying nourishment and strength to the fine, delicate tissues of the skin, it is continually pouring out its acrid and unhealthy accumulations. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., may relieve some of the itching and other discomfort caused by skin troubles, and for this reason should be used, but such treatment cannot reach the humor-laden blood, and therefore cannot cure. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only cure for skin diseases. S. S. S., a purely vegetable preparation, is the best and quickest remedy. It goes down into the circulation and neutralizes and removes the acids, impurities and humors, thoroughly purifies the circulation and permanently cures skin diseases of every kind. When S. S. S. has driven the humors and impurities from the blood, and cooled and cleansed the acid-heated circulation, every symptom passes away, the skin is again nourished with rich, healthful blood and the trouble cured, as the cause has been removed. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice free.

FIRE LOSS IS HEAVY

Fire Starts in Mercantile Company's Store and Spreads Rapidly.

Four buildings were burned in Grand Marais, Minn., at an early hour Monday morning, entailing a loss of $50,000. The news was brought to Duluth by passengers on the steamer Easton, which arrived late yesterday afternoon.

The blaze started in the rear of the Grand Marais Mercantile company's store. This building was destroyed, and with it was burned the Cook County State bank, the Grand hotel and C. J. Johnson's residence.

Clarence H. Taylor, president of the Chamberlain-Taylor company of Duluth, was owner of the mercantile store. He estimates the loss on building and stock at $38,000, with $20,000 insurance. A month ago some boxes in the rear of Taylor's store were set on fire by incendiaries, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done. The origin of Monday's fire is not known.

The amateur fire department did good work, and a bucket brigade was formed, but the flames could not be checked until the four buildings had been destroyed. A small chemical engine was used to a good advantage.

In the mercantile store there was a tank of oil which was opened to prevent an explosion. The tank caught on fire, and the flames spread to the sporting goods department, reaching the ammunition and causing a series of explosions that sounded much like a Fourth of July celebration.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MAYOR AGAINST COUNCIL'S ACT

He Vetoes the Resolution Giving Virginia a Municipal Court.

Virginia, Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless passed over the head of the mayor at the next meeting of the council, the resolution recently passed by the city council, placing the municipal court under the legislative act of 1905, will not become a reality.

Mayor Hawkinson, at the meeting of the council last evening, vetoed the resolution, and gave as his reasons that as a commission had been appointed to frame a new charter for Virginia, one of their duties would be to look after the matter of making any changes they thought best in municipal court affairs, consistent with the law regarding such matters. The resolution provided several changes in the regulations of the court, and also provided a salary for the judge of $2,400 per year, and an additional $750 for clerk hire. This, the mayor thought, was in excess and was one of his chief reasons for vetoeing the resolution.

Ben Milaretz asked permission to use a portion of the street in the removal of his building, at the corner of Walnut street and Mesabe avenue. The building will be removed to lots just opposite the Heagle blacksmith shop, on Walnut street.

The Home Scale company was awarded the contract for putting in the new city scale, which will probably be placed at the west side of the city hall, on Central avenue. The bid called for the sum of $310 for the scale, complete. The janitor at the city hall will have charge of the scale when ready for use.

A resolution was passed rescinding the contract awarded to J. P. Rooney at the last meeting for putting in cement sidewalks, and walks around the public library. It was the consensus of opinion among the aldermen that it was too late in the season to construct cement walks, hence the resolution.

Bids to furnish the city with a combination hook and ladder truck, with chemical attachment, were received as follows: Northern Fire Apparatus company, $1,850; American-La France company, $1,750.

Bids to furnish the city with a steam fire engine were received as follows: Ahrens Fire Engine company, $5,700; American-La France company, $5,600; W. S. Nott & Co., $5,500. These bids were referred to the mayor and fire committee, with instructions to report at the next meeting.

City Engineer E. F. Johnson reported that he had inspected the work done in sewer district No. 1, and found the same satisfactory in every particular and recommended that the council instruct the city clerk to draw warrants in favor of the contractors, C. W. Kern and C. C. Butler, in payment of their contract price. Resolutions were drawn to that effect.

President Osborne reported that the committee appolned to place additional fire alarm boxes thought it advisable to put in fifteen additional boxes. He stated that the light and water company has refused to allow them placed on their poles, but that as soon as possible the committee would make application to the Mesabe Telephone company for the use of its poles for that purpose.

DULUTH ATTORNEY IS AN ASPIRANT

James J. Boyle Wants to be Eveleth City Attorney.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contract for laying the intake pipe at the pumping station was awarded to Pastoret & Lunz of Two Harbors last night by the city council. The intake pipe will be a 12-inch one, as the original plans called for, and will be of the hub and spigot type. The contract price is $2,223.

The estimate was received from City Engineer Austin as to the cost of laying about 396 feet of 6-inch pipe, and also for a hydrant at the corner of the street where the Sprace office is located. The estimate was $459.69. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for this work.

No city attorney was appointed, as expected. The applications of N. B. Arnold, now doing the legal work for the city, and that of James F. Boyle of Duluth were received and placed on file.

The city clerk was instructed to return to Mrs. Skeel, wife of the late City Clerk Skeel, $46.28 which the council found is due her through overdeposits and from the buying of some dog licenses.

The question of bringing Central division No. 2 into the city limits was discussed. It developed that the land belonged to the Murphy, Dorr and Flynn interests, and lots were sold on contract. The division is located on some stony ground near the new school building. The council is in favor of taking the division in, if they will pay the assessments on all the improvements that must be made abutting their property. The council appointed itself a committee to investigate the matter of bringing the division in, and will report at the next meeting.

SEARCHERS FIND BODY

Edwin Hobbs Died in Lester Park Sunday or Monday.

Bullet Wound in Head and Revolver is Clutched in Hand.

While temporary insane, Edwin Hobbs of 1510 East Fourth street, 48 years of age, ended his life at Lester park either Sunday or Monday. The body was found yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Odin Aune, an employe of E. K. Peterson, who was stripping sod near the ski slide at the time. A revolver with two chambers empty was clutched in the dead man's hand, and there was a bullet wound in the head, over the right ear.

Mr. Peterson started for town to notify the authorities, when he met Deputy Sheriff Michael Horgan and party of searchers. The coroner was notified and the body taken to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan.

Mr. Hobbs resided with his wife and daughter at 1510 East Fourth street. He was an expert draughtsman, employed in the office of J. Uno Sebenius, chief engineer of the mining department of the Oliver Iron Mining company. He has been in poor health for several months past, and was possessed with the idea that he was afflicted with an incurable disease, despite the fact that the doctors said his ailment was mere imaginary than real.

Mr. Hobbs disappeared from his home last Sunday afternoon. He was known then to be slightly out of his mind, and searching parties were at once organized. Monday the aid of the police was sought, and the search was prosecuted vigorously. Yesterday several parties were out, and the search was extended all over the hillside.

The body was accidentally found by Aune. It was lying face upwards in a little by-road near the ski slide. Life had been extinct for at least twenty-four hours, and it is believed that death occurred Sunday, and that Hobbs left home with the intention of never returning alive. A note in the dead man's pocket, addressed to his wife, said he was tired of living, as he was sick and knew he would never get well.

Mr. Hobbs was born in England. Besides his wife and daughter, the only relative he has in this country is a brother, who is engaged in business in St. Paul.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Pro-Cathedral on East Superior street. Interment will in Forest Hill cemetery.

DECEIVED MOTHER.

Thought She Was Drinking Coffee.

It is surprising how many persons have thought they were drinking coffee, when in fact it was Postum—

The secret of "good Postum" is in boiling it until it is dark and rich. This brings out all the food value and with good cream one can scarcely tell it from coffee—if at all.

And yet there's no coffee in Postum. It is made of clean, hard wheat and a trifle of molasses. But the way the wheat is roasted brings out a flavor similar to coffee.

"My mother was troubled with indigestion," writes a Ky. woman, "She made her coffee so strong that no one else would drink it. I knew it was killing her by degrees.

"She would make one pot of coffee to suit the family and then another for herself—much stronger. When she came to visit me I made her coffee while we drank Postum.

"One morning, the pots containing coffee and Postum being alike, got mixed. She drank Postum and said it was 'fine coffee,' had a better taste than hers, so rich and good. Then she began the use of Postum and found she began to get better. Now she is entirely well."

THE NON-COMBATANTS.

Gravesenders Figure Unconsciously in the Warlike Proceedings.

At high water slack, around 11 o'clock, several low, rakish-looking craft of indefinite color that evidently did not belong to the Swiss armada were seen lurking in the offing, says the New York Sun.

The telephone bell rang behind one of the long, black guns in a cement casement, and the lieutenant in command answered the call.

"Azimuth umpty-umpy, bismuth umteen, range 4-11-44," came the voice of the major from the fire command shack.

The great gun rose and dipped, pointed its muzzle toward the upper hospital branch, swung around until it had the Dreamland tower in range, the oscillated slowly for a few moments and came to rest pointing between the West Bank beacon and the Potato Patch.

"What do you get?" came the major's voice along the telephone wire.

"Correct," said the major. "Anybody with him?"

"Still Voorhees," replied the lieutenant.

"How is she heading?"

"The skiff is heading toward the Narrows. Still is bent over the engine and is heading out to sea."

"Don't fire, commanded the major; "you couldn't miss him."

Again the telephone rang in the casement, and instructions for pointing the great gun were given. After a brief interval the lieutenant signalled that he had the range.

"What is it this time?" asked the major, chuckling to himself, for he had caused the gun to be aimed at a place on the water where there was no craft to be seen.

"Hank Bailey coming in from lifting," returned the man behind the gun.

"I don't see him," said the major.

"No more do I," responded the lieutenant, "but I hear him cussing."

The telephone rang in the major's shack.

"Suspicious-looking craft with a wild-cat for a figurehead just crossed the field of vision," volunteered the lieutenant.

"I see him," said the major; "it's Johnny Snedeker with his dog Nippy out on the bow. But wait—take this message," giving the instructions. "What have you got this time?"

"Sam Spiller fallen asleep while trying to get a start out of his engine."

"Anybody else in the boat?"

"Well, you might fire a shot over them to wake them up—but hold on. Have they got the can with them?"

"Yes."

"Then, never mind; it would only be a waste of powder."

In a little while the major's telephone rang again, with further information from the lieutenant.

"Voices of foreigners in the offing," said the telephone; "sounds like Swiss lingo."

The major surveyed the water with his glass and remarked to the officer beside him:

Again the major gave the range to the officer in the pit, and as soon as the big gun could be sighted, the lieutenant reported:

"I get Old Man Nonpareil trying to make his boat run with his great invention for protecting his spark plug from being short circuited by water."

"Is that all?"

"Yes, except Mrs. Nonpareil; she's feeding herself peaches with one hand and tucking up her back hair with the other."

"Correct again. Don't let me forget to send a tug down to pull him up into Coney Island creek before we fire any more."

The last incident of the range finding practice before firing was resumed was a report from the lieutenant that he had Bill Kenney again in the field of vision, this time measuring a short lobster with a micrometer before throwing it over.

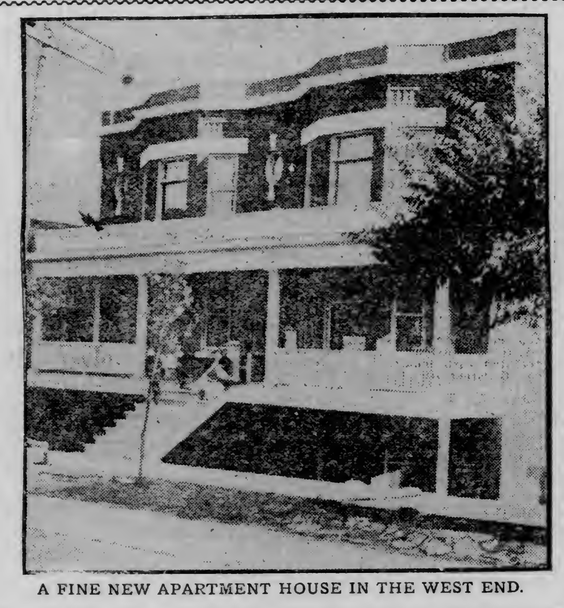

As for the non-combatants, they were generally unaware of the warfare that was raging. Late in the afternoon a man fishing for eels from the after dock of the sloop Three Sisters remarked without looking up:

"Sunset already?"

"No," said Irv; "those fellows up at the forts are having some sort of target practice."

DULUTH'S NEW BUILDINGS

PAINTER AND MILLIONAIRE.

P. A. B. Widnerer, the Philadelphia capitalist, in whose gallery examples of the painter Sargent's best work are to be found, told at a dinner in Devon a Sargent story.

"A millionaire of coarse extraction went to Mr. Sargent's Tite-street studio," he said, "and had his portrait done.

"When the portarit was finished, the millionaire looked at it closely, and then said with a frown:

"'Not bad, Mr. Sargent; not at all bad; but you've left out one most essential feature.'

"Mr. Sargent bit his lip to hide a smile.

"'Excuse me, sir,' he said; 'but I thought you wouldn't care to have the —er—er—warts reproduced.'

"The millionaire, purple with rage, shouted:

"'Confound it, sir, I'm talking about the diamond rings and pin—not the warts.'"

BIG VALUES TO PROPERTY

Depositions of Mining Experts Read in District Court.

The case of the Butte & Superior Mining company against John McAlpine dragged again today before Judge Ensign of the district court.

The depositions of James Grahm, a mining man of Butte, and James B. Reins are being read, and they consist of estimates of the property's value, and the location of the veins which has all been gone over thoroughly before. It is expected that the reading will be finished by tonight.

Mr. Grahm says that if the Spectator mine with six acres is worth from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000 he sees no reason why the Butte & Superior property should not be worth fifteen times as much.

He says that from the position of the mine he is led to believe the vein of ore runs heavily, and because the shaft has not gotten down far enough is the only reason why the mine has not up to this time paid.

The morning session was featured by the number of objections to different parts of the depotisms by J. B. Richards, attorney for the defendant, most of them being overruled by the court. Mr. Hollister, one of the attorneys for the company, objected to the manner in which Mr. Richards emphasized different parts of the evidence, and Mr. Richards refused to read further, giving way to a substitute.

MUST NOT SMOKE ON THE STREET

If one offers a policeman a cigar on the street, one should not be offended if the copper sticks it in his pocket for future reference, and refuses to light up right away.

A new order has been issued by Chief Troyer, prohibiting policemen from smoking on the street while on duty, or smoking on the street at any time if togged out in their official blue clothes.

The new order is said to be for the good of the service, and there are many who will doubtless say it is also for the good of the men. The men themselves may not agree to this, but they will be able to make up for lost time in the matter of cigars and tobacco when they are not on duty.

WARM FOR OCTOBER.

Today was pretty warm for an October day in Duluth. From 55 degs. this morning the mercury in the tube rose to 79 degs., and indications were that it would go higher during the afternoon.

In 1905 the weather bureau figures show that the temperature attained 79 degs. once, and in 1901 80 degs. was reached. H. W. Richardson, the forecaster in charge of the Duluth weather bureau, looks for a continuance of the Indian summer weather for some days.

'TIS STRANGE INDEED.

Coal Dealers Hope Indian Summer Weather Will Continue.

Every coal dealer in Duluth is hoping that the warm weather continues until the end of the present week. It may seem peculiar that the coal man should wish for warm weather, but the truth of the matter is that the fuel merchants are swamped with orders at the present time, and it has been only in the last few days that they have been able to make any progress in filling them.

At the Northwestern office it is reported that orders were received during the first cold spell that would keep all the teams of the company busy for ten days. Within the past few days the orders have been very much lighter and the coal dealers have been able to fill back orders.

Orders from the range have shown little decrease on account of the Indian summer weather. They are coming in very rapidly. The Western coal movement has shown a decrease, and coal is not moving as heavily from the Duluth docks. Despite the warm weather, every coal wagon in the city is busy filling delayed orders, and the dealers are hoping that the old Sol beams genially until they can catch up with the swamp orders.

After shooting the woman Howell calmly sent word to the sheriff and awaited his arrival. The woman was about 40.

MASTER OF CROWDS.

Retiring London Police Superintendent on Traffic Handling.

London Daily Chronicle: The city police force has lost a familiar and respected figure by the retirement yesterday of Supt. Fitzgerald.

The retiring officer had a cheery welcome for a Daily Chronicle representative, who dropped in at his office in Old Jewry to wish him "good-by and good luck." It is twenty-eight and a half years since he joined the force after service in the Welsh regiment, and there was plainly a note of regret in his voice as he said he had come to his last hour of duty and was chatting over things with his successor, Supt. Nichols. But the man who has faced the perils that only a police officer knows shrank from the interviewer.

"Look here," he protested laughingly, "I'm not a hero; I've just done my duty. But I've always managed to keep good friends with pressmen, so what can I tell you?"

Supt. Fitzgerald has of late had much to do with the control of traffic and of the crowds that assemble on special occasions, so he was asked to talk about that.

"Well, as to traffic," he said, "the problem doesn't get any easier. Whether the 'tubes' lightened things at all is questionable, and at the same time you had the introduction of motor buses, which have aggravated the problem. From my experience I should say that the only real remedy for congested traffic is street widening, enormouse though the cost would be. Look at Farringdon street, for instance; do you ever see a 'block' there? As to the delay where streets meet and cross the city rule is never to stop one line of traffic for more than a minute. As for the suggestion that slow traffic should be diverted, leaving the chief streets for cabs and buses, we have practically no such alternative routes east and west. The ideal would be parallel streets, one for eastward traffic and the other for westward. Bearing on the matter is the fact that the streets are so libertlly watered as to be dangerous for horses and motors. This watering is specially excessive at the sides of the streets, so that we hesitate about turning heavy traffic there, as the burdened horses would never get a foothold.

"As for London drivers, they remain as good as ever, though we miss the old omnibus driver, whose skill was world famous.

"With regard to city crowds, they are wonderfully easy to handle if you go about it the proper way. If you try to regulate them in a common sense manner they appreciate your efforts and help you all they can. But if you were to try harsh measures the work would be very difficult.

"Yes, Londoners make the best behaved and best tempered crowd in the world, and they are getting better and better. At one time Lord Mayor's show day was followed by a large number of pocket picking charges, and there was a rough element to deal with, but all this has practically disappeared. Our golden rule is to watch the side streets so that the crowds cannot converge and become unwieldly.

"The densest crowd I ever saw in the city was at the return of the C. I. V.'s, and our difficulties were increased by the fact that we had no mounted men on duty that day. The welcome to the Powerful's sailors from Ladysmith was probably the next biggest day for us. A royal visit to the Guildhall is not so bad for us in the city, since—except at the luncheon hour, when warehouses and offices disgorge their thousands—the streets are not much more crowded than usual, sightseers lining up further west.

"As for the crowds outside the Old Bailey, I agree with every word in the Daily Chronicle of yesterday and today. But, as matters now stand, it was better for us the other day to let the people gather in Old Bailey than in Newgate street, as we were able to keep the latter thoroughfar fre for the escape of less popular people. The mob that welcomed Slevier was not a typical London crowd, but more of a racecourse crowd, and far more difficult to handle."

HUMAN IGNORANCE.

New York Press: If you would come to a realization of the ignorance of the average man and woman, gather together 100 and ask a few simple questions, something like these: How many ribs has a man? How many ribs has a woman? How many joints are in a babys spine? Is a mans spine longer than a womans? On which side is the liver? Where is the spleen? How large is the stomach? How long are the intestines? There are two lungs, one on the right, the other on the left; one has two lobes; how many has the other? How many bones are in your hand? Are your bones solid or hollow? Do the bones in a bird contain marrow? How many toes has a dog? Does a cow have teeth? Can a horse breathe through his mouth? Why does a dog pant with his tongue out? Why do most perching birds roost on one leg when asleep? Why does a fox terrier run on three legs? What makes a cat purr?

A CURE FOR SEASICKNESS.

Pilot Rock Record: To pick up your home paper in a strange city produces a feeling akin to seeing your nations flag floating in a foreign country. That we knew, but we did not know that sight of the home paper would cure seasickness, until last week. A lady on board the steamer State of California, on her trip from San Francisco to Portland, was shown a copy of the Pilot Rock Record, and the effect was marvelous. The lady was on her way to Pilot Rock to pay a visit to her parents, but had been confined to her berth almost from the hour of leaving San Francisco. At sight of her home paper she came on deck and enjoyed the remainder of the trip immensely.

IRISH POSTAGE.

In a recently received letter were two postage stamps, one the familiar red stamp, the other an unfamiliar stamp of a dull green, both canceled by the postoffice at which the missive had been mailed, says the New York Sun. The green stamp carried in the oval a figure in flowing robes discoursing sweet music upon the harp. In the top panel was the legend "Eirne," on each of the two side panels was the inscription "Sinn Fein," all the lettering being in the Irish character. The bottom panel displayed a couchant hound. On small shields in the four corners were the heraldic blazons of the kingdoms of Ulster, Munster, Leinster and Connaught. This Irish postage will not carry a letter very far unless reinforced by stamps of more solid collateral value, but it serves as a vent for national enthusiasm and contributes a little to the cause.

There is a great demand in China for lead. It is used in several Chinese manufactures, but chiefly for lining tea chests for export.

WHEAT HAS AN UPTURN

The Bulls Turn the Tables on the Bears.

Easier Undertone to Flax in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 14.—There was a turn in the bearish tide in wheat today and prices went up in all of the American markets. The opening prices were firm and with a steady demand largely on unfavorable weather prospects in the winter wheat belt, values increased as the session advanced and the close showed good fractional gains over yesterday.

The strength here was entirely domestic as cables were weak. Liverpool closed ½d to ⅝d lower.

The December option closed 1c higher in Duluth, 1⅛@⅛c higher in Chicago, ⅞@⅞c higher in Minneapolis, ⅞c higher in New York, and ¾c higher in Winnipeg. Wire trouble prevented the receipt of closing quotations from the Southwest and other usual information. The May option closed 1c higher in Duluth ⅞@1c higher in Chicago, ¾@⅞c higher in Minneapolis, ⅛c up in New York and ¾c higher in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ¼@¾c lower in Chicago and ½d to ⅝d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed 1⅛c lower in Chicago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,144,000 bus, last year 992,000 bus. Shipments, 1,109,000 bus, last year 1,178,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 332,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 245,000 bus, last year 767,000 bus. Shipments 345,000 bus, last year 754,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 4,000 bus.

There was a fair volume of trading in wheat during the session in Duluth. December wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.00¾, advanced to $1.02⅛ and closed 1c higher than yesterday at $1.02. May wheat opened ⅜c higher at $1.05⅜, advanced to 1.06⅞ and closed at $1.06, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1c over December for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quite active and closed with a slightly easier tone. October flax opened unchanged at $1.21½, went off to $1.21¾, rallied to $1.21⅞ and closed at $1.21⅝, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. November flax opened ¼c lower at $1.21½ advanced to $1.22 and closed at $1.21⅞, unchanged from yesterday. December flax opened unchanged at $1.20½, advanced to $1.21 and closed at $1.20⅝, unchanged from yesterday. May flax opened unchanged at $1.24½, advanced to $1.25, declined to $1.24¾ and closed at $1.24⅞, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday.

Oats and other coarse grains closed unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Rally Follows Buying by the Commission Houses.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—The wheat market opened easy, with prices unchanged to ⅛@⅜c lower than yesterday's close, but soon rallied on buying by commission houses, all of the opening loss being regained. The weakness at the start was due mainly to a decline of ⅜d at Liverpool, and the subsequent rally was based chiefly on a decrease in the Northwest and continued dry weather in the Southwest. Arrivals today at Minneapolis and Duluth were 632 cars against 1,118 cars the corresponding day last week. December, which opened at $1.00⅛ to $1.00⅝, advanced to $1.00¾@⅞ early in the day. Total receipts at Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago were 671 cars against 1,144 cars last week and 620 cars a year ago.

The market continued firm the greater part of the day, buying by shorts causing additional firmness late in the session. The high point for December was reached at $1.01¼. The market closed firm, with December up ⅛@⅜c at $1.01.

Realizing by prominent longs caused weakness in corn, which was partially offset, however, by the rally in wheat. Favorable weather conditions for the ne wcrop were the principal bearish influences. December opened ⅛@¼c lower, at 63⅜c to 63⅞c and sold at 64c. Local receipts were 80 cars, with 18 of contract grade.

A decline in the price of the cash grain and a depressing effect during the last half of the session, and the market closed weak at almost the lowest point, December being off ¼@⅜c at 65⅝@65¾c.

Oats opened easy in sympathy with corn, initial quotations being ⅛c to ⅜@½c lower. Some recovery was made early in the day, owing to good demand for the May delivery by commission houses. December opened at 48c to 48¼c and sold at 48⅜@½c. Local receipts were 145 cars.

Provisions were inclined to be weak because of a decline in live hogs. The market, however, was irregular, opening quotations being 7½c lower to 10c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Oct. 14.—A sharp falling off in receipts put firmness into wheat against cables that were ⅝@¾c higher early and ½c to ⅝c up at the close. Minneapolis got 388 cars, against 238 still in excess over last year, but much below recent figures. Duluth got 244 against 308, Winnipeg 440 and 343. Minneapolis elevators stocks increased 1,425,000 bushels for four days. There was no rain in the winter wheat states. The close was firm and about ⅞c higher. December opened $1.01⅜; high, $1.02; low, $1.01⅜; close, $1.01⅞@1.02. Old December closed $1.02¾; May wheat opened $1.05⅜; high, $1.06⅜; low, $1.05⅜; close, $1.06¼@⅜.

NEWS TRIBUNE TALKS ABSURDLY

Tower Junction, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The News Tribune's confounding of a tonnage tax and a tax on royalties is so absurd to a man who has any knowledge of the mining business that it does not need answering," said P. H. Nelson of Hibbing, who is with the governor's party, today. "It makes the paper ridiculous."

The special arrived at Soudan shortly before 2 o'clock and the governor addressed a meeting of the school children. Stops will be made at every station between Tower Junction and Two Harbors. Lawrence Claffey of Two Harbors, came up the line this morning, and arranged meetings for the governor at every stopping place.

DALLAS IS PREY TO PRAIRIE FIRE

Dallas, S. D., Oct. 14.—This town is seriously threatened by a prairie fire, which started about noon today. Several buildings have caught and others are in danger. A general panic among the home-seekers prevails.

LIFE-SAVER'S REWARD.

John K. Lloyd, the noted life-saver of Long Branch, related some of his life-saving experiences at a complimentary dinner.

"I have had dealings with very generous men," said the veteran hero, "and I have had dealings with very mean men.

"Once, on a January day in Philadelphia, a man who was recovering from a debauch fell from one of the Delaware piers into the cold, wet river.

"Slipping off my overcoat, I plunged in after him. I fished him up from the bottom. He was unconscious, but I managed to get him to a big, cold cake of ice, and on this cake of ice I supported the pair of us till help arrived.

"Well, I had saved the man's life, and he said he was grateful.

"'Here, young fellow,' said he, 'here's a half-dollar. You saved my life, and you must be chilled through. Go and get yourself a pint of whisky.'

"But I handed him a quarter back.

"'No, no,' I said. 'A half-pint's your price. You've overvalued yourself.'"

GOATS REPAIRED RESERVOIR.

Denver Republican: At Cokedale, a camp of the American Smelting and Refining company, leaky reservoirs have been giving more or less trouble of late and many schemes had been tried to stop the leaking, without avail, until Supt. Bayles and Engineer Sutton hit upon the idea of turning a herd of goats into the reservoir.

After the goats had thoroughly trampled down the bottom of the basin water was again turned in and the reservoir holds as well as if it had been freshly cemented.

Clear out the garret. Sell the not needed things by a want ad in The Herald.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Demand Was Light and Market Dull Most of Session.

Opening Was Slightly Lower and Recoveries Were Not Held.

New York, Oct. 14.—Demand for stocks at the opening today was very dull, but small fractional gains were effected in almost all cases. Atchison rose a point and Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific ¾.

Obscure stocks were brought into activity but their strength and prominence were not regarded favorably and holders of other stocks sold, causing a general decline to below yesterday's final figures. Exceptionally Westinghouse Electric advanced 5¼, New York Air Brake 2¾, General Electric, 1B, American Ice 1½, American Beet Sugar 1⅜, the preferred 2½, and Allis-Chalmers preferred 1¼.

Some of the minor stocks which were made active at advances yesterday, were found to be unsupported. General selling followed and the resulting declines ran to a point or more in numerous stocks. Toledo, St. Louis and Western fell 2, the preferred 2½, and Chicago and Alton, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Northwestern and Republic Steel preferred 1¾. Some recovery followed, but this put a stop to the activity. Bonds were steady.

The market held firm after the recovery had reached about ½ in the important stocks. A brief demand for Southern railway preferred and Louisville & Nashville left them 1⅜ and 1½ respectively. Chicago terminal also rose 2 and Westinghouse Electric first preferred 10. Delaware & Hudson fell 1½ and Western Union 1¾.

Offers of stock, new takers and prices sagged to the lowest. Reading yielded 1⅜. Slight recoveries again followed, but did not hold firmly.

The market closed irregular and dull. Union Pacific and National Lead sold 1⅜ lower than last night. There were but feeble rallies from the low level. Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred rose 1¼ and Pacific Coast, 2.

Copper Stock Brokers.

414 WEST SUPERIOR STREET.
102-103 MANHATTAN BLDG.

My own wires to the Copper country. Also connections to Eastern Markets.

OCT. 14, 1908.

We are, I believe, going to have one of the best markets this coming winter that we have ever had. Much trading is being done all along the line. Copper Queen woke up from its long sleep and was almost impossible to buy at $1.12½ at the close of business today. We have had a man at this mine and he reports that conditions are much better than any of us ever expected. He states that they have 5,000 tons of good ore on the dump; also 75,000 tons blocked out in the mine. The mill will be ready in about 60 days and the electric power will also be installed shortly.

Carman was traded in at $3.50, and when the market gets active this stock is the one that always moves up fast.

Butte & Montana holds around 50 cents and is probably the best buy on the board. Mine is in condition so that the 1,000 and 1,200-foot levels can be opened up at once. The company should soon have plenty of money for all purposes, and inasmuch as they own the fee to both mines, we can strongly advise the purchase of shares. In a few days we will be in position to advise you who the men are that will take active charge with Mr. H. H. Kerr. Work should begin on a large scale inside of three weeks.

This mine adjoins the West Colusa, and is only a few feet from the Minnie Healy, and much can be expected from it. All of this stock is ready for delivery. Call on the different brokers and get your certificates.

Butte & Superior is very active, and is one of the biggest traders on the board. This stock is much better advertised than ever before. The whole country is now buying it fast.

Greene-Cananea and Superior & Pittsburg should do much better. Shattuck is a good buy, but will take time to get around. North Butte is the richest mine in the world and stock should be bought. Globe Consolidated is getting along better every day.

We can use big blocks of Copper Queen at $1.06. Bring it to us. Red Warrior sold at $4.50. Mowitza at $2.62½. These two are very active when condition of market is half right.

We will give you the right information on all properties. Give us your business.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 14.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 2 points, and notwithstanding indifferent cables, good weather, and Southern selling of the late months, firmed up to a net gain of 2 to 6 points during the early session on covering by October shorts and buying of January by spot houses. Later prices eased off to within a point or two of last night's finals.

A FREAK OIL WELL.

Los Angeles Times: Fullerton is the scene of a strange freak in oil. The Columbia's big flowing well on the corner of its land that came in November, 1908, with a daily output of 1,300 barrels and has produced to date between 500,000 and 600,000 barrels, is the performer. For a long time its output had been down to 500 to 600 a day. Early last week it suddenly turned loose with a roar and for two hours threw oil at a furious rate, which ran down the canyon. Most of it was recovered and pumped into the tanks. The amount was fully 1,500 barrels. Then the well began to subside, and today and since then it has been yielding close to 1,300 barrels, the amount it started with.

No reason has been discovered for its course. On the contrary there was reason to expect a heavy and permanent decline long ago. The Santa Fe has drilled two and C. V. H

FREIGHTERS IN SMASH-UP

Mataafa and Sacramento Come Together in Harbor Channel.

The Smaller Boat is Sunk in Shallow Water.

The Mataafa and Sacramento, two heavily laden freighters collided in the local harbor channel, abreast of Elevator H, at 2 o'clock this morning, with the result that the Sacramento, the smaller boat was sunk and the larger boat received a gash in her bow.

The Mataafa was out-bound with a load of ore and the Sacramento was coming in with a load of coal.

It will b erecalled that the Mataafa was wrecked in a most spectacular manner, at the harbor entrance, during the big storm of November, 1905.

The masters of the boats realized too late the danger of a crash and when the collision came, the Sacramento, the smaller craft, was so badly damaged that her hold filled with water and she sank just west of the channel.

The Mataafa escaped more fortunately. She laid hard by and an inventory of her damages revealed only a four-foot rip in her port bow and the loss of her anchor. She is lying in the harbor now, but it is expected that she will be able to go down the lakes with her cargo without much delay.

With the Sacramento, things are more serious. Divers were looking over her injuries this morning and it will be necessary to put a temporary patch on her, so that she can be pumped out, raised and taken to the dock to be unloaded.

Navigation is not much obstructed by the wreck. The Sacramento is a wooden steamer 208 feet long, but she sank in a position which places only 175 feet of her in the actual channel and as the waterway is about 500 feet wide at that point, boats can get in and out without difficulty.

It is expected that the Sacramento can be raised and removed to her dock within two or three days. She is owned by James Davidson of West Bay City and her master is Capt. John Dunn.

The Mataafa is 430 feet long and is owned by the Pittsburg Steamship company. H. J. Regan is her captain. The boat sustained a hole four feet long and two feet wide in her port bow, above the water line. It is thought that her anchor, which is lost is entangled in the wrecked Sacramento.

Who was to blame for the accident has not been brought out yet.

It will be recalled that the Mataafa was wrecked in a most spectacular manner at the harbor entrance during the big storm of Nevamber, 1905.

CRY IS RAISED AGAINST DIVES

Father of Ruined Girl Spurs Minneapolis Citizens to Act.

Minneapolis, Oct. 14.)(Special to The Herald.)—Spurred on by the appeal of a father, who tells a story of ruin for his 17-year-old daughter, and who appeals for an investigation with the purpose of saving other fathers from the mental anguish he has undergone, some of the most progress and public sepirited men of Minneapolis are demanding an iquiry into municipal affairs in Minneapolis. It is said that the nature of the charges brought by the distracted father are such that men high in social and political life will be involved, and will have to clear their skirts.

The social evil and the conduct of saloons are the main points of attack. It is said that men now enjoying the confidence of the public are the ones whoses reputations will suffer.

Whatever the outcome may be it is certain that some sort of a serious scandal is about to be unearthed in Minneapolis. Witnesses who testified before the grand jury yesterday are said to have brought to light a state of things that is startling. Mike Weissman, who runs a saloon on Washington avenue north, Frank Banks, 558 Eighth avenue north, Samuel Cohen, 418 Sixth avenue north, Frank Baggs, 558 Eighth avenue north, and License Inspector Evans were among the parties testifying.

The drift of the charge seems to trend towards protection of dives by those who have the power and the giving permission to keep open on Sunday to wine rooms and places where liquor is sold.

INSTITUTE AT Y. M. C. A.

George B. Hodge of New York to Speak on Education.

Needs of Young Men to be Discussed by Veteran in Work.

Final plans for an educational institute, to be conducted at the Duluth Y. M. C. A., Oct. 16-18, were completed at a meeting of the educational committee last night. George B. Hodge of New York, secretary of the international comittee, and head of the department of education of the Young Men's Christian associations of North America, will be the principal figure at the institute, which is intended to further the educational work in the local institution.

The institute will open with a dinner party Friday evening, to which the directors, instructors in the evening school, secretaries, local committee men and business men will be invited. Following the dinner, Mr. Hodge will give an address on "Educational Needs and the Promotion of Educational Work Among Industrial Classes." The address will be supplemented by charts and demonstrations, which will show the educational conditions existing throughout the United States. Mr. Hodge has devoted a number of years to the special study of the country's educational needs and his talk will be interesting.

Sunday afternoon in the assembly room of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Hodge will deliver an address on "Educational Work," illustrated with the stereopticon. All men and boys will be admitted to the lecture.

Besides the lectures delivered in Duluth, the state committee has planned similar institutions in St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., and Grand Forks, N. D.

The local comittee on educational work consists of W. D. Bailey, chairman; William I. Prince, C. W. Andrews, and W. H. Lippold, educational secretary. The educational department of the Duluth Y. M. C. A. has a corps of twenty-five teachers and is making good progress in its work.

NEW DEFENSE OF GUARANTY PLAN

Bryan Likens Present Opposition to Fire Insurance Hostility.

Columbus, Neb., Oct. 14.—Speaking here today, William Jennings Bryan said in part:

"The same objection made to the guaranty of bank deposits was made against fire insurance when it was first suggested. Then its opponents argued learnedly that to insure all houses was to make some men careless about fire, and that it would lead others to burn their houses in order to get the insurance. If that argument had prevailed, we would have no fire insurance today, but the people wisely decided that we should have protection against fire, that it was better to punish criminally the few who burn their houses than to leave unprotected the many whose houses were likely to burn by accident.

"The case in favor of guaranteed banks is even stronger than the case of fire insurance, because the 100 per cent penalty against the stockholder added to the entire loss of his investment is sufficient to prevent carelessness, and the amount of money called out of hiding will more than repay the tax which is imposed upon the bank."

DULUTH MAY BE ON GLIDDEN TOUR

Telephone Man's Auto Scouts Are Due Here Tonight.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Paul may be on the route of the Charles G. Glidden automobile tour next summer.

F. L. Estey of Chicago and Donald J. McIntosh of Cleveland, in a Studebaker scouting car, have arrived from Chicago and say they are spying out the land for the next tour.

From Duluth they will either return to the Twin Cities or continue northward to Winnipeg, and then come back here. Later they expect to go southwest through Sioux City and Omaha.

It is ensier to ride bareback than it is to keep one's balance on the right side when trade is dropping off. Advertising in The Herald will give the merchant a firmer and more comfortable seat.

GREATEST POLITICAL GATHERING IN DULUTH'S HISTORY—THE ARMORY WAS PACKED TWICE

BULGARIA WILL BE INDEPENDENT

Recognize Crete as Being Part of Greece, Now; Insist on Financial Compensation to Turkey.

Powers Would Also Abrogate All Restrictions in Berlin Treaty Affecting Montenegro.

London, Oct. 15.—Great Britain, Russia and France have reached an agreement on a program to be submitted to the other powers as a basis for discussion by the proposed European conference to settle the Balkan situation. The proposals to be laid before the powers are eight in number.

Settle Railway Question.

The first is that articles one to twenty-two of the treaty of Berlin, which relate to Bulgaria and Eastern Rumelia, shall be replaced by stipulations recognizing the independence of Bulgaria as at present constituted and determining the financial obligations of Bulgaria toward Turkey. New clauses probably will settle also the question of the Oriental railway.

Take Note of Annexation.

The second and third proposals are that the powers shall take note of the annexation by Austria-Hungary of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the return of the Sanjak of Novipazar to Turkey.

Relating to Crete.

The fourth article relates to Crete. It replaces article twenty-three of the treaty of Berlin by clauses recognizing the annexation of Crete to Greece, and determining the financial obligations of Greece, in respect to Crete, toward Turkey. It is understood that the four powers under whose protection Crete has been, Russia, Great Britain, France and Italy, will settle the Cretan question in concert with Turkey before referring it to the conference. It is proposed also that the second part of article twenty-three of the Berlin treaty, which provides special regulations for the government of other parts of European Turkey, shall cease to have force when the powers are assured that a satisfactory settlement has been effected.

Apply to Armenian Provinces.

The fifth proposal is to the effect that arrangements similar to the above shall apply to the Armenian provinces of Turkey.

Deals With Montenegro.

The sixth article deals with Montenegro. The Montenegrin rights of sovereignty are limited by article twenty-nine of the treaty of Berlin. It is

MEETINGS WERE RECORD-BREAKER

Hundreds, Unable to Enter, Gathered in Street and Listened to Local Speakers.

The Governor's Splendid Address Routed the Opposition and Was Received With Enthusiasm.

After swinging around the iron ranges from one triumphant meeting to another, the Johnson special rolled into Duluth last night, and the governor and his party awoke to the fact that Duluth was practically en fete to receive them. A beautiful warm evening helped to bring out the crowd. Superior street looked as it does on circus day. The governor found he had some friends on the ranges—a few thousand—but the city of Duluth turned out to hear him. His more timid supporters had been hoping he would "have a good meeting." Before the governor had reached his hotel, they were wishing they had about ten armories rolled into one, in which to hold the meeting.

An old-time torchlight procession escorted the governor from the depot to the armory. There were two bands and a fife and drum corps, and all the Democratic clubs in the city in line with torches and banners. It brought back old times to Duluthians, only the enthusiasm and the crowds were, if anything, greater than anything Duluthians remembered.

A black mob of people, an excited, struggling, but on the whole, good natured mob filled Second avenue east from Second alley to Superior street last night, surged against the doors of the armory and literally fought to gain access to the meeting.

Inside the hall, the spectators were so closely packed that they could scarcely move a muscle. Boys clung to the rafters, and even the space under the speakers' platform was occupied. It is impossible to estimate the number who heard the governor.

It was not a question of the seating capacity of the building. That furnishes no standard from which to make an estimate. It was a question of how many persons could squeeze their way in to the hall. Inside there were certainly 3,000 people, probably 4,000. Outside there may have been 5,000 more, and this does not begin to represent the number who were turned away from the meeting. The crowds going to the meeting were met by a stream of

AGED MAN IS SLAYER.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 15.—Maddened by the knowledge that the woman to whom he had entrusted all was about to sell his ranch, the only property of note that he owned, and intended to quit him and the country, Thomas Howell, aged 67, at Drummond, Monday night shot and instantly killed Mrs. Ben Davis or Fannie Ball, as she is better known throughout the western portion of the state.

Madly infatuated, Howell shortly after his wife's death squandered upon the Ball woman several thousand dollars which he had secured as insurance through the death of his spouse. The Ball woman inveigled Howell out of the control of his ranch and when he learned of her efforts to sell it, the tragedy followed.

After shooting the woman, Howell calmly sent word to the sheriff and awaited his arrival. The woman was about 40 and of prepossessing appearance. She had been the consort of gamblers of the state.

CAUGHT IN COG WHEEL

Edward Oven Is Terribly Injured at Furnace Company's Plant.

Made Two Revolutions of Wheel With the Conveyor.

With the iron teeth of the coal conveyor from the coal docks to the coke ovens at the Zenith Furnace company, biting cruelly into his flesh and bones, Edward Oven of Fifty-first avenue west, this morning turned two revolutions bound to the wheel. His body when released was torn and gashed, and his left leg had suffered a compound fracture, but by a miracle, he still lived.

Oven was oiling the running machinery of the conveyor, when he became entangled, and was dragged onto the wheel. Before the machinery could be stopped he had made two complete turns with the wheel.

He was carried to the Duluth hospital, where it was feared he might lose his leg, but after almost two hours of operating, the attending physician managed to knit the fractured bone together with wire. Oven, though suffering greatly this morning, was able to talk and describe his terrible experience.

THE NEW DRIVE READY.

Trip Will be Made Over Extension to the Boulevard.

Providing tomorrow afternoon is clear, the expanse of Lake Superior, Duluth and the St. Louis river, will be viewed for the first time by a number of Duluth citizens, from a new point of vantage.

A drive over the western extension of the boulevard has been planned by the West Duluth Commercial club and the city park board, as a fitting way in which to celebrate the opening of the new park highway. Members of the Duluth and West Duluth Commercial clubs, and the park board will meet at Third avenue west and Superior street in carriages and automobiles tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will drive through Lincoln park to the boulevard and over the recently completed extension to Fifty-ninth avenue. All who own carriages and automobiles are invited to join the party and enjoy the beautiful view from the west end of Duluth's famous drive. The boulevard now is one continuous highway from Fourteenth avenue east to Fifty-seventh avenue west, and is one of the finest drives of its kind in the country.

It was first arranged to take the drive on Saturday, but later it was decided that Friday would be a more convenient day.

A CRUEL HOAX.

West Duluth Motorman Thought He Had Killed a Man.

A motorman on a Fifty-seventh avenue west street car was almost prostrated with fright last evening, by a hoax played on him by a number of young rowdies.

It was after dark and the car was running swiftly down Fifty-seventh avenue west, when at about the Wadena street crossing, what appeared to be a man, loomed up directly in front of the car. The motorman applied the brakes with all his strength, but the man was under the wheels and dragged for several feet before the car came to a standstill. Both the conductor and the motorman were out and back of the car before it had hardly stopped. They were about to examine the prostrate form, when a delighted yell went up from the darkness, and the supposed dead man was jerked away from them by a long rope.

SECOND STORY FIRE.

The home of J. O. Winton, 304 South Sixty-fourth avenue west this morning was threatened with destruction by fire.

The blaze started in one of the upstairs front rooms, and is thought to have had its origin from sparks from a hole in the chimney. The West Duluth fire department was called at 9:34 o'clock, but the flames already had a good start, and before they could extinguish them, had badly burned the upstairs rooms and a part of the roof. The damage was about $250.

NEW PASTOR WELCOMED.

Rev. Schevenius Greeted by Large Gathering at the Church.

A most hearty welcome was extended to Rev. C. W. Schevenius, the new pastor of the Second Norwegian-Danish church, Sixtieth avenue west and Bristol street.

There was a large crowd present to greet the new pastor. The welcoming address was made by R. Jenson, to which Mr. Schevenius replied thanking the congregation for their kindness. After Mr. Shevenius had been introduced to all the members he had not already met, there was a short program of music.

Mr. Schevenius was formerly pastor for six years at Virginia, where he built up his church and congregation. He preached for the first time last Sunday at the Second church, and he hopes to make his new parish one of the strongest and largest in West Duluth.

WAS IN BED FOR THREE MONTHS

Tried to Enlist in Army and Found Operation Necessary.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Inheriting a fighting spirit, Albert Sylvester submitted to an operation which laid him up for three months in order that he might be physically able to enlist in the army.

On June 8 last he applied at the recruiting station for the service with Uncle Sam. He was rejected because he was afflicted with what is known as "hammer toes," that is, the toes on both feet were pushed under on account of the constant wearing of too short shoes.

Not discouraged, he went to work for Armour & Co., as a laborer, and saved $50, and then went to Wesley hospital and submitted to an operation.

"I'm fixed for you now," he said, marching across the room, head erect and chest out.

The officer heard his story of the operation and then, just to test the man's fighting spirit a little more, he said:

"You realize that you will get only $3.75 a week in the army, don't you?"

"I don't care if I have to soldier for my board alone; I am going to enlist," said Sylvester.

Lieut. Franklin R. Kenny examined the feet and found them in good condition. As it was necessary to obtain special authority from the war department to accept Sylvester, Lieut. Kenny wired the war department in Washington. He received a favorable reply. Sylvester was sent to Jefferson Barracks to begin his duties.

DUKE TAKES LONG LEAVE.

On His Way to America to See Miss Elkins.

Rome, Oct. 15.—Following the announcement that the engagement between the duke of Abruzzi and Katherine Elkins no longer existed, it was strongly intimated yesterday that the duke had obtained an extended leave of absence, and that he has made a poste haste departure for America.

It was declared that the duke faced a dilemma that can only be compared in history to that of Napoleon's younger brother and his "Betty of Baltimore." It is said that he is struggling between the dictates of his heart and the call of his country.

It was admitted last night in Rome that the engagement was cancelled by Miss Elkins herself, although the only announcement has so far been made by the duke. Miss Elkins' American spirit, her dislike for the notoriety attending upon the engagement, and her disappointment of the obstacles raised by the family of the duke caused her summarily to deliver to Abruzzi his congé, it is said.

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask French & Bassett.

AFTERMATH OF SPEECH

Odds Offered That Johnson Will Carry the County.

The Republicans are on the run.

This statement expresses the sentiment of the great majority of citizens of this city today. There has never been anything approaching the Johnson meeting last night in the political history of Duluth and today upon the streets of Duluth it is freely predicted that last night's meeting will change thousands of votes in this county.

As a result of this change of sentiment, following the meeting last night, odds were quoted in many down town places of business this morning on Johnson to carrying St. Louis county.

Odds of 2 to 1 that Johnson carries St. Louis county were posted in a prominent downtown store this morning. Odds of even money that the governor carries the county by a plurality of 1,000 votes were offered. Odds of 2 to 1 that he carries Minnesota, and even money that he carries Ramsey and Hennepin counties, were also posted.

Prominent Republicans in this city, this morning admitted that last night's meeting was without political precedent.

It is the belief that the governor will sweep the ranges; that he will carry every town on the range; that his vote in Northern Minnesota will surpass the vote he received from the northern tier of counties two years ago.

The political powder has ignited by the speech of last night. Today it was stated at the Democratic headquarters that reports were received from the range, telling of the wonderful effect of the Johnson tour of the range. Many men called at the headquarters this morning to give vent to their enthusiasm.

Today the speech of governor is the talk of the town.

FIRES NEAR STOCK FARM

Blaze Has Encroached to Edge of Farm Property.

Dense Pall of Smoke Over End of the Lake.

The dense smoke pall which hangs over the city today is believed to come from brush fires, which are burning between Duluth and the Jean Duluth stock farm.

The fires have already reached the farm property, although they are some distance from the farm buildings. Some little anxiety is felt by the employes of the farm. The wind is blowing the fires toward the farm, and the situation might become critical at any time, the family of the duke caused her summarily to deliver to Abruzzi his conge, it is said.

There are also extensive fires about Knife River, and the smoke over the western end of the lake is almost as dense as it was at any time during the time the fires were at their height, a few weeks ago.

MINISTER FROM HONDURAS GOES

Ugarte Denies Any Function With Assistant Secretary Bacon.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Dr. Angel Ugarte, minister from Honduras, called at the state department today and announced to Secretary Root that he had been relieved from his post here and would go to Mexico. Dr. Lazo Arriaga will succeed him.

Considerable interest attaches to the retirement of Dr. Ugarte. One rumor was that he had been relieved because of a misunderstanding between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. Dr. Ugarte, however, denied this, saying that he and the assistant secretary of state are the best of friends.

WOMEN COURT REPORTERS.

Baltimore American: "Throughout the West it is no uncommon thing to see women as official court stenographers," said R. B. Spurgeon of St. Louis, "but I believe that Mrs. Emilie Treat of Hannibal is the dean of her sex in our state, and she is still efficient and actively employed.

"Mrs. Treat, by the way, in the early days of her official career, back in 1873, did one of the biggest stunts a woman shorthand reporter ever performed. It was in a lawsuit before the United States court at Hannibal, between a contractor and a railway company, involving a big sum of money. There was a tremendous amount of testimony, for the inquiry before the referee occupied six weeks.

"It took Mrs. Treat half a year to finish the transcript, but when it was done she got $2,000 for her work and high praise for its splendid execution."

FUNDS MAY ALL BE USED

Chisholm Delegates Meet With Fire Relief Commission.

Satisfied That There Probably Will be No Surplus.

A delegation of seven men, representing the Chisholm, Minn., Commercial club, met with the fire relief commission appointed by Governor Johnson, this morning in Mayor Haven's office, for the purpose of trying to prevail upon the commission to turn over any surplus funds to the business interests to be used in reopening stores and other business places in the burned town.

The commission made no promise, but said that if any money were left in the fund, after destitute families had been properly cared for, it probably would be devoted to some such use as requested. It was explained, however, that certain reports which have gone abroad to the effect that not much more than half the fund raised would be needed were erroneous, and that there was a good chance of all the fund being used up in the relief work now being carried on. The delegation seemed entirely satisfied with the explanation, and the Chisholm men expressed themselves as being willing to await further developments.

It appears that residents of the range town have been laboring under the impression that about half the relief fund was to be turned back to the state to be used for charitable purposes. Business interests in Chisholm thought this would not be fair, in view of the fact that the cash was raised for stricken people in the burned district, and decided to ask the commission to devote the entire fund to the Chisholm sufferers. They said men in business needed all the money they could get to get properly started again, and thought it would be no more than right if anything left in the fund should be turned over to them.

Members of the relief commission, particularly Chairman Haven, have been keeping in the closest possible touch with the situation, and they say that the way the situation looks now, all the relief funds will be used up before the present plans for relief work are carried out. In this case there will be nothing left to worry over. The Chisholm delegation said this would be entirely satisfactory, but the men said they were strongly opposed to turning any of the money to other charitable purposes. They said it was intended for relief work, and should be so used.

The Chisholm business men expressed themselves as satisfied with the manner in which the relief work has been conducted up to the present time, and said that good progress was being made in the rebuilding of the stricken town. They had only words of praise and thanks for the endeavors of members of the relief commission, and said there was no criticism to offer on the manner in which the business had been conducted.

No other matter was discussed at the meeting.

MINING EXPERT ON THE STAND

Davis and Hollister, attorneys for the Butte & Superior Mining company, in the suit of that company against John McAlpine for the payment of a $2,000 note, today gained the advantage of getting Judge Ensign's permission to introduce testimony as to the value of the property since February, 1907.

Up to this time they have only been allowed to introduce evidence relative to the value of the mine prior to that date.

Victor Rakowski, a mining engineer, was on the stand this afternoon testifying as to the actual worth of the mine in his esstimation.

SUCKER SWALLOWED DIAMOND.

Logansport correspondence Indianapolis News: Miss Marie A. Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gross of Spear street, this city, a student of the Herron Art institute in Indianapolis, lost a valuable diamond ring Saturday, and its disappearance and return are remarkable.

She was a guest at the Hanly cottage, at Pottawatomie Point, on the Wabash river, east of town, and with some other girls attired in bathing suits rowed to the middle of the river to bathe. A friend suggested that she remove the diamond ring which she wore, stating that it might slip off in the water. She removed the ring, and having no other place to put it she tied it to a piece of fishline and fastened the other end to the boat. Then she jumped into the water. When they rowed back to shore, Miss Gross could find neither string nor ring.

Yesterday, while Frank Hanly was out in the boat he saw a string running through a crack in the rear board of the craft. He began to draw in the string and there was an answering tug. He pulled hard and up out of the water came a pound and a half sucker. Hanley had forgotten about the ring and sought the hook in the sucker's mouth.

He cut the line and threw the fish in the bottom of the boat. Later when cleaning the fish he was surprised to find the missing ring inside the sucker. The suppositon is that when the girls were rocking the boat the string and ring were thrown out, dangling in the water, and that a sucker spying the bright object gulped it down.

GOOD BURGLAR ALARM.

Youth' Companion: At the top of the stairway in the Grigson dwelling there was a board that emitted a loune creak whenever anybody stepped on it. Mr. Grigson was always intending to "have the thing fixed," but never did it, and by common consent the members of the family usually stepped over it, particularly when the head of the family had gone to bed.

One night, very late, just as Mr. Grigson was dropping off to sleep somebody stepped on that board and it gave forth its customary loud protest.

"There you go again," he angrily called out. "That's you this time, John! Pretty time of the night for you to be getting to bed!"

John, the eldest son, made no response, but instead there was a rush and a jump down the stairs that brought the whole household into the hall just in time to hear the front door slam. A hurried investigation disclosed a bag of valuables which a frightened bndglar had left.

The board still squeaks.

MOST REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

Recommended By A Brother Who Tried Peruna, Mr. Anderson, Of California, Was Rescued From a Seemingly Fatal Illness.

"No one seeing me today would think that I was at death's door a few years ago with pulmonary troubles. I had frequent bleeding from the lungs, my stomach was out of order, and when I came here for my health no one thought I would recover.

"My brother in the East had been cured of a very hard cold on the lungs by using Peruna and he wrote me and advised me to try it. I had little faith, but thought I would give it a trial.

"I noticed a change in my appetite the very first week, and found that I soon began to sleep well. Gradually I began to feel better and took on flesh. Recovery was slow for I was so far gone, but after seven months steady use of Peruna I was my old self once more.

"I now weigh 173 pounds, am in fine health and spirit and have been a well man for two years, thanks to Peruna. It certainly saved me from an untimely grave."

Hon. B. J. Irvin, mayor of Washington, Ga., writes that he has frequently used Peruna in his family, and has found it excellent for colds and as a tonic.

WIND WAGON IN AIR RACE

will be held on the afternoon of election day, Nov. 3, from the grounds of the Aeronautic society at Morris park.

Prof. W. H. Pickering of Harvard university has entered a wind wagon —a form of conveyance almost unknown here, but which has been used abroad for some time with considerable success—to the society.

A wind wagon is a frame on wheels with the motor geared to one or more air propellers instead to the wheels. These propellers, turning rapidly in the air, supply the driving power. There will be a race by wind wagons, the first ever held.

BOAT SAVES AERONAUTS

International trophy las Sunday from near Berlin.

The Busley got into communication with a coaling steamer bound for Edinburgh at a point in the North sea to the northwest of Heligoland. The steamer signalled that she would stand by. The aeronauts then opened their safety valve with the idea of bringing the balloon down. In the meantime the steamer had launched a small boat to pick the two men up. The balloon fell to the sea and was driven by a strong wind away from the steamer. The men in the boat pulled their hardest, and finally managed to get a line fast to the car, which was being dragged amid clouds of spray over the tops of the waves. They hung on until the two aeronauts had been rescued.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR HOVERS

war office to permit the pursuit of a detachment of soldiers, who are said to have been the aggressors, may result in the crossing of the frontier by Japanese troops.

Chinese soldiery are reported to have opened hostilities by firing upon a police station, occupied by the Japanese troops, who were sent in Kantao as a guard for the Koreans resident there. The fighting that ensued lasted several hours, and while the exact number of casualties is not obtainable, there were a number killed or wounded. The commander of the Japanese garrison immediately called upon China for permission to cross the frontier into Chinese territory and pursue the assailants, who appear to have been worsted in the engagement. The request was refused by the war office.

The Japanese foreign office has made representations to the government at Pekin, and the situation is beginning to assume a serious aspect. It is intimated that unless China takes prompt action satisfactory to the Japanese government, the latter may take the initiative and cross the frontier, in order to afford protection to the Koreans.

ROOSEVELT IS BOOMED

has called forth a letter to Dr. Crafts from William O. McDowell, acting executive of the League of Peace, asking that the reform bureau co-operate with the league in its work of bringing about the selection of a world executive. McDowell's letter says in part:

"The time has come, and plans are well under way for the election of an executive, with the title of 'Peacemaker,' by the electoral college, composed of the intellectual leaders of the world, something like 100,000 voters.

"I note your advocacy of Theodore Roosevelt as the next elected head of the executive department, or as you designate it, 'president of the world.' So far as I can judge the members of the electoral college, in determining their ballot, will doubtless look to America, but you must remember that the United States has no policy regarding the peace workers of the world. In the writer's opinion the vote cast for citizens of the United States will be divided between Andrew Carnegie, Theodore Roosevelt and the defeated candidate for the presidency of the United States, whether it be Bryan or Taft."

CHISHOLM BEING RAPIDLY REBUILT

Energetic Citizens Hurrying Along Building of Better City.

Chisholm, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Every one here seems to be possessed with a desire to build, and all are going ahead with this laudable purpose, if it is a possible thing to do so. The stranger coming into town is struck with amazement and wonders if he has not got into the wrong town. He has heard that Chisholm was almost completely wiped out, but a few weeks ago, and he has come here expecting to see only a heap of ruins, with an occasional shack here and there. Instead, he sees a large town, with buildings being erected wherever he turns, and as he goes down the main street he sees many brick buildings going up. The people of this town were dazed and discouraged at first, but they looked into the future and could see that the prospects for the town were as bright as before the fire; that they were not injured by the calamity that has befallen the town, and as it still looked good to them, they decided to stay, as before, and reap the profits of their labors. So they stayed, and will never regret it. And another thing that causes the rush is that winter was coming on and there were but a few weeks until cold weather, when building would be more difficult.

POOR PICKING FOR JAKE.

Coming so soon after the splendid speech of Governor Johnson delivered here on Tuesday, it is thought that he will have to make extra efforts to offset the impression made by Johnson. Up till now there has been little doing here along state political lines, but from now till election it seems that Eveleth will secure its share of the speeches.

The relief committee has decided not to contract the building of the sixty houses resolved upon, but will hire men, the men to do the work, purchase the material and put all under a competent man who will manage it.

FOREST FIRES ARE AGAIN BURNING

Flames Doing Some Damage in the Knife River Valley.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bad forest fires are again much in evidence in the Knife river valley west of town, and in many places to the north of town in the Waldo district, both sides of the Duluth & Iron Range and along the north central county road, where there are many farmers, and also near York. No damage has been reported, but the country is very dry, and with the many dead leaves, any wind will carry the fire easily.

To brush fires started by settlers clearing land is attributed the spread. A fire patrol would be of much help watching the fires, so as to prevent getting into dangerous places. The atmosphere is becoming smoky again.

TOWER CHILD BURNED.

Playing With Matches, Her Clothing Takes Fire.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pearl, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Larson, was badly burned yesterday afternoon. The child had been playing on the porch, evidently with matches, and in some way ignited her clothing. She called immediately for her mother, who hurried to ascertain the cause of the cries and to her horror she found the child with clothing ablaze. Throwing her skirt around the little one, the fire was soon extinguished, and a physician hastily summoned. The child's arms, chest and lower limbs were burned, also the lower part of her face. According to latest reports she is resting easier, and nothing serious is anticipated.

SMALL FIRES ON THE IRON RANGE

Members of Governor Johnson's party had a good opportunity to see the extent of the damage done by forest fires on the range and to mark those which are still burning.

The woods are very dry, and the undergrowth easily catches fire. There are small blazes at a number of points along the lines of the two range roads. There is one fire of considerable extent above Kelsey on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road. Small fires are still burning near Chisholm, and there are several blazes in the woods between Eveleth and Virginia. There are also traces of fires along the line of the Iron Range road between Tower junction and Two Harbors, but none of these fires is considered dangerous to property. They are smoldering in the underbrush, and are not likely to do much damage. Nothing but a heavy rain or snow storm will extinguish them and they may continue to smolder for weeks.

BUSILY ENGAGED ON THE BOWERY

Pickpockets Get Familiar With Woodsmen's Earnings.

Last night was a night of petty thieving and picking pockets among the residents of the Bowery, and a number were up in municipal court this morning charged with doing the work.

Andrew Connaly was accused of picking the pocket of Frank Stine of $2.40 in Levine's saloon on the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street, about 10:30 last evening. He pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for this afternoon.

A. P. Chitty was accused by Mike Rogney of picking his pocket of $1.75. He pleaded not guilty and will be given a chance to prove himself innocent this afternoon. The men were shaking dice in a West Superior thirst parlor, Rogney says that Chitty went right into his pocket while he was rolling out four sixes in one shake.

John Merky, who was very weary last night, crept to the hay in an Austrian lodging house at 531 West Superior street early in the evening, and while he was dreaming, some one got close to his clothes and pinched $17 in lawful money of the United States. The police are trying to recover his money.

To the Editor of The Herald:

You have often been the first city paper to give important news of vital interest, and your enterprise in giving to the waiting public the first and practically correct list of appointments of Methodist ministers, is another proof of the superiority of The Herald. Its high toned moral editorials have often been admired by its many church readers, and when it constantly gives such important news in advance of all other metropolitan papers, and the only really accurate list, it places itself in the front rank of modern journalism. This list of appointments is the only list that the church people can keep as a correct guide in locating the ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church in the great Northwest, and The Herald has scored a big scoop. Yours truly,

A METHODIST MINISTER.

Tibbets of Norwich, for the recovery of stock assessments, aggregating, with interest, $21,962.59, came to an abrupt termination in United States circuit court. THIEVES GET HIS PISTOL; TEN CENTS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Special Officer Fred Bramen of the Great Northern railway was relieved of his revolver and 10 cents in the company's yards by two men armed and masked.

Near Columbus avenue and Twenty-second street the robbers approached R. Lewis, 2446 Chicago avenue, each flourishing a revolver. Lewis had no money and vigorously expressing their disappointment the robbers left.

As the result of flashing his wallet, containing $190 in cash, $1,000 in notes and a bank book in a Minneapolis saloon, Stener Luten of Stoughton, Wis., was beaten and robbed a short time afterwards. Edward Nelson, 26 years old, was arrested after a chase by Detective Lyons, who fired into the air to frighten him.

showing sums of and over $100. The statement also shows receipts and disbursements as follows:

Received from contributors under $100	115,255.22
Amount left over from Denver convention fund	42,500.00
Total	$248,567.55
Amount disbursed	225,962.88
Balance on hand	$22,604.67

The statement, which is signed by National Chairman Mack and Treasurer Ridder, says that 343 subscribers gave $100 or more, and that the smaller sums were from 25 cents up. It adds:

"The number of contributors to the national committee fund is estimated at about 50,000 people and about $100,000 of the whole amount contributed came from the Democratic newspapers throughout the United States.

"It will be noticed from the foregoing statement that the cash balance is about $22,000. Supplies contracted for and undelivered, circulation of literature, the expense of headquarters in Chicago, New York and Denver, and the traveling and other expense incident to our speaking campaign, now under way, will make necessary an additional $100,000 to carry our campaign to a successful issue. We are confident that the people, whom we are thus taking into our confidence, will supply us with this additional sum, and we earnestly urge a prompt and generous response to this appeal.

"Subscriptions received of $100 or more will be published daily, beginning Oct. 16."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CONFERENCE AFTERMATH

Some Changes Made by Gathering of Methodists at Litchfield.

Unanimously in Favor of Holding Next Conference in Duluth.

Litchfield, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several very important changes were made at the Northern Minnesota conference, which affects the Northwest Methodism. The chief change was in Minneapolis, where the Rev. S. P. Long, D. D., for several years the district superintendent of that city, retired to private life, because of sickness and was given a location, which means that he has no pastorate or official work.

Minneapolis Methodism under his guidance increased last year 33 per cent and some of the largest Methodist churches were built under his direction. Members of the conference were greatly troubled when Dr. Long decided to give up his successful and growing work and when he arose in conference and announced his determination with great pathos nearly every member was exceedingly sorry. He is missed well known as the former pastor of the Fifth church, where he accomplished mighty things for his denomination and was highly respected by other denominations for his broad spirit. In the annual conferences he was a power for or and intensely beloved and reverenced.

His successor, Rev. M. P. Burns, was for years the efficient superintendent of the North Dakota conference, and came to Minneapolis to build up a church called Foss, after Bishop Foss. He is a capable preacher and an executive of power. It is no secret that had he desired, the mantle of Dr. Long would have rested upon the Rev. T. W. Stout of Minneapolis, but Dr. Stout declined the offer. This is the second time Dr. Stout has refused to accept the superintendency of a district.

Two New Duluth Ministers.

To Lyndale Grace church, Rev. M. O. Stockland goes from Aitkin, a pastor of good ministerial powers, while Rev. R. Lucas goes to Litchfield and from Litchfield to Duluth Lester Park comes Rev. C. R. Green, who was elected conference secretary and showed much executive ability as well as a genial spirit. His Litchfield church offered an inducement of increased salary for his return, where his work was successful and steady.

Duluth is well and favorably known that the conference voted its next meetings there with unanimity. The sessions to be held in the Endion church.

A special feature was the election and appointment of a Sunday school missionary for the conference. This appointment was given Rev. Henry Nobbs, the conference treasurer for many years, a man of rare gifts and well designed for the office of organizing and caring for new Sunday schools in districts where there are no churches.

A feature of the conference was the strong condemnation of the destructive criticism. Bishop Wilson saying there was no place in the Methodist ministry for any minister, who denied the doctrines, which he had sworn to preach and teach. He said the door knob could be reached by any man to leave the church when he denied its faith from its pulpit.

Litchfield is a beautiful city and entertained the conference loyally.

STEEL COMPANY TO BUILD HOMES

Ironwood, Mich., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A contract for the construction of no less than ninety-five dwelling houses here has been awarded by the United States Steel corporation to a local firm of builders. The houses are all to be completed, ready for plastering by the coming spring. Work will be started at once and will be pushed by a large force of men throughout the winter. Fifty of the dwellings will occupy sites on an eighty-acre tract lying in the Eastern part of the city and directly north of the Pabst mine.

Ferdinand Schlesinger's Newport Mining company is jointly interested with the Steel corporation in the ownership of the land, and it, too, will erect a large number of houses there, although this contract has not yet been let. The buildings to be constructed in this new suburb will be commodious and substantial, of a varied style of architecture and equipped with modern conveniences. A sewer system will be installed, as will a waterworks plant; macadam streets will be built, and all sidewalks will be of concrete.

It is planned to make of the location a model little town in itself. Many more dwellings will be built later on. Of the forty-five other houses, the contract for which has been let by the Steel corporation, twenty-five will be constructed at the Puritan mine location, fifteen at the Geneva and five at the New Davis. This policy of providing dwelling houses for their employes is one that is now being generally followed by the larger mining companies of the Lake Superior region, and it is one that is highly satisfactory to all concerned. It adds to the contentment of the men and their families, and makes for a steady and reliable class of labor. Rentals always are low, and in most cases amount to only a fair rate of interest on the money invested.

The Kidneys

When they are weak, torpid, or stagnant, the whole system suffers. Don't neglect them at this time, but heed the warning of the aching back, the bloated face, the sallow complexion, the urinary disorder, and begin treatment at once with which contains the best and safest curative substances.

In usual liquid form or in chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 doses $1.

HUSBAND MAKES TOUGH DISCOVERY

Woman, Who Killed Self in Disorderly House, His Wife.

Remidji, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. C. Barber of Staples, who passed through here yesterday from Blackduck, where he went to look into the identity of the woman who killed herself in a disorderly house about six weeks ago by taking carbolic acid, and is said to have reached to unpleasant conclusion that she was his wife, who had left him. This idea was strengthened by the fact that Mrs. Barber had attempted to commit suicide by drinking poison just before she left him, one year ago last February.

Mr. Barber stated that he and the suicide were married six years ago in May, in Hubbard, Minn. While living at Northome, she left her home on Feb. 28, 1907, taking her nursing baby with her. One son died last February, when almost 4 years old. Mr. Barber then went to Staples and heard nothing of his former wife until he went to Northome last week to look for the infant son, who is now nearly 2½ years old.

While in Northome Mr. Barber became convinced that the woman who committed suicide at Blackduck had been his wife, and would greatly appreciate any information leading to the discovery of the present whereabouts of his little child.

MRS. GOLLNIK IS DECLARED GUILTY

Little Falls, Minn., Oct. 15.—The jury in the Gollnik trial returned a verdict of guilty after being out nineteen hours.

The defendant, Mrs. Matilda Gollnik, was convicted of murder in the second degree for killing her husband, William Gollnik, on Aug. 13. The trial consumed over a week.

Mrs. Gollnik asserted that robbers who visited her home at night, were the slayers. Her husband, she said, was set upon by two masked men who beat him to death because he would not indorse for them certain certificates of deposits and other negotiable paper which he had in the house.

GERMAN METHODISTS

Not Opposed to the Principle of Temperance Legislation.

Fairfax, Minn., Oct. 15.—The twenty-second annual session of the Northern German conference closed at noon Tuesday. At the morning session a motion was passed by a unanimous vote condemning the idea prevalent in some quarters that all Germans were opposed to temperance legislation. While the conference did not take any specific action looking toward the curtailment of the liquor evil, nevertheless the German Methodists throughout the country wish it understood that they favor such legislation. Every German Methodist conference held so far this year has taken similar action.

Rev. W. H. Miller of Fairfax was elected as the conference representative to the Berea, Ohio, school. Hearty resolutions were also passed thanking the local congregation for the splendid entertainment furnished conference delegates and visitors.

The question of pastoral assignments for the year to come is the important one before all conferences. Probably never before in the history of this conference were there as few changes as were made this year. Bishop Nelson announced the assignments for the year, those for the Minneapolis district, which includes Duluth, following: C. F. Lenhart, superintendent; Ada, C. Biermann; Bertha, H. G. Schmidt; Brownton, Blebighauser; Bowbells, N. D., G. H. Bruns; Clearwater and Princeton, W. H. Koenig; Crow River, W. G. Boemmels; Duluth, C. Shoenheider, Jr.; Gardena, N. D., J. Kusch; La Moure, N. D., Gerald Weiss; Minneapolis Central, J. Berger; Minneapolis First Church, G. Kalble; Minneapolis North Side, W. E. Weiss; Morris, E. W. Baumgarten; Steele and Heaton, N. D., To be supplied; Valley City, N. D., C. F. Bublitz.

HE CARRIED A LAMP.

Explosion Followed From Contact With Acetylene Plant.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 15.—With a roar which made itself heard for miles, the acetylene gas lighting plant at the Onagaming club house blew up shortly after the supper hour Monday evening, wrecking the plant, tearing away a portion of the roof, and painfully but not dangerously injuring Samuel Werner, the keeper.

A. J. Wickford and a party of friends had just left the club house. Mr. Werner had been having trouble with the lighting plant, and thinking to improve it he discharged all of the water and gas, refilling the tanks. This made a change for the better, but it lasted but a short time, and thinking to give the plant a thorough overhauling, Mr. Werner again visited the part of the building in which it was stored.

He had with him a lighted lamp, which he deposited on the floor just outside the door. Believing that a leak was responsible for the troubles, he discharged all of the gas from the tank. A terrific explosion immediately followed.

MANY WEAPONS STOLEN.

Burglars Break Into Store at Minnewaukan, N. D.

Minnewaukan, N. D., Oct. 15.—A daring and sensational burglary was committed here a few nights ago when burglars broke into the store of C. L. Richmond & Co., as the men are supposed to have been connected with the gang of highwaymen and yeggmen operating in this section, and they stole a large number of shotguns and rifles.

No arrests have been made and it is the opinion of the officers that the men are in hiding awaiting a chance to make their get-away.

MUCH MONEY INVOLVED.

In Great Northern's Claim for Exemption From Taxes.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Speaking of the importance of the hearing before the supreme court, Nov. 5, touching the claim of the Great Northern road for exemptions from state taxes under the territorial charter granted to the Minnesota & Pacific railway, Attorney General Young said:

"The amount involved now is probably more than half a million of dollars. The present action is for the taxes on the Great Northern for the year 1906, and amounts to $120,000, but the taxes for the years 1907 and 1908 are now due. Besides this the Great Western road will claim exemption on similar grounds and the amount of their claim will be in the neighborhood of $100,000. The Omaha road has already paid it staxes, but if the Great Northern is successful in its suit the Omaha will naturally decline to pay in the future."

FARGO MERCHANTS LIKE FARE REBATE SCHEME.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fare rebate plan being tried by local retail merchants to secure trade from the surrounding country that has been going to mail order houses, is said to have proven a big success on its first month. Especial efforts are being made to get the trade that is sent to Chicago rather than to compete with the dealers in the smaller towns.

FIVE HORSES CREMATED.

Hanna, N. D., Oct. 15.—The Bolack company's lumber yards, McMillan's machinery warehouse and Evan Shanks' livery barn have been burned. Five horses belonging to Jack May were cremated. Fire threatened a large part of the town for a time. The loss is about $30,000, and is partially covered by insurance.

FORMER LIEUT. GOVERNOR GIBBS NEAR TO DEATH.

Owatonna, Minn., Oct. 15.—John L. Gibbs, for many years prominent in Minnesota politics, and lieutenant-governor under David Clough, is very critically ill at the T. H. Kelly home in this city. It is feared that he will not recover. Governor Gibbs has been ill for some time at his summer home near Geneva lake, and Monday was brought to this city in an automobile. He stood the trip very well and the best medical skill is now being summoned to attempt to save his life. The illness has affected his eyesight, which has almost completely failed him. Governor Gibbs is well known throughout the state and he has been prominent in dairy work besides having been prominently mentioned as a candidate for governor.

Take Suspected Yeggmen.

Rhinelander, Wis., Oct. 15.—Jim Radley, professing to be a railroad man from Green Bay, and James Clement of Tomahawk Lake were taken in custody on suspicion of being connected with the bank robbery at Ladysmith. Clement was shot through the left hand and left leg, his wounds being dressed by a local physician prior to his arrest. On him was found $50 in currency and over $300 in powder stained bills were taken from Radley.

Y. M. C. A. Officer Speaks.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Parsons, the international secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of the Northwest and Canada, spoke to a number of young men at the local association building Tuesday afternoon. The speaker complimented the boys of the town on having such a nice building and one so well equipped.

Bear Invades Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 15.—A large black bear created excitement in the east end of the city Tuesday night by roaming through the residence districts. It was first seen in the rear of the residence of W. F. Knox, editor of the Evening News, and was evidently looking for food. It became frightened at a street car, plunged into the river and swam from view before it could be killed.

When It Is Dyspepsia, You'll Know It

That's different from Indigestion. You may experience the first symptoms of Indigestion without knowing what they really portend. Kodol, however, prevents Dyspepsia by providing for complete digestion.

Where there is complete and perfect digestion there is, of course, no room for dyspepsia. And it is, for various reasons, more satisfactory to prevent dyspepsia than to attempt to cure it. Fact is, you must depend upon Nature for a cure, and Kodol assists Nature.

Nature will cure a sick stomach quicker than any medicine in the world—if you give Nature a chance. But Nature cannot cure the stomach while the stomach is overworked. That is impossible.

In order to be cured the stomach must rest. That is the point. And that is what Kodol is for—to rest the stomach. It digests every particle of food for the stomach, so that the stomach has nothing to do but get well. Then it gets well.

You would be surprised if you knew how many persons have indigestion. And, of course, most of them have dyspepsia, ultimately—if they neglect the indigestion. Then Nature is in urgent need of assistance. And nervous dyspepsia is a terrible thing to those afflicted with it.

Kodol supplies this assistance just the same as in the early stages of indigestion. But more time and more rest are required for Nature to effect a cure. It is best not to wait until one gets dyspepsia.

Nearly all classes of people are subject to indigestion. Healthy appearance outwardly is no indication of a healthy stomach. Neither are sound muscles any safeguard against an unhealthy stomach.

The indications of digestive derangement are bloated feeling, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, heartburn (so-called), diarrhoetic condition, headaches, dullness and lassitude, etc. When you experience any of these, you need Kodol.

Kodol is a digester of unquestioned merit. Unquestioned, because one cannot question the merit of a thing that does all it is claimed to do, or was intended to do. Kodol does this. It completely digests all food. That is all that is required, because Nature does the rest.

Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. You don't have to take Kodol all the time. You only take Kodol when you need it.

proposed that articles 26 to 33 inclusive of the Berlin treaty shall be condensed to a single article abrogating all the restrictions imposed by the treaty under the original article 29, which it is proposed to sweep away.

Compensation to Servia.

The seventh point in the program is the statement that it is desirable to seek and give compensation to Servia and Montenegro by a rectification of the Bosnian and Herzegovinian frontiers adjoining Novipazar. This is taken to imply that a strip will be taken from the territory annexed by Austria-Hungary.

Concerning the Danube.

The eighth proposal concerns the river Danube and declares it is desirable to revise the regulations governing Danube traffic so as to give larger rights to the states bordering on the river.

The eight articles are followed by a declaration that as the new ottoman constitution foreshadows a re-organization in conformity with the principles of other European states, the powers are prepared to consider in concert with Turkey, so soon as these reforms are realized the best means of doing away with capitulations. It is declared also that this occasion could be taken to consider the abolition of the postoffice now maintained by foreign powers in Turkey.

No Mention of Straits.

The draft of this program makes no mention of the straits between the Black sea and the Mediterranean, which means the Bosphorus as well as the Dardanelles. But these straits have been a subject of protracted discussion between Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, and M. Iswolsky the Russian minister of foreign affairs. M. Iswolsky does not ask that this question be submitted to the conference, what he desires is that Great Britain and France help Russia to negotiate with Turkey for the opening of these straits to Russia.

Every desire to arrive at an understanding but safeguarding at the same time the interests of Turkey has been shown. In the first place Russia wanted the right to send warships through the straits in time of peace—that is to say, when Turkey was not at war under special conditions and special restrictions. In reply Great Britain asked that the same right be accorded all nations. To this Russia demurred arguing that the foreign warships could only desire to enter the Black sea for belligerent purposes. Ultimately an agreement apparently was reached by which the rights of ingress and egress granted Russian warships shall be accorded on the same conditions to the ships to any other power not in war with Russia.

people leaving it. "No seats" was the warning spread, and hundreds, probably thousands of people who started for the armory turned back before they got within sight of it.

A Second Meeting.

One meeting was not enough. So insistent was the crowd that it was soon seen that a second meeting would be necessary. The police fought back the mob from the doors of the building, which they threatened to tear down. "We'll have an overflow meeting," shouted W. E. McEwen, Andrew Nelson, and others of the county committee. Mr. McEwen had been locked outside of the building along with many other prominent Democrats, who had been promised platform seats. The crowd, although excited, was good natured enough, and listened patiently to several speakers until the regular meeting was over. No sooner was the armory emptied than it was filled again by a second crowd, but little smaller, and certainly not less enthusiastic than the first.

It is impossible to estimate how many people heard the governor. Those who heard him were but a small part of those who were anxious to hear him, and tried to do so. There was a constant stream of people to and from the armory last evening. Hundreds, and even thousands of people went to the building, saw the immense crowd and turned back.

The governor was tired when he struck Duluth—with the weariness that only a hard campaign can bring. He had made twelve speeches in two days varying in length from half an hour to two hours, and in addition to this had met and shaken hands with hundreds of voters, having a pleasant word for each. He was mentally and physically weary, but when he saw the throng of enthusiastic citizens awaiting his arrival here, he brightened up, and his weariness was forgotten. It was like a tonic, and he was in fine form at the armory. His opening was along the same line as those delivered on the ranges, but the rough places had been smoothed out. His phrasing was better, and he delivered it with more vigor than even the Hibbing speech.

A Complete Answer.

And the speech! It left the governor's opponents without a leg to stand upon. It was a complete answer, delivered straight from the shoulder in language that no one could misunderstand, to every trumped up charge against him. During his range trip the governor was plainly gunning for himself for the Duluth speech, and he delivered the goods.

Several prominent Democrats occupied the platform with Governor Johnson. Among them were Andrew Nelson, chairman of the St. Louis Democratic county committee; P. H. Nelson, Frank Crasswelle, P. McDonnell, Dr. D. D. Murray, A. C. Weiss, John Jenswold, William E. McEwen, H. H. Hawkins, A. N. McGindlay and Charles Jesmore of Eveleth, Democratic candidate for sheriff.

The meeting was called to order by Andrew Nelson. He told how he had been a resident of St. Peter, Minn., the governor's home town, for a short time many years ago, and how he was struck by the appearance of a tall young man on the street one day. He asked who the individual was, and was told that it was John A. Johnson, the most popular man in St. Peter.

The county chairman took a shot at the News Tribune, characterizing its outbursts on the tonnage tax as spasms and convulsions. In speaking of the range trip of Governor Johnson, he said there had been another fire up north. It was not as disastrous as the one that destroyed Chisholm, but it was big enough to destroy the editorials of the News Tribune. Mr. Nelson introduced Former State Senator C. O. Baldwin as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Baldwin's Speech.

Mr. Baldwin made a happy introductory speech. He declared the coming election to be a momentous one for Minnesota, and especially for St. Louis county and Northern Minnesota in general. He referred to the taxation of iron ore, and declared that Jacobson had long favored the imposing of a tonnage tax, and is favoring it today. "This man," he asserted, "says that he stands on his record, and that record is one of retarding the growth of Northern Minnesota. In the legislature he was the leader of the opposition to progress in this part of the state.

"Governor Johnson has announced that he will veto any legislation that will take away from the people of this part of the state any of the tax resources to which they are entitled, and he means what he says."

The speaker referred in complimentary terms to William Jennings Bryan, and his remarks in this direction were greeted by general applause. He told how Governor Johnson had been nominated by the Democratic state convention against his wishes, but that, after the convention had adjourned, he could not be a loyal citizen of the state if he refused to go into the fight for election to win. He wasforced to accept and make the run, and now that he had accepted, he was bending every energy to win out in the political contest. Mr. Baldwin referred to the governor as a national character, following up flattering remarks along this line by introducing the governor.

A Momentous Campaign.

"My fellow citizens," began the governor, when he had been introduced, and the applause, lasting for more than a minute, had died down, "I am sure it is not necessary to tell you how pleased I am at this splendid reception.

"We are in the midst of a momentous campaign. There never was a time in the history of the country when the exact status of the two political parties was so complex or so misunderstood. The time has come when party loyalty is being made to yield to the principles of good government. We find the government in Wisconsin led by La Follette in his fight against the predatory interests. Governor Cummins is waging his fight for the common people in Iowa. Down in Missouri we find Joseph Folk, a Democrat, fighting the battles of good government. Men are not concerned so much with the success of a political organization as they are with the interests of good government. There is not much difference between a good Republican and a good Democrat these days. Each is fighting in his own way for the same end, good government. And there is not much difference between a bad Republican and a bad Democrat. Each is fighting for his own selfish interests and his personal ends.

National Platform.

"I am one of those who believe that men should affiliate themselves with some party organization, but I am not one of those who believe in a government of the people by a party and for a party. I believe in government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Men are beginning to place the state and nation above party success. I am a candidate for a state office, but I would be remiss if I did not make some reference here to the national platform and national affairs. I believe every man can best serve the state and nation by voting for himself. Don't vote for me just because it is me. And above all, don't vote for my opponent becaues he is my opponent. (Laughter.) Don't vote for Taft because he is Taft, or Bryan because he is Bryan. Get the platforms of the two parties, study them, and vote for yourself, according to your own best judgment.

"I was traveling down on the Santa Fe railroad this summer, and met a conductor, who introduced himself, and when he found out who I was, began talking politics. He said he was sorry he had not had an opportunity to vote for me for president. I said I was too—(laughter and applause)—and I was then. He told me he had been a Republican all of his life, but that this year he was going to vote for himself. That's the secret of it all. Dont vote for some other fellow because he is the other fellow. Vote for yourself, for your own best interests, for the best interest of your state and nation.

"I am not egotistical enough to believe that all who are here tonight agree with me on national matters, nor do I flatter myself that all who are here agree with me on state matters. The two great political organizations have met and adopted their platforms. What's your duty? Take these two platforms, compare them, compare the candidates. You will find one great cardinal difference, one paramount issue. It is the tariff. Four years ago if I had dared come here and attack the tariff every Republican in the audience would have taken it as an insult. In this great middle basin, between the two ranges of mountains, there is now no great difference of opinion on the tariff question. All are agreed that the tariff in its present form is not for the best interests of the nation. We are paying tribute to great concerns and getting no returns. There has been a gradual change on this question, and even Taft says that if elected he will call a special session of congress to revise the tariff. The question, then, is how and by whom it shall be revised? Some say it should be revised by its friends. I say it should be revised by the friends of the people of the United States.

Bank Deposits.

"Then there is the question of bank deposits. I can understand how if I had a bank down in Wall street, I would object to this plank in the platform calling for a government guaranty of bank deposits, but how about you? Are you opposed to any law which would guarantee to you the safety of your own money, and make certain that when you deposit $100 in a bank you will be able to draw it out again when you wish. That is the question in a nutshell.

Tribute To Bryan.

"And now a word as to the candidates. We come before you with a national platform and a candidate for which we have to make no apologies. Whatever may have been your opinions in 1896 and 1904, you must all concede that during all the time since then there has never been a question of honesty, integrity and the sterling manhood of William Jennings Bryan. All these years he has stood for the things that he believed to be in the best interests of the American people.

"Let me now turn to state issues. I come before you as a candidate for governor. I am not here of my own volition. If I had consulted my personal desires I would not be here, and I have no apologies to make for my presence as a candidate. I am here to give you an accounting of my stewardship, but first I wish to address myself to my oponent. Don't misunderstand me. I have not a word to utter against him personally, but his public utterances it is my right and duty to discuss.

The Belshazzar Feast.

"He delivered his keynote speech, if such it may be called, at a banquet in West Duluth, which I referred to as a Belshazzar feast. Friends of Mr. Jacobson were very indignant, and said that it was served by the ladies of a West Duluth church and was a perfectly respectable feast. Why of course it was, I never knew of anything undertaken by the women of any church that wasn't, and I would be the last man in the world to speak unkindly of one woman or a collection of women, and I haven't much respect for the man who would take advantage of such a thing, and try to drag these women into a political campaign. Why did I do it? I read the list of people who were there. There were candidates for federal office and federal office holders; state office holders and candidates for state office; county office holders and candidates for county office; and a few other gentlemen. I read what they said and it seemed to me as if some one had seen the handwriting on the wall, but fearing they may not have seen it, I am going out through the state and put the handwriting on the wall so that they cannot fail to see it.

"Mr. Jacobson has never taken the people of the state into his confidence and told them where he stood, on any of the great issues of the campaign, such as the question of taxation, railroad rates, or the development of Northern Minnesota. He relied that he doesn't have to tell where he stands every two weeks. No, my friends, he doesn't not every two weeks or every four weeks, but he owes it to the voters of the state to take them into his confidence at least once during a campaign and tell them where he stands on the great issues involved.

In his speech here there were three subjects upon which he touched particularly. One was the question of suffrage, on which he said that the Republicans were apparently not happy unless they were scratching the ticket, and that they were putting up their own judgment against that of the party leaders who had carefully gone over the field and made a selection, and voted for whom they considered the best man. But I shouldn't take issue with Mr. Jacobson on this score. He admits that during the last two campaigns that I was the best man, and since he doesn't push the issue further, it is possible that he does so in this campaign.

"Divided Responsibility."

"The second question brought up was the divided responsibility. Jacobson charges that as the result of the election of a Republican legislature and a Democratic governor, we have a divided responsibility, and have increased the expenses of the state government $200,000 a year. A splendid tribute to a Republican legislature, wasn't it? Why, there was no divided responsibility. In my inaugural address I said to the legislature that we had been elected by different parties, but now that we were elected we had but one master, and that master was the people of the state of Minnesota. I have tried to establish the majesty of the law and I know that as far as the legislature is concerned no governor ever had more hearty co-operation, than I had from the legislatures of 1905 and 1907.

"What are the facts in this charge of extravagance. It costs more to run the state today than it did ten years ago. Do you k now the greatest single item of expense. It is the state penal and charitable institutions. These institutions are under the state board of control of three men. During the year 1905, Mr. Jacobson was the chairman of this board, and in its report to the legislature of 1905 it asked for an additional appropriation of $40,000 because of the increased cost of fuel and supplies, and some salary increases. The legislature granted it, so Mr. Jacobson himself is responsible for $160,000 of this $200,000.

"There were some other items of expense in these two legislatures that I am going to tell you about. There was one appropriation of $100,000 for drainage of Northern Minnesota recommended by me. Does any one here object to that? There was another of $40,000 to reimburse farmers for tubercular cattle killed. There was one of $75,000 for the erection of a home in connection with the Old Soldiers' home so that the widows of the Boys in Blue might have some place to spend their declining years in comfort. I recommended that bill and I am not ashamed of it. Then there was $16,000 for the hospital for crippled children. It seems like a lot of money, doesn't it? But if you had gone down there to the hospital and had seen the work being done by Dr. Gillette you wouldn't think so. He is making useful men and women out of poor, little crippled up children. I think useful men are worth $16,000 apiece.

"Then there was $25,000 for a monument away down in Mississippi. It seems like a big price, doesn't it? But if you should go down there, as I did, and look over the ridges and see the miles of tombstones of the boys who fought to keep this nation a whole, you would realize the awful price we have paid for war, and would be proud if the state if it had invested $250,000 in such a monument. So much for the charge of extravagance, but isn't it a strange paradox that a Democratic candidate for governor should be compelled to go out through the state championing the cause of a Republican legislature against the untruthful attacks of a Republican candidate for governor?

"That was a good legislature. I had something to do with the legislation it passed, and I personally recommended every important measure it passed. I am not egotistical enough to claim that they would not have been passed if somebody else had been governor, but I at least did my share in having them placed on the books.

"Under my administration and at my request the state legislature passed a law forbidding the railroads of the state to issue passes to any individual. I believe that it was the most efficient state legislature that we have ever had.

"I will make a few remarks on the third division of Mr. Jacobson's speech in Duluth. I will take up the part of the speech where he disposes of problems that are of vital interest to every citizen of the northern part of the state."

At this point the governor read from the morning paper Mr. Jacobson's statements regarding the northern part of the state.

In the article, Jacobson said in part, that there was a "suspicion" that he was opposed to Duluth and the interests of the northern part of the state. In the article the Republican candidate for governor stated that he believed in the future of St. Louis county and the northern part of the state; that they had asked for too much in the past, perhaps, but that the state was proud of Duluth and of the northern part of the state, and that there would be no attempt to discriminate against the interests here. The Republican candidate stated in the article that Duluth was the Chicago of the West and that the state was proud of its progress.

"And the News Tribune is satisfied with that as a discussion of the tonnage tax," remarked the governor.

"Mr. Jacobson says in his speech that he won't give away anything to Duluth that doesn't belong to it. Do you know what a governor has to give? I have been governor for four years and I haven't seen anything to give away.

"The governor is the chief executive of the state and his duty is the enforcement of the law, as laid down by the state legislature. He is the chief custodian of the interests of the citizens of this state; he has nothing to give to any one. I have nothing to give to Duluth or any other city. The governor is simply the guardian of the interests of the citizens of this great state.

His Stewardship.

"I will tell you some of the things that have been accomplished under my stewardship. I have not made a promise that I have not carried out. There has been no charge that that I have neglected to fulfill my duty and no accusations that I have failed to perform my duty since I have been governor of the state. When I came into office I found that the insurance buisness of the state was in very poor condition. Abuses had crept in and the method of conducting the business of some of the companies was very lax. One large company was almost ready for the receivers' hands. Today every man that sends a dollar to an insurance company is sure that he will receive that dollar back.

"We have the best insurance laws of any state in the union. The president of the United States recognized our laws and the good influence we had exerted by our example in this matter. I found that the commissioner of insurance was receiving a salary of $2,500 and was placing $16,000 in fees in his pocket every year. His salary was raised and we have saved $25,000 in fees and have received $116,000 in collections. Isn't that good business?

The system of examining the state banks was reorganized and put upon a business basis. The dairy and food department was increased in efficiency and the efficiency of this department was recognized by the president of the United States, the pure food commissioner being offered a federal position. The state labor and other departments of the state were reorganized and placed upon an efficient basis.

"Two years ago the slogan against me was the tonnage tax, and the charge that I would be unfair to the interests of the northern part of the state. They haven't used that slogan during the present campaign, for my legislative record shows where I have always stood upon this matter, and the legislative record of my opponent shows that he has steadfastly opposed the interests in this part of the state. I have always believed in this part of the state. I realized the wisdom of draining the 2,000,000 acres of swamp lands that belong to the public schools of the state, and the money coming from these lands is being put into the state treasury for the benefit of the schools of the state. I found that under the laws there was more railroad land drained at the expense of the state than there was state land. I recommended a law, which was passed, that compelled the railroads to drain their own land at their own expense. In the last two years there have been more acres of state lands drained, more ditches dug and more water removed from public land than had been accomplished in forty-eight years previous to that time.

The Twine Plant.

"Mr. Jacobson was opposed to the twine plant in the state prison at Stillwater. Mr. Jacobson stated that not over 12,000,000 pounds of twine should be manufactured every year. Last year 14,000,000 pounds were manufactured, and the price has been reduced from 13½ cents to an average of 7 cents a pound. There is enough twine for the farmers of the state, and the state has turned $75,000 into the state treasury. It has become self-supporting and does not cost the citizens of the state a single cent.

The Tax Question.

"There is no matter that is of very great interest to the citizens of this city. I pledged myself to equalize the state taxes and appoint a board for this purpose. We found that iron property was valued at $42,000,000. We did not believe that this represented the true value, and the valuation was raised to $70,000,000. Again we did not think that this represented the true value of the property, and the valuation was raised to $191,000,000.

The Tonnage Tax.

The governor at this point took up the question of a tonnage tax, on which he had been attacked by the Duluth News Tribune. His stand on this question could not be misunderstood.

"The News Tribune has come to the conclusion that I am an enemy of Northern Minnesota; that I am in favor of a tonnage tax on iron ore, which will deprive this section of the state of its just share of revenues for local improvements and schools. I took up with the legislature the question of a royalty tax. I found that there were hundreds of thousands of dollars being paid out annually in royalties, which are not being taxed in any way. I took the matter up with the general counsel of the United States Steel corporation, and he told me that he thought a tax on these royalties would be legal. I later took it up with the attorney general and the attorney general's opinion was that it would not be legal. I then submitted the matter to the members of the legislature for their investigation. A tax on royalties would have to be on a tonnage basis, but I never advocated a tonnage tax on ore."

"The proposition which some have suggested, that the direct tax should be abolished and a tonnage tax substituted, to provide for all revenue, both state and local, is objectionable because of the jeopardy of revenue for local government during a period of industrial depression or in a year of possible lockouts and strikes. I wish it to be understood that I clearly oppose any system of taxation which will deprive local township, village, school district or county government of a liberal, reliable and continuous source of revenue."

"And I wish to add this statement, which I make now and which I am willing to repeat in any town in the state," continued the governor. "If elected governor and if the legislature should pass a law depriving this or any other section of the state of its full share of taxes for local improvements, I would veto it.

"I have wondered if the News Tribune has the interest of this section of the state at heart, or if it is talking for political effect. That is my stand on the tonnage tax, what is Mr. Jacobson's?

"During the legislature of which Mr. Jacobson was a member, it was proposed to deprive this county of its share of the taxation from iron ore and Mr. Jacobson was the leader in the attempt to pass such a law.

"In an issue of the News Tribune of 1902, Mr. Jacobson is attacked for his part in the agitation against the interests of the northern part of the state. He is pictured as the leader of those who would deprive this county of its share of the state taxes. It says that the effect of Mr. Jacobson's attack upon the interests in this part of the state would not likely to be forgotten. Yet the News Tribune has forgotten it."

The Strike Question.

The governor read from last Monday's issue of the Tribune, in which that paper stated that the governor in his tour of the ranges should explain to the miners, the employment of nonresident deputies during the strike of a year ago.

"This is not an indictment against me," declared the governor. "It is an indictment against the men inside the Wolvin building. I refer to the matter with regret. I am sincere in this statement the members of the steel corporation asked me to call out the state militia. I refused. They came to me again and stated that there was danger to property and that there was mob violence. I said that I would make a personal investigation of the conditions on the range. They said that it was not safe to go there; that it was dangerous and unwise. I had been on the ranges before, I didn't see anything dangerous about it. I went to the range and a proclamation was issued in which the rights of every man employed upon the range were clearly defined. If there has been any violations of the law, in the matter of employing deputies outside of the state, and the editor of the News Tribune is aware of the fact, it is his duty to place the facts before the proper authorities. I wonder if he will do it?

"If there had been any violation of the law, any destruction of property, I would have exercised my authority to punish these guilty. The News Tribune has charged that men residing outside the state were hired as deputies. Mr. Bates, the sheriff of St. Louis county has denied this charge. The sheriff sent me a list of all the deputies employed during the strike, with their post office addresses, and every one of them was a resident of this state.

It was charged when I first ran for office, that if I were elected the affairs of the state would go wrong. The old prediction about a change of administration bringing about a panic or hard times, does not hold water. You can't fool the people on that old statement any more. This country of ours—this old Columbia, has gotten to be too big an institution to be wrecked by any one man. The state of ours is too big to be hurt by the election of a particular candidate. The citizenship is too high to be led astray, and the state will progress, no matter who is elected.

"We have the finest school system in the country. We are raising the best citizens in the country. I am willing to leave the matter to them. I have no fear of the future. The citizens of this state are loyal to the interests of this commonwealth, and I am confident that they will make the choice that they deem best to their interests and the interests of the state.

"No matter what the result in November is, the sun will rise the next day. And no matter which way the election goes, the sun will look down upon a happy and contented people. If I am elected I will be a happy winner. If I am defeated, I will be a game loser. If I am elected, I will dedicate myself anew to the service of the people. I will enforce the laws with my best ability. I believe that the man who owns iron property or banks has just as much right to the protection of the law as any other man, and no more. And I also believe that the man who works in the shop has the same rights to protection under the law. I will endeavor to serve the people of this state, recognizing the right of no man over that of another. I know this great state; I have traveled over its length and breadth. I know its lakes and its hills, its forests and its rivers, its mines. I love it and its people. The 4th of November will find me willing; but if I am elected, the smile will be just a little blander. I thank you."

THIRTY MILES CAN NEVER BE SURVEYED.

TOO COLD.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 15.—A. J. Brabazon of the interior department of the Canadian government at Ottawa, who returned today from a year's boundary survey work in the Yukon said:

"There are thirty miles embracing the Stellas range and constituting a portion of the international boundary line between the Alaska and the dominion which can never be surveyed. The task is impossible. The region is an impenetrable solitude of high peaks capped with glaciers. Through it from the base line at Mount Eloas runs the one hundred and forty-first meridian, which extends northerly to the Arctic ocean."

A FIGHT ON THE TRAIN

Two Lumberjacks Are Worsted in Fierce Fistic Encounter.

Are Taken Into Police Court and Given Stiff Fines.

John Morris and George Cles, two woodsmen, together with a companion who escaped the clutches of the police, started a fight on the Duluth & Iron Range train from Two Harbors to Duluth yesterday, but a combination of brakemen, conductors and passengers proved too much for them, and they were worsted in the encounter, although it looked for a time as if they would gain possession of the train and run it to suit themselves.

Morris and Cles appeared before Judge Cutting this morning in police court, were found guilty of disorderly conduct, and each fined $40 and costs with an alternative of thirty days in jail. An effort was made to locate the third party, but he seems to have disappeared completely and cannot be found.

The men have been working in a summer lumber camp, and were on their way to the city to have a good time. Before leaving Two Harbors they purchased a liberal supply of intoxicants. They had a good start before leaving the north shore town, and by the time they reached Knife River they were having a hilarious time. At Lakewood they began throwing bottles around the smoking car, and when one of the bottles went through a window the brakeman decided it was up to him to interfere. He tried to bring a stop to the disorder single-handed, but a punch in the jaw convinced him that the three burly woodsmen were too much for him to handle alone, and the assistance of the conductor was called. Three to two was still too much, and a Duluth blacksmith who happened to be a passenger on train took a hand in the fray, rallying himself on the side of right and order.

There was a free, old-fashioned fistic battle from there nearly into Duluth, but the three woodsmen were finally worsted, and two of them were held and handed over to the police when the train drew into the Union depot. The third managed to make his escape. The smoker looked as if a cyclone had struck it before the fight was over with.

TREAT ALIENS LIKE NATIVES

Bulgaria Bars Them From Having Consuls as Intermediaries.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 15.—A disagreeable impression has been produced in diplomatic circles by a circular note issued today from the Bulgarian minister of justice which orders that in the future the subjects of foreign powers in Bulgaria shall be treated on the same basis as natives; in other words they are no longer to enjoy the intermediary of their consuls.

The circular sets forth that the declaration of Bulgarian independence on Oct. 5 has annulled the so-called capitulations which exempted foreigners from the jurisdiction of the local courts.

The diplomatic report of one of the great powers today discribed this circular as a "high-handed action" which the powers would vigorously oppose.

WORK FOR THE WILLING.

Men Desiring Employment Need Not be Idle in Upper Michigan.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the iron business is not in a particularly flourishing state, there is plenty of work for all men in Marquette county who want to work. Confirmatory of this condition is the experience of a mining company at Negaunee which for days now has been endeavoring to procure 150 additional men, but which to date has succeeded in adding only one-fourth of that number to the pay rolls. Two other Marquette range mining concerns are in need of more labor also. In this city a patrol of the town to procure men to aid in unloading a boat cargo met with poor success despite the proffered wage of 40 cents an hour.

Building operations in the county have been fully as active as in any past year, and the craftsmen engaged in work of this kind have been busy throughout the season. Ore shipments have not been as brisk as in former years, and not so many men have been employed in the train service and in the shops of the railroad companies as ordinarily, still there is apparently no idleness in this connection, and it appears that the labor affected is not now available.

"CANDY KID" WAS KISSED.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—According to testimony offered before Judge Ball, Benedetto Allegretti, manufacturer of confections and other sweet things, is the "original candy kid," and Miss Marie McLain, who refers to him as "Dolly," was caught in the act of powdering his face and combing his hair. Miss McLain is 18 years old.

It was also shown that Allegretti and the girl were seen doing the "shadow kiss," behind a heavy glass partition.

Mrs. Rose Allegretti, who is suing her spouse for separate maintenance on the grounds of cruelty, brought into the case all of his woman friends that she considers necessary to aid her case. She finished her testimony without telling of any exceptionally brutal form of cruelty.

PRESIDENT FALLIERES.

The Plain, Safe Man Who Helps to Govern France.

Paris Daily Mail: Armand Fallieres, president of the French republic, is a robust and large bodied old gentleman of 66. He is from the Midi, the South that provides France with officeholders as inevitably as Ireland provides New York with policemen. Like all men from the South he possesses the gift of oratory, but combines with it a love for brevity, in fact it is said that the longest speech he ever made only occupied half a column of a newspaper and that since he has become president he seldom needs more than twenty lines.

When M. Fallieres took over the Elysee Palace after his election his first act was to reduce the military and naval staff attached to the presidency. The fifteen or twenty officers of high rank on M. Loubet's personal staff were cut down to three, the highest in rank being colonel. Fourteen officials attached to the protocol or etiquette department were dismissed.

"It is out of place for the chief magistrate of a democratic republic to be surrounded with so much ceremony," was the new chief's remark.

Madame Fallieres ran her side of the official residence on the same lines. An army of cooks, scullions, chambermaids and valets had to go and Marlette, the family cook, who has been in the Fallieres service from time immemorial, was installed in the presidential kitchens.

These changes and others, such as not keeping up the state stables, but hiring horses when they are needed for state occasions, are ascribed by Parisian satirical newspapers less to a dislike for ostentation than to a love of thrift.

Winter and summer M. Fallieres rises at 6 o'clock, and immediately takes a cold shower bath. Then, weather permitting, he starts off for his morning constitutional walk, never never less than five miles. He begins with a four mile an hour gait, which dwindles down to a stroll if, as usually the case, the walk finishes along the quays of the Seine, for he is a great book lover and cannot pass the old book stalls along the embankment.

Luncheon is always a frugal meal, washed down with a mild claret, the product of the Loupillon vines, Mr. Fallieres' native place. He dines promptly at 7, and if there is nothing to prevent him doing so spends the evening quietly at the family circle, retiring to bed at 10:30. He rarely goes to the theater or the opera except when obliged to do so on state occasions.

A man of simple tastes and straightforward character, M. Fallieres was elected to the presidency first of all on account of his personal merit and moderate views, and second, because the French Republican leaders have laid down an axiom that the president should never be what is commonly called a man of action who might be inclined to interfere with the decisions of the ministers and even at times try to lead them. They selected Armand Fallieres in opposition to Paul Doumer because they knew he was a safe man who would confine himself strictly to his constitutional prerogatives, whereas M. Doumer was tainted with a suspicion of self-assertiveness.

HOW FOREST FIRES START.

Milwaukee Sentinel: "These forest fires are more often started by some one throwing down a match carelessly or spilling out the live ashes from his pipe," said D. Whitaker. "When we were building the extension from Champion to L'Anse years ago some of the boys thought they would go down to Champion for a time. Coming back one of them lit his pipe and threw the match into the dry grass.

"Before that fire burned itself out it had traversed a strip of territory sixty miles long and five or six miles wide. We lost hundreds of thousands of ties by the fire, to say nothing of the timber that was burned over—all because a man was not careful where he threw a lighted match. When such fires get started they burn themselves out; you can't stop them.

"And they play some queer freaks. I have seen great pine trees, standing out alone in a little clearing 100 yards or more from anything, and suddenly the fire would jump out and a few minutes later nothing would be left of the tree but the trunk and scarred and burned limbs. I remember one case of the kind where a handsome big pine stood out alone. Suddenly the flames seemed to gather themselves into a big ball and burst over the top of the tree like a shell, enveloping it in fire. It burned as though it had been kiln dried.

"Somehow the fire seems to take all the sap out of the tree. That tree was completely destroyed in a short time, the fire sweeping on and leaving it a grotesque and blackened trunk where before was a beautiful picture.

"In the old days the Indians were very careful of fire. When they broke camp the morning after going a short distance one of the band would go back to see that there was no spark unextinguished. If there was he would be sure to put it out. If he did not return to the waiting band soon two or three others would go back and if there was any fire they would help him extinguish it.

"In that way forest fires were prevented. Nowadays with white campers and picnickers going into the woods and leaving without care whether they leave sparks which may cause a blaze or not, it is hard to preserve the forests. I presume it was something of that kind which started the fires in that country up in British Columbia. I know the country; it is densely timbered and a fire there will mean the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in standing timber, to say nothing of the lives said to have been lost."

CONNECTICUT BIRD PRESERVE.

Hartford Courant: Despite the fact that reports have been circulated of late that the commissioners of fisheries and game had secured 2,000 quail from Oklahoma and would place them on Terry island, near Suffield, Commissioner George T. Mathewosn said last evening that nothing has been done about buying any quail as yet. It is true, however, that the use of the island, which contains about 135 acres, has been obtained by the commission and it is very likely that a preserve will be established there.

Until fifteen or sixteen years ago the island was inhabited by Clinton Terry, and the house is still standing, and it was from this place years ago that a band of Second Adventists put on their ascension robes and waited in vain for the end of the world.

THE LABOR VOTE IS FOR CUMMINS

Iowa Old Soldiers Not Solidly in Line for Lacey.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 15.—Supporters of John F. Lacey, who is running for senator against Governor Cummins, are having difficulty in organizing the old soldiers of the state into a big campaign committee for the major. While Maj. Lacey was a gallant fighter in the Civil war, it is becoming apparent that many of his comrades believe that Governor Cummins is the logical candidate for senator from the Republican side of the house.

It is declared that Lacey tried to suppress the "Iowa resolution" at the Cedar Rapids encampment last June. This proposed an amendment to the national law so as to make the age for commencement of a pension for old soldiers 65 instead of 75. Maj. Lacey was chairman of the committee on resolutions, and it is said that he opposed the act which was afterwards carried, though his friends deny it.

Old soldiers in many standpat communities are strong Lacey men and are organizing to work for him at the polls, even acting as challengers.

The labor vote is with Governor Cummins to a large extent. J. H. Streff, secretary of the Iowa Federation of Labor, recently offered to bet $500 that the governor will be chosen over Lacey, but found few takers. It is true, however, that up to date the standpatters have a better organization than the Cummins men.

The Democrats expect that the next senator will be a Democrat. It is believed that Bryan's real purpose in visiting Iowa so many times is the hope that he may swing enough close counties into the Democratic column to elect a Democratic legislature rather than that he hopes to carry the state for himself as against Taft.

Character of a Store.

People identify the character of a store with the character of the paper in which they see the store's advertisement.

DOG SWALLOWED DIAMOND.

Owner Had to X-Ray Entire Pack to Find Culprit.

Cleveland, Oct. 15.—William Todd Washington, champion shoe shiner of Ohio, who lost a $100 diamond shirt stud a week ago, has it again.

Washington's diamond snapped out of his shirt front and a bull pup swallowed it. The situation was complicated by the fact that there were several dogs on hand at the time, and in the chase that followed the loss of the jewel, no one could be sure which dog got the diamond stud.

Washington said he got an X-ray machine and put all the dogs under the machine in turn. He says he was never so surprised in his life as when his own dog, Bouncer Bill, was put under the X-ray and the diamond was discovered.

FORTUNES ON TREES.

In the Rogue River valley in Southern Oregon F. H. Hopkins in 1907 made a profit of $19,000 off sixteen acres of winter Nells pears—$1,187.50 a nacre, says the Technical World. In the same valley G. H. Hover bought ten acres of pear orchard at $500 an acre. Fifteen months later the crop brought him $9,600.

Eight years ago J. L. Dumass set out fifty acres of apples near Dayton in the Walla Walla district of Southeastern Washington. In the summer of 1907 he bought fifty acres of apply orchard adjoining the property at an investfent of $18,000. The apples he picked from these fifty acres that season sold for $18,000 and the total scrop from the hundred acres realized $52,000—a return to the owner of $40,000.

A climate and soil that are capable of rearing such monsters as the redwood trees and the sequolas, which render measurements of vegetable growth in other regions of this country puny and scant account in part for these bewildering figures.

But there are obscure valleys, narrow and diminutive, mere pockets, between huge mountains, where in the past no plant worthy of cultivation has found so much as a foothold. And it is in many just such spots as these that the returns are the hugest. Irrigation, in such cases, is the remaining factor that explains the mystery.

The same magazine tells a remarkable story of the success of two women who tried farming in England. They began with five acres in Berkshire, but found they had too much land, so they cut down their holdings to less than half that amount.

The teachers of the women were a French gardener and his family, who, with an acre of land in France, sold $2,500 worth of produce in a year.

"In a bare ploughed field stands a square palisade of zinc plates enclosing about three-quarters of an acre," writes a visitor to the farm. "The ground is all covered with inverted bell glasses of the kind known in Europe as clochers. Under each bell at the time this writer visited the farm were five lettuce. Lettuce were growing around the bells and other vegetables sown broadcast were coming up everywhere. Every inch of the soil bears at least three crops a year, each of them anticipating the season and therefore producing fancy prices."

RAILROADS IN INFANCY

C. W. Cooper Says Canada Is Just Beginning to Build.

Thousands of Miles of Extensions Are Already Surveyed.

C. W. Cooper, assistant general passenger agent of the Canadian Northern railway, is in Duluth today.

Mr. Cooper is most optimistic regarding the future of railway development of the Dominion. He says that the railway construction of Canada is in its infancy, and that the near future will witness the construction of thousands of miles of railroads.

"At the present time," said Mr. Cooper, "the Canadian railway men are paying the most attention to bettering their property. By this I mean they are placing heavier rails, ballasting the roads and reducing grades. They have reached the point where they have time to improve the roads and bring them up to a high standard.

"The Canadian Northern railway has constructed over 350 miles of road during the present season. Our line from Winnipeg to Regina, through Portage and Brandon, will be opened in two weeks. We have over 3,000 miles of extensions surveyed and construction work upon these extensions will begin next year. Other roads of the Dominion are planning extensions and also improving their present milenge.

"The roads of Canada are taxed to their utmost to handle the immense wheat crop. It is estimated that the total yield will amount to 125,000,000 bushels. It will all grade high, and in every respect is the greatest wheat crop that the Dominion has ever produced. There is nothing approaching a car shortage in Canada, though the railroads are kept extremely busy handling the crop. We are taking the wheat direct to Port Arthur and the Canadian Pacific is transporting the crop to Fort William. That road has entirely recovered from the strike of its employes and is in a position to handle the wheat crop. The prediction that the Canadian roads would not be able to handle the crop has not been correct. We are handling all of the wheat, though it is taxing us to the utmost.

"The immigration will equal the record of last year. We are receiving a large number of American farmers, who are the most practical people that come to Canada. They are ahead of the immigrants from Europe, in that they are better acquainted with the methods of modern farming. The Americans make our best farmers and they are fast settling up our western lands.

"The traffic on the line from this city to Winnipeg has surpassed our brightest expectations. It has linked this city with Winnipeg in a friendly bond of commerce and has resulted to the advantage of both cities. The international boundary line will prove no barrier between the commercial reprocity of the two cities, and in my opinion, each year will witness an increase of the commerce between them."

MORE CHILDREN SEEKING WORK

New York Health Department Also Reports Less Marriages.

New York, Oct. 15.—More than twice as many children are seeking employment this fall than sought it last fall, and there has been a decided falling off in marriages, according to the records compiled by the health department.

In September, last year, 1,300 children 14 years old, applied for certificates that they might become bread winners. Last month more than 2,700 children asked for employment certificates. There is but one construction put upon this unprecedented increase by the health board. That is that a large number of parents find themselves at the approach of winter either without employment or with their earning capacity reduced, so that the children's help must be enlisted.

I'm on top and over 'em.

Now I'm ready to prove my workmanship and back up the style, fit and finish on my $20 suits and overcoats against any $40 or $45 suits or overcoats made by any other tailors in Duluth.

I will show you my goods, linings and trimmings and I want you to compare the goods that I use in my $20 clothes with the stuff you will find in the tailor shop and in the ready-made stores at bigger prices.

Remember that I guarantee to make a suit or overcoat to your order for $15 or $20 and to suit you or no pay.

Some fellows say: "It's pretty nervy of me to make such a statement." Not at all. I know my goods and my styles. I know my cutters, fitters and tailors. They all make good. If they don't, I fire 'em.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and if you want to buy or order a suit or overcoat for this winter come along Saturday and order from me. I guarantee perfect satisfaction and I run all the risk.

Yours truly,

EXPECT U. S. RECOGNITION

Bulgaria Awaits Word From America on Independence.

Letter President Roosevelt Sent to Prince Ferdinand Recalled.

Paris, Oct. 15.—M. Stancioff, the diplomatic agent of Bulgaria in Paris is in receipt of offical advices from Sofia which deny the alarmist rumors current here yesterday of Bulgaria's purposes. Bulgaria has no intention of sending an ultimatum to Turkey or of ordering further mobilization of her forces. On the contrary the outlook for a peaceful adjustment with Turkey and the powers is now regarded in Sofia as practically assured through the international conference. M. Stancioff said he did not give credence to the bellicose language attributed to the Bulgarian premier and explained that Bulgaria was ready to make whatever money compensation was proper on account of the Oriental railroad and Eastern Rumelia.

He characterized as absurd a report from Belgrade of a secret treaty between Bulgaria and Austria Hungary.

Stancioff expressed surprise that the United States has not yet recognized the independence of Bulgaria, but he recalled with pleasure the personal letter of President Roosevelt to Prince Ferdinand presented by John B. Jackson when he was accredited as the diplomatic agent of the United States to Bulgaria.

TRAVEL MILES FOR SHORT TALK

Nebraska Farmers Make Long Journeys to Briefly Hear Bryan.

Wymore, Neb., Oct. 15.—William J. Bryan began his third and last day's tour of Nebraska with a speech before 7 o'clock, at Endicot, this morning. Though it was nearly midnight last night when he concluded, he appeared fresh and chipper this morning.

Several hundred farmers had gathered at Endicott, some of them driving more than fifteen miles to hear the candidate speak but five minutes. The crowd was large enough to warrant the committee traveling with Mr. Bryan to leave behind State Auditor W. W. Brandon of Alabama, to address the meeting and then catch the train with an auto. Mr. Brandon has been used in this capacity on this trip, last night speaking at Geneva after Mr. Bryan concluded, and joining the party at Hebron early this morning, after a thirty-mile night ride in an automobile.

At Fairbury Mr. Bryan spoke twenty-five minutes, the address being made in the courthouse square. He reviewed the party's position on the tariff and trust question, and dwelt at length on the guaranty bank deposits. At each place he made an earnest appeal for the election of the state, legislative and congressional tickets. Mr. Bryan spoke five minutes at Dillar to a crowd of farmers. Here he devoted his speech to a discussion of the planks, asking for thee lection of senators by direct vote of the people and the publicity of campaign funds.

OPEN ARMS AND OPEN HEARTS.

Minnesota never witnessed such a demonstration as that which Duluth gave Governor Johnson last night at the conclusion of his triumphal tour of St. Louis and Lake counties. Few men in the history of the country have been capable of arousing such admiration, such loyalty, such affection as John A. Johnson has inspired in the hearts of the people of his native state; and nowhere do the hearts of his people beat with warmer devotion to this simple, honest, earnest man than in Duluth.

As his equipage passed along Superior street to the Armory dense crowds greeted the governor tumultuously from both sides of the street. At the Armory, which was packed in every nook and cranny with humanity, the greatest crowd that ever gathered in Duluth was already met, and the streets were packed with the overflow. The governor's reception mounted to heights of enthusiasm never before reached in this city or in this state. It was a significant and an inspiring occasion; testifying at once to the love and loyalty of Governor Johnson's Duluth friends, and to the eminence a poor lad may reach in this state unassisted by anything but pure native ability and unspotted integrity.

Cheap and petty critics, bombarding with pea-shooters from the bush, may seek to account for this tremendous demonstration by saying that the office and not the man attracted, and that it was due to the pleasantness of the evening; but the reason—and there is a reason—lies deeper than that. Other governors have come to Duluth, but they never met such an outpouring of sympathy and esteem. There have been other pleasant evenings, but they never witnessed such a burst of love and approval from the people to one of themselves whom they had elevated to a place of power.

The fact is that Governor Johnson is close to the hearts of the people; and a finer thing even than that is that the people's judgment is not mistaken: for this man is true as steel, faithful as the needle to the pole, and his great heart and his great brain are engaged wholly in the service of the people. By sticking to such men, as the people of Duluth and of Minnesota have stuck to John A. Johnson, the people will come into their own.

ONE OF OUR STUMBLING BLOCKS.

If the criticisms offered by departing foreign delegates to the international tuberculosis congress are well founded, they expose one of the reasons why reforms in the interest of humanity proceed slowly in this country. It is because the golden calf of congested Property has more influence with the government and with political parties than the appeals of precious humanity.

These complaints are to the effect that real estate interests were able to dominate the congress and thereby to prevent proper discussion of the relation of the building problem to the tuberculosis problem.

An English delegate, who is the special sanitary commissioner of the London Lancet, says: "Three years ago at Paris Mr. Beco, the minister of agriculture of the reactionary clerical government of Belgium, proposed a resolution declaring that the housing problem was the fundamental factor in our fight. At the international congress on housing at Geneva four or five years ago a great principle was adopted in relation to compensation. It was decided that real estate owners ought to be compensated not according to the financial value of their property—for slum property is the most valuable in the world—but according to the sanitary value. There was not a word said about this principle at Washington. Then, there was no discussion of preventoriums, that is, organizations to enforce against tenement house and factory proprietors the tuberculosis laws before outbreaks have occurred."

Still another grievance is that resolutions were choked off, by the managers of the congress, embodying such strong recommendations as the necessity of adopting municipal regulations for the height of buildings according to the width of the street. Here again it is charged that American real estate interests were powerful in preventing the anti-tuberculosis fight from running to its natural length.

Some of these criticisms even go to the length of declaring the American congress, from which so much had been hoped, to be "a step backward." This conclusion will find few supporters, however, in spite of the definite charges as to the influence of property interests.

Tuberculosis cannot be successfully fought if owners of slum tenements in which consumption breeds and thrives are to have any influential part in the warfare. The fight against this dread disease is a fight for pure air, cleanliness and sunlight. Buildings so constructed and so maintained that their inmates must live in darkness, foul air and insanitary surroundings are breeding places for the disease. It cannot successfully be fought while such buildings remain. Those who maintain them, and who resist attempts to substitute for them clean and airy and sunlit buildings, are taking the part of the greedy germ of consumption, and arraying themselves against those who would make away with the evil.

JACOBSON AND DULUTH.

Candidate Jacobson, who is asking the people of Duluth to vote for him for governor, has given many evidences of his hostility toward this community, but few of them have touched an issue so vital as his opposition to a fair distribution of the taxes received from the railroads through the gross earnings system.

Under this method of taxation the railroads pay 4 per cent of their gross earnings in this state into the state treasury in lieu of all other taxes. These receipts are used entirely by the state; the localities in which the railroad property stands get no direct benefit from them whatever. In Duluth practically a third of the real estate is exempt from taxation because it is owned by the railroads. It costs the city heavily for fire protection, police protection, etc., but it pays not a penny toward the support of the city. When improvements are made in streets paralleled by railroads, the burden falls entirely upon the city and upon private property-owners, because the gross earnings tax exempts the railroads not only from local taxes, but from special assessments for local improvements.

Duluth has tried several times to secure justice in this matter. It has asked the legislature to apportion the gross earnings taxes to the subdivisions of the state in proportion to the railroad property in each, and it has failed; it has asked the legislature to amend the gross earnings tax law so as to require the railroads to pay special assessments for local improvements in addition to the gross earnings tax, and it failed again; it has tried to increase the gross earnings tax so as to leave the state its present revenue and provide additional revenue for the aid of communities situated as this city is situated, and it failed again.

Jacobson, through all his career, opposed all measures looking to the relief of Duluth and other cities needing relief.

For instance, in 1901 Mr. Laybourn of Duluth offered an amendment to the bill increasing the gross earnings tax from 3 per cent to 4 per cent, his amendment providing that 10 per cent of the tax should go to the state, and that the remainder should be apportioned to the several counties in proportion to the amount of taxes paid in by each; not according to the amount of railroad property in each, because that would give the cities more than the country. According to the St. Paul Globe of March 31, 1905, the proposal set Jacobson in a rage. He made a bitter fight against it, and succeeded in defeating it by having it referred to the tax commission which the legislature at that session had already provided for.

This is but one of many instances wherein Jacobson, as a member of the legislature, sought either to perpetrate injustice upon this part of the state or to prevent justice being done to it.

ANOTHER "SOCIALISTIC" PROPOSAL.

The proposal to make the government the custodian of a fund to guarantee the people's deposits in the banks is condemned by the Republican organs and some of the Republican leaders of the state as socialistic and dangerous. Practically all of these newspapers and political leaders favored the guaranty plan before Mr. Bryan took it up, but after it became a part of his campaign program they speedily had their opinions "matured," to quote our amusing friend the St. Paul Pioneer Press, and now they join in condemning it. Candidate Jacobson has not said a word in favor of the plan in his campaign, though Governor Johnson heartily advocates it.

But if it is socialistic and dangerous for the state to guarantee bank deposits, what should be said of the plan of state insurance of farmers against loss of crops by hail and wind? Is not that quite as "socialistic" as the deposit guaranty plan? And if it is what some people call socialistic, is it any the less desirable for that? And if it is desirable and unobjectionable because it benefits the farmers, is not the bank deposit guaranty plan, which benefits everybody, also desirable and unobjectionable?

The plan of state insurance of crops has been proposed by a Republican legislature, and a constitutional amendment providing for it will be voted upon by the people at the coming election. It ought to be adopted, too. It permits the legislature to work out a plan of state insurance which cannot fail to benefit the farmers and the state. It does not, of course, permit the use of the state's money for the reimbursement of farmers who lose through storm damage; the state is merely made the custodian of a fund contributed by the farmers themselves, just as in the deposit guaranty plan the state would be made the custodian of the guaranty fund, which would be contributed by the banks.

We approve heartily of the proposed constitutional amendment permitting the state to go into the business of insuring crops, and we hope that it will receive the approval of all sections of the state. The cities should favor it no less than the farming districts, because what benefits the farmers helps the city dwellers, and what hurts the farmer hurts the city man.

So far there has been no opposition whatever to this plan, and there should be none. But there is no more reason why the deposit guaranty plan should be opposed as "socialistic" than there is why the hail insurance plan should be opposed on the same ground. If one is a proper exertion of the functions of government, the other must be.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press, which approved the deposit guaranty plan until it became Democratic doctrine, and which condemned it thereafter, is respectfully invited to explain why, if state hail insurance is proper, state guaranty of bank deposits is not proper also. Will it explain, too, why the Republican party should oppose the one, and not oppose the other, unless it be because the one opposed by Republicans was taken up first by the Democrats, and the one not opposed by Republicans had the contemporaneous approval of both parties?

TOTAL IMBECILITY OR TOTAL DEPRAVITY?

On the front page of the News Tribune this morning there appears this heading over a maudlin diatribe in which it seeks to vent its venom against the governor of Minnesota: "Governor Johnson Stands Pat for a Tonnage Tax."

On the same front page, in the heading over the meager report of Governor Johnson's tremendous reception at the Armory last night, appear these words: "Governor Johnson says he is opposed to the tonnage tax."

According to the News Tribune editorially, Governor Johnson came out for a tonnage tax at last night's meeting. According to the News Tribune's grudging report of his speech, he came out against the tonnage tax or any other form of taxation that would deprive the local governments of their just share of taxation.

What is to be thought of a newspaper that would be guilty of such vicious absurdity? It can possess neither honesty nor self respect. What can be its estimate of the intelligence of the public it seeks to delude by such transparent deceit? It must think it is living in a community of idiots.

Furthermore, it returns to the attack thus: "What the wide-open tax amendment means for this country is for a tonnage tax all to go to the state." Then it says that as Governor Johnson is running on a platform advocating the tax amendment, he must be for the tonnage tax. Now Jacobson is running upon a platform which contains these words, one of the few references to state affairs in a platform which is far more notable for what it omits than for what it contains: "We favor the adoption of the tax amendment to be voted on at the next ensuing general election." Furthermore, Jacobson has always favored a tounage tax and is only silent upon it now, while Governor Johnson speaks out boldly and unequivocally, as his habit is.

Will the morning paper please give a single reason why Jacobson should get a single vote in Northern Minnesota? We ask it for the fifth but not the last time.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Two men approached the desk at the Spalding simultaneously yesterday. One gentleman registered as J. H. Melwin, Binghampton, N. Y., the other from Albany, N. Y. The man from Albany watched the other man write Binghampton after his name, and while he wrote Albany after his signature, asked the other gentleman the political situation in the Empire state.

"Hughes," came the reply.

"I think you are mistaken," said the man from Albany. "I think Chanler will defeat Hughes. When I left New York most everybody believed Chanler would win. I have believed it right along. I am quite sure of it now."

"Well, you see, we come from different parts of the state," said the man from Binghampton. "You people at Albany naturally want the governor defeated. You have expected that he would be defeated at the close of his first term. The people from my part of the state have always believed that Hughes is the best governor New York has ever had, and we have hoped that he will be re-elected. I for one have not abandoned that hope; I still think that Mr. Hughes will be returned to office."

"I will admit," replied the gentleman from Albany, "that the politicians are opposed to the re-election of Governor Hughes. I will further admit that we of Albany see more of the politician's viewpoint than do you of the more southern part of the state. But at the same time I am firmly of the opinion that the politicians are not the only ones that are opposed to the re-election of th egovernor. I am of the opinion that the people of the cities are opposed to his being returned to office. New York city will, in my opinion, go heavily for Chanler. Albany, I know, will give him a heavy plurality. Then I believe the northern part of New York will not vote for the re-election of Hughes. I have analyzed the situation, and don't believe that Hughes can win with the odds against him."

"I will admit that the odds are against him," came from the man that wrote Binghampton after his name, "but at the same time there is a silent vote that is going to count a great deal in the result. The farmers up state are solid for Hughes. He has antagonized thousands, I will admit, by his anti-gambling bill, but at the same time there are many people in New York state who would rather see the provisions of the law upheld than to see a continuance of horse-racing. The southern part of the state will be for Hughes, almost solid. The forces at Albany are opposing his re-election with all the cunning and adroitness of a well-organized political machine. They are making no secret of that fact. They are making a great deal of ado about the matter, and this noise is liable to confuse many people as to the real status of the race at the present time. I believe that the silent vote is going to count, and the choice of the people, Governor Hughes, will win."

Both gentlemen argued further. The man from the capital of New York maintained that the governor had alienated a great part of his following by the veto of the two-cent railroad fare bill. The man from Binghampton held that Governor Hughes has the implicit confidence of the common people of New York and that their faith would be shown in his re-election. They argued pro and con. They debated the possibilities in the campaign, yet neither man would admit that there was any probability of the other being correct. They represented the opinion of two sections of New York state, and if these two gentlemen give true indications of the opinion in the Empire state, sectionally speaking, the state is very badly split up regarding the outcome of the election of Nov. 3.

Even the bell boys have caught the contagion of political fever that is raging throughout the land. Yesterday at the McKay, two bell answerers nearly came to blows over the dispute as to whether Mr. Taft was a Democrat or a Republican. Mind, they were not discussing Roosevelt.

"Taft is a Democrat," said the first boy.

"He is a Republican," answered the second boy, doubling his fist and advancing with ominous scowl, "and if you say he ain't, you're a ——" here the intervention of the clerk prevented an imitation of what is transpiring in higher circles of political thought.

C. B. Connors, a lumberman of Chppewa Falls, Wis., who was at the St. Louis yesterday, is of the opinion that the lumber situation will be gradually imporving from this time on. He says that many dealers throughout the country are waiting to see the outcome of the presidential election before buying any stock. Furthermore, he says that there is no speculative market at the present time, because the dealers are not buying ahead, pending the political outcome. Mr. Connors expresses the opinion that there will be a gradual resumption of business after the election is settled and that with politics out of the way the business will again assume a normal activity.

J. T. Lundgren of Long Prairie, who was at the St. Louis yesterday, says Johnson sentiment is strong in his part of the state and there is no doubt down Long Prairie way but that the present governor will be returned to office.

A. M. Saunders of Elkhart, Ind., at the Lenox yesterday, brings to Duluth the belief that Bryan has an excellent chance of carrying the George Ade state. He says the presence of John W. Kern on the national ticket has strengthened it wonderfully in Indiana, for, he says, Mr. Kern is one of the most popular public officials ever produced by the Hoosier state. Mr. Saunders states that Mr. Kern has a large personal following throughout the state and that his presence on the national ticket is almost sure to overcome the Republican majority in the state.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday the thermometer in Duluth got up to the summer level of 80 degs. and last night it dropped only to 58 degs. This morning it was clear, dry and warm again. The dry spell is only second to the one that bred such terror and destruction a few weeks ago. The weather man says it will be warm tonight and tomorrow, though cloudy. A year ago today it was brilliantly beautiful. The sun rose this morning at 6:26 and sets tonight at 5:21, making 10 hours and 52 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: The barometer is low over the entire Northwest, particularly over Wyoming and Manitoba. This disturbance has caused unseasonably warm weather throughout the lake region and Central valleys, while during the past twenty-four hours rain has resulted in Western Canada, Montana, Northwestern Wyoming, Nevada, Idaho and the Pacific Coast states. The barometer is high over the South Atlantic states, attended by cool weather in those districts. Cloudy and continued warm weather may be expected in this locality tonight and Friday."

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Long Prairie Argus: The Duluth Herald is very much opposed to trusts, but can't see any harm in the trusts in its immediate vicinity. It says the Steel corporation is no trust, but a gigantic business concern. That's what they all are and they take in so large a portion of plants in the business that they have a practical monopoly.

Stillwater Gazette: More expense for the Minneapolis automobile owners. They are to build a hill of their own, that is to be used for hill climbing contests. If they lived in Stilwater or Duluth this expense would be uncalled for—we have the hills that nature provided us with, and they are exactly what we want.

Stillwater Gazette: The political editor of the Duluth Herald declares that the last part of Alfred Austin's latest edition, you know he is the poet laureate of England, is real poetry, but criticises the old man and wonders what the whole thing is about. The editor thinks it is foolish for Alfred to ask if her love would last through the fall. Our guess is nit, unless plenty of fuel, food, clothing, theaters, etc., are provided. And no doubt she would quit the old man in the spring, summer or winter if he didn't make good.

St. Peter Free Press: Campaign letters from President Roosevelt have come with great regularity the past three weeks, with an occasional broadside as occasion seemed to demand, says the Duluth Herald. Yes, and it is not relished by our radical Democratic opponents. The president hits right from the shoulder and drives home his points with telling effect. No wonder that the other side says "enough."

Virginia Enterprise: The News Tribune will in time convince the people that it is a factor in politics," avers the Hibbing Tribune. Perhaps; but it will doubtless take a long time. Hit it right twice in twenty years, though.

Walker Pilot: It was a mean trick Fargo played in feasting Taft on two bears. Such honors belong to Duluth alone.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: It was small, but characteristic of the Duluth News Tribune to insinuate that Hon. J. Adam Bede was back of Taylor's movement to prevent Clarence B. Miller from going to congress.

Virginia Virginian: For an independent newspaper the Duluth Evening Herald takes a very strong stand on matters which lean strong towards Democracy. But the Herald is an exceptionally good newspaper notwithstanding—one of the very best in the country.

Cass Lake Times: We never believed Johnson any but an indifferent friend to Northern Minnesota, but, the Duluth Herald claims Jacobson is a distinct enemy, and proves it. By all means let's keep Johnson, besides "rugged honesty" is not the only requisite for a governor of a state like Minnesota, and that is all that can be claimed for Jacobson now that the pie episode is elliminated.

Unto the Last.

When the plover flies
O'er the idle plow,
And the woodpecker taps
On the rotting bough;

When the starved rook pecks
At the tight-stacked grain
And the tattered nest
Flecks the leafless lane;

Then, then will you love
Me, and still no less
When the grass waves shore
My dreamlessness?

—ALFRED AUSTIN, Poet Laureate of England.

When the well is dry
And the pump is broke
And the frogs perch high
On the logs and croak;

When the calf, that now
Wades the purling brook,
Has become a cow
With a far-off look;

When the pup forgets
To disturb the flea,
Will you have regrets
As you think of me?

Ferdinand's Napoleonic Nose.

Providence Evening Tribune: It is a stalwart and handsome new figure that has suddenly taken the center of the European political stage in the person of Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and he has one of those Napoleonic noses of which it is advisable always to beware.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Rainey have been this week at Mrs. Rainey's old home in New York, where they have been attending a reunion of her family.

•••Dr. R. O. Sweeney of St. Paul expects to bring his family to Duluth next week for permanent residence. He will take charge of the government fish hatchery at Lester river.

•••The presbytery of Duluth was finally established by the Presbyterian synod in session at St. Paul yesterday. It will include Northern and Northwestern Minnesota and a part of Wisconsin.

•••The man who was drowned in the lake last week proves to be a Finlander by the name of Isaac Brakkla. Eric Mattson drew $34 from a saloonkeeper, with whom Brakkla had deposited it the day before he disappeared, saying that Brakkla was under arrest and wanted it to pay his fine. Next day Mattson said that Brakkla had gone to Tower. Yesterday Chief Doran and Capt. McLaughlin went to Tower and arrested Mattson, who admits having taken Brakkla's money and spending it, but denies having used any violence, or seeing Brakkla, after he left him on the night of the 12th. It is possible that Brakkla was not murdered and fell into the water accidentally and was drowned, but the suspicions warranted Mattson's arrest.

•••A letter received from George McKenzie, formerly with the American Exchange bank of this city, says he has been sick nearly all the time he has been in Johnstown, Pa., and his doctor recommends the bracing air of Minnesota. He may decide to return here.

•••Jack Doyle now lies dead, the result of three bullets entering his body from the revolver of August Trump, at 2:1y, on Oct. 13. They got into a row, Doyle knocked down Trump and, after jumping on him, pulled a knife, when Trump drew a revolver and fired.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Winona Independent: State Auditor Iverson should be read out of the Republican party. After allowing the managers of the state campaign to work themselves into a fine frenzy over high taxes he announces a reduction from 3.48 to 3.33 in the state rate.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The danger of monopoly uncontrolled lies not only in its extortion upon the public, but in its constant disposition and opportunity to debauch the government by bribing its servants. This is clearly exemplified in the career of Standard Oil.

Winona Independent: Some one asked Max Nordau to define the difference between genius and insanity. "Well," said the author of "Degeneration," "the lunatic is, at least, sure of his board and clothes."

Moorhead Independent: Something of the value of Clay county lands is indicated by the success of one farmer the past season. After holding out enough potatoes for next season's planting and for domestic use, he sold the yield from a 120 acre tract, averaging 100 bushels per acre, for $5,280. This represents $44 per acre for that land for one season. Most land in Clay county is "dirt" cheap at any price lower than $100 per acre.

Two Harbors Iron News: Some of the newspapers of the state are making their annual complaints against the primary election law. The law is all right in principle. Objections come from those who fail of nomination. The law ought to be extended to state officers, however; then the repeated wails that the "interests" make the nominations would cease.

Sauk Center Herald: The old idea of running a campaign by calling on voters to stand by the ticket just for party's sake is fast falling into a state of innocuous desuetude. Citizens are voting for the man and not for the party more than they ever did before, and no amount of jollying can force them to do otherwise. Especially unwise is the method being followed by at least one Minnesota campaigner in calling the independent voter a "sorehead." That's no way to induce the independent to come back within the party lines.

Fairmont Sentinel: The Republican dailies screeched forth the news in monster headlines that the big bankers in convention at Denver were against the guarantee of bank deposits, but a day or two later when the same big bankers declared against the postal savings bank scheme the aforesaid dailies were very quiet and reserved in telling the news.

Warroad Plaindealer (Rep.): There was a whipping into line Monday night. Unless you were a Jacobson man you couldn't march in the Taft parade. That's the dirty work of political barnacles attached to the fat bosses of Moorhead.—Moorhead Independent (Rep.)

It is not only in Moorhead that the whipping into line is taking place this fall, but in every part of Minnesota; and the result is seen in the support given to Jacobson by papers that have every reason to oppose him, and not one legitimate reason for supporting him. The Plaindealer is for Taft and against Jacobson, and it has no apologies to offer for its attitude in either case; but we can see very well that the policy of the bosses who are coaching Jacobson is injuring Taft and doing Jacobson no good.

Pine River Sentinel: If all the statements made in political campaigns were facts what a rotten old country this would be to live in to be sure. Luckily though most people know enough to take these things with the proper amount of seasoning so they work particular harm to nobody.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Fault finding gives friendship many a hard jolt.

Absence doesn't make the heart grow fonder of a rival.

No man has a monopoly on making good resolutions.

Borrowing money is synonymous with borrowing trouble.

The more money a man has the harder he strives for more.

A man must know himself in order to understand the meanness of others.

Honest, now, when you have company how much of your hospitality is a bluff?

Rule for Letter Writing.

New York Commercial: Yesterday a Broadway banker was discussing the alleged theft of correspondence of the Standard Oil company. "In all my correspondence," said he, "I have followed the rule which Lord Chesterfield laid down for his son—'Write to your foe as if you might some day want him for a friend, and to your friend as if you might some day have him for a foe.'"

The Results of Poor Health.

Charities and the Commons: We are just beginning to appreciate how much inefficiency and even crime is due to poor health. Adulterated and unwholesome food from infancy means a devitalized, inefficient man. Dark and insanitary rooms lay the foundations or the ravages of tuberculosis with its accompanying suffering and loss of work power. In running through the piles of records in any charity organization office, one is struck with the number of families that are forced over the poverty line because of sickness. It is often stated that were there no drinking there would be no poverty. It would be nearer the truth to say that were there no sickness there would be no poverty.

Pittsburg Post: "Is this section prosperous?"

"You bet it is," answered the Kansas farmer. "I kin spread a net any time and shake a grand piano out of a cyclone."

The Good Old Campaign Days.

I've been a-talkin' politicks with Hezekiah Bates,
Discussin' o' th' plaiform an' th' leadin' candidates;
Of how election use t' go, in ol' Vermont and Maine,
An' fasain' with th' topics catamount in this campaign.

We're hopin' they will start things with some marchin' clubs an' such,
With orators an' quartets that kin sing to beat th' Dutch—
Th' same excitin' kind o' times they had in bygone days,
When Tilden was a-runnin' 'gainst a feller name o' Hayes.

What people need to wake 'em an' kind o' make things hum—
To start th' fireworks goin' an' keep 'er up, by gum—
In sum good ol'-fashioned rallies—speakin', pinwheels an' a band;
Men a-marchin' an' a-shoutin' up an' down th' hull darn land;

All worked up an' bilin' over with campaign arguments;
Demmycrats an' G. O. P. crowd snortin' round an' talkin' rash,
Each side sweatin' that the other's sure to make things go smash.

Hezekiah says thet Tilden like th' very dickens run,
An' I know it looked like bloodshed when th' news cum Hays had won.
Them wuz times, he says (an' I'm here to stand by what Hez states),
When all th' land wuz shoutin' for th' rival candidates.

An' I now recall th' rally thet th' Tilden fellers had
At th' Corners in October—how th' Hayes men all got mad
When we marched by in our uniforms—you bet we made 'em crawl!
An' th' wimmin folks served sandwiches an' cider at th' hall

They started early them days, too, an' kep' things good an' hot—
A campaign wuz a campaign, an' thet meant a powerful lot:
The' patriots wuz busy an' th' candidates wuz free,
Like I hope thet Taft and Bryan—both of 'em—this year, will be
I don't want any pink tea politicks in presidential year—
No apathy or hangin' back or anything thet's queer.
Gimme pieter banners flyin' an' them doin's like they had
When Tilden wuz a-runnin' an th' country went clean mad.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The only way a man can afford to dress well is if his family doesn't.

The less reason there is for it the more conceited most people can be.

Trouble is a blessing in keeping you from getting into bigger trouble because you have enough.

The more poetry a man puts into being engaged to a girl the more prose Fate will put into their marriage.

The particular thing a woman is proud about her children is that other people are so mean they won't admit how proud she ought to be of them.

A Thinker.

Ralph Waldo Emerson: Beware when the great God lets loose a thinker on this planet. Then all things are at risk. It is as when a conflagration has broken out in a great city, and no man knows what is safe or where it will end. There is not a piece of science but its bank may be turned tomorrow; there is not any literary reputation, not the so-called eternal names of fame, that may not be revised and condemned. The very hopes of man, the thoughts of his heart, the religion of nations, the manners and morals of mankind, are all at the mercy of a new generalization. Generalization is always a new influx of the divinity into the mind. Hence the thrill that attends it.

Nearly one hundred years in the cultivation of the soil has developed the vine that produces the same fine quality wine grape as grown in the oldest vineyards of France. This rich, delicately flavored, mellow grape—combined with the French method of making, makes possible this superior American Champagne.

It was the only American wine to receive that honor—and was acknowledged equal to the finest imported brands.

FLEET IS OFF JAPAN

Tokio Agog With Preparations to Receive American Ships.

Gunboat Yankton is Sighted at an Early Hour.

Tokio, Oct. 15.—At 8 this morning the gunboat Yankton, preceding the American battleship fleet, was sighted by Japanese war vessels off the coast.

All Japan is astir in anticipation of the arrival of the American battleship fleet. Yokohama and Tokio in particular are given over to enthusiastic preparation. The decorations in these cities are so extensive and general as to be remarkable, not only in Japan, but in any country of the world that awaited a naval call by the fleet of another power. All the Japanese newspapers of prominence are printing editions in English, with lengthy editorials assuring the American officers and sailors of a hearty welcome by the nation.

Every available vessel in the harbor of Yokohama has been chartered to convey excursionists to meet the warships on their approach. The American ambassador and his staff will meet the fleet aboard a special steamer and the members of the American commission to the Japanese exposition will have another. A third vessel has been chartered, the delegation of Pacific coast business men which arrived here several days ago. The American-Asiatic society will be represented by many of its members who have arranged for a large steamer elaborately decorated.

TO ADDRESS DAIRYMEN.

Members of State Sanitary Board Will Come to Duluth Soon.

Health Commissioner Patton has secured Prof. Reynolds and Prof. Ward of the state sanitary board to address the dairymen of Duluth on matters of general interest to them. The idea is in line with the campaign of education for better milk now being conducted in Duluth.

The exact date of the meeting has not been set. It will be during the latter part of the present month, and will be held in the council chambers. All the dairymen of the city will be invited to attend, and the department will earnestly urge that they be on hand, for the speakers will have a good deal of valuable information to hand out.

GARFIELD MAKES HASKELL ISSUE.

New York, Oct. 15.—In a rapid tour of New York city, that took him from the Bronx to the lower East side, James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior, made six political speeches, asking support of Judge Taft, and vigorously attacking the sincerity of William J. Bryan.

He assailed Bryan for what he termed "his shifting policies, saying that the issues first advocated by him had been relegated to the scrap heap, because the candidate feared they would lose him votes.

At one meeting he brought up the Haskell incident, saying that Mr. Bryan was personally responsible for the elevation of Governor Haskell to the office of national treasurer of the Democratic party. Mr. Garfield said that this incident proved that Mr. Bryan was "totally unfit to select men for positions of trust and honor."

HOLD JOYCE NOT GUILTY

Municipal Court Jury So Decides on Lid Lifting Case.

Took Three Hours Deliberation to Arrive at Verdict.

After three hours' deliberation, a municipal court jury last evening returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of John R. Joyce, charged with selling liquor on Sunday in his place of business, 14 Second avenue west. The jury retired at 4:30 o'clock and at 7:30 returned with a verdict.

Attorney M. H. McMahon defended Joyce at the trial, and Assistant City Attorney E. J. Kenney acted for the city. A good deal of interest was manifested in the proceedings, and a large crowd was on hand during the afternoon. A good part of it was composed of saloon men.

A number of witnesses were examined. Among those appearing for the city were C. A. Johnson, Patrolman W. G. Bonham, Sergt. Toewe and Patrolman J. L. Bradley. Mr. Johnson testified that he had volunteered to get the evidence against Joyce, and that he received no pay for doing so. He and Patrolman Bonham said that he entered the Joyce saloon and bought a bottle of beer. Afterwards the bottle was turned over to Chief Troyer, and older policemen were put on the case.

Sergt. Toewe swore that he had seen more than a dozen men come from the saloon Sunday, Oct. 3, the day the offense was alleged to have been committed, and then when Bradley and himself were admitted to the place there were three men leaning up against the bar drinking. He said that Dan McKenzie, Joyce's bartender, was working just the same as on week days behind the bar, and that he even had on the usual barkeeper's apron. Officer Bradley testified to the same effect.

The witnesses testified that they saw Patsy Hogan, a cab driver, come out of the saloon the day in question. Mr. Hogan later swore that he was not near the place all that day.

Mr. Joyce swore that he, his bartender and the porter were the only men in the saloon when the police entered. They were cleaning up, he said, so as to be all ready for business the following morning. McKenzie corroborated his employer's testimony. John Oliver Williams, the colored porter, swore to practically the same facts as McKenzie and Joyce, and denied that he had been convicted of robbing the Panton & White store.

Chief Troyer produced court records showing that Williams had been sentenced to ninety days in the county jail for breaking in the window of the store and robbing the money drawer. Williams still denied his guilt. He swore that no drinks were sold in Joyce's saloon the Sunday in question.

Iowa Breweries Lose.

Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 15.—Judge Smith McPherson, in the United States court, gave final decision in the case of the United States Breweries against the Civic Federation of Davenport. He denied a restraining order asked by the breweries. He declared the Iowa liquor statute a quasi-criminal law, and said that the federal court had no power to interfere with its enforcement by state courts.

County Dry, Not Wet.

DOCTRINE OF LOVE IS PREACHED BY JAGGARD

Cornerstone of New Elks' Home is Laid With Ceremony.

Supreme Court Justice Speaks on Beauty of Home.

With the simple but impressive ceremony of the lodge rutual, the cornerstone of the new home of Duluth lodge, No. 133, B. P. O. E., was laid last evening. Despite the counter attraction at the armory, over 1,000 people stood on First street near Third avenue west while the stone was put into place by Past Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler J. T. Schusler of St. Paul and the other ceremonies were performed.

The laying of the stone was the occasion of one of the finest gatherings of local Elks in a long time. Delighted with the prospects for their home and anxious to assist in the laying of its foundation and starting it toward completion, over 400 members of the lodge gathered at the lodge room and, led by the Third Regiment band, they marched from the hall to the site of the new home, shortly after 8 o'clock.

On a raised platform in front of the incomplete building, the visitors, officers of the local lodge and members of the building committee took seats, while the Elks grouped themselves around the front of the stand. The cornerstone was swung on chains and braced over its reposing place. The scene was lighted by arc lights and the summery character of the evening allowed everything to pass off without a slip.

Past Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler J. T. Schusler opened the ceremonies and Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, chaplain of the lodge, gave the invocation. The stone was then laid with the ceremony of the lodge and the Arion quartette sang. The band played "The Lost Chord."

Hon. E. A. Jaggard, associate justice of the supreme court, gave a short address, which made up for brevity in wealth of sentiment. He spoke of the beauty of the home, the most beautiful institution of mankind, and said that it is fitting and proper that the Elks, who exemplify all that is manly, should have a home of their own. He said beauty of architecture and furnishings of the home is an inspiration to beauty of thought and deed, and predicted that many a helpful friendship would be fostered in the building, for which the foundation is laid.

"You have done well to look to the future," said Justice Jaggard. "I do not believe that a man, woman or child in this gathering has the faintest conception of the future destined for this city. The fondest hopes and wildest dreams for a great city will be realized and more. You have every natural advantage and, with the growth of the city, the Elks' lodge will grow and it is fitting and proper that you build a home now that will accommodate many who will follow you."

He spoke of the Elks as the grandest fraternal order in the world, the only truly American order, and the best exponent of fraternalism. He described the Elk as a jolly fellow, fond of the good things of life, seeing nothing but the bright side of everything.

"The Elk may be happy and carefree; his morals may waver and there may be no feathers of the angel discernible on him, but he is always a man—just a plain, big-hearted man—and no cry of distress, be it from a brother Elk or a brother man, ever fell on deaf ears when it reached a member of our lodge," said the speaker.

He described the new home as a place to foster the joy of life, a place in which happiness might be secured by the making of others happy. "I would describe this building as a college of joy in a university of social culture," he said.

At the conclusion of Justice Taggart's address, the lines formed again and the march to the St. Louis hotel began. The impressiveness of the solemn ceremony of laying the cornerstone was supplanted by the spirit of good fellowship and while the band led with the stirring air, the crowd of men lustily sang "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," continuing to make the echoes resound through the lobby and into the big dining room, where covers were laid for the entire crowd.

The scene was one of merriment. The orchestra played popular airs and the diners sang the words. Harry Hall of Superior, famed as a raconteur and dialect entertainer, told a few stories in answer to insistent demands. The banquet was served with dispatch, and after the inner man was satisfied, Toastmaster E. L. Millar opened the speaking, introducing Justice Taggart, who made another happy speech. J. T. Schusler also spoke, Paddy Doran, a member of the local lodge, sang "Unfold the Banner," and the Arion quartet rendered the Heidelberg song from the "Prince of Pilsen," giving "Then You'll Remember Me" as an encore.

A. E. McManus, chairman of the building committee, gave an account of his stewardship. He said the lot, costing $25,000 is all paid for and the debt incurred thus far is comparatively small. He said the home will be ready for furnishing by Jan. 1 and it will be furnished in the most modern Elk style with no sparing of reasonable expense, in properly fitting it for the occupancy of the lodge.

With beautiful and impressive language, W. E. McCormick gave the 11 o'clock toast "To Our Departed Brothers," calling upon the Elks to show that nobility in their lives, for which the order stands, and not to dampen the world with tears, but bring joy to the hearts of men.

Short talks were made by M. P. Schmidt, exalted ruler of No. 403 of Superior; Clarence B. Miller; Andrew Nelson, who carried the excuses of Governor John A. Johnson; John Dwan of Two Harbors, Mr. Mathewson of Utica, N. Y., lodge No. 33; Past Deputy Grand Exalted Goran of Little Falls lodge No. 770, and Cook Ely, exalted ruler of the Duluth lodge. Mr. Ely read messages of congratulation from Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler W. M. Rebus and from Fred C. Robinson, secretary of the grand lodge of the United States.

The Duluth Elks, who gathered for the ceremonies, were reinforced by a party of at least 100 from Superior. They chartered a special car, marched in the parade and entered heartily into the spirit of the proceedings, carrying congratulations and well-wishes from the lodge across the bay.

The following committee had charge of the laying of the corner stone: John T. Armstead, J. U. Sebenius, M. B. Cullum, John G. Williams, John Panaon.

Following is the building committee: A. E. McManus, chairman, Henry Polz, P. McDonnell, George S. Munsey, J. W. Hilliard, H. W. Andridge, secretary.

PRICES OF IRON WELL MAINTAINED

October Has Not Yet Developed Great Amount of Business.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 15.—The Iron Trade Review today says:

October, usually one of the most active months of the year, has not yet developed a large amount of business, but prices are for the most part being well maintained. There seems to be no immediate prospect of important developments. Southern pig iron stocks have been reduced fully one-half in the Birmingham district during the past six months. Shipments are good and prices firm, but the demand in that section is limited at present and furnaces are not anxious to sell for next year's delivery except at a sharp advance. In St. Louis and Pittsburg there has been increased activity in basic. Malleable also shows some improvement and an Indiana smelter has placed an order for 1,500 tons and an inquiry for 2,500 tons for a Connecticut concern is pending. There is considerable more activity in pig iron in the East and some fair tonnages have been purchased. The United States Steel corporation has taken 7,500 tons of low phosphorus iron and an Eastern steel company has also inquired for 3,000 or 4,000 tons of low phosphorus iron.

The contract for about 12,000 tons of plates and shapes for the building of the second order of 1,000 cars for the Chicago & Alton railroad has been placed with the Illinois Steel company. An order has been entered for a lake freighter at Toledo, but the steel has not been contracted for. A new passenger vessel is also to be built and other orders for lake vessels are under consideration. The contract for the plates for the new battle ships to be built for the government at Brooklyn Navy yard has been awarded to the Central Iron & Steel company and the Carnegie Steel company will furnish the deck plates. About 8,900 tons of material will be required for this vessel.

The McKinley bridge at St. Louis, involving 8,000 tons will be awarded to the Pennsylvania Steel company.

The Pullman company has contracted to build 220 all-steel cars for the Harriman lines Better inquiry is noted for railway equipment and the Illinois Central has purchased 681 steel gondolas from the Cambria Steel company. The Ann Arbor railroad has bought 2,100 tons of standard rails for prompt shipment from the Lackawanna Steel company. The Joliet mills of the Steel corporation are now six weeks behind on track bolt orders and recent orders for track supplies in the Central West have been more numerous than for some time. There is decided improvement in rail shipments by Western railroads, one calling for 5,000 tons for prompt delivery, another for 4,000 and others for smaller tonnages. The leading interests report scattered sales of 15,000 tons to trolley lines and there is great improvement in the demand for light rails.

LUMBER TARIFF IS UNCHANGED

Coast Men Are Surprised That Roads Do Not Charge Maximum.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 15.—Lumbermen were surprised here upon receipt of the lumber tariffs to points in Montana, Idaho and Utah via the Silver Bow gateway, to find that the roads have not charged the maximum differential allowed by the interstate commerce commission in its amended order of Sept. 12. Instead of charging a differential of ten cents on cedar and long timbers, the roads are only quoting a differential of five cents.

Judge Hanford vacated the injunction against the advanced rates and the new tariff becomes effective today. Judge Roger S. Greene was appointed referee to adjudicate disputes between shippers and carriers over rate differences.

PURSUED BY A BEAR.

Three Marquette Boys Chased by Bruin Through Woods.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three boys, Victor and Edwin Johnson and Gustaf Anderson, who live near the North Marquette furnace, were chased by a huge black bear while going to their camp near Pickerel lake a few days ago.

The lads were taking a stove to the camp, trundling it in a wheelbarrow, when their dog, which had been chasing rabbits in the roadside thickets, came running toward them, pursued by the bear. When the animal saw the boys his attention was diverted to them. The boys say that bruin chased them the whole distance between the point of meeting and their cabin, a matter of about two miles, and were only a few feet ahead of him when they barred the cabin door.

ARGUE ON FINE POINT

Attorney Richards Would Restrict Evidence to Date of Note.

Butte & Superior Company Seeks to Show Present Conditions.

The question of the right of the Butte & Superior Copper company to show up the developments on the property subsequent to Feb. 11, 1907, when John McAlpine's subscription was given, will be determined by Judge Ensign in district court. The company depends upon the evidence of ore discoveries on the property after hat date, to prove that when Pat Meany said the Butte & Superior properties were worthless on Feb. 11, 1907, he didn't know what he was talking about.

The attorneys took up the arguments on the question, which was precipitated by Mr. Hollister asking Victor Rakowsky, who was on the stand, "Has there been to your knowledge a valuable body of ore opened up on the Black Rock claim at the 500 or 1,000-foot level since Feb. 11, 1907?" The question has been hanging fire for some days and the attorneys have been preparing themselves for the argument. Attorney Richards argued his side of it this morning and the attorneys for the plaintiff will present their view at the afternoon session.

Mr. Richards argued to the court that since the case depends upon misrepresentations alleged to have been made to Mr. McAlpine on Feb. 11, 1907, as to the condition of the property at that time, there is no occasion to go any farther than that and the value of the properties on that date is the best basis on which to determine whether the representations were true or not. He said that the court recognized that fact when, in the order to produce for inspection, he was restricted to an examination of the books and papers of the company up to that date.

He further held that it would be an injustice to allow the introduction of the testimony, when he had been restricted so in his examination of books and papers and, consequently, in the preparation of his case. He said he has studiously avoided going beyond Feb. 11, 1907, in the testimony of the defense and had not spread the case from facts developing any later than that date. The books of the company were sealed to preclude his examination of entries made later than that date, he and Mr. Savage were not allowed to go down in the mines of the company and he would have no opportunity to combat the testimony the plaintiff might introduce under the changed condition.

In previous arguments on the question, the plaintiff's attorneys contended that they have a right to show development of conditions which actually existed on Feb. 11, 1907. They hold that Mr. Meany testified that there was no copper ore in merchantable quantities on the property and there never could be under the physical and geological conditions. They claim that they have a right to show that ore has been discovered. If it is there now, it has always been there, they say, and they have a right to introduce the evidence in rebuttal of Mr. Meany's testimony.

Victor Rakowsky, the company's engineer, was called to the stand yesterday afternoon and he was on again this morning until the arguments were begun. Mr. Rakowsky had made two trips to the property prior to Feb. 11, 1907. His testimony was in almost direct contradiction of Mr. Meany's testimony. He said the veins on the Black Rock, Niagara, Jersey Blue and Enterprise claims were all promising and were such that copper values might be expected at depth.

A sample of ore from the Black Rock shaft was introduced in evidence under strong objections by Attorney Richards, who objected on the ground that it was taken out recently and consequently had no bearing on the case, which should be confined to the time prior to Feb. 11, 1907. After some argument, the sample was taken in evidence as intending to rebut Mr. Meany's testimony that there could be no copper ores of value on the claim.

The deposition of William Fitzgerald of Butte was read in court yesterday afternoon. Fitzgerald has been engaged in mining operations in Butte for twenty-five years. He said he considered the Butte & Superior properties worth all that the company paid for them and expressed confidence in their future.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Mack-Leones In "On Parole."

"On Parole."

The last performance of "The Devil" was given by Willard Mack, Maude Leone and their company at the Lyceum last evening and this evening they will present Louis Evan Shipman's play of Civil war times, "On Parole." This piece will be the bill at the Lyceum, also for tomorrow night, Saturday matinee and Saturday night.

"On Parole," is said to have been handsomely mounted, the rose garden in the fourth act being classed by the management as a veritable triumph of modern stage-craft. It represents the garden of the Pinckney household on the Rappahannock river a week after the fall of Richmond.

When the curtain rises on the fourth act, the family is waiting to hear the final news as to the success or failure of their idol, Gen. Robert E. Lee, and finally, when the crushing news is brought to them, by a battered Confederate soldier, who stands in the midst of this garden beautiful, and to the music of the birds in the trees overhead, tells the story of a great struggle with a hopeless end, lost past all hope.

The curtain descends with Gen. Pinckney's words re-echoing through a Nation's tears ,"God's will be done."

The promoters intend to ship lumber mostly and bring return cargoes of wool from the Antipodes. The project is said to be in connection with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

ADELAIDE THURSTON

And Her New Play Highly Praised.

All Duluth is interested in the stage career of Adelaide Thurston and her Duluth friends have been interested in her reception this year in her new play, "Mistress Nell, Ye Woman's Hour." The play is highly spoken of, some enthusiastic critics which mention Bernard Shaw and Oscar Wilde for purpose of favorable comparison. Some of the recent criticisms of Miss Thurston and her play are as follows :

"Last night's production, aside from its snap and charm, offered a genuine novelty in another line; the man who wrote the comedy filled the leading role as a foil for Miss Thurston and acted as admirably as he has written.

"To say that Mr. Paulding belongs in the same class as Miss Thurston is giving him high praise as an actor, for the plump little woman with the childish, lisping voice and ingenuous way of peeping upward like some tiny chick, set the audience wild with delight.

"So appreciative were the onlookers at the end of the second act that Miss Thurston was compelled to answer a curtain call and make a speech. It was not as profound an effort as Cicero's oration against Catoline, but she seemed profoundly grateful at the approval shown her work and so, too, did Mr. Paulding, though he modestly kept in the background.

"To sum things up, none but those taking foolish powders will miss the opportunity to see 'The Woman's Hour.'"

"Miss Adelaide Thurston, charming, clever and delightfully pretty, has found a comedy in which she must win both in the provinces and in New York large bouquets of laurels, for the part of Hester Temple, 'The Woman,' fits her like one of her own fetching gowns—and , that's rather neat. An artist to her finger tips, Miss Thurston played the comedy with the touch of a master, and rose to dramatic heights with charming naturalness. She was altogether delightful, and not the least so, when, in response to a dozen curtain calls, she made a bright little speech, in which she told the good play-goers how she loved the dear people of Richmond. Every man in the audience took the speech as a personal compliment and looked consciously pleased."

"Miss Thurston is given full play for her peculiarly sweet and appealing interpretation of the character of Hester Temple which requires the finest shading between innocence and worldly wisdom, while surrounded by harpies who in the guise of friends seek only her money regardless of destruction of her happiness."

Informal Party.

The young women enrolled in the English classes at the Young Women's Christian association will be entertained at an informal party tomorrow evening after the lesson hour. This party will be the first of the year and will be followed during the winter by other informal affairs in their honor.

Children's Party.

FIRST AID.

Putty May Often Be Used by Housekeepers.

The use of putty is, unfortunately, very little understood by the average householder. While it is indispensable to every painter, carpenter, or cabinet-makes, it does not occur to the housekeeper that this substance is of great use about the house. It may be used to fill in almost any sort of dent, hole or crack, and so give the object a smooth, sightly surface, says an exchange.

For floor cracks that are deep and wide it ought to be as stiff as biscuit-dough.

For filling nail holes or knot holes, make a thickish roll, lay it flat upon a smooth board, and cut it into bits. Press a bit into each hole and smooth off with the knife. Always be careful not to smear the putty, and to leave the surface level. Very soft putty may be left a shade higher than the wood, as it will shrink a bit on hardening.

Where there are many small cracks to fill, it pays to use a putty tube. Make it either of stout tinfoil or oiled paper. Double a square to form a cornucopia, fasten it firmly; then fill it half full with soft putty, and snip a tiny piece off the pointed end, and squeeze the putty through it. If the stream is too small, cut off a little more, but be careful not to get it too big.

With care a tube can be refilled many times. Begin at the end of a seam and squeeze the putty into it, moving slowly and keeping the flow even. If the seam is irregular, thicken the roll in the wider places by moving the tube more slowly.

Cooking Hints.

Some one suggests baking the under crust of the fruit pie before filling is put in, thus preventing all sogginess.

Some women sweeten their apple pies with molasses, which is all right for those who prefer the tasts of the apple to that of sweetening.

Colored frosting on cake does not appeal to all tastes and there is something sort of cheap about the pink and yellow frosting, which looks decidedly out of place.

There are those who flavor their doughnuts with vanila. It is all right if the family like it; but, as a rule, doughnuts are better if the flavoring, other than a little nutmeg, is left out.

Rebel at Fashion.

Women sometimes adopt a fashion, or a change of an existing fashion, often a detail of the costume, for no other apparent reason save that it is a change—something new. They have been comfortable for a period with a certain fashion. Then Paris dressmakers, because they must have new details to sell their gowns, issue an edict changing the styles. American dressmakers and manufacturers of women's fine gowns fall in with the money making change and behold—we have a new fashion. Many times it isn't as comfortable or as practicable as the old one, but it is new, therefore the woman must have it.

Time was when she followed a new style blindly and retained it, though she suffered inconvenience from it. But more recently she has asserted her independence and discarded styles which were not comfortable and gone back to the former more practicable ones.

An interesting recent example example of this is the rebellion against the long sleeve. For several seasons the short sleeve was worn by women who found it comfortable, sightly and in every respect a desirable fashion. Paris says this year that the sleeve must be long, even to the back of the hand, and must fit the arm tightly. The American makers of waists hailed this with delight. It means something new. So did the American dressmakers. They advised long sleeves and made them very long. But already the indications are strong that the long sleeve is doomed. Women are finding it uncomfortable after the short seeve, even for evening wear and will undoubtedly revert in the early spring to the short sleeve.

Latest in Towels.

The latest vogue in towels shows a demand for hand embroidery, and some very clever styles are displayed. Chief among the numerous patterns will be found the towel one and one-fourth yards long, each end cut with three deep scallops each scallop neatly notched with miniature notches and finished with a narrow buttonhole stitch. Above the notches will be a neat design of solid embroidery, eyelet or conventional embroidery patterns in a stencil effect, solidly worked. One clever design shows a single row of joined links, each link made with seed stitches. This is easily worked and the goods and pattern look very attractive on a towel. Another simple pattern, frequently seen, is a series of links and squares joined in a straight row above the hemstitched edge. Even fine huckabaack will show exquisite designs, mostly something in a neat blue or yellow color, often a delicate pink, liberally mixed with white dots or outlined circles.

the EVENING STORY

HOW GLADYS FARED

By Ida Shepler.

McGuire languidly watched the smoke curl from his cigar, play in wearing circles about his shapely face and head, then float off to the realms of pipe dreams. Presently a dreamy, satisfied smile stole into his blue eyes. He was so sure of her truth, integrity, and love for himself. Adorable Lora. He was hastening back to her and their wedding day at steamer speed. Too long had he strayed from her heart, her caresses, her perfect arms.

The half closed door of his room let in the sound of voices. The day was warm and languorous. It was Ed Rainey and Tom Larkin. McGuire had run into them somewhere abroad. They were coming home on the same steamer. McGuire had not wanted to listen, but what would you do when people will talk in your hearing.

"Gone, gone bad, isn't he?" Rainey was saying. "Believes that Lora is innocense personified. Doesn't know that she's a good five years or more older than himself. Don't guess that she's out on all there's in it to marry a fortune. Don't know that she's in turn, been sweetheart to all of us, or anything of that affair of hers and Lambert's, does he?"

McGuire's cigar dropped from his parted lips. The red leaped in an ugly flame to his face. They were talking these friends of his, of the girl he was to marry. His right hand opened to slap little Rainey fair in his calumniating mouth. Larkin's answer came slowly, between puffs at his pipe; "McGuire is young. She isn't good enough for him, that's only too true. But, Rainey, the girl was only a little reckless, too much of a flirt. Nothing worse. Lambert is a liar. His word don't go for a filip. The girl is pure if she does like money too well, even to the point of pretending love for it. Then, it may not be pretense. McGuire's a good looker and nobody's fool, if he was born to revel in gold."

"Lora would not marry any man unless he brought her gold," Rainey still persisted. "Oh, you need not worry about shutting the door; McGuire is on the deck. I saw him go up an hour ago."

McGuire fidgeted and worried about has cabin for an hour after. Not a doubt of Lora's love edged itself in his mind. No one but himself had ever possessed her heart. Of that he was sure. Gold! Why, how often she had wished that he would lose his money, that she might the better show her disinterested love for her betrothed.

After a while the plan he would work to confuse these friends came crowding itself into his head. It was neither new or original, but it would do.

Rainey and Larkin found him dull company forthwith. Then its reason came out. He had received a telegram at starting. Hoped it was not so bad as stated. His fortune, to the last dollar, was in jeopardy. He had made some foolish investment. Further he would not talk. Simply moped, smoked and read.

"Rainey, the little sneak, will go straight to Boston and tell Lora," McQuire thought to himself. "Nothing will suit him better. Nothing will suit me better, either."

From New York McQuire wrote a brief letter to Lora:

"My Dearest: I'm viewing the hole where it has all gone down. You no doubt have heard of the Parkinson company crash? The private fortunes they swamped with their own stupendous failure? I have trusted Parkinson as I might have my father, had I one at present. Well, I'm not going to cry over spilled milk. It's done, and can't be helped. I can work for my darling. I have youth, health, strength and love left. You know I studied law. Behold a future Webster in your husband. I cannot wait to see you. Lovingly, Phil."

Rainey was with Lora when she received this epistle. He watched her pretty face turn pale, then flushed. She played nervously with the costly diamond ring McQuire had given her. Rainey, searching her face, asked:

"Of course, it's love in a cottage?"

"Of course it isn't," she flared. "Is it a fact that he was fool enough to trust his immense fortune in the keeping of that company he refers to?"

"Guess he did. He was tolerably frank about the matter. He is playing cheerful to you in this letter. He believes that nothing would separate your love from him."

"What!" she nearly shrieked; "marry a pauper? Bah, he hasn't brains enough to get a first client. Me do kitchen work and make my own clothes for love's sake? Well, hardly. I have an offer of marriage from old Sniff. He's no fool to trust his money to such men at Parkinson. I will accept his offer, and send back poor Phil the engagement ring. It will bring him several hundred dollars. He needs that now worse than he does love."

"But, Lora, Sniff is 75," ventured Rainey.

"Wish it were 95, then I'd the sooner be rid of him."

"When he dies, of course, you will marry me? You know that it is me you have always loved best, Lora. Pity you and I were born honest, but poor."

For an answer, Lora playfully tapped his cheek with McQuire's letter. Then ordered him thence, as she must go to her room and think out its answer.

Phil was nearly a month getting over everything that followed that letter. At the end of that time he was as good as new, and could tranquility unload all those boxes of fine stuff, jewels and what not he had picked up for Lora across the water. There was nobody now to unload them on but his cousin, Gladys, a young lady of Lora's set.

It wasn't fitting for Lora to notice this, but she did see the lovely bracelets Gladys was wearing. "A gift from Cousin Phil," the girl quite innocently answered; and this costly fabric of which this dress is made, and this $100 collar, and the necklace, and so many, many things he gave me. I cannot name them all," she added.

"I never knew that you had a cousin so fond of you. Seems to me I heard your cousin lost all his money." Lora's eyes were wide with surprised inquiry.

"Oh, no." Gladys went on, still more innocently; "Phil never lost his money. Not a cent. He was engaged to some girl. I couldn't get him to tell me who. He brought her so many presents from abroad. Then, because one of the friends he came home with bet him, or something like that, his affianced wouldn't marry him if he were to lose his money, wrote her he had lost all. Phil lost the bet, of course, but wasn't it lucky for me?"

"Lucky for her," Lora gasped when Gladys had gone. "And wasn't I a fool? The whole thing was planned by that despicable Rainey. I see it now."

SOVEREIGNTY OF KANTAO IS ISSUE

New Japanese Minister to China Must Consider It.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Sovereignty in Kantao probably will be one of the first important questions for M. Ijuin, the new Japanese minister to China to handle in Pekin, where he will soon arrive.

Japanase embassy officials express the belief that the reported fight between Japan and Chinese troops is nothing more serious than a conflict between subordinate officers, who do not realize the widespread importance of such acts.

Because of the long continued unsettled condition in Northern Korea, pending a definite determination of the sovereignty there, the reports regarding the trouble were not especially surprising to the embassy officials.

IDENTIFIED AS MISSING ONE.

Mystery Surrounding Murder Near Kenosha is Cleared Up.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 15.—What is thought to be a positive identification of the portion of the body of a man found in a thicket on the Riley farm, south of Kenosha, has been made here, and it is asserted that the man was Frank Clope, a well known Racine citizen, who had been missing about five months. Clope was for twenty-five years one of the leading employes of the Mitchell Wagon company of Racine.

His widow, who aided in the identification, says her husband must have been murdered and insists that at the time of his disappearance he had a large sum of money and a gold watch and chain in his possession. The arrest of Clope's only son, Irving Spencer Clope last April, on the charge of counterfeiting and his subsequent sentence in Milwaukee for the crime are believed by friends to have caused his father to end his own life.

WATCH FOR THE "MARKET BASKET"

Friday Night's Herald Will Have Many Money Saving Hints.

In times like these people want to make their dollars go as far as possible. The Herald's "Market Basket," every Friday night tells you where you can make your dollars do double duty. Watch for it. You will always find opportunities to buy your eatables at a big saving, whether it is for the Sunday dinner or for your wants the coming week.

"Why should I advertise?" said a local retail meat dealer yesterday. "My competitor sells meat for 12½ cents a pound that I will not sell for less than 15 cents. It would be poor judgment for me to advertise my prices alongside of his. I couldn't hold my trade."

The Herald Market Basket tells the consumers where they can buy their eatables to the best advantage, where they can get the best goods at the lowest prices. Every Friday night it contains a large list of reliable dealers who are not afraid to advertise their prices. Don't you think it is about time to break away from that high priced grocer or butcher and trade with those who will give you better values for your money?

Friday night's Market Basket will be full to the brim with good things, money savers, too. Watch for it.

AGGIES TO PLAY ST. THOMAS.

Farmers Go to St. Paul With Several Regulars Out of Game.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seventen husky farmers leave in the morning for St. Paul for the football game Saturday with the St. Thomas college aggregation. There are great gobs of gloom at the agricultural college because of the accident in last Saturday's game with St. Cloud in which Captain and Fullback Nemzek broke his arm. He was one of the two of last year's regulars back. There are only three of last year's subs and Coach Magoffin has had to build up an entire new team this season.

The loss of Nemzek is almost irreparable at this time when the team is so undeveloped. The absence of Nemzek will necessitate several shifts. Haskins, one of the new men, will be shifted to full and an effort to plug up his place at tackle. The tackle positions have been filled by the Haskins brothers. The team wants to see the Minnesota-Nebraska game in order to get a line on work of some of the larger aggregations.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

CUBS ARE CHAMPIONS

Critics Say Chicago Excels Every Department of National Game.

Detroit, Oct. 14.—By defeating Detroit yesterday afternoon, 2 to 0, the Chicago team of the National league retained its title as the champion baseball team of the world.

The present series differed but little from that of last year. In the previous series Detroit managed to get one tie game and then went down in four straight defeats. In the present series Detroit snatched one victory out of the five games played.

The Chicago team, according to the critics, showed superiority in every department of the game in the series as a whole, although this superiority was not so apparent on the day that Detroit batted a victory off Pfeister.

Detroit was handicapped by Schmidt's inability to cut down runners at second and by the failure of her heavy hitting outfield to bat at critical moments when hits meant runs. None of the Detroit pitchers seemed able to consistently puzzle the Chicago batsman, for even Mullin, who pitched Detroit's only victory, was found for seven hits.

Throughout the series Chicago's hitting was opportune. The occasions were rare when with men on bases and runs needed, a Chicago batsman was not there with the needed hit.

The games were singularly free from squabbling and on only two or three occasions were the decisions of the umpires questioned. At no time was it necessary for a player to be sent to the bench to enforce discipline and good order.

The series however, created less interest in the two cities most affected than that of last year, if attendance may be taken as a guide. The paid admissions were only 62,0232 for the five games and the receipts totaled but $94,976 as compared with $101,000 last year. The attendance at the final game yesterday afternoon was but 6,210, with gross receipts of $9,577.50.

Of the money taken in, the players of Chicago, the winning team, get $27,669 and the Detroit players $18,446. The club owners get $19,681 apiece and the National commission $9,497.

When the last man on the Detroit side went out yesterday the pendulum of victory ceased its swing between the two leagues. In 1903 the world's championship emblem went to Boston of the American league; in the succeeding series New York brought it back to the National league. In the following year the Chicago "White Sox" recaptured it for the younger organization. Last year the Chicago "Cubs" brought it back to the National league by defeating Detroit. But this year the pendulum will not swing back, and the flag remains as the proudest exhibit which President Murphy has to display at the West side ball park in Chicago.

Gloom in Detroit.

There is gloom in Detroit. The black stripes which alternated with yellow in the scheme of decoration look like crepe hung out for the death of hopes that are gone. The Detroit Tiger, unlike the one in the Limerick, has no smile on its face. But the crowd on the street corners and in the hotel lobbies murmur pessimistically. There is one bold spirit which does not know the meaning of defeat. This dauntless heart beats in the breast of Manager Hugh Jennings of Detroit. He believes in his team—believes it will yet prove its superiority over all comers—and he does not contemplate past defeats, but looks forward to another year and another result. Jennings was not beaten yesterday until Schmidt's foul in the ninth had found secure and final lodgment in Kling's capacious mitt.

Through the fierce up-hill battle yesterday afternoon he stood on the coaching line off first base, coaching the runners on every move and spurring the batsmen to make their best efforts. No success of the rival team and no failure of his own club dampened his determined cheerfulness. There was never a faltering note in his well-known cry of "Wee-ah" and any slight advantage set him to executing his peculiar war dance.

A feature of the game was Schmidt's recovery of his throwing arm, which had not been working well during any of the previous games. Chicago was not able to steal a base, on him for the first time during the series. He caught Steinfeldt trying second by yards; he handled two bunts in clean fashion retiring his men at first and broke up a pan attempted steal by Evers and Chance.

Overall for the second time pitched a masterly game. Only three hits were made off him and one of these would have been an easy out had the ball not taken an erratic and unexpected bound as it approached Steinfeldt. He was wild at times, giving four bases on balls, but on the other hand, his strike outs numbered ten. One of these strike outs, however, occurred when Rossman made his third swing at a wild pitch, enabling him to reach first safely. Donovan, on the other hand, met with a very vigorous reception in the first inning, when three consecutive hits sent Evers over the plate with the first run of the game.

With the exception of the fifth inning, when a base on balls and Evers' double gave Chicago another run, Donovan managed to keep his hits scattered. It is probable, however, that Chicago would have run up a larger score had it not been for the brilliant work of the Detroit infield. O'Leary's spectacular catch of Tinker's Texas leaguer far back of second base was a feature of the game.

The detailed score:

Are You Only Half Alive?

People with kidney trouble are so weak and exhausted that they are only half alive. Foley's Kidney Remedy makes healthy kidneys, restores lost vitality, and weak, delicate people are restored to health. Refuse any but Foley's. Sold by all druggists.

Cleveland ball fans are awfully peevish about the way Washington waded into them, and thought more of defeating them than they did of taking the other clubs into camp. Washington, as is well known this year, put the Naps out of the running, and now the ball fans down in the "City of Sighs and Tears" say they will ignore the nasty Washington team next year and refuse to patronize any game played with them. A sort of boycott. The fans should get together and form sort of an anti-baseball league, or organize a union for the furtherance of home sports. They didn't want Detroit to win, they were bitter against Washington, and the only team they could tolerate at all was the one that represented Philadelphia. Washington should be willing to get wise, remedy the fault they have of winning from Cleveland, and lose regularly in that city so that the admirers of the Naps could love them.

That next year's American league race will be fullly as exciting as the one this season seems certain.

The chief reason for this belief is that the second division clubs will be able to put up more of a fight than they did during the campaign that came to a close last week.

Boston is liable to be a great factor. This year the Red Sox more than held their own at times, and with the benefit of one year's experience the Hub-bite youngsters are bound to be heard from in 1909. Lord, McConnell, Cravath, Steele, Wood, Burchell and Arellanes made their big league debut this year, and every one of the seven made good. The pitchers mentioned, with Cy Young, who looks able to go on pitching grand ball indefinitely, compose one of the best pitching staffs in the league, while the remainder of the club are good batters and fast fielders. In Lord, Boston has the coming third sacker of the country.

In Hughes, Smith, Johnson, Keeley, Witherup and Burns, providing the last named comes back able and willing to pitch, Washington has a mighty strong bunch of flingers. In fact, there is not one in the country that looks any stronger. In addition, Cantillon has picked up two or three star class A twirlers, "Dolly" Gray of Los Angeles being one.

As for Philadelphia, its chances for 1909 look dubious. Connie Mack has collected an unusually large number of youngsters and he may be able to evolve a first division club. He should be able to place a fast and strong batting infield on the diamond in Davis at first, Eddie Collins at second, Berry at short, and either Jimmy Collins or Baker at third. Strunk looks like a fixture in the outfield but the Athletics seem destined to be weak behind the bat. As for the pitchers, Mack will probably have to depend upon his veterans who look good enough if things break right. Surely Bender, Coombs, Dygert and Vickers should be able to deliver the goods for several years yet.

SECRET WORK FOR WOLVERINES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15.—The Michigan football team started secret practice on Ferry field Tuesday afternoon. After long signal practice the squad was given a short brush with the scrubs, in which only a few of the 'varsity participated. Casey was not out, but Yost expects to have him in Saturday's game. Schultz and Davison are also in fit condition to play against the Catholics.

No changes were made in the line-up today and nothing could be learned of what the squad did in the early part of the afternoon.

From now on until the Pennsy game there will be only two open practices each week. The first will fall on Wednesday, when the regular 'varsity reserve game is played, and open scrimmage will be held Thursday afternoon. During the remaindre of the time Yost will drill the squad on plays which he hopes to use against the Quakers, and there is little danger that any one will see these work before the game on Nov. 14.

Don Green, who was slightly injured in the M. A. C. game, seemed fit as ever at practic etoday. Jim Watkins, who was laid out during the last five minutes of play, was not allowed to participate in the scrimmage.

Curtis Redden, who captured the 1904 eleven, reached Ann Arbor yesterday and will assist Coach Yost until the Ohio State game. After supper the team and coach met in the athletic association office on the nightly quiz on rules and plays, and several new formations were explained.

MAY PLAY EAU CLAIRE

Arrangements Are Being Made for Game in November.

Duluth to Play St. Cloud Saturday With Badly Crippled Team.

The strong Eau Claire football team, three times champions of Wisconsin, and one of the fastest teams in the Middle West, may be brought to Duluth about the middle of November for a game with the Centrals.

Written, telegraphic and telephone communication is still keeping the managers busy trying to prove to the Minneapolis schools that Duluth is not nearly so strong as reputed, and trying to induce them to give the Centrals a chance. Prospects are not very roseate at the present time, but the managers expect that by keeping persistently after the Minneapolis schools a game will be finally arranged. Most of the attention is now being bestowed on the North Side crowd, Central having been given up as hopeless some time ago. It is expected that the team will go to Minneapolis Nov. 21 to play the North aggregation and that on the same date the boys will see the big game between Carlisle and Minnesota.

Just at present things look bad for the game with St. Cloud Saturday. Quinn, Crawford, Helmer and McFarlane are out of the game, and although some hope is held out that Crawford may be able to get into the game by Saturay it is known that the other three men will not be in the game for some time, and in McFarlane's case not at all.

Last night only seven regulars were out for practice, and they went through their work in a half-hearted manner, due to the fact, no doubt, that their teammates were out of the game. Coach Colton has hopes, however.

MAY YET KEEP FIGHT CLUBS

Milwaukee Sports Are Talking Matter Over With Governor.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Though Governor Davidson of the state of Wisconsin has issued stringent orders that all boxing contests be stopped in the state, there is a remote possibility of the game being kept alive in Milwaukee. A body of Milwaukee's most prominent business men—men who hold heavy interests in the Cream City and who are powers in a political way—are holding a conference with the governor at Madison in the hope of convincing him that his move is a sad blow to the business interests of the city of Milwaukee.

This body will attempt to show that in the nine years that boxing has been conducted in the Brewery City never once has there been a question raised to the effect that the game was not conducted in the proper way.

Milwaukee is in gloom and men who seldom frequent pugilistic encounters join the fans in declaring that the killing of the game there means a big business loss.

The club has not officially called off the bout and will not do so until the body that went to Madison to interview the governor returns.

TO TRY THE TURF IN OLD ENGLAND

James R. Keene Will Send Ten Horses Across Pond Saturday.

New York, Oct. 15.—James R. Keene yesterday announced that he had decided to send the champion horse of America, Colin, the 3-year-old and unbeaten winner of fifteen races in his two years on the turf, to England, at a time that remains to be fixed, this fall. A section of Mr. Keene's racing stable will be shipped abroad on Saturday next on the Atlantic transport line steamer Minnehaha, and it is probable that Colin will be among the number then sent to England.

Ballot, 4-year-old, and unbeaten in his five races of this season, the suburban handicap among them, will go abroad with Colin, and a number of other horses, bringing the Keene shipment up to about ten head. The horses aside from Ballot and Colin have not been selected yet. Celt, an unbeaten 3-year-old, Mr. Keene said, would remain in America.

THE MANAGERS DISCUSS SERIES

Frank and Hughey Both Throw Bouquets at One Another.

Detroit, Oct. 15.—Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago world's champions, said yesterday after the game: "I want to say for the Detroit club that they played clean baseball; they played fast baseball, and they played it like gentlemen and sportsmen. I cannot say too much in praise of their sportsmanship and courtesy. Throughout the entire series there was not even a small dispute between the two teams, the friendliest feeling existing during these five days of intense rivalry. Manager Jennings has a great team, but I think the Chicago team is greater. Our team is the greatest that I ever saw on a baseball field. I firmly believe that no team in the world could have beaten us with the kind of ball we played during the world's championship series."

Hugh Jennings, manager of the American league champions, said: "We were beaten because the Chicago team played better ball. I freely admit that our opponents played better baseball than we did. But I will not admit that they are a better team. Detroit did not play the game they are capable of. There was not the old time Detroit dash and ginger to their work, and they did not measure to their full ability, either at the plate or in the field."

BALL WRITERS FORM SOCIETY

Scribes Will Try to Control Baseball Press Boxes.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 15.—Baseball writers connected with the leading daily papers of every major league city excepting Brooklyn, met here yesterday prior to the closing game of the world's series and formed an organization, to be known as the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Its objects are to promote uniformity in scoring methods, to act in conjunction with the leagues in rules and revision suggestions, so as to gain control of baseball press boxes, the conduct of which is a sore spot with newspaper men all over the country.

The association completed organization, Joe S. Jackson of Detroit being elected president; I. E. Sanborn of Chicago, secretary, and T. H. Murnane of Boston, treasurer.

A committee on constitution was appointed, consisting of Hugh Fullerton of Chicago, William G. Weart of Philadelphia and Henry P. Edwards of Cleveland. They will report at the next meeting, probably at the major leagues' gathering in New York, when the association will confer with the two major bodies.

EVERYBODY IS VERY HAPPY

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Exultant over the victory in winning the world's championship, the Chicago team of the National league arrived home from Detroit early today and was met at the station by an enthusiastic crowd. The players, who were accompanied by members of the national commission, reported having met with ovations wherever the train stopped on the way home.

When the train pulled into the station here a mob of baseball enthusiasts rushed through the gates and carried a "welcome home," to the individual players. Some of the players announced their intention of preparing for flashing and hunting trips, although they are scheduled for an exhibition game to be played here with the Detroit team on Sunday. In this game the players will appear as individuals and not as clubs.

AN EXHIBITION GAME SUNDAY

Chicago and Detroit to Clash for Players' Benefit.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The Chicago team expects to add a material sum to its earnings by an exhibition game to be played on the Chicago grounds Sunday with the Detroits. President Murphy has announced that all the receipts will be destributed among the players.

President Murphy declares the season one of the most successful financially in the history of the National league. The race for the league pennant was by far the most interesting in which a Chicago club has participated and the finish was even more exciting than the famous neck-an-neck race of the Boston and Baltimore clubs in 1897. The attendance during the closing days of the season on the Chicago grounds tested the capacity of the park almost daily.

CITE HEALEY IN KEEFE JOB CHARGE

Democrats Quote Firemen's President to Show Roosevelt Offered Position.

New York, Oct. 15.—The Democratic national committee has issued a statement quoting Timothy Healey, president of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, as authority for the allegation that Daniel J. Keefe had been promised by President Roosevelt, the appointment as commissioner general of immigration in return for the Detroit labor leader's support of Taft. The national committee had promised to make known its informant if the charge was denied, as it has been, both by Keefe and at the White House.

"I was in Washington Wednesday of last week on a matter dealing with our organization, which brought me in contact with an official of high standing in the government service. He said to me:

"'Dan Keefe has been selected for commissioner general of immigration.'

"'Is that so,' I said.

"'Yes; the job is his,' he replied.

"I asked him how he knew and he told me that his information came from a member of the president's cabinet, and knew what he was talking about.

"This information was not given to me in a confidential manner, but I will not mention my informant's name, as it is plain what would happen to him if I gave out his name.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that the statement that the president offered Keefe the position, and that Keefe agreed to accept, is true. Perhaps the offer was not made at the conference on Oct. 3 last, but I believe it has been made."

MAN AND GIRL SHOT TO DEATH

Shenandoah, Ia., Oct. 15.—Harvey Bright, 24, is dead, and Miss Cook, 15, his sweetheart, is fatally wounded as the result of what is believed to have been a murder and suicide by Bright.

The shooting occurred at the Bright home when nobody but the young man and Miss Cook were in the house. Shots were heard by neighbors, who went to the Bright home to investigate. They found a rear bed room barricaded and forced the door open. On the floor lay Bright with a bullet hole in his temple and Miss Cook shot through the eye. Near Bright's form was a repeating rifle with two empty shells in the magazine.

What led up to the shooting is not known, but is is stated that the couple had quarreled over Bright's attentions to another girl.

TELLS FARMERS ABOUT PANICS

Hebron, Neb., Oct. 15.—The second day's tour of Nebraska by William J. Bryan was brought to a close at this place. Twenty-two speeches were made during the day by the Democratic candidate, varying in duration from ten minutes to one hour. It was by far the most enthusiastic day for Mr. Bryan during the trip. With the conclusion of his work Mr. Bryan expressed himself as being greatly pleased with his reception in his home state during the day, saying that his audiences were large and more enthusiastic than during any other campaign.

Most of the audiences were composed of farmers, with a sprinkling of laboring men at Grand Island, Kearney and Hastings. Aside from the guarantee of bank deposits he spoke to the farmers in regard to panics, saying that there were more business failures during the first nine months of this year than there were in the first nine months of 1893, 1894, 1895 or 1896. He said that the Republican party was not responsible for good crops or high prices, and quoted the prices of farm products in Canada and abroad in support of his contention. In speaking of the president, interfering with the election, in his Hebron speech, he said:

"I happen to be the Democratic candidate; I do not mean to say that I ought to have been nominated, but I mean to say that it was the wish of the Democrats that I should be nominated and I stand as the representative of the Democratic party.

"My nomination came from the people, for I had no president with an army of officeholders to help me get the nomination. I do not envy my opponent merely because he had so influential a backer. I would rather have my nomination than his. But we are the candidates before you. He has been nominated on the theory that he is of my size and I believe he is. He has been nominated on the theory that he was competent to conduct his own campaign, and I pay him a higher compliment when I presume that he is able to do so than does the president when he assumes Taft is not able to do so. I do not approve of the action of the president in using prestige, the influence of patronage of his high office to dictate the nomination of the Republican candidate, I do not approve of the action of the president by using the office as if it were a party asset for a part of the people. I ask no favors at his hands. All I ask is that he stand off and let Mr. Taft and me fight it out."

New York, Oct. 15.—It is given out—where from, never mind, but just ask any of the national Democratic committeemen—that the following is an absolutely accurate statement showing just where Railroad Magnate E. H. Harriman got his cash and just how much he got "per," after his now famous heart-to-heart talk with President Roosevelt when the latter asked him to scrape up some Republican campaign funds. This was in 1904, after Roosevelt had written the letter to Harriman that contained this paragraph that is now being widely quoted by the Democrats in their campaign:

"You and I are practical men, and you are on the ground and know the conditions better than I do. If you think there is any danger of your visit to me causing trouble, or if you think there is nothing special I should be informed about, or no matter in which I could give aid, why of course give up the visit for the time being, and (then a few weeks hence, before I write my message, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain government matters not connected with the campaign."

BIG DEMAND FOR FOOD

From Europe if the Cloud Continues to Grow.

England's Policy is Felt to be Best Peace Guarantee.

New York, Oct. 15.—The European crisis the topic of topics and conversation develops all shades of opinion as to the outcome. The first effects are the closing out of speculative accounts in stocks upon the European exchanges and that has to a marked degree caused a decline in security prices abroad and here as well, and has at the same time made the prices of foreign exchange in this country much stronger.

If prospects continue warlike the same effects will be felt next week, but before the close of the week, under these conditions, this country will begin to feel a strong European demand for breadstuffs and all other classes of substantial food articles.

European governments will not wait for the moving of large armies to commence their preparations for war, but once convinced that hostilities are imminent they will be quick to provide both food and clothing.

Munitions of war are no doubt stored in plentiful supply within reach of each of the interested powers, but perishable articles such as compose the bulk of the provisions for food cannot be held in quantities sufficient to do for even the shortest of campaigns.

Immediate orders to this country will come if this war scare lasts a week longer and foreign exchange will soon sell lower than ever under such circumstances.

No one, even for business advantage, desires war, but if war should involve any of the great powers of Europe the markets of America would be humming with business inside of the next sixty days.

England's prompt action in sending a powerful squadron of battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines to the Aegean sea makes plain to all that no chances are to be taken as to the safety of Constantinople and the Dardanelles.

Blow for Germany.

The supremacy of the Young Turks and the granting of the new constitution for Turkey by the sultan ended for the period the dominant diplomatic influence of Germany at the Turkish court and brought the government and the people of Turkey into concord and co-operation with British policies.

English statesmen for centuries have made their country the receiver for bankrupt monarchs and disorganized empires and kingdoms. The costs of such receiverships are always borne by those who need legal protection from importunate demands.

England still guards the receiverships of India which Clive, Hastings, Wellesley and their long line of able successors induced the rulers of India to create or submit to. The khedive of Egypt feels his throne more secure with England camping on the Nile and patrolling the Mediterranean. Manuel in Portugal, Alfonso in Spain, Victor Emmanuel in Italy are not in the receivership list, but are the wards of England, and they know their states are maintained against internal revolution and their territories kept intact from foreign spoliation by the watchful care and guard of England.

England has no objection to a string of semi-independent principalities on the Danube. A union of those principalities creating an anti-German barrier of strength and power would not be objectionable to England, as it would shut out the Kaiser from the Adriatic and the Black Seas.

England has no aggressive policy to display or conceal as to Germany, but has no wish to encourage extension of German territory in Europe.

It is fortunate for England that this crisis has come before the demise of Francis Joseph, for before this business is concluded the status of the Balkan states and those bordering the Adriatic will be so firmly established that even a shattering of the Austro-Hungarian empire will not enable the Kaiser to reach, at any point, the shores of what is really an English lake.

England stands ready for her receivership of Turkey, and Turkey will welcome her, glad to be saved from her enemies. Christians and Moslems alike in the Orient prefer her to other European nations, and even her bitterest foe and most brilliant defender, Ireland, would not hesitate if compelled to choose between King Edward and the Kaiser.

The European banks are so strongly fortified in cash that no great financial stringency is even hinted at, however acute the crisis. The Bank of England reports the greatest percentage of reserve for the corresponding week for very many years, with the single exception of 1904.

Interesting Statistics.

It is instructive to compare the gold holdings of the Bank of France of this week with the figures of other years, so I append a few that serve for information:

Gold Holdings—1903, 2,449,937,295 francs; 1904, 2,623,263,758 francs; 1905, 2,939,906,618 francs; 1906, 2,825,145,964 francs; 1908, 3,256,379,105 francs.

If war comes to Europe, much of this gold will come to America for supplies. If peace happily prevails millions of those francs will be sent for our securities and our country will receive the stimulus and benefit of such investments.

Some information derived from that state of careful financiers, shrewd manufacturers, and successful insurance companies, Connecticut, gives light upon certain features of the financial depression not obtainable in market or trade reports. I was told that one of the insurance companies of that state which issues life insurance policies with guarantee of loan after certain length of term was so heavily called upon by its policy holders during the first six months of the troublous time that the several millions of dollars which it has assigned for such use were put out almost to the limit. It was also stated that few of those loans had been repaid or reduced since the revival of trade had set in. On the other hand it was stated that the interests on loans of all classes, including those on realty, had never been so promptly paid as in the past twelve months and the company never had such a clear and clean sheet upon such collections as at this time.

These facts, together with the known shrinkage of deposits in the savings banks, would indicate that our people have been drawing heavily against the savings of prior years, but so far have been able to meet current obligations in a far greater degree than usual under such adverse conditions.

They have preserved their credit and held their property by slow consumption of their savings. It is creditable to their integrity but is destructive of the purchasing power of the masses. Who is responsible for the disaster?

NEW COMPANY WILL RUN PILLSBURY MILLS.

The financial plan calls for distribution of shares in the new company on a basis of holding in the old.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Duluth testimony:

Edward J. Hoppman, mineralogist, living at 422 First street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "The best proof of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills that I can give is that since using this remedy for a bad attack of kidney trouble, some six years ago, I have not found it necessary to use any medicine at all for my kidneys. At the time when I began using them I suffered from sharp aching pains in the back and loins. The kidney secretions were discolored and the trouble told on my general health. Doan's Kidney Pills brought prompt relief and a final cure, and the permanence of the results thoroughly proved that this remedy can be depended upon in such cases."

SAID HE WAS DEAD.

Youth Informed Newspapers of His Sudden Taking Off.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Sunday night, Harold H. Ewing, son of Judge Ewing, visited local newspaper offices, and in deepest grief announced that "Harold Ewing" was dead.

With sobs in his trembling voice, and with his eyes swimming in tears, the young man described how he had heard the fatal shot and rushed into the room where the young man—who was he himself—lay with a smoking pistol in his grasp, gasping his life away.

Now comes Harold Ewing and announces that he is not dead. He insists that he has not been dead, and that he never thought that he was dead. He offers no explanation for his freakish conduct, but merely insists that he has never died, and that he is now alive.

CHIEF LETS FIRE EAT OWN HOUSES

Suffers $5,000 Loss in Order to Save Others' Property.

Dallas, S. D., Oct. 14.—Registration for Tripp county land was cut down yesterday on account of the fire. The total was 2,565 making a grand total from the period of 84,554. At Oneil, Neb., the registration was 4,137; total for the period, 37,345.

The fire was subdued after three residences were burned. The chief of police, Ray Garner, owned two of the residences, but he let them burn and led the fight against the main fire. His loss was about $5,600.

Discontent.

When discontent seizes upon the mind, it is like the deadly cancer, reaching out with its tentacles for sound flesh to feed upon. The caustic of self-arraignment must be unsparingly used, and the salve of commonsense liberally applied. As a preventive, we suggest the daily use of golden grain belt beer, which, if taken regularly at mealtime, will contribute to the health of both body and mind. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

PUTS CANDIDATES ON RECORD, ON RESOURCES.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Every candidate for congress in the country is asked in notices sent out by the Conservation League of America to declare himself on a proposition made by the league for the conservation of natural resources. It is the intention to make public the result of the inquiry. The league, of which President Roosevelt is honorary president, and Taft and Bryan honorary vice presidents, was organized to promote the preservation of the forests, irrigation of arid lands, reclamation of overflown swamp lands and the prevention of soil and mineral waste. Active President Walter L. Fisher says some of the congressional candidates have already telegraphed their promise to support the plans.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 14.—The annual meeting of the American Shipbuilding company was held Wednesday. There was but one change in the personnel of the directors elected. W. C. Carpenter was elected to succeed Frank W. Hart of Cleveland.

The annual statement shows that net earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, were considerably reduced from the previous year, but they were still large enough to make a very comfortable showing for the company. The feature of the report was the strong cash showing, the two cash items on hand and due from bonds amounting to $1,792,091.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON; OCT. 18. 2 Samuel 9:1-13: David's Kindness to Jonathan's Son.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

THE CONNECTION.

Having placed the ark, containing the tables of stone on which were inscribed the ten commandments, the golden pot of memorial manna and the rod of Aaron that budded in the presence of his foes, in the sacred tent, David addressed himself to the problems of state and religion. He was always a dreamer, but he was also a doer. The deeper he got into his career, the larger and nobler grew his soul. He had probably been on the throne twenty years or more, when he thought of an unfulfilled promise to his beloved friend Jonathan and he felt an ungratified passion.

THE LESSON.

I.

Aggressive Love, 1-5.

"And David said, Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul, that I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake? And there was of the house of Saul a servant whose name was Ziba, and they called him unto David; and the king said unto him, Art thou Ziba? And he said, Thy servant is he. And the king said, Is there not yet any of the house of Saul, that I may show the kindness of God unto him? And Ziba said unto the king, Jonathan hath yet a son, who is lame of his feet. And the king said unto him, Where is he? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he is in the house of Machir the son of Ammiel, in Lo-debar. Then king David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir the son of Ammiel, from Lo-debar."

1. Religion and Kindness.

It seems strange that David had not made this inquiry before, if he was so anxious to show kindness to the house of Jonathan, for he had been on the throne perhaps twenty-two years, and he seems to have known about this lame son of Jonathan, who was five years old when David first became king. But let us remember the terrific rush of business and the pressing cares of state that absorbed and almost prostrated the noble king. It was when he got to putting the ark in its place and writing hymns and arranging the choral services of worship and dreaming of building a temple for God that his heart began to ache with the sacred friendship of long ago. Then he started the search for some one to show special kindness to. More than that, it was "the kindness of God," for it was in God's name and with God as a witness, that he made the vow to Jonathan, which he now sought to fulfill, and the more he thought of God the more he must be true to promises made in God's name.

2. Vows. It was a right vow, made to Jonathan that day when the lad shot the arrows and the two friends separated, that David should show kindness to his friend's house. And it was right that the vow be kept.

3. Great Heart. That was David. His glowing nature was ardent in the search. He went at it as if it were his last chance, as if he were doing it for Jonathan himself, that dear brother of his heart. It was gratitude seeking to show itself. In their lifetime Jonathan had done more for him than he could ever repay—had loved him, had gladly given over to him the succession to the throne, had defended him against his demented father and been brutally treated for it. Now David had a chance to even up and he was eager to do it. He searched. He did not wait to be sought. He entered into the condition of that young man, as if it was Jonathan in distress. He was not content till he had found the unfortunate scion of the fallen family and brought him to his own city. His lameness, his residence over there on the east side of Jordan among strangers distressed David all the more, for it was dear Jonathan's son.

II.

Provident Love, 6-8.

"And Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, came unto David, and fell on his face, and did obeisance. And David said, Mephibosheth. And he answered, Behold, thy servant! And David said unto him, Fear not; for I will surely show thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake, and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy father; and thou shalt eat bread at my table continually. And he did obeisance, and said, What is thy servant, that thou shouldest look upon such a dead dog as I am?"

1. The touching sight.

There stood the man—lame in both feet, for his nurse had dropped him, when he was a babe and crippled him for life; alarmed, for he had been living in a nest of insubordinates who had painted Saul black to him and besides Saul's family had suffered for his cruelty to the inoffensive Gibeonites; disgraced in family and deprived of property; inoffensive himself, for there was a strain of his father's simplicity in him which amounted to credulity; noble and appreciative, in spite of his wrecked estate, for he was affectionate and high minded, sympathetic and unselfish. I think you could have seen the tears in David's eyes as he talked.

2. The provident arrangement.

Perhaps if he had been strong in body, David would not have exempted him from all care and labor. But his arrangements were perfected. He did several things for him—received him as Jonathan's son, doing for him the same; restored to him his destrained family estates and privileges, making him official head of the house of Gaul, now restored to an honorable level; gave him a position at court and a place at the king's own table, where eating food together bound them in a compact of friendship; appointed a business manager to look after his property and relieve him of all care.

III.

The Far-reaching Plan. 9-13.

"Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant, and said unto him, All that pertained to Saul and to all his house have I given unto thy master's son. And thou shalt till the land for him, thou, and thy sons, and thy servants; and thou shalt bring in the fruits, that thy master's son may have bread to eat; but Mephibosheth, thy master's son, shall eat bread alway at my table. Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants. Then said Ziba unto the king, According to all that my lord the king commandeth his servant, so shall thy servant do. As for Mephibosheth, said the king, he shall eat at my table, as one of the king's sons. And Mephibosheth had a young son whose name was Mica. And all that dwelt in the house of Ziba were servants unto Mephibosheth. So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem; for he did eat continually at the king's table; and he was lame in both his feet."

1. Friendship Satisfied.

It was an elaborate arrangement. The vast estates of Saul had probably been in David's hands—now they belong to Mephibosheth. The family had been under ban—now it is restored. A royal retinue of servants would have attended him had Jonathan been king—now he has the servants, at the head of whom is the shrewd Ziba, with his own fifteen sons and his twenty servants, now become the servants of David's honored protege and guest. A fine income was provided, but it came to the children, for the father did not need it, as he lived in comfort and content in the king's palace, a member of his household.

2. Good politics also.

It was wise as well as good in David. That man Zibt was not an insignificant accession. He was diplomatic and full of resources, as he shows in his conversation with David and in the previous care he had given to his lame lord. It was quite wise to bring this grandson of Saul over to Jerusalem away from the crowd of plotters, who might want to make him the center of a revolution some day. The name that David made for himself among all the adherents of Saul and the more northern and less devoted tribes was of great value to him. But above all, his motive was the motive of love and above all his satisfaction was the unselfish enjoyment of the unfortunate man's joys and comforts. It was so different from the way Oriental rulers were in the habit of treating the families of their enemies that it marked a new era in the history of kings.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

When two men eat bread together this is the desert sacrament, the sign and seal of a covenant of friendship, a league for mutual protection. This is so even if they eat but once. Had Daniel only on one occasion invited Mephibosbeth to sit and eat with him he would thenceforth have been known as the king's friend, to injure whom would be to provoke the monarch's vengeance. But a place continually at the royal table declared a relationship of a deeper and stronger kind. He who eats continually at an Arab's board has passed the condition of guest or friend and is acknowledged with the family in all its manifest interests.—Ewing.

David remembered. He hunted up a chance to thank in some way any one belonging to his friend, Jonathan. Some of you older men know a young fellow who is working hard against heavy odds today. Years ago his father gave you a lift. Had you forgotten? Well, touch up your memory! Go to that boy and give him a lift. "I thought a great deal of your father, and I believe in you," said a business man who gave a young fellow a $10,000-lift at the right time. Another, in rendering aid to a young friend, said, heartily: "I'm glad to do it. I've been in the same box myself more than once, and was helped out by some one else. I believe in dividends." And he was ready to divide with his friend the substantial kindness he remembered as having come to him from others.—Howard.

POINTS TO IMPRESS.

1. That true religion makes the heart tender towards the unfortunate.

2. That faith in God's promises to us makes us faithful to our promises to man.

3. That love always looks ahead and provides.

4. That every man needs a friend more than a fortune.

5. That Jesus is our Jonathan for whose sake we find favor with God.

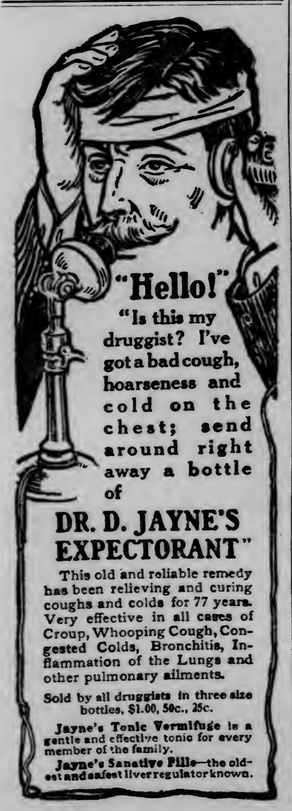

6. That the exalted privileges of Jonathan's son were small by the side of ours.

PLAYWRIGHT LOUD FOR BRYAN CAUSE

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Buffalo Democrats are congratulating themselves on having secured Playwright Augustus Thomas for a Bryan espousal address. It was the first campaign speech of the dramatist, and it was a masterpiece. He discussed the issues with the ability and eloquence expected of him, and his dissection of the tariff question was a brilliant example of that gift which can infuse life into facts and figures, and clothe a great public issue with the garb of human interest. The speech was particularly striking in its breadth of treatment, showing how the high protection fallacies are connected, not only with trust abuses, but with many other evils.

"PIECE" TAFT PUT IN PAPER

About Foraker Thirty Years Ago Caused Their Enimity.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 15.—Take awny the oil can. Bury the big stick. Neither of these has to do with the enmity existing between Joseph B. Foraker and William H. Taft.

The real cause of the disturbance dates back some thirty years. It was a personal quarrel and it had nothing to do with politics.

When Taft was in Kansas City recently a schoolboy friend was here also. The talk rifted around to the Taft-Foraker squabbie and the old friend told the following story:

"In his younger days Taft was a reporter on a Cincinnati paper. At the time the incident occurred he had the courts as a regular assignment. One day, when Foraker was on the bench and Taft was reporting the trial, his legal mind saw a thing or two that he did not like. So, in his paper, he handed out a few verbal uppercuts directed toward the person and dignity of one Foraker.

"Disregarding the present-day expedient of summoning the reporter for contempt of court, Foraker called Taft on the telephone. This conversation ensued:

"'Did you write the blank story?'

"'I did.'

"'If you were here I would slap your face.'

"'How long will you be there? I'll bring the face right over.'

"As Taft was a husky young person and Foraker weighed in too light to get in the championship class, the bout never was pulled off."

But from that day to this, according to the narrator, there never has been anything but bad blood between the two men.

The Cincinnati man who tells this vouches for it, and a Kansas City lawyer vouches for the Cincinnati man. Maybe it's true.

THE RANGE TOUR ENDS

Most Notable Campaign Trip in History of State.

Governor Will Carry the County by Largely Increased Plurality.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

When the Johnson special pulled into the Duluth union depot last evening, it marked the end of the most notable tour ever made by a candidate for any office in this state.

Duluthians last evening saw the kind of a reception the governor received all over the range, only the Duluth reception was on a little bigger scale.

Those who took the trip bring back a kaleidoscope picture in their minds of cheering crowds, brass bands, and shouts for "our governor."

"Who is this fellow Jacobson that is running against our governor?" seems to be the attitude of the ranges, and it was expressed in just these words by a citizen at Chisholm. The railroad men at Proctor met the governor and liked him. The miners in the range towns measured him up, and found he answered all requirements. The school children all over the ranges were his warm friends. The settlers down the line of the Iron Range road, who were brought out by Lawrence Darby of Two Harbors, turned out to meet the governor, and they liked him. At Two Harbors, nearly every resident of the village must have been at the depot, and as many of town as could get into the big roller skating rink, piled in to hear the governor speak.

Will the governor carry St. Louis county? Will the sun rise tomorrow morning over Lake Superior?

Every meeting held by the governor on the ranges this year was larger than the corresponding meeting two years ago, and where the hall permitted it was from two to ten times larger. Tower, Ely and Chisholm were the only important towns on the range that did not give Johnson a plurality two years ago. If the governor doesn't carry all three of these towns this year, it will be because some entirely unforseen event happens between now and election time.

The governor's plurality two years ago in St. Louis county was about 1,500. Unless all political signs fail, and unless all the enthusiasm shown by the people of the range towns and Duluth means nothing, his plurality in this county this year, will far exceed that of two years ago. He found himself right at home in St. Louis county, with not an enemy in sight. He was "our governor," not "the governor" or "Governor Johnson" but "our governor."

Enjoyable Trip.

The trip was a most enjoyable one in every way. C. B. Gilbert, trainmaster of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, took the party over the Mesaba ranges, with George Fletcher and William Green as engineers, and A. Keetz and Fred Davidson as conductors. If there was anything they didn't do for the comfort and convenience of the party, nobody remembers what it was. On the Iron Range road, R. W. Boston acted as conductor and pilot for the trip, with D. J. Hayes as engineer. They were no less zealous than the Missabe road's employes, and showed how a special train should be handled, keeping it on schedule to the minute. Lawrence Claffy had charge of the political end of the trip down the line of the Iron Range road, having arranged all the meetings and stops. Mr. Claffy is well described as a "live wire." He is one of the most enthusiastic Johnson boomers in the state, and he seems to know every man, woman and child along the line of the road on which he is employed as an engineer.

At Two Harbors, Harris Bennett, one of the members of the party, entertained the train crews at a dinner, in appreciation of the good service given.

"Paddy" McDonnell, as usual, was the life of the party, next to the governor himself, and he particularly distinguished himself with his speech from the rear end of the train at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, while Tower was peacefully sleeping under the rays of the rising sun.

"Paddy" was introduced to a herd of cattle by the governor himself, and allowed to give free vent to the bottled up eloquence which had been striving for utterance from the time the train left the union depot. His "few corroboratory remarks" were received in attentive silence by the cows, and with shouts of laughter by the members of the party.

When the train arrived in Duluth, the governor's party was met by Mr. McDonnell's auto, and the governor was taken to the Armory in it. He spent the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Weiss, and left this morning for the western part of the state.

Only one unfortunate incident happened on the trip. A crowd of 100 people had gathered on the platform at Knife River, hoping to hear the governor speak, and the train passed through without stopping. When the governor heard of it, he wanted the train to run back to the depot, but it was pointed out to him that if it did, he would be late for the Duluth meeting, and would probably keep several thousand people waiting. The train crew was under instructions to arrive in Duluth at a certain hour, and they realized they could not do it and stop at Knife River. No one regretted it more than the governor and those in charge of the party, but it was unavoidable.

To Digest the Food

Bile in the intestines is as important to digestion as are the gastric juices in the stomach and bile is only supplied when the liver is in active condition.

The serious and chronic forms of indigestion are cured by Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills because of their influence on the liver, causing a good flow of bile to aid digestion and keep the bowels regular, thereby preventing fermentation of the food, the formation of gas and all the disagreeable symptoms of indigestion.

Long standing cases of chronic indigestion yield to Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills after all else has failed.

Mr. P. W. Bigley, Murraysville, W. Va., writes: "For sixteen years I suffered from indigestion and liver trouble and consulted several physicians in vain. Two boxes of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills did more for me than all the medicines I ever used. My mother used them with equally good results."

AUTUMN LEAF CRAZE.

In the warm sunshine of a lingering Indian summer, the gathering-autumn-leaves microbe is flourishing to beat the band.

There is nothing so effective as days like these to foster the autumn-leaves germ and the craze is at its height now.

The school children and their teachers are wandering through the parks and over the hills and far away every day after school, in search of the picturesquely-tinted leaves, and Lincoln park is a favorite place for them to gather.

There is not a room in the Lincoln school which has not been decorated for the past ten days with the most glorious autumnal colors, corraled for the most part in the park hard by.

The warm weather and the lure of the leave-gathering lust is making the park as popular as it was during the sure-enough summer months.

DULUTH ON THE ROUTE

Glidden Tour May Include This City Next Year.

"Scout" Car Makes Fast Run From Twin Cities.

One of the most remarkable reliability runs ever pulled off in the Northwest was finished in Duluth last evening, when the Studebaker "Scout" car, a companion to the army dispatch car, and having a record of 36,000 miles to its credit, pulled in at the Spalding hotel, having established a record of 7 hours and 32 minutes from Minneapolis to Duluth.

The "Scout" car contained Donald J. McIntosh, a Studebaker driver of considerable reputation; Dr. C. E. Dutton, chairman of the tours and contests committee of the Minneapolis Automobile club; F. L. Estey of the Studebaker company, and R. E. Tucker, automobile editor of the Minneapolis Tribune. Dr. Dutton was the official timer of the run and kept an accurate log of the trip, noting all stops for oil and gasoline.

The primary idea of the run was to investigate the adaptability of the Minneapolis-Duluth route for use in the Glidden tour next summer. Mr. Estey of the Studebaker company, who has had the "Scout" car in twenty-eight different state on various expeditions, has been asked to keep his eyes open for good routes for the Glidden tour, and he will make a report to the touring committee of the A. A. A. at Buffalo, strongly recommending that the tour of 1909 include the Twin Cities and Duluth.

About the best stretch of roads found on the way was for about forty miles into Duluth. Here the conditions were ideal for motoring, and this stretch of good roads will be a strong argument in favor of bringing the Glidden tour north next year.

Nearer the Twin Cities and at the beginning of the run all sorts of road conditions were found. Sandy roads predominated, and the hills and sand combined made about as grievous road conditions as could be put up to any car.

N. S. Gotshall, state agent for the Studebaker company, said, in speaking of the run:

"Of course, the average of nearly twenty-five miles an hour was remarkable over roads such as we found, but we do not take the pride in the speed part of the performance of the cars as we do in the demonstration of the absolute reliability."

Mr. Gotshall's car, a Studebaker "30" roadster, which acted as pilot car for the run yesterday, also came through without a single adjustment. Both cars created considerable interest on the streets today.

BAIRD GUILTY OF LAND FRAUD

The Federal Jury Finds Against Attorney on Six Counts.

Omaha, Nebr., Oct. 15.—The jury in the federal court in the case of Frederick S. Baird, charged with attempting to defraud the government of several thousand acres of public land in Lawes county, Neb., by means of fictitious entries, returned a verdict of guilty on six counts.

Baird is a Chicago attorney and head of the Chicago Ranch company, whose members are mostly Chicago people, many being railroad men. The members filed on claims under the Kinkaid desert land act and pooled their interests, contributing to a general fund for the purpose of making the required improvements. Irregularities in securing the lands were charged.

Baird was indicted with Patrick J. and Lawrence E. King, conspiracy being one of the charges. The trial of the Kings will come up at a future term of the court.

How Mrs. Brown Did It

Copyrighted, 1906, by Hoosier Mfg. Co.

JUST how Mrs. Alex. Brown could find time to make calls on her friends, or go down town, or do so much sewing, or read magazines and the latest books, puzzled the ladies of Euclidberg.

Mrs. Brown was a progressive woman—she wanted to know about new things and used them.

But in spite of her many labor saving conveniences she found herself dreading the waste of time and nagging toil of preparing and cleaning up after three meals every day.

She decided that the solution lay in a kitchen cabinet. Then Mrs. Brown found that the word kitchen cabinet, like charity, covers a multitude of "sins."

At the stores there were cabinets that looked like her "old cupboard"—shelves, and that's about all. Nothing labor saving about them.

Mrs. Brown soon figured out that she wanted something more than a cabinet. She needed a labor saving machine designed with such forethought and experience as any other machine in business life.

She found it—give Mrs. Brown credit for perseverance and brains, for rejecting what were not machines, not real labor savers.

A Hoosier Cabinet filled every requirement. The more she studied it the better she liked it. It was all there. A labor saver, scientific and convenient—full of practical devices not found in any other cabinet, and not more expensive than others.

The cabinet was solid oak and would not warp in the heat of the kitchen, and her dealer guaranteed it would not.

She couldn't get such a guarantee on cabinets made of gum or elm. She found solid oak was the only substantial, durable wood.

She bought a Hoosier Cabinet and used it three times a day every day in the year. It proved to be her ideal of a cabinet, and it is so simple, because 200,000 practical housekeepers by their suggestions and ideas have made it a real labor saver.

This is how Mrs. Brown did it.

May we explain the details of the Hoosier system to you?

MISSION WORK IS RELATED

Christian Progress in Far East Reported to American Board.

New York, Oct. 15.—The annual business session and election of officers was the most important item on the program of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, which continued its sessions in Brooklyn today. The forenoon meeting was devoted to reports of missionaries from India and Micronesia. For India addresses were delivered by Rev. William W. Wallace of the Madura mission, the Rev. Henry Fairbank and Rev. Lorin S. Gates of the Marathi mission. For Micronesia the speakers were Rev. Thomas Gray of Ponape and Rev. Dr. Hiram Bingham of Honolulu.

Rev. Dan F. Bradley of Cleveland delivered a "message to pastors," and Rev. Ernest Bowner Allen of Toledo, discussed the board, the home department and the churches.

The business session and election was held in the afternoon, and later there was a mission rally for women.

TAFT CHEERED WEST VIRGINIA

Ashland, Ky., Oct. 15.—"Marching Through Georgia," played by a brass band summoned Taft to duty today at Huntington, W. Va., the first stop of the Taft special today. Although not informed in advance, the candidate lent himself to the plans of the local committee and was taken through the town to a large rink, which was crowded, though it was before 8 a. m.

"I thought I had seen all the Republicans in West Virginia last night," genially began Mr. Taft, "but it seems the supply is exhaustless."

Mr. Taft talked of the policy of protection, said it had been the making of West Virginia and had put the state in the Republican column as permanently as Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The Taft special travels on a direct line west to Louisville today. The itinerary calls for ten speeches by the candidate, including Huntington, Ashland, Olive Hill, Morehead, Salt Lick, Mount Sterling, Winchester, Lexington, Frankfort, Shelbyville and Louisville, all but the first being in Kentucky. At Taft's request Senator William Alden Smith will accompany the candidate on his entire Southern trip, and will also be one of the speakers at the Madison Square meeting in New York.

The thousands of people who gathered at the station at this place were enthusiastic and responsive to the highest degree. After the talk of Taft, Senator Smith and Senator William O. Bradley also spoke.

ACCURATE (?) HUNTERS.

Two Shoot at Same Rabbit and Each is Wounded.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—While hunting rabbits in the vicinity of Bazel's farm, Wesley Sweet and Arthur Davis, narrowly escaped killing each other by the simultaneous discharge of their guns at close range.

The men were walking together along the road, when a rabbit coursing from a dog ran between them, seeking shelter in a tangle of legs from his canine pursuer. Each hunter forgot the presence of the other and discharged his gun, with the result that Sweet shot Davis in the throat, and Davis shot Sweet in the legs. Only one of the leaden pellets hit Davis, and did no serious damage. The shot which struck Sweet penetrated the flesh, but did not strike the bones. Neither will suffer more than a slight inconvenience.

TO DISCUSS LEGISLATION.

Matters to be Considered by Stallion Registration Board.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The next meeting of the stallion registration board will be held at the secretary's office, Main building, College of Agriculture, St. Anthony Park, Nov. 10, at 1:00 p. m.

As this is the last meeting of the board to be held before the state legislature meets, and as the members of the board are very anxious to learn the opinions of the majority of horse breeders and stockmen throughout the state relative to this law, an invitation is extended to all interested horse breeders and stockmen to attend this meeting. The members of the board are anxious to work in harmony with the ideas of the horse breeders and stockmen in the state and therefore feel that they should take this opportunity to get acquainted.

A number of very important questions will be brought up at the meeting, which should be considered by all interested horse breeders and stockmen. More efficient legislation in the interest of horse breeding in Minnesota is to be advocated.

ST. CLOUD BACKS OUT

Saintly City Boys Have Too Many Conditioned Players.

Nelson Dewey of Superior Will Play in Their Stead.

Owing to five or six of their men being unable to play on account of conditions, the St. Cloud football team has asked that their game with the Duluth Central high school be cancelled for next Saturday. This is the fourth supposedly strong team that has so far balked at playing the local gridiron heroes. The manager of the St. Cloud team wrote that they would play the Duluth team Saturday, if they insisted, but could only promise them a practice game.

To take the place of the game with St. Cloud scheduled for Saturday, arrangements have been made with the Nelson Dewey team of Superior to cross the bay, and join the Centrals in battle. The Nelson Dewey team is acknowledged to be one of the fastest teams in Northern Wisconsin, and it is probable that Duluth sport lovers will be treated to the best game so far this season at the ball park Saturday afternoon.

Last Saturday the Nelson Deweys traveled to Washburn, where they carried off the honors by a score of 22 to 0. The Washburn team was considerd strong until then, having held the Blaine high school the week before on Superior grounds to a victory of but 6 to 0.

The Wisconsin boys are of good weight, and are a fast ground gaining bunch. Four of their team have hopes of becoming at some future time, members of the famous Carlisle Indian team. Capt. Gordon of the Nelson Dewey is also an Indian, and is said to be an all round football player. He is fast and heavy and has a clear knowledge of the game.

The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

NEW EIGHT FOR DULUTH

Oarsmen of Boat Club Will Have Brand New Shell.

Old Paper Eight Also Being Rebuilt With Cedar.

Not in the least discouraged by its defeat at the hands of the other crews in the regatta held this summer at Winnipeg, the Duluth Boat club is making preparations to go into the sport harder than ever next year.

The new sectional shell that was bought this spring never proved satisfactory. It is being shipped back to the makers in the East, and will be replaced by a new one of the old type. The boat never came up to the promises made for it by the makers. It leaked badly at the joints, and is believed by some to have lost the race for the crew at Winnipeg.

The club is also rebuilding the old paper eight that was used by the Duluth crew in the early dayh of rowing in Duluth. It was one of the fastest shells ever owned by the Duluth club, and as it is being repaired with cedar here in Duluth, it will be as good as new when it comes out of the shop.

The club has also authorized the purchase of two new fours, and the old doubles will be rebuilt with cedar, giving the club three eights, four fours and two doubles, besides all the working boats.

INTO FASTER COMPANY.

Two Michigan Amateurs Have Had an Exceptionally Successful Season.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 15.—Two Upper Michigan baseball pitchers whom the fans of their respective communities are confident will eventually be found in much faster company are "Hank" Scholtus of Marquette and Charles Wagner of Hurontown. Both young men have been twirling winning ball for the past several years, and this season they have been doing more classy work than ever. It was largely because of Scholtus' pitching that Marquette captured the pennant of the Marquette-Alger County league with ease this year, and it was in great measure due to Wagner's puzzling delivery that the Houghton-Hurontown team won the championship of the Copper country.

Scholtus' best record this season has been eighteen strike-outs and two hits allowed in nine innings. He has twirled many fine games, however. He has the opposing batsmen at his mercy, on most occasions, and when games are lost it is almost always because ragged ball is played behind him.

As for Wagner, it is a rare occurrence when he is touched up for more tim half a dozen bingles. In the last game pitched—that last Sunday, when Houghton-Hurontown defeated the fast Hubbell team by the score of 1 to 0—Wagner did not allow a hit, and he passed but two men.

Both Scholtus and Wagner are exceptionally good batters also. Scholtus already has received the offer of a berth in the Wisconsin State league, but he has turned down the proposition, having decided to gain two or three years' more experience before undertaking to pitch in professional company.

Reports of Strikes Cause Firm Demand for Curbs.

Local curb stocks held the interest in the copper stock market here today, reports of ore strikes at different properties causing a lively demand. By the same token, the listed shares went up during the latter part of the session and closed firm.

It was reported that a good strike had been made at Red Warrior and this caused a firm demand for the issue, prices advancing from $4.75 to $5.75 during the day. The closing price was $5.75 bid and $6 asked. Mowitza sold at $2.75 and closed stronger at $3.12½ bid and $3.37½ asked.

Globe was well traded in around $6.75 and closed at $6.75 bid and $7 asked. Reports from that property during the last few days have been very encouraging. From the Nevada field, comes the report of a good strike on the 150 foot level at Rawhide Royal.

The regular dividend of ½ of 1 per cent was declared on Amalgamated today. The stock opened at $75.50, declined to $74.87½ during the early part of the session, rallied to $75.87½ toward the end of the session and closed at $75.87½ bid and $76 asked.

North Butte opened at $81.87½, declined to $81.50, rallied to $82.75 and closed at $82.62½ bid and $83 asked. Greene-Cananea opened at $10, sold at that price and closed at $10 bid and $10.25 asked. Savanna was $3 bid and $3.25 asked. Calumet & Sonora, $8.75 bid and $9 asked and Butte-Ballaklava at $7.50 bid and $7.75 asked.

URGES FAIRNESS IN ACCIDENTS

Agent Says Roads Should Not Contest Just Claims.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 15.—A declaration by Peter C. Nickel, claim agent of the New York City railway, that rapid transit companies should never contest an accident claim they know to be just, was one of the features of today's proceedings of the American Street & Interurban Railways' association's annual convention. Admitting that possibly 25 per cent of all damage claims filed are legitimate, Mr. Nickel said:

"As a business proposition you will concede that every organization responsible for damages arising from negligence can, after an investigation, honestly afford to pay a reasonable sum to every claimant for the injury and damage sustained, where the liability is established."

Railway companies, Mr. Nickel maintained, should be governed by the reports of their claim department proposition. Payment of a bill of a physician called by the victim is most unwise, he said, because it compromises the company in the eyes of a trial jury.

CHINESE TOWNS SUBMERGED.

Disastrous Floods Render Hundreds of Persons Homeless.

Hongkong, Oct. 15.—There have been disastrious floods in the Sunsing and Hai-Ping districts. Several towns are submerged and hundreds of people have been rendered homeless.

GETTING READY.

Nikola Tesla, the man who harnessed Niagara, was talking to an interviewer about inventors.

"The successful inventor," said Mr. Tesla, smiling, "has an odd, quaint mind, a mind full of surprises. Thus Smethurst, I am convinced, was an inventor at heart though circumstance had made a grocer of him.

"Smethurst, during his seaside holday, was seen upon the boardwalk with a large bottle under his arm.

"'Smethurst,' said an acquaintance, 'what have you got in that bottle that I see you carrying about with you day and night?'

"'Chloroform,' said Smethurst.

"'What the deuce are you doing with chloroform here on the boardwalk?'

"'That big dub of a Jones,' said Smethurst, 'has threatened to give me a sound thrashing the first time he meets me, and as soon as I see him coming I'm going to take a good dose. I don't propose to suffer if I can help it.'"

DEER BREEDING PROFITABLE.

Baltimore American: "The business of raising deer as a matter of profit may sound strange, but there are a number of people in various parts of the country who get lucrative returns from their herds," said W. G. Adams of Washington, D. C.

"A friend of mine began raising deer in the District of Columbia over thirty years ago and has made money in the propagation. For his bucks he gets $50 each and the does bring $75. Deer will eat almost any kind of grain or grass, even preferring the rankest weeds to the choicest hay. They should always have an abundant supply of clear, running water. About the greatest item of expense connected with raising deer is the cost of fencing. The fawns are usually born in the spring or early summer. Does, as a rule, have but one fawn at first, but subsequently twins are born and in rare cases, triplets."

THE STUDEBAKER BIG THREE ECONOMY - STABILITY - RELIABILITY THE STUDEBAKER BIG THREE

The "Studebaker-Thirty" Breaks Another Record

From Minneapolis to Duluth, 7 Hours and 32 Minutes

During the past year The Studebaker Automobile has attracted more attention and scored more substantial victories than any other automobile manufactured. Every performance has been a signal demonstration of Studebaker reliability.

Here are a few World-Renowned Performances of the Studebaker during 1908.

1st. Last March the United States army used a Studebaker in "a reliability test" by sending official dispatches from New York to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. On this trip the Studebaker started from New York five days later than the cars in the New York to Paris race, but it beat all cars from New York to Omaha by twenty-four hours and established a wonderful record.

2nd. In June five Studebaker cars carried the Illinois Democratic delegates from Chicago to Denver, in a 1280-mile run, without touching the cars; another marvelous test of stability.

3rd. The Studebaker won a "perfect score" certificate in The Glidden Tour of July, 1908, making the 1800-mile run without a single repair or adjustment. In this tour five mountain ranges were crossed, but as usual, the Studebaker scored clean.

4th. Yesterday the Studebaker broke the record between Minneapolis-St. Paul and Duluth, making a 174 mile run in seven hours and thirty-two minutes.

Dr. C. E. Dutton, chairman of the Tours and Contest committee of the Minneapolis Automobile club, accompanied the car in an official capacity.

Considering the long stretches of sandy roads, corduroy highways and roads of every description, the run was a remarkable testimonial to Studebaker reliability. Every test accentuates the fact that the Studebaker is the world's most reliable automobile.

TRICKS IN SELLING MINES.

The Gauziest Romance Sometimes Better Than Mere Facts.

A mining man from Mexico tried to interest a New York capitalist in his proposition, but was turned down politely but firmly, says the New York Sun. A shade of disappointment crossed his face. He half arose from his chair and reached for his hat. He hesitated a moment, as if debating on some momentous step. Then he dropped back into his seat and leaned forward confidentially, as though he had decided to impart some weighty secret.

"Suppose I should tell you," he began, "that I know where the long sought treasure of the Aztec kings is buried, that within an hour after reaching the City of Mexico, I could go to the place where it lies, the vast store of gold and jewels that Guatemotzin hid when the little band of conquistadores, Cortez's conquering Spaniards, appeared before his capital?

"How do I know this? Listen!" The promoter's voice sank to a tense whisper. "Can any one hear? Don't let us be interrupted. I have never told this to a soul before. May I lock the door?

"Suppose I tell you how a mozo, one who had served me faithfully for many years, had left my eploy at the mines and had gone to the City of Mexico, there to take service with one of the old Spanish families who live in a street a little back of the great cathedral which, as you know, was built on the site of the ancient temple where they used to sacrifice thousands of human captives each year? You can see the huge sacrificial stone in the National Museum there today.

This family went to the Tierra Caliente, to their hacienda there, in the winter months, when there is no rain but the air is chill in the city. Before they left the master told this Indian servant to take up the stones in the patio, the interior court around which the house is built—the residence has been in the same family for two centuries and a half—and to clear out the ancient drain that had become half chocked and unserviceable, also to relay all the paving stones flat and level.

"The soil is soft there. There are no cellars to the houses, for the city is built on an ancient lake bed and almost anywhere you strike water ten feet down.

"In due time the family departed, leaving this Indian in charge of the other servants in the empty house. These Mexican peons, by the way, are slow, but faithful and sure. Without undue haste the work began and proceeded.

"Sometimes Juan worked alone digging in the damp soil; at other times some of the other men helped him, carrying out the dirt or lifting the heavy blocks of stone that paved the courtyard. Juan one night had a dream that if he should dig in a certain spot in the patio he would find a vast treasure.

"The next day was the Fiesta of All Souls—a great religious holiday, when every one goes to the Dolores cemetery, decorates the graves of his dead and gets stupid with pulque. Juan made some excuse, pleaded illness, I suppose; the rest of the servants went away and left him alone in the great house.

"The moment they were gone and the outer door fast bolted, Juan commenced to dig, with a feverish haste such as he had never shown before, in the spot indicated by his dream. He was standing in a pit as long and as narrow as a grave when a chance thrust of his shovel into the black, reeeking soil touched a stone.

"Now, there are no stones in the City of Mexico except what have been brought there from the quarries, miles away, so Juan knew that what he had encountered was either an ancient idol of the Aztecs or else the forerunner of what he sought. He stopped to take a drink of pulque, and went back to work. With infinite labor he uncovered what appeared to be a great square stone, and finally, I dont' know how, succeeded in lifting it from the place it had rested in for nearly three centuries.

"Two weeks later—I was in the mountains of Durango, at Topia, at the time—I received a letter from Juan. It was written by one of those public letter-writers who sit in the plaza before the cathedral, for Juan, like every one his class, cannot read or write.

"The letter urged me to come to Mexico at once and to see him immediately on my arrival; that he was in great trouble; that he had news of personal interest to impart. In short, I gathered from the letter, aided by my intimate knowledge of Juan's character, that there really was something urgent. He had saved my life once, and as I had intended to go to Mexico soon, I decided to hasten my trip and start immediately.

"It's a week's journey by mule, horse and rail from the mines to the capital. On my arrival I sent for Juan, and he came to my room at the Iturbide, where he was well known as my former mozo.

"What would you say if I told you that he recounted to me how he had dreamed and dug and lifted the stone, how he had found a mass of coarse gold, washed from placer workings by the Aztecs no one knows where and no one knows when; how he had found, also, curious images of gold, figures of the gods and of the sun and rain; how he brought from a fold in his blouse, tied in a very dirty hankherchief, a double handful of coarse gold mixed with huge uncut rubies, like cherries in a handful of wheat?

"Did he tell any one else of it? No, he would not do that. He had an idea of the value of the gold, but not of the rubies. What next? This is only supposing, you know, a kind of hypothetical question.

"Suppose I should tell you how I assayed the gold myself and found it what I thought it, from a placer; that I had two of the uncut rubies priced in one of the jewelry stores along Plateros street and found them gems of great value. I have bought a good many mines, and a great many people have tried to salt them on me, but I am cautious and I haven't been caught yet. I trust no one, and I know that my own judgment is not infallible.

"Suppose I tell you how I agreed with Juan to buy the house, to give him a few thousand for himself—those peons don't know what to do with money if they get more than $2 at a time—and how the next day urgent business called me to New York. The Aztec treasure still lies where it was buried, and I can do nothing toward reaching it at present. Suppose my story interested you, would you care to put any money into a matter of that kind?"

The faces of the two men were a study. The mining man's, which had lighted up with the dramatic telling of the story, had now settled back into its usual aspect of shrewdness over laid with a look of never-failing good humor. The capitalist had been fascinated by the tale. He was leaning forward in his chair tensely, showing absorbing interest in the recital, his lips were drawn back a little.

There was a moment's silence.

"How much would it cost to buy the house?" asked the capitalist.

"About $50,000."

"How much to buy the Indian, this Juan, so as to satisfy him and keep him quiet?"

"Two or three thousand would do it."

"I suppose the Mexican government couldn't claim the treasure?"

"No, I am quite sure they couldn't."

"How soon could you go with me to Mexico?"

"Tomorrow. What is your proposition?"

"We'll start tomorrow afternoon. We'll buy the house, the Indian's silence and anything else that is nezcessary. I'll put up all the money and will divide with you the difference between the gross amount of the treasure and what money I have to spend to get it. Is that satisfactory? All right. You may be a little short. I'll give you a check for, say a couple of thousand now. Look up the fastest trains, get the tickets and so on, and phone me tomorrow morning at my house where to meet you and when."

The mining man reached for his hat and rose from his chair with a broad smile on his face.

"Now, sir," he said, "I've got you just where I want you. The tale I have told is a fantastic romance. The treasure many exist, but I don't know where it is. You will recall that I related the story as a supposition, so as to see what you would do under certain circumstances.

"I am a comparative stranger to you, yet you swallowed the bait, hook and line. You were ready to invest a hundred thousand dollars in something as intangible as a moonbeam, yet a few minutes ago you turned down, almost discourteously, a sound, safe mining proposition.

"I told you that there were a hundred thousand tons of ore in sight that averaged $50 a ton in value. That's $5,000,000. I showed you reports of mining engineers of high standing to prove my statements. Yet all that did not interest you.

"Then I decided to spin this yarn of the Aztec treasure, and you listened to it like a little girl to a fairy tale. I have finished my experiment, and I will now bid you good day."

The mining man was half way to the door before the capitalist had recovered from his astonishment. Disappointment, chagrin and anger swept across his face. Finally he smiled, and the smile stayed. He jumped from his chair and dragged the mining man back.

"You're right," he said, "You've taught me a lesson that is worth a million dollars to me. I'll take $100,000 worth of your stock and I'll sign the subscription list now. We'll settle any further details tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock instead of taking the fastest train to Mexico.

BEING FRANK.

Chicago News: "I've got you now where you can't get away," said the ponderous person with the pendulous cheeks, as he took the young man with the green cravat by the arm and playfully pushed him into a chair. "You've been dodging me for a month. Don't try to deny it, because I know you have. Now, I want to know what's the matter with you." He shook a fat forefinger at the young man and smiled benignantly.

"There isn't anything the matter with me, Mr. Drilby," replied the young man, uneasily. "It must be your imagination."

"No imagination about it," said the ponderous person. "You can't fool me. You're miffed. You didn't like it because I told you what I thought of the way you were carrying on. I gave you a pill of plain talk without any sugar coating on it. I thought it would do you good and you've got your back up about it. That's what's the matter with you, young fellow. Don't deny it now."

"I won't if you insist on it," said the young man.

"That's right," said the ponderous person. "Now, we'll get right down to business and see where we stand and I suppose you think I ought to have considered your feelings. That isn't my way."

It doesn't seem to be," said the young man.

"No, sir," said the ponderous person. "My idea is to do you good. That's the main object. If your feelings get in the way or your dignity or anything else, I can't help that. If I can put your conduct before you in such a light as to make you realize how foolish it is and resolve to do better, that's all I care about. I know you'll live to thank me for it some day if you don't now."

"You do, eh?" asked the young man. "Would you thank anybody for insulting you?"

"If you call the truth insult and plain facts — undeniable facts — insult, I would," replied the ponderous person. "I'd call the man my true friend who told me my faults. I'd thank him for it."

"All right," said the young man. "I'll consider that you've done me a good turn. I was a little sore about it. I'll admit, but since it's all for my own good I'll stand for it. Now, let me give you a pointer or two. I'm not the only one who dodges you. As a matter of fact, everybody I know considers you a windy old boy. You don't need to choke up and get purple in the face about that, because I'm telling it to you for your own good. You seem to have an idea that you know all that's worth knowing and that what everybody else knows is dead wrong. If their habits aren't the same as yours they're darned bad habits. That's what you think."

"Why, you impertinent young puppy!" exclaimed the ponderous person, rising from his chair.

"Sit down and keep cool," said the young man. "I'm talking for your own good now. I'm your true friend. If you think a bald head and a big paunch give you rights of plain speech above the rest of us, you're off. That's all! You eat more than's good for you and you sleep more than's good for you and your clothes don't fit you. I mention these points as you have thought fit to criticize my personal habits and dress. If my cigarettes are as offensive as the old ropes you smoke, I'll swear off right now."

"Is that all you have to say?" asked the ponderous person, breathing hard.

"Not quite," replied the young man. "You've got a way of poking your nose into other people's private business that you ought to try to correct. I don't know anything you've done except to hang on to the real estate your father left you and collect the interest on your mortgages besides making a nuisance of yourself wherever you happen to be. If you'd just —— you aren't going already?"

The ponderous person waddled off without replying.

STORY OF THE NEWBURY COAT.

London Standard: Buckland hall, Berkshire, which was offered for sale at Tokenhouse yard, was built at the beginning of the eighteenth century.

A former owner won fame on account of a singular wager he made. It was that he would sit down at dinner at 8 o'clock in the evening in a coat which was a growing fleece at 5 o'clock the same morning.

The wager was taken. The sheep were shorn, and the fleeces were submitted to all the necessary treatment, and at night he sat down to dinner in a damson colored coat with about 100 minutes to spare. The coat and the articles used in the various processes to insure its completion are still preserved, the garment now being known as the Newbury coat.

CONTRAST IN WILLS.

Westminster Gazette: If, as is stated, the will of the late Duke of Devonshire contains nearly 18,000 words, it is certainly entitled to rank high among long winded testaments.

Probably the shortest will on record was that of a Streatham gentleman, proved a few years ago which, consisted of the words, "All for mother, C. T."

DEMAND FOR WHEAT POOR

Prices Fall Off in All the American Markets.

Flax Weakens and Closes Fractionally Lower in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 15.—A slack deamnd caused a weak wheat market in America today, the active options showing a loss of a point or more from yesterday in most of the markets.

There was no foreign demand and a feeling prevailed that tomorrow's receipts were going to be very large. Offerings were liberal and after the first hour of the session, values gradually shrunk, closing at the low level of the day.

Cables were weak. Liverpool closed ¾d to —d lower, Berlin 1c lower and Antwerp unchanged to 1¼c lower.

The December option closed 1c lower in Duluth, 1⅛@1¼c lower in Chicago, ⅞c lower in Minneapolis and Winnipeg and 1¼c lower in New York.

Wire troubles delayed the receipt of the closing prices from the Southwest again today. The May option closed 1c lower in Duluth, Minneapolis, New York and Winnipeg, and 1@⅛c lower in Chicago. December wheat closed at 94c and May wheat at 97¼c in St. Louis.

December corn closed ½@⅝c lower in Chicago and ¼d to ½d lower in Liverpool.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—As a result of the easier American cables yesterday, and less apprehension regarding the political situation, the market here was quiet at the opening and ¼d lower. During the morning, there was increased pressure to sell and with offerings more liberal a further decline of ¾d to ⅞d was made with the principal weakness in the distant months. Argentine shipments are expected to be larger this week, and the growing conditions there continue excellent under increased acreage. Cargoes in distant positions were offered freely and it is estimated that there will be larger shipments from Russia this week. These influenced rather free selling, and at mid-day the market was easy and from ¾d to ⅞d lower than Wednesday.

"Corn was easier at the start and unchanged. Later, the market declined ¼d on a poor demand for spot and cheaper Black sea offerings, cargoes in distant positions being offered from 1¼d to 2d decline."

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,814,000 bus, last year 1,119,000 bus. Shipments 334,000 bus, last year 692,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 272,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 228,000 bus, last year 556,000 bus. Shipments 157,000 bus, last year 436,000. Clearances of corn were 530 bus.

Wheat was rather quiet during the session in the Duluth market. December wheat opened unchanged at $1.02 declined to $1.01⅞, reacted to $1.02 and declined to $1.01, closing there, a loss of 1c from yesterday. May wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.05⅞, declined to $1.05¾, rallied to $1.06 and went off to $1.05, which was the closing price, a loss of 1c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1¼c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over December for No. 1 Northern.

Flax declined steadily during a quiet session. October flax opened ½c lower at $1.21½, declined to $1.20¾ and closed at that price, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. November flax opened ¼c lower at $1.21½, advanced to $1.21⅞ and declined to $1.21, closing there, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. December flax opened ⅝c lower at $1.20¼ bid, advanced to $1.20⅝, declined to $1.20 and closed at that price, a loss of ½c from yesterday. May flax opened ⅝c lower at $1.24¼, advanced to $1.24¾ and declined by the close to $1.24, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Rye closed ½c to 1c lower and barley was ½c to 1c lower. Oats closed unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Decline, Due to Predicted Shipment Increase, Causes Weakness.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—A decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool, due partly to a predicted increase in shipments from Argentina, caused weakness today in the local market, prices at the start being unchanged to ¼c lower. There was a slight rally early in the day on moderate demand by commission houses, but the market again became easy, despite continued dry weather in the Southwest and a falling off in the movement in the Northwest. December opened at $1.00¾ to $1.01, sold up to $1.01¼, and then declined again to $1.00⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 752 cars, against 1,098 cars last week, and 654 cars a year ago.

The market was subjected to heavy liquidation throughout the entire session and prices steadily declined until they were about 1½c below the high point of the day. The low mark for December was reached at 99¾c. The close was weak at almost the bottom. December was down 1⅛@1¼c at 99⅜@⅝c.

Corn was inclined to be weak, owing to renewed selling by local bulls. Receipts today were considerably more than what had been expected, and this tended to depress prices. December opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower, at 63½c to 63⅝c, and sold at 63⅜c. Local receipts were 147 cars, with 33 of contract grade.

A sharp decline in the price of the cash grain caused a general raid on options which resulted in December selling off to 62c. The market closed weak at almost the lowest point, with December off ½@⅝c at 63⅜c.

Oats opened barely steady, owing to the weakness of wheat and corn, but soon became firm on buying by commission houses. December opened a shade lower at 48¼c and advanced to 48⅛@⅜c. Local receipts were 186 cars.

Provisions weer strong despite increased receipts of live hogs at Western packing centers. An advance of 5c in live hogs here helped to bring out some demand for provisions. At the start prices were 2½c to 17½c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Oct. 15.—The winter wheat crop, now of a less favorable nature, was a price sustaining influence against cables, ⅝@¾d lower. Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas sent reports of dry weather. Trade was very light here. Considerable selling developed in line with weakness in Chicago and reports of poor export business in Duluth and Winnipeg. The local receipts were 489 cars against 270, Duluth 186 and 285, Winnipeg 527 and 283. Minneapolis stocks increased 1,750,000 bushels for five days. The selling continued and December closed about a cent off from the high point of the day. December opened $1.01⅝@⅞; high, $1.02⅛; low, $1.01; close, $1.01@1.01¼. Old December closed $1.01⅜. May wheat opened $1.06¼; high, $1.06⅝; low, $1.05¼@⅜; close, $1.05¼@⅜.

Cash demand was good for top grades, but not quite so good for the medium and low grades. No. 1 Northern sold at 2c over and No. 2 at December price to ½c over, but most of it at December price. Close: No. 1 Northern spot, $1.03; to arrive, $1.03; No. 2 Northern spot, $1.01@1.01¼; to arrive, $1.01. No. 3 wheat, 95½@99½c.

Millstuffs steady and in fair demand $17.75@18.25 for bulk bran.

Flour quotations were unchanged at yesterday's prices. Shipments not so heavy as directions are not coming so freely. There is good demand reported by Minneapolis larger companies; fair demand by the small mills. Country reports vary, some good and some reporting only a limited demand. Shipments 50,296 barrels. First patents $5.40@5.50; second patents ..5.30@5.40; first clears $4.00@4.10; second clears $3.00@3.10, f. o. b. in wood Minneapolis.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR

C. H. Canby of Chicago Discusses the Winter Wheat Conditions.

Too Early to Estimate Decrease in Winter Wheat Acreage.

"The dry weather in the winter wheat country is the chief topic of interest on the Chicago trading floor at the present time," said C. H. Canby of C. H. Canby & Co., of Chicago. Mr. Canby is one of the prominent figures on the Chicago board of trade, and is credited with being one of the shrewdest and most conservative forecasters of conditions in the grain trade.

"The winter wheat states have been very dry during the past few weeks. It is still too early, however, to make any estimate of the decrease in the wheat acreage that will result from this cause. Some of these states keep seeding right up to December, and it will be two or three weeks yet before anyone can make anything like an accurate estimate of the decrease in the winter wheat acreage that will be caused by the dry weather.

"This is the chief item of interest in Chicago grain circles at the present time. The demand for wheat is of a retail nature. The country millers are not buying heavily. They are getting their grain at home this fall and saving the freight charges."

Mr. Canby attended the Johnson meeting last evening. "It doesn't take one long to find out that Governor Johnson is a very popular citizen in Duluth, at least," he said. "He impressed me most favorably."

Mr. Canby will leave for Chicago this afternoon. While in Duluth he was entertained by the local representative of his firm, Alex Guthrie.

The local cash wheat market is not reflecting the weakness of the options. There was heavy buying of No. 1 northern on track and to arrive around $1.04.

BRAND NEW PACT, DEMAND MINERS

Would Replace Entire Working System in Anthracite Region.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 15.—An entire new agreement will be the demand of the anthracite mine workers to the operators to replace the present working agreement, which expires April 1, 1909.

This was the decision of the miners' convention here today. The principal demands to be embodied in the new agreement are: First, an eight hour day; second, the "check off," providing that company collect due and assessment for the union; third, weighing of coal instead of paying by car as at present; fourth, 10 per cent increase in wages on all kinds of labor.

The other demands will be minor ones.

TARIFF RATE OF 6 CENTS SHOWN

St. Paul Roads' Official Testifies in Oil Trust Case.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Testimony supporting the contention of Standard Oil that six cents was the regular freight tariff on oil from Whiting to East St. Louis was offered today before Judge Franklin Ferriss in the hearing of evidence in the railroad phase of the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company.

Henry D. Pierpont, general freight agent of the St. Paul road, was put on the stand and his attention called to the tariff schedules between Whiting and East St. Louis, filed with the interstate commerce commission, showing the 18-cent rate between the two points, which the government contends was the legal rate, and tariff schedules, also in evidence, showing the state rates, some filed and some unfiled with the commission, and asked him to state the rate shown by the tariff sheets.

Before the answer was given Attorney KeKllogg for the government, objected on the ground that the tariffs themselves are the best evidence.

The case of the Standard Oil of Indiana before Judge Landis, in which the fine of $29,240,000 was imposed, hinged on the 18-cent rate between Whiting and East St. Louis.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Prices Started Higher and Upward Swing Was Extended.

Close Was Strong With Considerable Increase in Activity.

New York, Oct. 15.—Prices of stocks started higher today than last night for the most part, but the gains were not material and were mingled with some small losses. The demand was languid and unimportant. Northern Pacific recovered a point of its 1¾ per cent dividend. United States Rubber declined.

Northern Pacific surrendered its opening gain and the majority of the other well known stocks yielded to about ½c below yesterday's closing. These losses were made up when the sellers attempted to buy back. The movement was an aimless drifting. Bethlehem Steel declined 1½c.

Selling orders were encountered when prices advanced and the tone became heavy again and intensely full. Federal Mining preferred sold at an advance of 5¾, Western Union 1¼ and New Haven 1. Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic preferred dropped 2½. Bonds were irregular.

There was a firmer tone to the limited dealings, but the price changes were insignificant outside of inactive specialties. Mackay company's rose 3¾; United States Express 3, American Sugar and American Beet Sugar ¼; Westinghouse Electric and Tennessee Copper 1.

The market closed strong and quite active. The upward swing of prices was extended with a considerable increase in the activity. Union Pacific rose 2¼ over last night. United States Rubber second preferred 3, Tennessee Copper, 2, Atchison & Toledo, St. Louis & Western 1½, Reading, Great Northern preferred, and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 1¾, and Southern Pacific, St. Paul American Smelting and American Locomotive 1. Money on call stiffened to 2 per cent, but shorts bought to cover.

WOMAN BAD BUT MAN IS WORSE

Judge Windom Hands Hot Roast to John Mott.

"You are worse as a man than she is a woman," said Judge Windom in municipal court this morning, as he handed out a straight 60-day sentence, with no alternative of a fine, to John Mott, charged with assaulting Gladys Brown, an occupant of one of the St. Croix avenue disorderly houses.

"You had no more right to hit one of these women than you would to hit a decent woman," said the judge. "I cannot find words to express my contempt of a man that has done as you have done. She has been taking care of you, and providing you with a living. Now it is the county's turn. We shall see that you are provided with sixty days free board."

Mott pleaded guilty to the charge lodged against him. Miss Brown testified that she had been on very friendly relations with Mott until quite recently; and that she had contributed money to his support. Several times lately he has struvk her, she said, and yesterday, according to her story, he struck her several times in the face and eyes. The marks of the blows were still visible this morning.

BAND OF BOY BURGLARS

Stanley Nobeck Confesses to Breaking Into Five Buildings.

Says He and Companions Secured $500 Worth of Jewelry.

Stanley Nobeck, 15-year-old son of Thomas Nobeck, residing at the corner of First avenue west and Eighth street, was arrested this morning by Detectives Walsh and Terry, charged with being responsible for several of the burglaries that have occurred around town lately. The boy confessed to five burglaries and implicated Henry Lepak, another youth living in the same neighborhood. He said Lepak worked with him in the numerous thefts. Lepak was arrested later in the day, but denied absolutely any connection with the burglaries.

Nobeck had the loot planted near his home, unknown to his parents. It was brought to the police station this morning, and when spread over the top of a large desk, looked like the contents of a sample case of jewelry. There were stick pins, watches, chains, breast pins and other jewelry. Altogether, the loot represented a value of about $500. The burglaries all have occurred within the past month.

Among the victims were Isadore Pulaski, 502 West Eighth street; H. G. Reynolds, 623 West Seventh street; E. C. Lange, 315½ West First street; A. Anderson, 507 West Sixth street, and Fred Sjoselius, who owns a store at 322 Mesaba avenue. His store was broken into last Saturday night, and three boxes of cigars were taken. Several other stores along First street were broken into last week, but Nobeck denies that he had anything to do with these burglaries.

Nobeck's work in breaking into the home of Isadore Pulaski led to his undoing. He broke into the house, secured a number of valuables and then crawled through the window into the next house, vacant at the time, but owned by a relative of Pulaski. Pulaski heard the boy ransacking the neighboring house, and went forth to investigate. He found the youthful burglar had gained entrance by taking off a screen from a window and found him hiding in the building, but Nobeck explained his presence there by saying that he had been instructed to obtain a photograph by getting in through the window. Pulaski believed the story and allowed Nobeck his freedom, but later found out his mistake and reported the matter to the police. The description furnished enabled the detectives to locate the boy bandit, and his arrest followed.

A gun and a revolver were among the stolen articles.

MARINE NEWS

DIVERS WORKING ON SACRAMENTO

Vessel Will be Relieved of Her Coal Cargo Friday.

Divers are at work on the steamer Sacramento which was sunk in a collision with the Mataafa early yesterday morning. The work is in charge of Capt Joseph Kidd, and he expects to have the vessel ready to be towed to the Northwestern Fuel company's dock by tomorrow morning where she will discharge her coal.

The Mataafa has already been temporally repaired and is ready to leave port.

Upon investigation of the damage done the Sacramento as a result of the collision, two large holes were found in her bow, one of them being more than twenty feet across. They are blowing the mud out of her hold today with a steam hose. The water is so muddy where she went down that the work of pumping her out is carried on with great difficulty.

James Davidson of West Bay City, Mich., the owner, is expected here today, and he will then direct the repair work.

STEEPEST RAILWAY IN WORLD.

London Globe: What claims to be the steepest railway line in the world is that recently opened near Bozen, in the Tyrol. The Mendel railway, with a gradient of 64 in 100, and the Vesuvian, with 63, have hitherto held the record. But the new line in its steepest part rises 70 in 100 and in other parts 66.

It leads up the mountainside to Virgil Terrace, on the river Eisach. The system employed is that of the electrical wire rope and the ascent is made at the rate of five feet a second, or five minutes for the whole distance. The car of four compartments carries thirty-two passengers.

HEARST BROKEN IN UPON IN STATEROOM; SUMMONS SERVED IN HASKELL SUIT

Nebraska Deputy Sheriff Finds Mrs. Hearst Partially Disrobed.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 16.—After a dramatic scene on Union Pacific train No. 2 last night in which the door of his stateroom was burst open by a deputy sheriff, William Randolph Hearst, the millionaire editor, was served with papers notifying him that suit for $600,000 had been brought against him for slander and libel by Governor Charles N Haskell of Oklahoma, in the Douglas county, Neb., district court.

The suit was filed in the district court at 10 o'clock last night after which the papers were immediately withdrawn. It was known that Mr. Hearst would pass through Omaha last night on his way from Seattle to New York and plans were laid accordingly.

Union Pacific train No. 2 was due at 9:40 but did not arrive until 14:25. Deputy Sheriff Stewart was on hand with orders to serve the summons, but had a trying time doing so.

A knock on the door of Hearst's stateroom elicitated the information at the door from the editor's wife that he was not in the room, but had gone to the depot to send a telegram. Not to be cheated, the deputy sheriff demanded admittance in the name of the law, saying that if he were not admitted he would break down the door.

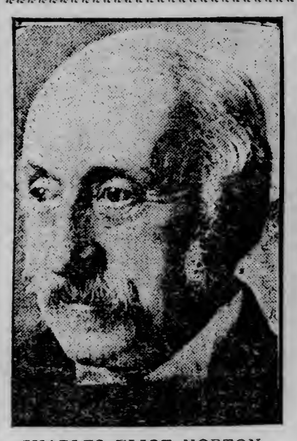

Mrs. Hearst Screams.

Then ensued a dramatic scene. Mrs. Hearst on the inside screamed that she was alone and would admit no man, and the deputy proceeded to carry out his threat to break in. Using his shoulders as a battering ram, he crashed through the door and was met by Mrs. Hearst, partially disrobed, apparently on the verge of hysteria. And apparently she was alone, no millionaire editor being visible on the inside of the apartment.

Nothing daunted, although Mrs. Hearst rushed screaming through the door out in the aisle, Deputy Sheriff Stewart started to kick in the door of the toilet room adjoining the state room. Then it was that William Ran-

CHARLES ELIOT NORTON.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 16.—Prof. Norton of Harvard university, who is prominent as an author on art and literature and was professor of the history of art until 1898, since which time he has been professor emeritus, is seriously ill at his home in Cambridge. He is nearly 81, and his ailment is heart failure.

VICTORIEN SARDOU.

Sardou, who, according to cable dispatches is seriously ill, is the foremost living French dramatist. He is 77, and has been a prolific writer of plays since he produced "La Taverne," after long struggles to gain recognition in 1854. Several of Sardou's plays, notably "Divorcons," "Fedora," "La Tosca" and "Cleopatra," are well known to the English-speaking stage.

ARTIST JULIAN STORY TRYING TO MAKE UP WITH HIS EX-WIFE

New York, Oct. 16.—Julian Story, the famous portrait painter, is seeking a reconciliation with his former wife, Mme Emma Eames, the still more famous prima donna.

Members of the artistic and musical worlds returning from their European vacations make this known. Story's tentative advances were made on the other side, whence he returned recently and where Mme Eames still remains.

So far there has been no reconciliation and no indication that the singer wishes one however ardent the artist may be in the matter. But friends of both say "there is no telling" what may develop.

EMMA EAMES.

SIOUX INDIANS THREATEN OUTBREAK.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received here that an outbreak of Sioux Indians is likely at Fort Yates, N. D., if if the government order, providing for the removal of the Indian graves in the military cemetery there be carried out.

With the intention of abandoning the post, an order was recently made to remove all the bodies of dead in the cemetery, including soldiers, civilians and Indians, to the national military cemetery at Keokuk, Iowa. The contract was awarded to a St. Paul firm by bids let at the army headquarters. The contractors have been waiting for the past six weeks to carry into effect their part of the agreement, but the restlessness of the Indians had caused the Indian agent, Col. McLaughlin, so much uneasiness that the work on the contract has been delayed.

The principal reason for the Indians' actions is said to be from the fact that Sitting Bull, the great war chief, is buried there. The general cause, however, is said to be their superstitutious belief that if the bodies are disturbed the dead Indians will be thrown out of the Happy Hunting grounds by the "great prophet."

Col. McLaughlin, the Indian agent, believes that he can smooth over the difficulty, but as yet an agreement has not been reached between him and his Indian charges.

LOSES HIS LEG STEALING RIDE

Eau Claire Man Injured While Beating Way to Duluth.

Aitkin, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alfred Westberg of Eau Claire, Wis., had his right leg cut off below the knee Tuesday afternoon while attempting to steal a ride on a freight train going to Duluth.

Two companions were with him when the accident occurred about a mile east of town and came in for help. The village marshal and a physician went after the wounded man and brought him in on a hand car to the local hospital, where it is thought he will recover. He is 34 years and had worked for the Soo railroad construction during the summer, coming to Aitkin a few days ago to work for Fred Blair, where he stayed two days and decided to return to Duluth.

CAPSULE CUTS THROAT.

Hankinson, N. D., Oct. 16.—Bleeding to death because of injury to his throat from a defective capsule, was the unusual fate of Garvis G. Wright, a traveling representative of a Chicago concern. Soon after reaching this city he complained of a bad cold and secured some medicine in a capsule. In swallowing it the capsule became split and a sharp edge cut a tender blood vessel in the unfortunate man's throat, which caused his death.

SO ELOQUENT DENYING HE IS INSANE, JURORS GIVE HIM CARDS

New York, Oct. 16.—So eloquent was Elias L. Bossen, once a teacher in the public schools here, when he addressed the jury in his own behalf against a charge of insanity, that they not only rendered the verdict in his favor, but many if them pressed their cards upon him and invited him to call, saying they would like to see more of him.

Bossen declared he was the victim of various relatives, who he said, wanted to get possession of his property, which amounts to about $10,000.

"So far as my family is concerned," declared Bossen, dramatically concluding his speech to the jury, "I will say in the language of a great Teacher:

"'Father, I forgive them, for they know not what they do.'"

Report Says One Hundred and Fifty or Two Hundred Lives Are Lost.

Train Runs Into a Burned Culvert and Cars Thrown From Track.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 16.—Fanned into flames by the high winds, the smouldering ruins of the forest fires which a few weeks ago did enormous damage in upper Michigan, are again threatening the destruction of valuable property. Fire in the woods between Baltic and Trimountain assumed such proportions last night that it was necessary to call out the Trimountain fire department. The wind drove the fire towards Baltic, threatening the mine buildings in that vicinity. Men fought the flames all night. Another dangerous fire has broken out near the Copper Range tract at Red Ridge. The Atlantic fire department is fighting it. Northwest of Calumet forest fires are burning much timber.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 16.—Reports are insistent that there were 150 to 200 people on the burned train, but it is absolutely impossible to confirm this, or to state whether any survivors from the train made their way through the burning forests to safety.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 16.—At least seventeen persons were burned to death early today, when a relief train which went from here to Metz, which village was surrounded by forest fires, was consumed by the flames, through which it attempted to dash, on the return trip, with 200 or more villagers. Some reports place the death total at twenty-five.

Fifteen corpses, charred beyond recogniton, have been found in the wreckage of a burned gondola car, which was part of the relief train.

The train ran into a burned culvert, which was the cause of its derailment. Among those who perished was Mrs. Cicero and her three children. Engineer John Kinville of Alpena and another member of the train crew escaped with their lives, but terribly burned, by creeping along the track on their hands and knees to Posen. Kinville is blind from his burns and may die.

George Boston, a traveling salesman of Bay City, was on the derailed rescue train, but succeeded in walking into Posen, where he arrived, badly burned. He says that one car of the train was filled with men, women and children and that probably about twenty must have perished in the fire. Three other persons, whose names are not yet known, accompanied Boston on the walk through the flames from the derailed train to Posen.

According to reports coming into Alpena today from the north, there has been heavy loss of life in the forest fires, which yesterday and last night swept over Presque Isle county. The most serious report is to the effect that the relief train, which went to the village of Metz last night from Hawks, has been burned, with some of its refugees.

Wires north are all down as a result of the fires, and it is impossible to raise Nowicki station, near where the train is reported to have left the rails and to have been destroyed. The reports received here say that after the relief train had been loaded with people and goods at Metz, it started north, but was unable to get farther than Hawks. Then the train was headed for Alpena. The report says that at Nowicki station the fire had burned through a number of railroad ties.

STATE IS DOUBTFUL

Trend of Sentiment in North Dakota Is Towards Bryan.

Chairman Cashel of Democratic Committee Talks on Situation.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chairman J. L. Cashel of the Democratic state central committee of North Dakota gave out an interview today covering the North Dakota situation, in which he places the state in the doubtful column, with the possibility of its being counted for William J. Bryan. Mr. Cashel is one of the most conservative of North Dakota Democrats, and in view of the position he holds, the statement is of more than ordinary interest. He says Bryan sentiment is growing rapidly, and that unless unforeseen circumstances arise between now and election day, the ALLEGED HOLD-UP MAN IS CAPTURED.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a wild chase from Seventh and Broadway to the railroad tracks shortly before 1 a. m. R. W. Bateman, an alleged highway robber, was cornered in a shed and held there by citizens until officers came to effect his arrest.

Shortly after midnight Percy Johnson, a restaurant waiter, started up the stairs to his room and was seized by a man who had been following him. His brother upstairs heard the racket, and opening the door, called out and the man started to run. The Johnson brothers chased him, finally rounding him up in a shed near the railroad tracks.

CLOSE CONTRACT FOR FALLS' WORK

Power Dam and Paper and Pulp Plant to be Built.

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Engineers are at work here and actual construction will begin in a few days of the big power plant and the paper and pulp mill that the Backus-Brooks Lumber company is to build at this point. This is the best news International Falls has ever had and there is general rejoicing that the great enterprises are at last going forward.

Contracts have been awarded for the big dam and for the paper and pulp mill. The mill will be a large affair, 750x350 feet, and it is expected to have the foundations in before Christmas.

Several officials of the Backus-Brooks company arrived yesterday over the Minnesota & International on a special train and are looking over the sites today and consulting with the engineers.

"Neither in this nor other cases is a license revoked until facts have been ascertained, and while an examination in this matter is pending the department will take no action to sustain or condemn the management of the Foresters."

VIRGINIA STRONG FOR JOHNSON

Republican Tells Why Ranges Should Support Him.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an interview with a prominent Republican of this city in regard to the formation of a Taft and Jacobson club, he stated to The Herald representative that in his opinion it would be a hard matter to accomplish such a thing, as the club would be too small in membership to count for much. He stated that a Taft movement might gather quite a number of Republicans, but that the party was so split up on state candidates that only a small number of them would respond to the Jacobson movement. "Two-thirds of the Republicans of this city are for Johnson, and a large number of them will vote for Bryan, as you will note after the ballots are counted next month," he said. "Another thing that you may gamble on is that the Republican county ticket will not have a walkaway in the coming election, and I would not be at all surprised if at least two Democrats on the county ticket would be winners."

When asked who he thought the successful candidates would be, he unhesitatingly said: "Jesmore for sheriff and Thompson for clerk of the court."

He further stated that any resident of the ranges who did not favor the re-election of Governor Johnson certainly could not have the interests of the ranges at heart, nor his own interests either, for that matter. "Jacobson is the father of the famous tonnage tax bill, and I am afraid if he were elected governor he would use his influence to put that ignominious measure on the statute books of Minnesota, and that is one of my reasons for wishing the re-election of Governor Johnson. There are other reasons, too, but I haven't the time to enumerate them now."

TO INSTALL HEATING PLANT.

Itasca County Board Has Awarded Contract.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of county commissioners have had under consideration for some time the advisability of putting a heating plant in the county hospital at the poor farm.

The matter of economy was looked into carefully, and it was found that the saving of fuel would in time pay for the plant. Added to this the fact that a hot water plant would give much better satisfaction by vastly increasing the comfort of the premises, and also insure greater safety against fire, the putting in of a hot water heating plant was finally decided upon. Several bids were submitted, the lowest of which was that of the H. E. Adams Heating company of Minneapolis, being $1,085. The plant is to be installed at once.

TWO GAMES FOR TIGERS.

Will Play Two Harbors Saturday; Superior Maroons Sunday.

Early tomorrow morning will see the Irving Tigers of the West Duluth enroute for Two Harbors where they will tackle the team, which a short time ago went down to defeat before the Duluth Central High school team.

The Irving Tigers have an exceptionally strong team for their weight, which averages about 140 pounds. They have played together for the past three years, and in that time have never met with defeat, though last Sunday they were scored on for the first time by the Victors.

Sunday the West Duluth boys are scheduled to meet the Maroons of Superior, on the Wisconsin grounds. These two games, coming in succession promise to be a hard test for the Tigers. Both games are with teams that are classed a little higher in the local football world than those the West Duluth boys have been accustomed to take on, but they are confident, and promise that the Tigers will return with no kinks in its tail.

GRAIN INSPECTION DIVIDING ISSUE.

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—The National Grain Dealers' association, at its annual convention here, took up the subject of grain inspection, some of the delegates favoring a uniform system and some opposing it.

The discussion was brought on by E. H. Culver of Toledo, president of the Grain Inspectors' National association, who read a paper demanding the uniform system.

The opposition to the plan is principally among delegates from the Atlantic seaboard, who maintain that soil and climatic differences between various grain-producing sections make uniform inspection impracticable.

SUPERIOR NEWS

FAST TIME FROM OWEN

President Bradford's Special Makes Record Run on New Line.

Record time was made over the new Wisconsin Central extension from Owen to Superior today by President W. A. Bradford's special train. The new rails, but recently laid between Owen and Superior, were covered in four and one half hours.

Even for the older lines this is exceptionally good time. Over some stretches of the new road the special, which carried only two coaches, traveled at the rate of from sixty-five to seventy miles an hour.

President Bradford was accompanied by a number of the officials of the company, among whom were E. F. Potter, general superintendent; Sydney Courteen, a director from Milwaukee, and C. N. Kalk, chief engineer. This was the first time that President Bradford had been over the Head of the Lakes extension, and he was very much gratified with the progress that had been made since he was last in Superior.

The party had left Chicago following the company's annual meeting there. They stopped in Superior two hours inspecting the work, then came to Duluth, and plan to leave this evening for the Twin Cities.

A LEGAL TANGLE.

Free Telephone Question May be Settled in the Courts.

The ruling of the Wisconsin state rate commission that Superior telephone companies shall not furnish free telephone service is likely to end in the courts, as the People's Telephone company, when it obtained its franchise from the city, agreed to furnish ten free telephones to the city.

The commission decided that free telephones should cease on June 12, last, but by mutual agreement between the commission and the telephone company's attorneys, it was decided not to put the order into force until December, and it was not expected that the commission would take any action until that time.

Yesterday Senator G. B. Hudnall, attorney for the People's Telephone company, said that commencing next Monday, the city will be charged regular telephone rates. Judge Steele, attorney for the Douglas County Telephone company, which is under contract to furnish the city fourteen free telephones, says that the matter will be taken up with the management of the company. The Douglas County Telephone company has had an action brought against it by Douglas county, now pending, in which the company is charged with using discrimination in rates.

There is some question of whether the commission has a right to interfere with contracts or franchises made before the enactment of the law creating the commission. There is also some difference of opinion as to whether the city had a right to grant such contracts and franchises, and should it be determined that the franchise held by the People's Telephone comapny is invalid, the city would have no hold on the company, so far as telephone service is concerned.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

It took Mrs. Nora Mulligan, aged 27 years, only two weeks to find out that John F. Mulligan, aged 35 years, was not for her, and at the end of that time she deserted him. The couple were married in Grand Forks, December, 1903, and two weeks later they had separated. The husband asks a divorce.

It took Mary Byrns twenty-two years to find out that she and her husband John were mismated, and after living together that length of time she deserted in April of 1891 at Grand Rapids. They were married in the same town in 1869. Mr. Byrns is now 59, and Mrs. Byrns 52.

Divorce proceedings were filed with the clerk of the district court this morning by the husband.

ENGINEER IS WITNESS

Witnesses Allowed to Tell of Butte & Superior Strikes This Year.

Victor Radowsky, engineer for the Butte & Superior Copper company was on the stand this morning under cross-examination by Attorney Richards for the defense in the case of the Butte & Superior Copper company vs. John McAlpine in district court.

Mr. Richards led the witness through a mass of details in regard to conditions in the Butte camp, with the object of testing Mr. Rakowsky's knowledge. He asked Mr. Rakowsky minutely as to his study of the Butte camp, the claims over which he had gone, the underground workings he inspected, the veins he had followed and examined, etc. Almost every claim in the Butte camp was named during the examination, which brought out no new facts of interest.

Mr. Rakowsky was still on the stand under cross-examination at the noon adjournment.

The plaintiff got in some heavy work and brought out the first fireworks of several days in district court, yesterday afternoon.

After Judge Ensign had ruled that the plaintiff might show developments after Feb. 14, 1907, the date on which Mr. McAlpine gave his note, in rebuttal of Expert Meany's testimony that the mine was worthless on that date, Victor Rakowsky and C. R. Davis were questioned at length regarding bodies of ore unearthed during the present year.

The court allowed the introduction of the testimony after strong objections by Mr. Richards of the defense. He said he was totally unprepared to meet anything of the kind. After the ruling, he asked that he be allowed to examine the books and papers of the company after that date, but was informed that the matter could be adjusted only between Mr. Richards and the plaintiff's counsel, as he could not delay the trial to give the eight days' notice necessary for a motion for an order to produce and open for inspection. After the adjournment of court yesterday afternoon, Mr. Richards argued for an order allowing an expert to examine the Butte & Superior properties, but the court overruled the motion, holding that it had no right to send an expert down into a mine in Montana.

Mr. Rakowsky testified that a large body of ore had been opened up in the 500-foot level, about 500 feet east of the shaft on the Black Rock property. He said the vein was opened three or four feet wide and extended 100 feet above the floor of the 500-foot level. He said the shaft in the Black Rock property reached a depth of 1,000 feet about three or four months ago and a body of ore was opened up there about ninety feet south of the shaft in a cross-cut. He said the vein of valuable mineral was cut about twenty-five feet. He said the ore on the 500-foot level is very similar to that opened on the 1,000 foot level and that the dip of the vein between the two levels is about 70 degs., the dip of the main vein being about uniform.

The result of the concentration of ore, shipped from the Black Rock property about the middle of August to Dallas, Tex., where it was concentrated by the dry process in a testing mill there, was gone into by Mr. Hollister, with Mr. Rakowsky on the stand. The carload which consisted of 40,700 lbs., was taken from the 1,000 foot level of the Black Rock property under the supervision of C. R. Davis, superintendent, and Mr. Rakowsky attended the ore all through the process of concentration, which he described minutely.

He said that by the process, 83 and 84 per cent. of the product was saved, the percentage going off in the tailings being very small. He produced an oilcloth, which he personally spread on the concentrating table and on which a portion of the product was spread, with the aid of glue. He pointed out on the sheet the different portions of lead, carrying copper, iron, zinc and waste product.

C. R. Davis was called to the stand to identify the carload of ore and to give the results of an assay of it before it was shipped to Dallas. He told of taking out the ore from the 1,000-foot level and of billing it to Dallas.

He said he had secured a car sample during the loading of the car and had personally had it assayed. The result, he said, showed 9.20 oz. of silver to the ton, .02 oz. of gold, estimated at 40 cents, 1.1 per cent. of copper, and 21.50 per cent. of zinc.

Mr. Rakowsky was recalled to the stand and said that such ore as that assayed and concentrated was of merchantable quality and of good value. He said he thought that the vein continued in equal richness through the Butte & Superior properties. He said that ore had been shipped from the Niagara to the Anaconda smelter and the surface conditions on the other claims were very similar to those on the Black Rock and Niagara.

Mr. Rakowsky was under cross-examination by Mr. Richards when court adjourned for the day.

SYSTEM IS DENOUNCED

American Women Suffragists Have No Use for British Method.

The National Convention Opens With Anna Howard Shaw Presiding.

New York, Oct. 16.—The suffragettes movement in its local development was taken into the courts when Miss Mary Coleman, member of a law firm, secured from Justice Blanchard in the supreme court an order directing the bureau of elections to show cause tomorrow why a writ of mandamus should not issue compelling them to allow the name of Mrs. Julia Seton Zars to be placed on the register of voters. Mrs Zars had been refused permission to register when she appeared before a registration board on the upper West Side. Miss Coleman, well known among New York advocates of woman suffrage, said that the present action was brought as a test case.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The fortieth annual convention of the national American woman suffrage association was called to order by the president, Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, who called attention to the progress made by the workers for woman suffrage, and predicted even more rapid advancement of the cause in the future. It was a day of welcomes. Mayor J. N. Adams extended a greeting to the delegates at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

A letter of Mrs. Annie Cobden Sanderson, the English suffragist organizer, advising American suffragists to "introduce into our organization more of the fire of revolt, more denunciation, and more insistent demand that the women may have the power and the liberty to work for the world's moral regeneration" was given out.

TAKES ACID BY MISTAKE

Death Soon Followed—Wife With Him at the Time.

George Tidrick, 38 years of age, mistook a bottle of carbolic acid for alcohol last evening at his rooms in the Oppel block, 115 East Superior street, and died within half an hour after taking a drink of the contents. Dr. Robert Graham was called, but in spite of all he could do the unfortunate man's life could not be saved.

Tidrick is said to have been drinking heavily lately, but he was gradually conquering the habit, and according to his wife, who was with him at the time of death, expected to be able to go entirely without intoxicants within a few days. Seeing her husband's mistake Mrs. Tidrick telephoned Dr. Graham, and pending his arrival was told to administer a liberal dose of alcohol. She gave the man a drink of whisky, followed a little later by one of alcohol, and when the doctor arrived Tidrick was not suffering much, and Dr. Graham found it hard to believe that he really had taken carbolic acid.

There were no marks of burns about the lips or mouth, and it was not until his throat was examined that evidences of the deadly poison were found. Tidrick grew worse very rapidly and died within a few minutes after the doctor's arrival.

His wife was heartbroken over the affair. She has no relatives in Duluth. With the exception of a brother, William Hall, who is employed in a broker's office in Minneapolis, her people all live at Springfield, Ill.

The deceased was general agent for the Fairbanks' Soap company, and had many friends in Duluth. He has been a member of the Minneapolis lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, since its organization last spring. The body was taken in charge by Durkan & Crawford, who will ship it to Springfield, Ill., for interment.

Etta M. Kell yesterday filed a complaint against her husband, William G. Kell, in a suit for divorce in district court. She charges cruelty and says her husband has beaten her on several occasions during the past year. She says her husband is also jealous and has made false charges of infidelity against her. She says her husband is a freight conductor on the Northern Pacific railroad and earns from $130 to $150 a month. A hearing will be held tomorrow morning on the question of temporary alimony.

Crossings at Fond du Lac.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Cement walks are completed this fall at Fond du Lac, and as the property owners have laid out a great deal of money to improve the town, which they were not compelled to do until next spring, the city fathers should do their part and order crossings to be put in this fall which are badly needed.

SWEETHEART IS WON BY FORCE

Cleveland Man Weds Woman, Though She Had Said "No."

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16.—The way to marry a spirited woman who says "no" to one's proposal is to pay no attention at all to what she says, but just to go ahead and wed her.

Landon T. James, Baltimore & Ohio engineer, hands out this advice. James ought to know. The young widow he loved had him arrested twice last week when he put this theory into practice. The object of his tender regard complained that he broke in her door to make her sign an application for the marriage license.

On top of this comes the announcement that the wedding is set for Monday. James wore a smile as wide as his collar when he set out on his locomotive run Wednesday.

In court, when James was tried last week, it did not look a bit like James was going to win. He got a suspended workhouse sentence and heavy fines on two charges, and was told if he did not suspend his peremptory sort of wooing the suspended sentences would get unsuspended immediately.

But James' method of wooing had already had its effect. Tuesday evening, according to announcement from the Baltimore & Ohio yards, Mrs. Mamie Johnson, who is the object of James' affections, telephoned him. She told him he might call.

Grit—That's Us.

That is why America leads the world in athletic sports. It isn't the much talked of mixture of races; it isn't the climate, for we have every variety of climate in the United States and our champions come from every part of the country. It is the national spirit that makes America take the lead in everything that requires quickless, determination, dash and grit; and then, too, some people are of the opinion that it is due to the daily use of a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. This delicious table beverage has won a dignified place in the American home by reason of its pure, wholesome qualities. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

CORNSTALKS FOR PAPER.

Experts Learn Wood Pulp is Not Only Available Material.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Government chemists, in the department of agriculture, have learned, after a long series of experiments, that corn stalks are a good substitute for wood pulp in the making of paper.

Almost as fine a grade of paper may be made from corn stalks, the experts say, as can be produced from wood pulp. This discovery will greatly lessen the cost of paper, as the corn stalks can be purchased, and the process of manufacture may be carried on at even less than half the expense necessary when wood pulp is used.

NEGRO EDITORS CENSURE TAFT

Convention Passes Resolutions Denouncing Republican Nominee.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 16.—The Eastern and Interstate Negro Press convention, being held in the John Wesley A. M. E. Zion church this week, has brought to this city over 100 of the leading negro editors and writers of the Eastern, Middle and Southern states.

In a declaration of principles and a set of resolutions adopted yesterday, Senator Foraker and Governor Deneen of Illinois are lauded, while the administration of President Roosevelt, and the attitude of Nominee William H. Taft are censured.

CO-EDS HAZE BOY STUDENT.

Seven Athletic Girls Tie Sophomore to Tree and Leave Him.

Alton, Ill., Oct. 16.—That co-education in at least one sense is a success was proved today when seven pretty co-ed freshmen of Shurtleff college gave Raymond Carr, a member of the sophomore class, a hazing that he will not soon forget.

Carr was pounced upon by the seven girls. The co-eds were athletic and when he was lifted to his feet his clothing was torn and his face bleeding.

He was tied to a tree and then deserted. He was rescued several hours later by a professor.

Illinois Has Prairie Fire.

Duquoin, Ill., Oct. 16.—A prairie fire has been raging in Perry county for more than twenty-four hours, and the efforts of farmers to check the flames, have thus far availed little. Hundreds of acres north, west and south of this place have been swept by the flames and many large barns and haystacks hve been destroyed.

CURWOOD NOT DEAD.

Intimate Friend Scoffs at Story That Author Was Murdered.

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 16.—Capt. Roland, who is the personal friend of James Oliver Curwood, the American magazine writer, says the story that Curwood has been killed by Indians is ridiculous. Roland saw Curwood a few weeks ago, in fact, since the time he was supposed to have been killed. Curwood was expected back from the Lac du Rouge district the beginning of the month and Roland says his slight delay is no cause for uneasiness, doubtless being due to natural causes.

EXPRESS MONEY ORDERS OPPOSED.

Washington, Oct. 16.—The right of the various express companies to issue money orders and other commercial paper was involved in a hearing before the interstate commerce commission in the case of the America Bankers' association against a number of express companies. The bankers' organization claims that the practice of the express companies in issuing bills of exchange and money orders and transporting over their own lines currency and coin to liquidate them unjustly discriminates against the bankers who are obliged to pay certain rates on shipments of currency and coin to satisfy their commercial paper.

POODLE HAS SHOWER BATH.

Also Private Room in Plaza, Tutor, Maid and Special Menu.

New York, Oct. 16.—Nana, a French poodle, owned by Edward Ellsworth, a real estate operator, now has more luxurious accommodations in the Plaza than have been provided for any other pet housed in the hotel since the opening of the establishment. A private room, a tutor, a maid, a private bath and a special menu are among the items on the list of necessaries of life provided for the dog today. Orders were given that nobody is to be permitted to enter the room assigned to Nana. In the room a bathtub, with a shower bath attachment, was placed for the use of the poodle.

TAFT ONLY A 1 TO 5 SHOT

James O'Leary issued his odds last night and they indicate the judgment of a person who in such matters is not sentimental or influenced by political preference.

The odds announced are: Taft, 1 to 5; Bryan, 4 to 1.

WITNESSES TELL OF POWDER TRUST.

New York, Oct. 16.—Further testimony, through which it is sought to establish the existence of an illegal combination of gunpowder manufacturers was introduced at a hearing before Special United States Commissioner Mahaffy in connection with the investigation instituted by the federal department of justice into the powder trust. APPLES ARE A FEATURE

Now Principal Fruit on the Local Produce Market.

The apple is the feature of the local produce market now.

They have been arriving fitfully for weeks, but now they are coming in earnest and the season for them is at its height.

Practically every variety is now being offered here, and at prices which are a dollar to a dollar and a half lower than they were at the same time last year. And the commission men say that the quality is much better than at that time. In fact, they can hardly say enough about the good quality of this season's apple crop.

According to variety, apples are selling at $3.50 to $4.50 a barrel.

"Duluth is particularly favored in the matter of apples," said a commission merchant today. "In buying this fruit, at least, this city has the better of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

"Most of the apples sold here come from New York and it is possible to bring them to our very doors by boat, which method of transportation is cheaper than by rail. The Twin Cities have to pay railroad freight and the consequence is that apples are usually from 25 to 50 cents a barrel higher in the Twin Cities than they are here."

Some western apples are received here, but not many in comparison with the receipts from New York. It does not pay to bring apples here from the West, all the way by rail, when it is possible to secure eastern apples so handily by boat. And the dealers say the New York apples cannot be beaten anywhere, so Duluth need not complain.

Receipts have been large, Baldwins, Greenings, Russetts, Kings and Nonesuch are coming in good quantities. A few Ben Davis apples have also been received.

While apples are the principal fruit offered now, bananas are always on tap and the grape supply is holding out fairly well. Some fancy grapes will be in the market all winter.

Bananas are steady at 4 cents.

Concord grapes are 22 cents a basket and Tokay grapes $1.35, which price is somewhat easier than last week's.

Peaches have "vamoosed" and will remain "vamoosed" until next August. Tomatoes, cucumbers and other green vegetables are practically out of the market. They will be coming from now on from the hothouses, but receipts of hothouse vegetables are never very large, for the demand is not excessive.

Pumpkins are plentiful, so that Duluthians who want them for pie material or autumnal decorations can find them in assorted sizes at the stores. On Michigan street they are selling at $1.25 to $1.50 per dozen. Squashes are selling at $1.25 to $1.50 a dozen, according to size.

Potatoes are a little easier, being quoted today at 65 to 75 cents a bushel. Sweet potatoes are still in the market and are of good quality. They are selling at $1.30 per bushel.

Prices for other fruits and vegetables are unchanged from a week ago.

The firmness in the butter and egg market continues—and is expected to through the winter months.

In the butter market creamery prints are quoted on Michigan street at 29 to 30 cents a pound, and other grades are correspondingly high.

Fresh eggs are 23 cents. Some storage eggs are coming out at this price as well. Receipts of strictly fresh eggs are becoming a little scarce, so some storage stocks are being brought forth. There is no difference now between their price and that of the eggs which have never seen the cold storage places.

Although eggs are higher, prices for poultry are lower. Spring chickens are 13 to 14 cents and hens are selling at 12 to 13 cents. Turkeys are 22 to 25 cents and ducks are a little firmer at 15 cents.

In the local market pork is practically the only feature of the week. Pork prices have been steadily declining since harvest days ended and the farmers began shipping their hogs to market in larger numbers. Pork loins are selling here for 11 to 11½ cents wholesale. Other meats are unchanged in price from a week ago.

FOUND BUT ONE CURE FOR ECZEMA

Many Different Remedies and Even Hospital Failed—Suffered 3 Years with Severe Itching, Scurfy Skin—Could Hardly Stop Scratching.

THANKFUL FOR PERFECT RESULTS OF CUTICURA

"About three years ago I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scurfy skin on my ankles and feet. I could hardly keep from scratching. In a few days large red patches appeared and after that pimples formed. I went to the hospital, and the doctors pronounced it a very bad case of eczema. I went to the hospital two months and obtained a very little relief, so I tried many different remedies for at least ten months, but none seemed to cure me. They would relieve me for a week or two, then my skin would be full of pimples, the same as ever. Lately I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I am very thankful I did, for, after using the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, I was completely cured. I hope that any one suffering as I did will try the Cuticura Remedies. Miss Teckla Pech, 1422 Fifth St., Highlandtown, Md., Jan. 14, 1908."

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone company in "On Parole."

"ON PAROLE."

Mack-Leone Players Repeat Their Former Success at Lyceum.

The Mack-Leone players repeated their former success in "On Parole" at the Lyceum last evening, the audience giving every evidence of the appreciation of Louis Evan Shipman's Civil war drama.

"On Parole" was played by Vincent Serrano and Charlotte Walker in the Shubert theaters during the time those astute New Yorkers were out of the Klaw & Erlanger theatrical fold. The Mack-Leone players tried it here last summer, with the result that their production was so favorably received that the play was retained as the principal piece in the Mack-Leone repertoire.

There is no denying that the management has displayed liberality in mounting the play and the rose garden in the last act is quite all that the advance notices said of it. As for the acting Mr. Mack, Miss Leone and their associates, they are admirably cast and have caught the war-time spirit with which to augment Mr. Shipman's lines and the result is an interesting love story, with plenty of clanking swords, dusty campaign hats, sentries and other accessories of the war drama. The production, both scenically and dramatically, is rich in color.

Mr. Mack imparts to the leading male character the same soldierly bearing and earnest love of country and love of girl that bespoke so much for his performance when he first essayed the role last summer.

In the opposite role, that of the Southern planter's beautiful and accomplished daughter, Miss Leone finds a congenial task. She is excellent in her scenes with Mr. Mack and manages her Southern dialect very nicely.

Jay Quigley's work as Gen. Pinckney is quite as effective as it was when last seen here and Mr. Joyner, in his character "bit," the forlorn Confederate soldier, scored with last night's audience. Mr. Farnum as Tom Cress, Mr. Hick as Capt. Frazer, and the other members of the cast give excellent performances.

The play will be repeated this evening and tomorrow afternoon and night.

TAFT SAYS OKLAHOMA BANKERS ARE EMBEZZLERS

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16.—Acting on his declaration that "The South is a part of the Union and as such entitled to be considered in the presidential campaign," Taft spent the day speaking in the towns and cities of Kentucky.

He is the first Republican presidential candidate to campaign in the Blue Grass State. Taft said regarding guarantee bank deposits:

"By that proposition, Bryan is going to make every respectable honest banker become the security of anybody that desires to go into the banking business with the idea of getting a large line of deposits with a very small capital.

"In Oklahoma, the place that they try out these experiments, they are now finding that banks are being organized by people that have failed in the banking business before, by men that are under charges of embezzlement, but who are able to get deposits by saying to depositors:

"'I am a good fellow and want you to help me out. Put your money in my bank, because this million-dollar bank up here of Mr. Smith's is my security that you will get your deposits back.'"

Most Beautiful Woman in Europe Advertises for Husband.

Stage Beauties and American Heiresses Coax Elusive Males.

London, Oct. 16.—As a consequence of the recent revelations of the duping of a German woman by Oscar Goldberger a sham nobleman who obtained her savings under promise of marriage, the London police are investigating the very extensive matrimonial agency business which is done in this city. One concern recently boasted that it had been the means of arranging no less than 15,000 marriages in forty years, whereupon its biggest competitor immediately rushed into print with the statement that it brought about on an average at least 1,000 marriages a year.

The majority of these alliances are brought about through the publications, issued by the various agencies containing alluring advertisements for the matrimonially inclined. American heiresses, popular actresses, titled ladies, widows, girls still in their teens and servants, all, figuratively speaking, rub shoulders in these amazing publications. As high as $1,250,000 is mentioned as the dowry of one particularly anxious candidate for matrimonial bliss, while countless of the fair sex claim all the virtues, and a majority of the charms, and really make one's mouth water in the reading of their advertisements.

It is generally supposed that American ladies with fortunes in their own right and millionaire fathers have a superfluity of suitors, but such does not appear to be the case as in one of the matrimonial publications we find a woman of that description advertising month in and month out in the following terms:

"To English gentlemen. An American lady with about $17,500 per annum wants to meet English gentleman belonging to a first-class family. Money is no object so long as he can introduce her to several high society people. Advertiser's father is about one of the wealthiest men in the United States, and will give $200,000 for an English home for his daughter when married."

Money no Object.

Another who does not seem to be as fine a financial prize, sets forth her desires like this:

"American lady, 41, own income $10,000 per annum, wants to marry a gentleman about same age or younger. Money no object if suitable in other ways."

America, however, is not the only country with an excess of unmarried women, as we find one from the country of King Alfonso advertising thus:

"Spanish lady, 29, tall, splendid figure and very beautiful, well known in theatrical world, wishes to meet a gentleman with $25,000 a year, view matrimony. Age no object."

France is in line with a member of her nobility in the following:

"A French lady, 39, golden hair, splendid complexion, dark eyes, height five feet 7½ inches, weight just under twelve stone, not at all too stout, having a magnificent figure, three years ago refused to marry a well-known English nobleman, desires matrimony."

Evidently, the French lady regrets her refusal. A countrywoman of hers desires matrimony with an English or French gentleman of means equal to her own, which is over $50,000 per year. In no case, she says, will letters be answered unless a photograph is inclosed.

That the popular idols of the stage should be driven to advertisements for husbands does not agree with the general impression, but such, nevertheless, is the fact. One advertisement reads:

"Lady, tall and dark, been on the stage for five years, good figure and very musical, age 24, would like to meet a gentleman, must be tall and fair, private income. Country life preferred."

An Actress Writes.

"Actress under 30 years of age, exceptionally pretty and good figure, tall, fair and good dresser, has played leading parts both in London and provinces, and quite recently returned to town from an eighteen-month tour, where she has been playing with great success. Lady by birth and education, wishes to marry a gentleman about 40."

The very evident modesty of the applicant who advertises in the following terms will commend itself to all:

"Titled lady with large private income and a town and country house, considered to be the most beautiful woman in Europe, desires to correspond with a gentleman with private income."

Yet another, refusing to pass judgment on herself, drags her friends to her help:

"Young lady with luxuriant tresses of auburn hair, and the prettiest violet eyes, with a very fascinating way (so her friends say) desires to correspond with an Englis gentleman, who must be refined, kind and affectionate, no bad habits and must be fond of home."

Those who are well acquainted with the English nobility will regard the chances of the young lady who advertises for a "titled gentleman, not over 45 years of age, good looking and intelligent, with a normal amount of brains," as very nearly hopeless, but seeing that she is the third daughter of a titled lady, with $125,000 per annum, and expects to inherit at least half of her mother's income, she is hardly asking for more than her due.

Who can help sympathizing with, and perhaps shedding a silent tear, for the lady who strikes this plaintive note?

"Lonely lady, never having the opportunity of meeting anyone, feels she is wasting her life away when she knows she could make someone happy in this weary world."

Firm Flesh Versus Fat

Fat women who are contemplating a new gown in the mode will have to contemplate a reduction of their flesh before they visit the dressmaker.

Fortunately this is nothing like the hard labor it was when one had nothing but exercising or dieting to get results with. Nowadays a short course of the Marmola Prescription Tablets should bring any woman, however fat, to the proportions necessary for her to wear a Directoire gown.

Let her take a Marmola Tablet (made in accordance with the famous prescription and, therefore, harmless) after each meal and at bedtime, and she should very soon be losing a pound a day. This result, accomplished without disturbing one's table customs, forming wrinkles or distressing the stomach, astonishes everybody.

Even one large case, costing only 75 cents at any druggist's, or the same amount direct by mail from the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., gives positive results. This constitutes the acme of economy.

RICH WOMAN MAY DECIDE ELECTION

Sister-in-Law of Taft Ready to Contribute $1,000,000.

"A woman with vast wealth stands ready to finance the political campaign of Judge Taft in the last days before election if the question of victory or defeat rests on $1,000,000.

"Democratic managers have heard that Mrs. Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, sister-in-law of the candidate, whose inherited fortune amounts to perhaps two score of millions, is the financial power that may decide the election, in case of necessity.

"The persons most responsible for Judge Taft's candidacy are two women and one man—Mrs. Taft, Mrs. C. P. Taft and President Roosevelt. The women's part was, perhaps, the more important. They induced him to turn aside from a determination for a judicial life and to enter the presidential race.

"President Roosevelt applied his political power to bringing about the nomination and furthering the campaign, but it has been one woman's inspiration and another's enthusiasm and wealth that have pushed the man along.

"Many a presidential election has been decided in the last two weeks, when a dollar properly expended gives far greater practical results than earlier in the campaign. It was the late Senator Hanna's plan to throw the weight of money into the battle at the critical moment, just as a general would concentrate the forces of his army in a final overpowering assault.

"In the campaign of 1896 a million dollars of Republican money were expended in the last two weeks, and the result was instantly felt in half a dozen doubtful states. Even Nebraska was swept out from under Bryan in the last seven days by outpouring of cash.

Senator Quay's Methods.

"Senator M. S. Quay carried the election of 1888 for Harrison by the use of money during the last week. He applied thousands of dollars of contributed funds to public betting to gain the benefit of manufactured public sentiment. By enormous plunges his commissioners changed adverse odds into favorable odds for the Republican candidate, and had considerable effect on the crucial state of New York.

"In the present campaign scarcity of funds has atrophied many of the arteries of practical politics. Organization has been neglected; enthusiasm lies dormant. Indifference is so dominant that the Taft managers are inclined to revert to old methods to insure victory.

"These require money, which the treasury does not afford. This is where Mrs. C. P. Taft's wealth may come in. It is believed in Democratic circles that the Taft family intend to let the regular campaign managers exert their best endeavors first in the financial line. If enough money is raised to carry along the campaign fairly well and the prospects of victory are encouraging there will be no need of private assistance.

"But if a cry for help goes up, if the contest assumes a critical aspect, if there is danger of Judge Taft going down to defeat, then the family purse will open and the wealth that old David Sinton hoarded will be poured out in a golden stream. A million dollars would be a small expenditure to put the family name in history."

HAS WOMAN BILL POSTER.

Paris Boasts of Girl Who Wields Paste Brush Expertly.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The first female bill sticker has appeared in the streets of Paris. She wears a long, white smock frock and carries her pot of paste, her brushes and her posters in a business-like way. She has learned all the arts of bill sticking, which is not so easy an accomplishment as it seems, and the oldest male hand cannot give her points.

At first she had to stand much chaff, but she is a powerful woman, with a quick tongue, so she can answer back with the best of them, and little boys who thought it safe to "guy" her soon found it was not and felt the whack of her paste brush.

HAVE TOO MANY TEACHERS.

Hundreds Who Left English Schools in June Still Lack Jobs.

London, Oct. 16.—A glut in the teacher market in England is the latest labor phenomenon. Hundreds of teachers who left the training colleges in June are still without employment. Two causes are assigned for this—first, high education rates, which have led local authorities to think about economizing on the teaching staff; and, secondly, the enormously increased facilities for the training of teachers which have come into existence since the education act of 1902 was passed.

Immediately rate aid was given to the voluntary schools—which previously had only been able to afford short staffs—a big demand for teachers arose, and there was really a dearth. That dearth has now been overtaken, and the cry of the unemployed teacher is beginning to be heard.

MANHATTAN COCKTAIL HELD INTOXICATING.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 16.—"A Manhattan cocktail is generally and popularly known as an intoxicating liquor, and no proof of its intoxicating character is necessary in prosecutions under the prohibitory law."

By a unanimous decision of the Kansas supreme court, the character of the Manhattan cocktail today was officially determined in the language quoted above.

This rather unusual decision was called forth in the appeal of Robert Figg, convicted in Shawnee county of running a joint, the state relying for its case upon the sale of two Manhattan cocktails to Leona Larson and Kittie Edie. The defendant appealed on the ground that there was no evidence to show that the Manhattan cocktail is an intoxicating drink.

The supreme court says: "The Century dictionary defines a cocktail as 'An American drink, strong, stimulating and cold, made of spirits, bitters and a little sugar, with various aromatic and stimulating additions.'

"The particular kind of cocktail under discussion is popularly understood to have taken its name from the island whose inhabitants first became addicted to its use. While its characteristics are not so widely known as whisky, brandy or gin, it is our understanding that a Manhattan cocktail is generally and popularly known to be intoxicating."

MUST DRINK MORE WATER

Nature's Great Remedy for All Diseases, Says Authority.

Try This at Home for Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism.

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well-known authority. "The numerous cases of kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

Stop loading your system with medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why of course, take the proper medicines—plain common vegetable treatment which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

To cure Rheumatism you must make the kidneys do their work, they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism, the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions you can do no better than take the following prescription: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon, one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often.

This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

CHAMP CLARK OFFSETS TAFT

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16.—Before 2,500 people that packed the Masonic theater from pit to roof, Congressman Champ Clark played the role of Democratic counter-attraction to Judge Taft. Mr. Clark was very hoarse and made no attempt at a sustained argument. His voice failed him frequently, and by preference he devoted his time to sharp shooting at the Republican platform and party record, turning loose a fusillade of sarcasm, epigrams and funny stories to the accompaniment of almost continuous mirth and applause from his hearers.

MEET AFTER MANY YEARS.

Playmates Who Had Not Seen Each Other in Twenty-One Years.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 16.—Separated for twenty-one years, H. M. Mifflin and Dr. G. L. Powell of Minot, who were boys together in Newfoundland years ago, have met in Minot.

Mr. Mifflin now lives in Seattle, Wash. Years ago he lived in the same town in Newfoundland as Dr. Powell and his parents lived in, and the two who used to play together thirty years ago, had not seen each other for twenty-one years.

ROMANCE OF SCHOOL DAYS REVEALED BY THE ARRIVAL OF MAJOR CARMELLO CASTRO

Brother of President of Venezuela Said to Have a Sweetheart in Saratoga, Though He Won't Admit It.

Saratoga, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Major Carmello Castro, brother of the president of the republic of Venezuela, has arrived in New York and, according to a dispatch, a pretty schoolgirl sweetheart in Syracuse awaits his coming with great pleasure.

Major Castro is 26 and is a graduate of St. Johns Military School of Manlius. He left Manlius a year ago after spending three years there. He was a popular fellow and he met many Syracuse people.

Major Castro is 27 and is a graduate of "catch" in Venezuela. He arrived in the metropolis accompanied by Lieut. Henrique Carzala, his aide-de-camp.

"What am I here for?" he began when interviewers surrounded him. "Merely a pleasure trip. I shall spend four weeks in the United States and then go to France for the winter. No, I haven't come to obtain artillerymen in the United States for the coast defenses of Venezuela."

"Have you come to look for an American wife?" he was asked.

"Ah!ra" thundered the South American warrior. "Of that I shall say nothing," and he boarded a cab for the Hotel Empire.

Whether the major expects to visit Syracuse and his sweetheart could not be learned.

When asked about the political outlook in Venezuela, Major Castro said he was not "up" on that subject as he was an army man and the Venezuelan army, unlike some others, he said, is free from politics. But, when pressed, he did talk more or less freely on the Venezuelan situation.

"The honor of all the countries in the Venezuelan controversy," he said, "will be thoroughly satisfied with the decision of the Board of Arbitration, and this I think will be the final act in the drama in the Carribean."

Major Castro announced that his brother, President Castro, will complete his term of office in 1910 and will immediately tour the United States for several months. Although but twenty-seven years old, Major Castro is a veteran of several wars and, as an Englishman on the deck expressed it, is "jolly well hacked up," as a result of stopping flying machettes, bullets and things with his face on various battlefields.

He fought side by side with his brother, the president, in the war four years ago and was twice dangerously wounded. He got his first taste of battle when but sixteen years old, at which time he fought through the entire Columbian war.

Lieut. Corvala asserted that the health of President Castro is excellent and that the Major is the President's favorite brother. The father of all the Castros is also hale and hearty, living in the Andes, at the age of eighty-four.

A report had preceded Major Castro to the effect that his purpose in coming to this country was to make arrangement for forming an artillery corps to go to Venezuela to man the coast defenses because of the strained relations between Venezuela and Holland.

Major Castro, however, declared that his visit had nothing whatever to do with the international or political affairs of Venezuela and that his trip is one of pleasure only. He denied that he had any intention of forming an artillery corps for the defense of Venezuela.

It is said that a force of secret service men has been detailed to keep near the Major, ostensibly to protect him from any possible harm, although it is hinted that this secret service guard will keep account of all his visits to personages of distinction and keep Washington informed thereof. In other words, Washington, apparently, is not quite sure just why the Major is here.

CASES OF INTEREST

CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT OF APPRENTICESHIP.—The contract of an apprentice provided that he should serve an apprenticeship of four years and thirty days at varying rates, the number of hours amounting in all to 12,200. At the expiration of the contract he was also to receive $100. When he had worked 11,539½ hours, the compensation for a part of which had been voluntarily increased above the contract price, he was informed that his time had expired, but that on account of the increase in his wages he was not entitled to the $100 referred to above. He was also informed at a later date that the time had not yet expired. He had been at the company's shop for four years and two months. In Denver Engineering Works vs. Newman, 95 Pacific Reporter, 175, the supreme court of Colorado held that as the increase in wages had been voluntarily made, it did not affect the right to the $100, and that the time put in was sufficient.

DUE PROCESS OF LAW IN ASSESSMENTS FOR PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.—The city of Denver enacted an ordinance authorizing certain improvements, and which undertook to determine that all necessary preliminary proceedings were had as required by the city charter. The charter makes such determination conclusive. Subsequently, notice that objectians would be heard, if filed within a certain time, was published, but no time or place of hearing was specified. Written objections were filed within the specified time, but no opportunity for arguing was given. The United States supreme court held in Londoner vs. Denver, 28 Supreme court Reporter, 708, that the law making the decision of the council conclusive of preliminary proceedings was constitutional, but that the failure to give opportunity for oral argument rendered the assessment invalid.

TURNTABLE DOCTRINE.—Defendants left some large gas pipes in a position to be easily moved by children. In an action to recover for the death of a child killed by one of the pipes rolling over him, the cause of the accident was held to be the act of leaving the gas pipes in the street, and was referred to by the St. Louis court of appeals in O'Hara vs. Laclede Gas Light company, 110 Southwestern Reporter, 642, as a "death trap for children playing upon the street," in rendering judgment for plaintiff.

JURISDICTION OF EARTHLY COURTS.—In Conner vs. Skaggs, 111 Southwestern Reporter, 1152, wherein one daughter had been discriminated against by a parent because her marriage did not please him, the Missouri supreme court, speaking by Judge Lamm, finds from the evidence that there was no undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity, and therefore affirms the judgment of the lower court against the contestant, but adds this interesting bit of advice to the other heirs: "There is inferential evidence, as we see it, that the mother, when the hand of death rested heavily on her, left an injunction that the more fortunate children and grandchildren of Joseph Skaggs may find lasting happiness in remembering and obeying—an injunction meaning that they should see to it that the unbending rigor of their father's will should be tempered with equity and mercy. The enforcement of that tender and solemn injunction lies far beyond the jurisdiction and domain of earthly courts, but, peradventure, it is none the less a proper subject of judicial comment and judicial hope."

LIABILITY OF MARRIED WOMEN.—The United States circuit court, in Allen-West Commission company vs. Grumbles, 161 Federal Reporter, 461, in deciding on the liability of a married woman to garnishment by her husband's creditors, where the original action was instituted under section 379 of Kirby's Digest against the husband, says the decisive question is whether a personal judgment can be rendered against her, and decides that it cannot be, and that the proceedings should not be maintained.

SPLITTING CAUSES OF ACTION.—An agent employed for five years at a salary of $3,000 per year was discharged after serving six months. He brought an action for the damages he sustained and which he might sustain up to the time of the trial, "but without prejudice to his right to bring subsequent suit or suits for damages accruing after the trial of this cause." Damages were agreed upon by counsel, should plaintiff be allowed to recover on the complaint. Judgment was for plaintiff. Another action was brought for wages which accrued after this verdict. The United States circuit court held in Flanders vs. Canada, A. & P. S. S. C., 161 Federal Reporter, 378, that, notwithstanding the defendant's contention that there was but one cause of action originally, this objection not being raised upon the first trial could not be on the second.

JURISDICTION OF ELECTION CONTEST.—The Idaho supreme court in Toncray vs. Budge, 95 Pacific Reporter, 26, construed an election contest law of that state. Proceedings were instituted in the district court to test the right of defendant to hold the office of district judge because of alleged constitutional ineligibility. Defendant demurred on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction of the district court and of failure to state sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action. The supreme court has jurisdiction of such cases under statute, but the constitution states that "district courts have original jurisdiction in all cases both at law and equity." The court held that an election contest is a proceeding of statutory origin and not necessarily of a judicial nature. This right being created by the legislature, that body could designate what tribunal should exercise jurisdiction. Complainant also claimed that a constitutional question was involved which the legislature had no right to submit to the district court; but it was held that where as a means to determine the right to office by proceeding on information was also provided, and constitutional questions might be litigated therein, there was no objection to allowing the question of eligibility of candidates to be passed on by a tribunal other than the one provided for by the constitution.

PROPERTY RIGHTS OF CATHOLIC CHURCH IN PORTO RICO.—The claim of the Municipality of Ponce in Porto Rico to a Catholic church edifice said to have been erected with municipal funds and the contention that the church had no existence as a corporate entity so as to enable it to hold property was settled by the United States supreme court, in Ponce vs. Roman Catholic Apostolic Church, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 737, affirming the decision of the supreme court of Porto Rico in favor of the church, holding that wherever the funds came from, they were irrevocably donated to the church; that the church had been recognized as a legal entity, and as its rights had been acknowledged in the treaty of Paris and in concordats between Spain and the papacy they could not now be denied.

EFFECT OF NONUSER OF PATENT.—Although the holder of a patent makes no use of it because of the expense in making necessary changes in machinery, the United States supreme court in Continental Paper Bag Co. vs. Eastern Paper Bag Co., 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 748, holds the nonuser not unreasonable where there is no proof that the cost of the product was increased or the output diminished.

FORFEITURE OF FRANCHISE.—In Delmar Jockey Club vs. Missouri, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 732, the jurisdiction of the United States supreme court is invoked to set aside the decision of the Missouri supreme court revoking the franchise of plaintiff in error. In answer to an information in quo warranto the club entered a general denial followed by certain allegations which the state court held to constitute a plea in confession and avoidance destroying the effect of the general denial and insufficient as a defense. Judgment of ouster was granted on motion for judgment, on the pleadings. The United States supreme court held the contention frivolous that the decision of the state court violated the Federal Constitution as finding defendant guilty of violation of its franchise without trial and dismissed the writ of error.

SUFFICIENCY OF ACCUSATION TO SUPPORT EXTRADITION.—The United States supreme court in construing that section of the constitution of the United States which provides for extradition of persons accused of "treason, felony, or other crime," held in Pierce vs. Creecy, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 714, that in extradition proceedings it was only necessary to show that a crime had been committed, and that the fact that it appeared on the face of the indictment that prosecution was barred by limitation was not a proper question for consideration.

RESTRAINING ACTS OF STRIKES.—The opinion of Judge Farrington of the United States circuit court for the district of Nevada in Goldfield Consolidated Mines company vs. Goldfield Miners' union, 159 Federal Reporter, 500, while recognizing the right of workmen to discontinue their services at any time, holds that they have no right to intimidate, either by threats or acts, other persons desiring to work. The miners' union, after knowing that pickets were doing unlawful acts, continued to co-operate with them. The court said that this was sufficient to show complicity with them.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.—Defendants, who were attorneys employed by the defense in a murder trial, on denial of an application for a postponement, were told they must be ready to proceed on a certain day less than a week later. One, only, appeared and argued a motion for a continuance, which was denied, though they were allowed three days more. Neither then appeared, both having left the jurisdiction. An order was then issued for their arrest for contempt. The supreme court of Michigan in re McHugh et. al., 116 Northwestern Reporter, 459, affirmed the decision of the lower court, that each should pay a fine of $250 and that one in addition should spend thirty days in jail.

ACCIDENTS AT RAILROAD CROSSINGS.—A wagon belonging to plaintiff's decedent was caught between the rail and the planking of a diagonal crossing, and a car ran into it, causing decedent's death. The supreme court of Michigan in Woodworth vs. Detroit United railway, 116 Northwestern Reporter, 549, in allowing plaintiff to prove by one of defendant's employes, that at least a dozen rigs had met with accidents at this crossing in the same way in the preceding two years, held, overruling Gregory vs. Detroit United railway, 101 Northwestern Reporter, 546, that the evidence was admissible even though defendant admitted knowledge of the condition of the crossing for six months prior to the accident in question. The court states that evidence of former accidents was admissible to show the condition of the street and whether its condition was negligence.

LET GIRL SIGN CHECKS

Morse Gave This Privilege to Secretary, Miss Wilson.

She Handled His Account at National Bank of America.

New York, Oct. 16.—The first day of the trial of Charles W. Morse, the banker and promoter who came to grief in the financial panic of last year and Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, which began before Judge Hough and a federal jury, developed two unpleasant surprises to the defense, the government's witnesses and the jury.

First it was brought out that the jury will be locked up each night and placed under the guard of deputy United States marshals; next it was revealed that all of the government's material witnesses have been under surveillance and that they will be closely watched all during the trial.

At the trial much interesting testimony was brought out. The introduction in evidence of power of attorney from Mr. Morse to his secretary, Miss Katherine Wilson, empowering her to sign checks, accept drafts and handle his account in the National Bank of North America, was considered important by the prosecution. A check or $100,000 credited to the bank and charged to the account of Mr. Morse, was also put in evidence.

TAFT TO VIOLATE PLEDGES---KERN

Vice Presidential Nominee Gets Cheers in Tammany Hall.

New York, Oct. 16.—"Should not the fact that men believe that a candidate for the presidency intends, when elected, to violate the pledges made by him and his party, be a most potent reason why honest and patriotic men should withhold their support from him and his cause?

"Should the fact that a candidate for the presidency is regarded as so honest as to be incapable of violating his platform pledges be an argument against his election?"

These questions put by John W. Kern, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency to a crowd that filled every available foot of room in Tammany Hall last night were answered by an outburst of shouting and cheering the like of which the nominee had not heard since he entered upon his speaking campaign five weeks ago.

Mr. Kern was given a noisy greeting when he entered the hall, and later when he was joined on the platform by Lieut. Chanler, the Democratic candidate for governor of New York, the two men were kept busy for several minutes bowing their acknowledgements of the plaudits of the crowd.

Rheumaline Cures Rheumatism

Taking some medicines and going to some resorts for a cure for rheumatism is like reading about the heat of India when it's 30 below zero. You're far from relief either way. Rheumaline can't change the weather, but it can change the system and remove rheumatism so one can combat these different changes of climate as was originally intended. If on account of your living you have neglected to take care of the liver and kidneys as you should have done, and they have become torpid and do not perform their duties as of old and through this channel you have contracted rheumatism, or if through any other source you have contracted lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, gout, or any disorders of the kidneys, liver, bladder, stomach or blood, arising from uric acid, Rheumaline will fix you up. It is positive and effective in its action and quick to produce results. It is a logical cure, and when taken properly there is no possible way for rheumatism to stay in the body. It has to get out. That is all there is to it. And Rheumaline does not injure the most delicate system nor contain any habit forming drugs.

Its cost is small, being only $1.00 per bottle, and Rheumaline Capsules, which accompany the liquid in what is termed the Rheumaline Treatment, cost only 50c per box.

The Rheumaline company of Cincinnati, Ohio, placed Rheumaline at the Lyceum Pharmacy, where it may be procured at any time. Get the Treatment and start in today. It removes the cause.

TRAINS INTO DULUTH NEXT SUMMER, SAYS PRESIDENT

Wisconsin Central Official Inspects Duluth Terminals.

Says Depot Construction Will be Begun Next Spring.

W. A. Bradford, Jr., president of the Wisconsin Central railway; H. C. Starr, vice president; E. F. Potter, general superintendent; S. G. Courteen, a member of the board of directors; C. N. Kalk, chief engineer, and E. S. McPherson, secretary to the president, reached Duluth this morning for an inspection of the construction work that is being done here on the Wisconsin Central. The members of the party came up from Chicago on a special, the trip as far as Superior being made on the rails of the Wisconsin Central.

This morning the members of the party made a thorough inspection of the work at West Duluth and the West end and also at the terminal. The work upon the tunnel was inspected and the members of the party went over the plans with Chief Engineer Kalk. The plans for the depot have been inspected by President Bradford and the only obstacle that remains before the actual construction work begins is the completing of the excavation.

In discussing the progress of the work here, President Bradford stated that the work was being rushed as fast as the company could possibly do the work. He stated that the excavation and the tunnel construction were necessarily very slow, but that the work upon the construction of the depot and terminals here would not require a great length of time.

"We are taking a great interest in this part of the country," said President Bradford. The officials of the road believe that there is a great future for the shippers in this part of the Northwest. You have everything here that will make this section of the country a great shipping center. I have shared the confidence in Duluth and believe with the other members of the company, that we have made no mistake in building our road to this city.

"As soon as the work upon the excavation is completed, the work upon the depot and terminals will begin. I believe that active construction work on both the depots and terminals will begin next spring. We expect to be running cars into this city by the first part of the summer. The tracks are completed almost to Duluth, the completion of the tunnel and the finishing of the excavation work being the only obstacles in the way of completing the tracks to the site of the depot and terminals.

"Railroad conditions are showing some improvement. Our annual report shows a surplus for the past fiscal year of $351,009.43, which is very good, considering the condition of business. The business of the road for the past fiscal year only fell off 3.5 per cent, which is a very good showing in the face of a bad year.

"Railroad conditions over the country are generally looking brighter than they have during the past four or five months. I believe freight earnings will continue to improve, though under the decreased fare it is rather difficult to predict an increase in passenger earnings. Anti-railroad legislation has hurt the railroads of the country, but at the present time they are recovering somewhat from the business depression that assailed the interests of the country."

The other members of the party hold the same opinion of Duluth. Mr. Starr and Mr. Potter have visited this city before. This is the first trip of President Bradford since the new extension of the road was begun. The annual meeting of the road was held in Milwaukee last week, and the report, according to Mr. Bradford, indicates that the affairs of the company are in good condition.

The negro orator, who has been holding forth at the corner of First avenue west and Superior street for several evenings past, was upheld by the police last evening. The man had his crowd going, and loud cheering frequently greeted his remarks. A passerby asked a policeman to put a stop to the open-air meeting, but the blue coat said the man had a perfect right to address an open-air meeting if he wanted to, as long as there was no disturbance resulting from it.

Cook Pounded Up.
Ida Blitcher, cook in the disorderly house on St. Croix avenue kept by Nellie Blaine, was rather badly beaten up by Edward Williams, negro porter, yesterday afternoon. WHAT ABOUT JACOBSON?

The News Tribune still persists in its absurd attempt to make the people disbelieve their own ears. Though thousands of voters in St. Louis county heard Governor Johnson declare himself upon the tonnage tax in his customarily direct and unequivocal manner, and though these people all understand the English language and know more about where the governor stands than the News Tribune does, it returns with brazen effrontery to the maliciously false charge that he stands for the tonnage tax.

Why? Because he has talked about a royalty tax. Now the people who heard Governor Johnson know, if the News Tribune does not, the difference between a tonnage tax, which would hit every man, woman and child in St. Louis county, and a royalty tax, which would touch only rich drawers of royalties like the owner of the News Tribune if it could be practically applied. There is doubt whether it is a practical plan or not; and nobody has pointed out the obstacles in the way of its application more comprehensively than Governor Johnson did in his speeches in St. Louis county this week and in his message to the legislature in January, 1907.

But the News Tribune, which has hated Governor Johnson ever since he cleaned out Bob Dunn and the machine bosses four years ago, must say something. If it did not consume space in splitting hairs and in attempts to befool the people about Governor Johnon, it would be forced to declare itself for Jacobson; and that, manifestly, is something it absolutely refuses to do.

The spectacle of the News Tribune barking at the heels of Minnesota's governor is not a new one; it has been a familiar and an amusing sight ever since John A. Johnson became governor. Its present tactics are not a whit different from what they have been during the past four years. It is not for Jacobson; it has no word of approval for him; it has no argument to make in behalf of his candidacy for governor; but its ridiculous hatred of Governor Johnson must find a vent, and the present campaign affords it the opportunity which it daily seeks.

But what about Jacobson? Is the News Tribune for him for governor, or is it merely a contemptible and smallsouled enemy of Governor Johnson?

The Herald has repeatedly beseeched the morning paper to give the people a single reason why Jacobson should receive a single vote in Northern Minnesota when he is "running upon his record" of consistent and bitter hostility to Northern Minnesota and of implacable opposition to all its plans and hopes. Is there such a reason? The Herald knows of none, and if anybody is to furnish such a reason it ought to come from the News Tribune, which is the organ of machine partisanship in this section, even though its churlish and childish tactics do make it the laughing stock of every public meeting at which its name is mentioned.

THE "WIDE OPEN" TAX AMENDMENT.

The theoretical object of the proposed amendment to the state constitution relating to taxation, which was rejected by the people two years ago and is to be presented to them again at the coming election, is to divorce state and local taxation, and to give the state a revenue independent of local tax systems, leaving each locality to arrange its tax machinery as it pleases. This is the so-called "local option" plan of taxation.

If the amendment were adopted, and the legislature followed out this theory, presently the state's revenues would all be derived from indirect taxes, such as the railroad gross earnings tax, the tonnage tax on iron ore, perhaps a bushel tax on the wheat output of every farm, a tax on the gross business of mercantile houses, a tax on the deposits in banks, etc. There would be no direct tax for state purposes. The individual taxpayer would therefore have no interest in the state's finances, and the state would have no interest in local taxation and assessments.

What would be the results of such a system? As The Herald showed two years ago during the session of the legislature, these results would be vicious and injurious in two ways: First, it would tend to pile up a large surplus in the state treasury, in the disposition of which the individual taxpayer would have no interest; second, it would deprive the state of all its interest in the proper making of local assessments.

The potentialities of harm in these two effects are enormous. A surplus in the state treasury is a menace to the integrity of any state. It is a constant temptation to extravagance and corruption; witness Pennsylvania, where there has been no direct state tax for forty years, and where a treasury surplus created a saturnalia of plunder and corruption. The individual taxpayer would have no direct interest in the state treasury, because its contents come from indirect taxation; he pays it, but he does not know he pays it. It is like the tariff tax. So a ring of state officials, if it pleased, could run riot through a fat surplus, to the shame and degradation of the state.

On the other hand, if the state no longer has an interest in local assessments, the way for local graft and injustice is wide open. Strong local interests, gaining control of the taxing machinery, can shift their just burdens upon the shoulders of the disunited and helpless masses; which cannot easily be done when the state oversees all assessments.

The theory upon which the pending tax amendment is based is an old one, and of late tax theorists have shown a disposition to reject it. No state has ever adopted it in its entirety, and Minnesota is asked to make an experiment that can hardly fail to be disastrous.

Dr. Frank L. McVey of the Minnesota tax commission, upon his return from the meeting of the International Tax association at Toronto, said in Minneapolis: "Sentiment concerning the imposition of a state tax seems to have veered among the men who make taxation a study. A few years ago there seemed to be a general sentiment for the separation of state and local taxes. At the Toronto meeting there was a decided sentiment for a small state tax, for the delegates seemed to believe that the imposition of a small tax would go far toward keeping the people interested in the state government and the way the state spends her money."

The theorists who provided the plan now submitted to the people of this state have changed their minds. Shall Minnesota still proceed with an experiment so dangerous? She should not; she should vote down the tax amendment so overwhelmingly that all doubt will be removed from the question.

A PENNY-WISE STATESMAN.

Voters anxious to judge the merits of the respective candidates for governor will be thankful to Jacobson, before election day dawns, for his statement that he stands upon his legislative record. That record is very illuminating, and it exposes his absolute unfitness for the high office he seeks no less than did his acceptance of the nomination for governor at the hands of interests which he used to fight, and his rigid silence as to issues in which these interests are concerned.

In the legislature Jacobson aimed to be "the watchdog of the treasury." He fought every new project that involved the expenditure of state money, no matter how tremendously important the object that could be attained might be. He could see no further than the initial expenditure. For instance, he fought drainage at every step of the way, because it could cost money. The argument that a dollar spent in draining state lands would bring ten dollars in profits did not weigh with him. To that he replied, as the St. Paul Pioneer Press reported on April 20, 1897, that there "was still dry land enough in the state and it would be time enough to go after swamp land when the people had to swim." There was no large expenditure of state money in draining state swamp lands until, in response to Governor Johnson's earnest recommendation, the legislature from which Jacobson had happily departed gave the movement an important start.

For similarly narrow reasons, Jacobson opposed the creation of the office of state fire warden, opposed paying bounties on wolves, opposed forest preservation, opposed paying bounties on iron ore smelted in this state, opposed rebating state royalties on iron manufactured here instead of being shipped out for manufacture elsewhere, opposed the Duluth normal school, and opposed everything of any nature that promised to take money out of the state treasury, no matter how much good to the state at large might be bought with that money.

A conspicuous example of the penny wise, pound foolish policy of the statesman from Lac Qui Parle was his opposition to the establishment of the state sanitarium for consumptives at Walker. In 1901 the late Senator Ferris of Brainerd got a bill through the senate making preliminary provision for this institution, and it went to the house. In that body Jacobson worked and voted against the bill, though it was passed in spite of his opposition. It carried only a preliminary appropriation of $1,000, but Jacobson saw that it would call for more money later, so he fought it.

There is not a single duty confronting society that is more important than the fight against consumption. Unless the fight becomes more effective, there are 5,000,000 people in this country today that will die from this dread disease. Not only that, but society will lose incalculably through the expense of these millions of sicknesses, and through the loss in production caused by the disability of the victims of the white plague. Minnesota has taken advanced stand in that fight, and has established a hospital where cases are being treated and cured; yet if Jacobson had had his way the trifling sum that it cost the state would have been saved, and the disease left unmolested to continue its dreadful havoc.

DEBS AND HIS PARTY.

Nothing more remarkable has occurred in the recent history of American politics than the tour of Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate for president, from coast to coast in his "red special." It has caused those who had been busily engaged in the fight between Bryan and Taft to pause in their warfare and speculate upon the meaning of the intense interest and zealous enthusiasm that have met Debs all along the way.

In Duluth he packed the Lyceum theater as it was never packed before, and every person in it paid to hear the Socialist candidate present his cause. In New York more than 12,000 people paid to hear Debs, and the remarkable enthusiasm and the unusual loyalty of his followers set all of the New York newspapers to talking about Socialism, giving it serious attention for the first time.

It has been a long time since this country has witnessed such zeal in propagandism as the Socialists are exhibiting. Probably there has been no precedent for it since the days of the Abolitionists. The Abolitionist party never came into power and freed the black slave; but the black slave was freed, and the Abolitionists were the martyr pioneers who paved the way for freedom. The Socialist party may never come into power and free the "wage slave," but those who pretend to believe that some measure of its reforms will not ultimately be adopted in this country are too blind for their own good.

The force of Socialism at the present time is valuable because it is a protest against existing economic inequalities that sorely needed readjustment. The knowledge of these conditions is not confined to the Socialist party, of course; but the Socialist party thinks it has a remedy, and its members believe in that remedy so thoroughly that they are, without hope of personal gain and at considerable personal sacrifice in many cases, spreading their doctrine throughout the country and gaining many sympathizers and some new supporters.

The term "socialism" is extremely vague. Not everybody understands it just as the Socialist does; in fact there are few who hold the same conception of it. Broadly speaking, anybody that favors extending the powers of government for the benefit of the weak and the oppressed, or that favors broadening the operations of government to include functions heretofore left to private or corporate control, might be called a Socialist.

But the growth of the Socialist propaganda, and the acceptance of its remedy by so many voters, makes it an influence so important that it cannot be overlooked any longer. It is either a promise or a menace, and it should be studied thoroughly by everybody. If it is bad, its opponents must be prepared to point out its weaknesses and its fallacies; if it is good, it should be adopted as rapidly as conditions will make it safe to do so; if it is partly good and partly bad, the good should be adopted and the bad rejected. But it cannot be frowned down or ignored; it must be met fairly and squarely. In 1900 Debs got 87,814 votes; in 1904 he got 402,283 votes; few would be surprised if he got a million this year. To talk of evading an issue that is gaining ground so rapidly is to talk shortsighted folly.

Standard oil does not seem to be the kind that calms the political waters.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Politics, hunting and baseball are now the chief topics of conversation around the hotel lobbies. Until Wednesday baseball occupied first place on the list, but it has dropped to third place. Politics takes first, and hunting advances to position No. 2 in the line. As election day and the big game season approach, hunting and politics will run a close race for first position, with the betting about even on the result.

Duluth is the Mecca of big game hunters in the United States. There are more moose and deer to be found in Northern Minnesota, in the territory tributary to the Zenith City, than in any like area in the United States. Sportsmen come here from all over the country to try their luck with the moose, hoping at the same time to have an opportunity to try their fortunes with a bear or wolf. About a month before the big game season opens, inquiries regarding the prospects begin to arrive from all points of the compass, and the hotel keepers are kept busy answering them. Traveling men, hunters of small game and outsiders in all lines of business who drop into Duluth along about this season of the year anxiously inquire about the outlook, and the result is a string of hunting stories, predictions, hopes and reminiscences that fill the hotel lobbies with a steady stream of conversation.

Paul Perkins of Ranier, at the St. Louis yesterday, says that according to report current at Ranier, work upon the power dam of the Koochiching Power company will begin immediately. Work upon the dam has been suspended for some time, owing to the lack of the necessary capital. According to Mr. Perkins, the capital necessary to finance the work has been furnished by eastern capitalists, and that from now on the work will be rushed to completion. The news that the dam will be completed within a reasonable time is good news to the residents of Ranier and International Falls. They are interested for various reasons in the completion of the dam, which means much to them locally.

B. H. Richardson, at the St. Louis, says that insurance in this state has now been regulated so that every dollar a man invests is guaranteed as positively as the statute books can make it, thanks to Governor Johnson. He suggests that a man's bank deposits be made as secure. Mr. Richardson says thousands of dollars of American money goes across the line from border towns and is deposited in the Canadian banks, for the reason that many people have more confidence in the banks of Canada than they have in their own banks. He believes that the guaranteeing of bank deposits would do away with this lack of confidence and would result in thousands of dollars that are now hoarded being deposited in the banks.

An Impressive Demonstration.

New York World: Seven thousand men and women paid admission fees to attend the Socialist mass-meeting at the Hippodrome on Sunday. Thousands more would have been glad to pay had there been room for them to get in. Such a political demonstration as this is not to be dismissed lightly.

How many men and women would pay a quarter or 50 cents to go to the Hippodrome to hear William H. Taft speak on politics? How many men and women would pay this admission fee to hear William J. Bryan speak on politics and then be so enthusiastic as to contribute to his cause their jewelry and the cash in their pockets? Even should Theodore Roosevelt go on the stump, how many people would pay to hear what he said rather than read it in the newspapers for a cent or two cents?

The enthusiasm of this great Socialist meeting was not for its candidate, but for its cause.

Socialism would require a different kind of human nature than that of the average man to make it work successfully. But any political cause with tens of thousands of followers who are idealists, who go into their pockets for their own political expenses and who will stand up and vote time after time regardless of the certainty of defeat, must be reckoned with in American politics.

Removing Temptation.

The Delineator: My neighbor's small son, not yet 4 years old, appeared at my door one morning and, after looking in a moment, announced:

"You screen's unlocked."

I was busy, so I said, "All right."

"Why don't you lock it?" he said.

"In a minute I will," I answered, and he was silent a little while. Then: "I wish you would come do it now."

"But why, Lawrence?" I asked.

"Well," he sighed, "I might tum in and my mamma said not to."

THE WEATHER.

The continued lack of rain is again filling the air with smoke and rumors of trouble from brush fires. This morning it was clear, though hazy, and it was still warm and charming. The weather man gives hope of rain, and hints at the possibility of a nice, seasonable northeaster. He says there will be brisk easterly winds tonight and tomorrow, with rain and cooler weather. Yesterday the thermometer got up to 72 degs., and last night's lowest was 58 degs.

A year ago today Indian summer brought the temperature up to 70 degs.

The sun rose this morning at 6:28 and sets tonight at 5:20, making 10 hours and 52 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A disturbance of considerable intensity is central this morning over Colorado. During the past twenty-four hours this barometric depression caused rains in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, California and Utah. Mild temperatures continue in the lake region, Upper Mississippi valley, Eastern Nebraska and Kansas. Somewhat cooler weather attends a rise in pressure over Western Canada, the Upper Rocky Mountain and plateau region. The barometer continues high in the Middle Atlantic states. Indications favor rain at the Head of the Lakes tonigh and during Saturday, attended by strong easterly winds.

People's Conscience Stirred.

Zion's Herald: Of the conscience of the American people it may be said with truth as of the maid in the scripture, "It is not dead, but sleepeth." The people are interested in moral issues when, every now and then their attention is sharply called to them, and their apathy is invaded by a call to arms in the defense of outraged virtue. Into the present presidential campaign, which was proving rather dull and lifeless, zest and vim have been injected by the charges and counter charges brought by prominent men against trusted leaders of the other side. The Foraker and Haskell controversies, and the charges made concerning the alleged corporation contributions to campaign funds, have increased the density of the fog which had settled over the campaign, while it has gotten on the nerves of the public conscience.

The people are now beginning to ask, "Who will show us any good?" from assured optimism the public is now in danger of reacting into the extreme of sullen pessimism. But not all public men have allied themselves with corruption. For those of them who are personally pure, and who have conscientiously and consciously avoided entangling alliances with an unholy plutocracy, Providence will yet spread a table in the presence of their enemies. It is a time to keep cool. The people believe in ultimate right, and will in due time demand the proofs which expose proximate wrong. Years ago cynical comment would have been the sum of the condemnation of public men caught with the goods on, but now a more sensitive public conscience will not be satisfied with anything less than the sure punishment of the offenders. Let us be thankful that it is so.

Publicity Before and After.

Providence Journal: Mr. Taft says that the chief objection to publishing campaign contributions before election is that "it makes certain that in the heat of the controversy the motives of those who contributed to pay the legitimate expenses of the campaign will be misconstrued, perverted and misrepresented." The objection is not to be dismissed as entirely irrelevant. No doubt some injustice would be done in this way; yet would not such injustice be more than balanced by the deterrent effect on corruption funds exercised by the ante-election publication of the names of the subscribers and the amounts subscribed? Which is worse, to suffer from a little campaign "misconstruction" or to invite a continuance of the familiar custom of contributing extravagantly to influence the decision of the electorate? The McCall bill proposed ante-election publication.

If, as Mr. Taft intimates, the only money subscribed were for legitimate expenses and only moderate amounts were given, the case would be different. But who believes that the great funds raised in former campaigns have been used for legitimate purposes only? And how shall "legitimate" purposes be defined? Was it to such purposes that Mr. Harriman's $260,000 fund was applied? Is it conceivable that money might be spent without open evidence of corruption and yet in such volume and in such ways as to discredit its employment. When a candidate for mayor of a New England city recently expended more money previous to election than his salary as mayor would amount to during his entire term of office, no charge of corruption was brought against him, yet was a contribution of so large an amount morally justifiable? Was it wholesome? Was it "legitimate," in every sense of the word?

On the whole, the Democratic plan of publishing all campaign contributions above a reasonable minimum in advance of the election better commends itself to the citizen who wishes to see our presidential campaigns conducted fairly and cleanly. There has been no greater scandal in American politics than the scandal of bought elections.

Bailey in the Devil's Den.

New York Sun: We are reminded of a thrilling episode of the Joe Bailey inquiry by the Texas legislature of a year or two ago. It seems to us that his ardent but somewhat benighted prosecutors traced him to the Standard Oil offices on lower Broadway on a certain day, and then, inflated by the fancied triumph, asked him to explain. "I went there," said Bailey, in one of his finest throes of indignation, "to beard the money devils in their lair and tell them what an honest statesman thought of them." Result, immediate collapse on the part of the investigating committee and an overwhelming exoneration of Bailey. The mere thought of that devoted patriot and accomplished parliamentarian invading the stronghold of the Octopus unarmed and qualified only by his virtue and his courage was too much for the assembled inquisitors. They paused in admiration and merged their once conflicting emotions in a clean bill of health.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••The immense warehouses of the Standard Oil company between the West end and Oneota were destroyed by fire at 10 o'clock this morning. The fire originated from the carelessness of a gang of men who were burning brushwood in the vicinity of the building. While they were away from their work, the flames crept toward the warehouses, which were soon a mass of flames. The company places its loss at about $100,000. Six cars belonging to the St. Paul & Duluth railroad and costing about $450 each, were also burned. It is not thought the Standard Oil company had any insurance. The rate was 6 per cent., and the company refused to take out any policies with the Duluth agencies.

•••The logs lying in the bays of Duluth and St. Louis were sold yesterday afternoon. The C. N. Nelson company sold to Duncan, Brewer & Co. about 14,000,000 feet of its remaining logs, while the Cloquet Lumber company sold a part of its stock on hand and will soon dispose of the remainder. The companies found the expense of hauling the logs back to Cloquet was too great.

•••Bids were opened yesterday by the board of public works for the steam heating and plumbing of the new city hall. Rothermel & Co.'s bids for both contracts were the lowest, being $643 for the plumbing and $3,295 for the steam heating.

•••The first train on the new Red River Valley line from Winnipeg was run a few days ago, and regular service will now be started in connection with the Northern Pacific between St. Paul, Duluth and Winnipeg.

•••Russell Gray and Will Fairchild of Vassaboro, Me., who have been in Duluth for some time, left today for their homes, where they will pass the winter.

•••Work on the elevated railroad between the Northern Pacific bridge on the end of Rice's Point and Sixth avenue west will begin tomorrow. It is thought that not less than 1,000,000 feet of lumber will be used in the superstructure.

JOHNSON LYRICS. I.

"When Johnson Hit Duluth."

He was lean and bent and aged;
His step was weak and slow;
And the foliage pendant on his chin.
Was white as driven snow.

The year was 19 umpty-ump
Election day was o'er;
And Johnson sat in Washington,
A candidate no more.

The old man spat a thoughtful spat,
Bit off another chew,
And gave his trousers and his belt
A gentle hitch or two.

"I remember back in 1908,
'Twas quite a spell forsooth,
When Johnson ran for governor,
And his special hit Duluth.

"You youngsters talk about your crowds;
Them was the good old days;
And we had your modern metohds
Beaten seven ways.

"He spoke from the top of the ferry bridge;
And the crowds sat on the hill
From the creek that runs through Chester Park,
To the Universal mill.

"He used a giant megaphone,
And he spoke for half a day,
But not a single citizen,
In that vast throng, moved away.

"But the policemen had to stop him,
For the public safety's sake;
For men were crowded off the shore,
And kept drowning in the lake."

The old man's voice grew fainter;
And his eyelids closed at last;
While his dreams went back to boyhood days,
In the far, far distant past.

"By Harry," said his grandsons,
In the slangey phrase of youth,
"They must have had some meetings
When Johnson struck Duluth."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Walker Pilot: J. Adam Bede is being depicted as a good loser. Surely Adam is taking his defeat in the right spirit, but just imagine how it must hurt him every time he laughs about it.

Ortonville Herald Star: All the keynote speeches having been delivered, it is up to most of the boys to prepare their keyhole speech to be delivered early in the morning of Nov. 4.

Pine Tree Blaze: Knute Nelson favors guaranteed bank deposits. "That is good enough authority for me," said a fellow the other day.

Carlton Vidette: The season is approaching when a little caloric from the radiator will be more appreciated than all the hot air of the politicians.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: A tonnage tax would throw the burden of taxation upon the people of the range towns, and it would be the means of ruining these communities. With a tonnage tax as proposed, the man who pays the tax of $1 on his little holdings would be called upon to pay $200 toward the support of his home institutions.

Grand Rapids Independent: It still remains for the forestry statisticians to estimate the amount of timber which is annually whittled up at the corner groceries by the hangers-on at those resorts.

Warroad Plaindealer: Four years ago last June the Republican bosses in Minnesota set to work in the Metropolitan theater in St. Paul to convert this into a Democratic state. If they had sixty days more to election they would have the task completed.

Winona Independent: The Windom Reporter says that Minnesota without a Republican governor is like a home without a mother. But it is the politicians, and not the people, who are worrying over the absence of pap.

Warroad Plaindealer (Rep.): It is not probable that Mr. Taft has been aware that good Republicans are being barred from participating in parades and at banquets in his honor in towns in this state simply because they refused to stand for the corporation-bought and boss-nominated Republican candidate for governor, but unless his tours through other states where like conditions may exist—if there are any—are to be more detrimental than beneficial to his candidacy, he will do well to ascertain whether or not the party leaders have assumed the role of disciplinarians.

Hutchinson Leader: Mr. Jacobson says he will, if elected, sign a county option bill if one is passed by the legislature. Sure he will, and so will Governor Johnson and so would any other man the people of Minnesota might seat in the gubernatorial chair.

Johnson a Third-Term Winner.

Utica, N. Y., Press (Ind.): The report from Minnesota has it that the winners there will be Taft and Johnson. That state is and always has been counted safely Republican, but the popularity of Governor Johnson, especially with a large Scandinavian element there, has been so great as to be insurmountable. If Johnson had been nominated for president instead of Bryan, he could have carried Minnesota, and by the way there are several other states which in all probability he could have carried which now are hopelessly lost to the Democratic ticket. It was thought that the renomination of Johnson for governor, which was against his will and wish, would enable Bryan to carry Minnesota, but such is not at all likely to prove true. The best guessers and the most carefully made estimates agree that the Republicans will carry it on the national and the Democrats on the head of the state ticket and that Minnesota's eleven electoral votes will be cast for Taft and Sherman.

The Rights of Roosters.

Atchison Globe: An Atchison farmer's wife brought four dozen young roosters to town today. Not a pullet in the bunch. These chickens will be fried. Do the roosters get a square deal? The roosters are fried and the pullets live. Isn't life as precious to a rooster as to a pullet?

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

London Opinion: Curate (showing local big-wig over the new church)—Yes, it's a very fine building, but the acoustics are very bad.

Councillor Muggins (sniffing)—Really? I don't smell anything!

The Tattler: "I hear she found the audience rather cold last night."

"They were at first; but when they remembered that they had paid good money to see the show they got very hot."

Philadelphia Press: "There," said Rimer, in conclusion, "clever idea, isn't it? I thought I'd work it up into a ballad."

"Why not a quatrain?" suggested Critick.

"Oh, that's too short."

"I don't believe any editor would think so."

Detroit Free Press: "Do you think the new maid will stay?"

"I don't know. She hasn't had a chance to try on any of my clothes yet."

Houston Post: "Is love blind?"

"It ought to be."

"Ought to be?"

"Yes, it has so often had its eyes scratched out after marriage."

Puck: When a man ceases to be interested in his work, says the philosopher, he no longer lives. Which may account for so many dead ones incumbering fairly good jobs.

Punch: Bystander—Did you see 'ow it 'appened, lady?

Fair Motorist—Or, dear, no! I was asleep just then.

Bystander—Ah, then you'll be able to prove a lullaby!

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "I have some money, but I don't know whether to buy a home or an automobile."

"I have it! Buy the home and mortgage it to get the machine. Then you will have both."

Exchange: "My dear, let me warn you. If you marry Tom you'll find him very, very singular."

"So much the better. If he's different from other men he's the more likely to make a good husband."

Kansas City Times: "Despite all your wealth," said the Cynic, "your very name will be generally forgotten in twenty years after your death."

"No, it won't," replied the financier; "my estate is large enough to keep the heirs squabbling longer than that."

Puck: Lawyer Hawk—Do you know the nature of an oath, sir?

Mr. Parrot (ironically)—Aw, say, what do you take me for—a bird of paradise or the dove of peace?

Chicago News: His Wife—How is the weather out this morning?

Her Husband—Very pugilistic, me dear.

His Wife—How?

Her husband—Windy.

Miss or Mr.?

Lippincott's: "Fighting Bob" Evans, during his last stay in Washington, was one evening a guest at a house where he met a number of the younger set of the capital.

As the admiral was leaving, he chanced to pick up from the floor a very dainty handkerchief, edged with lace. He was gravely inspecting this "trifle light as air," when a rather effeminate looking young man hastened forward to claim it.

"Your sister's, no doubt," said the admiral as he handed it over.

"Oh, no," said the young man; "it's mine."

Evans scrutinized the young man closely. "Would you mind telling me what size hairpins you use?" he asked after a pause.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

SUPERIOR VS. DULUTH

Nelson Dewey Will Play Football With Centrals Saturday.

Duluth Team Goes Into the Game Badly Crippled.

Nelson-Dewey, touted as being the faster of the two high school teams in Superior, will line up against Duluth at Athletic park tomorrow afternoon.

For a number of years this team has been a back number when it came to football, but this year they have again come to the front with the most formidable bunch of gridiron stars that ever graced the lineup of the school eleven. Among them are three Indians who are said to be 10-second men. The whole team is said to be very fast, and a close contest is looked for when they cross the bay.

Last Saturday they defeated the heavy Washburn team by twenty more points than the Blaine team could roll up the Saturday before. They have been practicing steadily for the past three weeks under the direction of a football coach.

The Duluth team is not in as good shape as it has been, and the students as a whole are glad that the St. Cloud game has been called off, for as they say a defeat at this time would end football at the Duluth school for this year.

M. Olson, a freshman, who has been showing up well in practice, will take McFarlane's place at left tackle, and Larrow, another sub, will fill Helmer's place at center. Left guard Quinn will be at his old place in the line.

It is expected that Crawford will be able to play at least part of the game. It was thought for a time that the big captain would be unable to play for at least two weeks, and his return to the line greatly encourages the men.

Superior schools always furnish good football sport, and the largest crowd of the season is expected out at Athletic park tomorrow.

TOM MADDEN TO ACT AS REFEREE

Popular Official Will Conduct the Sutter-Wood Match.

Tom Madden, the well known Duluth wrestling referee, has been chosen by the promoters of the Sutter-Wood match which will be pulled off in the Temple Roller rink Sunday night, to conduct the match. He is known as one of the most able referees in the city, and his decisions have always given general satisfaction.

As a preliminary Tommy Doyle of West Duluth will meet Carl Lindstrom, an iron worker in the pattern department of the Clyde Iron works.

The Sutter-Wood match promises to be a pretty one, as both men are training hard, and as both have quite a reputation in wrestling circles.

NO FOOTBALL TEAM,

But Superior Normal School Will Go After Basketball Honors.

At a meeting of the Athletic association of the Superior Normal school last evening, it was decided that the school would not put a team on the football field this season, but would make an early start at basketball instead. Currie, Johnson, Ryan and Lemieux of last year's team are back, and it is hoped by a long period of practice, that the school will be able to make a fine showing at the indoor game this winter.

The following officers of the athletic association were also elected for the coming year: President, W. H. Cott; vice president, Elliott Donalds; secretary, R. L. Gregory. Prof. E. M. Gilbert will serve as faculty manager.

WHITEHEAD TO MEET JOHNSON

Colored Pug on Way to Duluth From Williston, N. D.

Even a prizefighter gets tired of sitting around and telling about the time he whipped the Klondike Kid in three seconds, and other battles, and jumps at a chance to don the padded mitts in the roped arena. Is it then any wonder that Walter Whitehead stopped in the midst of his fall plowing at Williston, N. D., when he heard that Jack Johison was looking for his scalp?

The colored boy only stopped long enough to wire that he was on the way, and then started for Duluth. On his arrival in this city Whitehead will at once get busy and hook up with the Johnson terror. The two men will meet some time after the first of the month on the range.

The range fans, and there are many of them who love the boxing game, have bee nafter the two men for quite a long time.

Wanted—A Game.

The Adams Alumni football team has been unable to arrange for a game for next Sunday. They say the Irving Tigers seem afraid to meet them, and they would be willing to take on any amateur team in either Duluth or Superior. A game can be arranged by calling Frank Mork on the Zenith 'phone 1679-D.

MAY BUILD HOCKEY RINK

May be Erected East of Curling Club; to Cost $5,500.

It is just possible that Duluth may have a hockey rink this year.

It is just a possibility though, and everybody is afraid to mention the matter above a whisper for fear the good men who are behind the proposition will be frightened away.

There are a number of men interested in the project this year—one Duluth man well known in sporting circles, another a business man, and a third party from Canada, who has been drawn here by Mr. Wright of the Sellwood billiard parlors, to look the ground over.

It is known that many pieces of suitable property for the erection of a rink have been looked over during the past few days, and with these different parties at work it is a pretty safe bet that before the skating season begins, work will have been started on what will eventually be a hockey rink.

One man's plans have gone so far as to have settled on the site, and the amount of money to be expended, which is $5,500. This would build a fair rink. There would be nothing fancy about the structure, but it would fill the bill.

The fact is that those interested in hockey have been disappointed so long that almost any kind of a rink a manager would be pleased to erect, would fill the hearts of the hearts of the enthusiasts with joy.

Wallace Wells of the Northern team said this morning that he would not, under any consideration, put his team in the field this year unless a rink was built for the boys to play in. He admitted, however, that certain parties had been to see him in regard to the building of a rink, but he said he was not free to give their names.

There are many good hockey players in Duluth, and should the rink be built, Duluth people will see the best hockey in the history of the city.

"Coddy" Winters, the star forward of the Northern team of last year, has about decided to go to Cleveland to play with that team, but it is said that he could be induced to remain here if the rink was made a sure go.

SUPERIOR TEAMS SCRAP OVER DATE

Nelson-Dewey Students Say Blaine is Afraid to Meet Them.

Superior football teams are willing to meet almost any other team than each other.

The gridiron warriors of the Nelson-Dewey and Blaine high schools are scrapping it out over a date. Ever since the season opened these two teams have talked different dates for their games, and not yet have they come to an understanding.

Blaine claims that only two dates on their schedule are open, and it is on these dates that Nelson-Dewey claim they have other games.

Both schools claim they are anxious for a game, but from the way things look just now, it is likely that the high school championship of Superior will go unsettled this year.

There is great rivalry between the two schools, and up to this time Blaine has always succeeded in putting the boys from the south end of town safely away. This year Nelson-Dewey claim they have the better team and that Blaine is afraid to meet them.

BISHOP URGES HEALING BY SOUL

Episcopal Divine Says Christian Scientists Have Great Truth.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 1.—"I anticipate a revival of healing by suggestion and prayer," said Rt. Rev. E. R. Atwill, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of West Missouri.

"My church is quite aware of the great possibilities of healing the body through the soul.

"The Christian Scientists have undoutedly done some wonderful things. They have grasped a half truth, but, alas, with how much extravagance of unnecessary detail. So far as I can judge, that which they have taken for their religion makes them very lovable and cheerful people. And that is something.

"Possibly in the future this practical side of Christ's work may lead all the churches to a clearer interpretation of His word. Meanwhile all who are doing such work, whether in my church or not, have my hearty sympathy.'

BRYAN HITS JOE CANNON

Says Speaker is Backed by All Predatory Wealth.

Nominee Feels Sure That Home State is His.

Nebraska City, Neb., Oct. 16.—W. J. Bryan in his speech here compared his meeting with that of eight years ago and left with the chairman of the meeting $5 to be presented to the campaign fund of the Republican committee if they would consent to carry the same banner in their parade that they carried at that time. Then he predicted that the starch trust which was being prosecuted under the state statute would be likely to close the factories at that place and it was intimated that physical violence would be done him if he spoke in that city. "I told them that I would denounce the trust even in the shadow of the starch factory," he said, "Where are the Republicans, who mockingly wrote to me after the election and declared that the shadow of the starch factory extended across the state? How far does the shadow reach now? The factory is closed down, the machinery has been removed and the building is in the hands of a wrecking company."

Plattsmouth, Neb., Oct. 16.—William J. Bryan closed his three days' speaking tour of his home state with a large meeting in this city, feeling that Nebraka can be safely counted in the Democratic column this year by a larger majority than he received in 1896.

It was a notable day in point of speeches made, size of crowds addressed and the vigorous manner in which he spoke. A large portion of the day was spent in his old congressional district, and the enthusiasm which had prevailed in his tour of the state, was intensified by the fact that these people gave him his first political distinction and have followed him with increasing confidence as he fought his way up the ladder. They showed their affection for him by demonstrations at every station, and by crowds declared to be such as the towns and cities had never seen before.

"My trip throughout the state was not planned because there was any doubt about Nebraska," he said. "It was because these Nebraska Democrats have been so loyal to me that I was not willing to let the campaign pass without visiting them. The trip, however, has led us to raise our estimate on the size of the majority Nebraska will give. We have counted on a majority as large as that given me in 1896, but I am satisfied from what I have seen and from the reports I have received that our majority will be considerably more than it was at that time. In no campaign in this state have I encountered such large and enthusiastic crowds and the reports received from every precinct and every county show defections in the Republican ranks and consequent additions to our vote. Our majority in 1896 was in the neighborhood of 13,000 and there is no comparison between the outlook three weeks before the election at that time and at present."

His addresses were more aggressive than they have been during the week. At Tecumseh he was vehement in his dnunciation, among other things saying of Mr. Cannon:

"It used to be said of a noted criminal lawyer that a burglar never entered a house to commit burglary without first making inquiries as to the health of this lawyer and no man in congress who plans a raid against the American people does so without first getting a promise of recognition from Cannon. He is backed by every predatory corporation in this country."

At that place he also denied that Mr. Roosevelt is the father of the policies which the reformers advocated. "Name a policy of President Roosevelt's that you want continued," he said, "and I will point to a policy, that I advocated before President Roosevelt ever advocated it."

In discussing the panic he said that Republicans are threatening a panic in case of his election. "There will be a panic in one family," he said, "and that will be the Taft family, for Mr. Taft's federal salary will be withdrawn for the first time in more than twenty years.

It will be the mission of the Monitor to publish the real news of the world in a clean wholesome manner, devoid of all the sensational methods employed by so many newspapers. There will no exploitation or illustration of vice and crime, but the aim of the editors will be to issue a paper which will be welcomed in every where purity and refinement are cherished ideals.

S.S.S. MAKES A LASTING CURE

There are certain mineral medicines which will remove the external symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and shut the disease up in the system for awhile, but when the treatment is left off the disease will surely return. Then the loathsome symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper-colored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc., are usually worse because the disease has made rapid progress on the internal members, and weakened the constitution and general health of the sufferer. S. S. S. is the only remedy that can be used with perfect safety in the treatment of Contagious Blood Poison, and with the assurance that a lasting cure will result. This medicine, made entirely of roots and herbs of recognized curative and tonic value, antidotes and destroys the powerful virus of the disease, and by purifying the blood of every particle of the poison and enriching and strengthening the circulation, removes every symptom of the trouble. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up the disease in any way, but drives it entirely out from the blood, leaving not the slightest trace for future outbreaks. Lord Bacon Said, "Digest"

It is claimed that Lord Bacon struck the prime keynote of life when he wrote: "Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested."

He wrote of books; many who have followed him have written likewise of life. The man who digests his business, makes success; the actor or actress who digests his or her art brings fame; the man who lives life and digests it as he should, lives as was the intention he should live.

It is not the food you swallow or taste that brings happiness to you; it is the food you digest.

If you swallow and taste and don't digest and chew, Nature cannot give you health, for you do not furnish the ammunition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain in pure, concentrated form the essences which, when they reach the stomach, turn dyspeptic conditions into those of healthy digestion.

These little tablets are dissolved in the mouth by saliva; they mix with this fluid and are passed down into the stomach, where they immediately set to work upon the food and digest it. They are many times more powerful than the human digestive fluids, and thus replenish Nature with those juices which sickness, abuse or wrongful eating have exhausted.

The world's best chemists in Europe and America agree on the ingredients best adapted to perfect digestion. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are these ingredients presented to the stomach in the most pleasant and lasting form.

Powders and liquids soon lose their effectiveness through chemical actions and decay. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made under terrific pressure, and their qualities are thus made lasting.

Forty thousand physicians prescribe and use these tablets, and every druggist sells them. Price 50 cents. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

BURNED BEFORE CRUCIFIX.

Beautiful Girl Commits Suicide in a Tragic Manner.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—An extraordinary case of suicide is reported from Schwarzenau near Bromberg. A young girl of great beauty, in poor circumstances, having bought a can of petroleum, went to a roadside crucifix on the way to Tarshomkovo. Here she knelt before the crucifix, poured the oil over her and set fire to her clothing.

She was found with outstretched arms before the crucifix, burned to death. No explanation of the deed has transpired.

CURED OF ANAEMIA, GAINED 45 POUNDS

Physicians Feared Consumption and Considered the Case Hopeless.

Another Striking Example of the Value of the Tonic Treatment for Building Up the Blood.

Bloodlessness, or anaemia, is usually betrayed by the pallor of the face but, curiously enough, some people may have the disease and retain a rosy complexion.

Shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, headaches, general weakness and disturbed digestion are marked symptoms but the disease comes gradually and is liable to be well established before it is detected. There are many kinds of anaemia, most of the incurable. When it occurs in young girls it is called chlorosis, or green sickness, a form of anaemia which is most readily cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a blood-making tonic that is useful in all forms of the disease. What this remedy has accomplished in even the most stubborn cases is shown by this account.

Mrs. W. B. Goodrich of No. 560 Terrace street, Meadville, Pa., whose husband is an engineer on the Erie railroad, after being given up by her doctors as incurable, tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and was restored to health. She says:

"I was under the care of two doctors for about a year and a half for anaemia and received no benefit. Both gave me up, saying that it was only a matter of time before I would die as my condition would lead to consumption. I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a paper and decided to try them as a last resort. I was then so weak that I couldn't walk a block without resting and upon the least exertion or upon going up stairs my heart would beat so fast that it would seem to come up in my throat. I had no appetite and food would lie in my stomach like a lump. My hands and face were as white as chalk and I weighed only 120 pounds. I had no strength or ambition, was hysterical, wanted to be alone and cried at the least little excitement. I was extremely nervous and my limbs would cramp and give me pain at night or whenever I would lie down. I could eat only the lightest foods.

"I began to feel better after taking the pills a while and continued until I had taken several boxes. I was cured by their use and today I am a well woman, weighing 165 pounds and can walk any distance without trouble."

For all anaemic states, that is, in all cases of weakness caused by lack of blood, and for all diseases springing from a perverted condition of the blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the great remedy. They make new blood and give new life to the feeblest. Their effect is simply wonderful.

Send today for a copy of our "Diseases of the Blood." It give further information about anaemia and is free upon request. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, upon receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A PERIL TO THE NATION

Coal and Iron Men Are Alarmed by the Outlook.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Over 15,000,000 people, or more than half the total wage earners in the United States, are directly dependent for their livelihood upon coal, iron, timber, the soil and other natural resources which are rapidly being exhausted, according to figures which have just been compiled by the Conservation League of America. According to the league, the avoidable waste of the nation's wealth is reaching alarming proportions, yet few people realize the extent to which the country as a whole will be affected by measures designed to check this waste. It was with the intention of clearing up this point that the present investigation was undertaken, and the results, which are now made public, disclose some interesting facts.

The first subject to receive attention was lumber. According to the last census report, 962,876 persons in the United States are engaged in the lumber business, or as carpenters and joiners, cabinet makers and the like, are dependent upon the lumber business for their livelihood. These have already been affected by the exhaustion of timber in the East and Middle West and are vitally concerned in the efforts of the government to conserve as much of the remaining supply as possible for continual usefulness through the agency of the national forests and to encourage private owners to grow trees in a systematic and profitable way. According to the experts of the forest service at Washington, our present rate of cutting is three times that of growth, and at this rate the remaining supply of timber will hardly last thirty years. This is a problem that the lumbermen are already facing and their support is counted on in urging legislation for the further protection of the forests, and encouragement to farmers to plant trees as a crop.

Coal Being Exhausted.

The coal supply is also threatened with exhaustion. Anthracite coal is timed to last but fifty years. Bituminous coal will not be exhausted until later, but unless a check is put upon the uneconomical methods of mining, which have already wasted as much coal as has been mined, it will not outlast the next century, and long before that time hundreds of thousands of miners will have to seek other means of employment.

The total number of coal miners, according to the figures now made available, is 344,292, to which are to be added over 200,000 coal and wood dealers and stationary engineers and firemen, making a total of 604,180 persons who are directly dependent upon coal for their work and who would have to change their occupation if coal should give out. Already the miners' organizations are looking forward to this time, and John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, has actively interested himself in the work of conservation and is an officer of the league.

In addition to the workers in these important industries, the farmers are beginning to take a keen interest in conservation, in five or six different ways. Soil exhaustion, erosion, irrigation, drainage, waterways, and the regulation of water supply by the forests on the headwaters and source streams of the larger rivers are all matters that directly affect the farmers' pocketbook. For this reason the figure of the total number of persons dependent for their livelihood upon the soil or dealing in the products of the soil is particularly interesting. It reaches the enormous total of 10,644,154 or over a third of the total number of persons engaged in gainful occupations in the United States.

Millions Dependent.

Following is a condensed summary of the principal resources of the country and the number of persons dependent upon them:

Coal	604,180
Iron	952,047
Both coal and iron—railroads	536,479
Both coal and iron—manufactures	761,472
Other metals	686,293
Lumber	962,876
Oil	24,626
Soil	10,644,154

The above does not include the important item of 73,810 fishermen who have a vital interest in the rapidly decreasing supply of many kinds of salt and fresh water fish, owing to wholesale and wasteful methods of fishing, and the item of 239,387 printers, publishers, paper mill operatives and others who are directly affected by the growing scarcity of wood pulp and consequent increasing cost of many grades of paer.

The list omits also 2,588,283 laborers and the millions of wage earners in other trades and professions who are all alike affected by the higher prices for coal, lumber, and manufactured products, due to wasteful exploitation of the natural resources of the land.

Because of this universal interest, which is not a matter of sentiment but of dollars and cents, the question of conservatnon is becoming a leading issue in the present political campaign, although it is not a partisan issue. Prominent national organizations and associations throughout the country have begun to place themselves on record as demanding legislation at the coming session of congress that will put a check upon some of the waste that is now going on. Many congressmen and congressional candidates have declared themselves in favor of such legislation, especially as regards the Appalachian hill and the repeal of the stone and timber act.

Interest in Report.

Especial interest is shown in the report of the newly appointed conservation commission which will be submitted to the president next January. The commission, which constitutes the most important body of public men, experts and government officials which has ever been got together, has undertaken an exhaustive investigation into the present state of our resources, the rate at which they are being used and the probable length of time that they will last.

As a result of this investigation Uncle Sam will, for the first time, know just the extent of his inheritance and whether he has been using it wisely or ill. Already striking results have been obtained and important information as to the probable short life of some resources that had been thought inexhaustible and the enormous possible value to the nation of other resources which have been largely neglected.

The commission owes its existence to the action of President Roosevelt, who in the matter of conservation is as one with Bryan and the leaders of the Democratic party as well as his own. When congress meets it is probable that the commission will be perpetuated by legislative action. Some slight opposition is expected on the part of congressmen and senators representing private interests rather than the people as a whole, but public sentiment is already so strongly aroused on this question that it is not thought that these senators and congressmen will dare jeopardize their positions by making a serious fight.

WORLD'S TARS TO BE UNITED

New York, Oct. 16.—To organize the Christian seamen of the world for their common welfare among the nations of the globe is the object of an international association, which was formed under the auspices of the American Seamen's Friend society in this city, this week. For the first time a systematized effort is to be made for joining together the millions of men who follow the sea to solve the sailor's problems under this "Seamen's Christian Brotherhood." Membership in the new body has been thrown open to the tars of every nationality, and headquarters established at the central offices of the American society in this city.

As a result of the dedication of their new institute for seamen, and the conference of local workers from all over the earth, which was held here by the American Seamen's Friend society, early this month, this permanent organization of the world's sailormen has been effected. Leading workers in shipping circles of the principal ports in every country are today sailing to their home stations, where they will organize and enlist sailors in local chapters of the brotherhood. Great Britain, Germany, Denmark, Italy, Sweden and Belgium are to begin branches of this body at once with native seamen.

An international flag has been designed and adopted by the Seamen's Christian Brotherhood. On a field of marine blue, it bears a cross, star and dove, emblematic of the Christian character of the organization. A badge, which shall distinguish its members in the fo'castle on every sea of the globe, has also been provided. Headquarters, where the officers and members of the new movement may meet in almost every large port in the world, are being designated.

Regular international conventions of representatives of the Seamen's Christian Brotherhood will be held for the discussion and improvement of conditions surrounding the seafarer on every coast. The matters of the provision of reading matter at sea, suitable quarters on shore, and reform in shipping methods, which were discussed at the recent conference for seamen, will be kept actively agitated by the new organization. Legislation beneficial to the general seafaring classes will also be projected and recommended to the sea powers of the world.

"This will be only a beginning in the first concerted movement for sailors that has ever been set under way," said G. McPherson Hunter, secretary of the American Seamen's Friend society, at its headquarters, 76 Wall street, today. "It is a project that all friends of the seafaring classes have for years had in mind. I believe the Seamen's Christian Brotherhood, which we have this day launched, will prove one of the greatest powers for good among the world's sailors that has ever been undertaken among the nations of the earth."

I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at all drug stores.

DEW BATHS ON HER LAWN

Boston, Mass., Oct. 16.—Bathing in dew, vials of sun oil and other queer things were testified to in the hearing in the petition of Mrs. Mabelle M. Dutton of Dorchester, who asks that a conervator be appointed to prevent her aunt, Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw of Lowell, from giving her property to the sect known as the Mazdaznas, or sun worshipers.

Mrs. Shaw's estate is valued at about $100,000, and the petitioner alleges that her aunt has expressed a desire to give it to this organization.

Mrs. Adolph Dittman, who for several years lived in the home of Dr. Hanish, the leader of the cult, testified that when she first knew him he was a typesetter in Chicago; that he began to gather about him people whom he instructed in his peculiar notions of taking dew baths and wearing as little clothing as possible.

During the course of the examination Mrs. Dittman declared that Mrs. G. W. Hilton, who is said to be the head of the cult in Lowell, and who was in court, was trying to hypnotize her by the "left eye" line of vision. Mrs. Shaw sat in court with Mrs. Hilton.

The petitioner's husband testified that Mrs. Shaw took dew baths in the nude on the lawn between her home and that of a neighbor. It was stated that her husband objected to the procedure and expressed the hope to his wife that she would be arrested.

STOP DRINKING!

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followed his debauches, and then—Break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. When a man takes a pledge voluntarily, he expects to keep it. Every man expects to keep his word and every broken pledge costs the drunkard many a heartache. But he cannot help it. He fights as long as he can, then succumbs to the craving. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition.

Orrine is sold under a positive guarantee to cure the drink habit or the money will be refunded. No other treatment for the liquor habit is sold under such a liberal guarantee.

Orrine is prepared in two forms: No. 1 a powder, perfectly tasteless and colorless, which can be given secretly in any food or drink. Orrine No. 2 is in pill form, for those who wish to be cured of the habit, and it should be taken by every one who swears off.

No matter which form of Orrine is used the guarantee is the same. The price of Orrine is $1.00 per box, mailed in plain sealed wrapper upon receipt of price. Write for free booklet on "How to Cure Drunkenness," (mailed in plain sealed envelope), by The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C. Orrine is sold by F. W. Kugler & Co., 108 West Superior street, Duluth, Minn.

MURDERED IN COMPARTMENT.

Continuous Footboards on Indian Trains Tempt Criminals.

Calcutta, Oct. 16.—The murder of an English lady in the Lahore-Karachi mail train is the topic of general discussion in the Anglo-Indian newspapers. Train thefts and outrages on the Indian railways are nowadays a somewhat frequent occurrence, and perhaps naturally, as in the case of everything else, there is a tendency, especially in Bengal, to regard them as symptoms of political unrest.

The true explanation probably is that crime of this sort is encouraged by the extraordinary facilities offered in this particular case. A young girl also going to Multon to be married, was found murdered, her throat being cut, in a first-class compartment when the train reached that station. No clue has been discovered to the murderer, but the general feeling is that the continuous footboards which are to be seen along the whole length of Indian railway carriages, and which permit a thief or assassin to pass along with ease from one carriage to another, and to get off as the train slows up at a station, were utilized in the recent murders.

BLACK EYE HOSPITAL

New York, Oct. 16.—Anticipating an increase in the number of discolored optics as the elections draws near, an enterprising barber in Sixth avenue had a number of "human sign boards," or "sandwich men," marching up and down Broadway bearing placards with this inscription: "Black eyes cured within an hour." One of the sign bearers carried a banner with a picture of an optic which looked as though it might have come in contact with Battling Nelson's right hand.

At Fifty-first street and Broadway he ran against Pat Calhoun, who had just left a near-by saloon and was hurrying home with a gallon of beer. When the pail of liquid refreshment struck the sidewalk "Pat's" clenched fist struck the sign bearer's right eye.

COULD NOT SLEEP

Until He Returned Stolen Ring and He Escaped Prosecution.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 16.—A repentant thief returned a $500 diamond ring to Mrs. L. H. Devineau, 2095 East Thirty-sixth street. He told her that he had not meant to take it, but could not resist the temptation when he saw it lying on the dresser and no one around to see him commit the theft.

The thief told the woman he could not sleep nights afterward, and just had to return the ring.

Mrs. Devineau forgave him, and refused to prosecute him in police court.

Five acres were planted to Triumphs, and Mr. Brendemuhl declares that the fourteen acres will net him about $1,000.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

Nebraskan will show some wonderfully large votes. He claims Judge Taft to be the offspring of President Roosevelt, and, continuing along this line, says:

"The sentiment since the Denver convention has grown steadily in favor of W. J. Bryan, which the Republicans endeavored to stay by bringing Mr. Taft into the state. He aroused a little enthusiasm, but it subsided shortly after his departure and a reaction has since set in.

"Mr. Taft is recognized as the political offspring of Theodore Roosevelt, a dictated candidate, forced upon the Republican party, and is too weak to cope with Mr. Bryan and the great issues involved in the campaign. So far his guardian, President Roosevelt, has been compelled to come to his rescue in all political controversies, which is very damaging to Mr. Taft, and does not reflect credit upon Mr. Roosevelt, bringing his exalted position into the political mire. Besides, Mr. Taft has much to contend with, running on an ambiguous platform that was a poor compromise between the two wings of the Republican party.

Bank Deposit Guaranty.

"The platform is silent on many important issues, for instance, the guaranty of bank deposits, which the Republican party in this state adopted in conflict with the national platform. Mr. Taft, in a weak and contradictory way, opposes this plank in the Democratic platform. He favors the postal savings banks, which, if established, will be one of the greatest sources for the contraction of money from the country districts that can be inaugurated, especially in times of depressions or panics. In such times many depositors will withdraw their deposits, investing them in the postal savings banks, thus driving the money into the United States treasury or subtreasuries, to be retained there, or placed in United States depositories in the larger cities.

"By the guaranty of bank deposits there will be no 'runs,' the money in the banks will be retained, and that which is in hiding will come in view and enter the avenues of business, thus increasing the volume of active money, thereby bearing down on the rates of interest and relieving the tension in times of depression. The argument that it will encourage 'careless and bad banking' is pure rot.

Will Help Sound Banking.

"Think you that five men, the smallest number allowed to incorporate a national bank, will incorporate and then conspire to loot the bank to destroy their own credit, and capital invested, with the loss of as much more in case of failure, besides having the doors of the penitentiary yawning before them? The argument is not plausible. In my opinion the system of guaranteeing bank deposits, if inaugurated, will prove a boon to sound banking by causing more rigid examinations and the prompt enforcement, by the comptroller, of laws that are being violated, or infringed upon. Besides every banker will keep his ear to the ground to listen for any sound of suspicion or damaging reports of any other bank in the guarantee association, that might affect his interests, which, if any, will soon be conveyed to the comptroller of the currency who will assign an examiner to investigate. The system will stimulate safer and better banking; there will be no 'runs' in times of depression, the depositor, feeling secure, will draw only for his daily wants. The banks will be brought in close relations with each other, having a common interest, that nuder a careful system will guard vigilantly against failures.

"The Republican platform is silent on the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people, but Mr. Taft favors this mode of electing United States senators, to catch votes.

"The platform is also silent on publishing campaign contributions, but Mr. Taft favors their publicity after erection, when it is too late; that is similar to locking the barn door after the horse is stolen.

Tariff Revision.

"The Republican platform favors a revision of the tariff, but it does not say whether up or down. Mr. Taft says, 'some schedules should be raised while others should be lowered,' and there you are. The tariff plank as criticised editorially in the Omaha Bee (Republican) reflects the sentiment of the thinking people, as follows: 'Nothing prettier in the catch-all line has been offered in this campaign. The most hide-bound standpatter in the country can accept that as satisfactory and the rankest free-trader can find delight in it. The declaration means simply nothing. An attempt to legislate along that line would simply open the way to interminable wrangling as to what constitutes "a reasonable profit," for hair-splitting on wages on one industry, price of raw materials in another, rebates and drawbacks in a third and so on through the list of thousands of articles that are now on the tariff lists.'

"Why should the farmers and laborers be misled by such platitudes as the 'home market' and 'protection to American labor?. Where are they benefited by a protective tariff?

"The farmer's products come in competition in the open markets of the world, they are mainly exporters, hence a tariff affords them no protection, quite the opposite they pay greatly advanced prices for what they have to buy for the home and farm caused by the trusts being shielded by this wall of protection.

"How are the laborers protected by a high tariff? Do not the gates of Castle Garden open in admitting the scum of the Southern Europe free, with few disqualifications, to compete with our citizens? They pay no taxes, build no homes, many of them festering sores on the body politic, they consume little of value and return to their native lands when it suits their purposes better, which occurred last fall, during the panic when 500,000 of them left our shores, bringing over $10,000,000 of good money with them, because they can live cheaper there than here. What have that class added to the wealth of this nation? While our citizens who labor remain here; many build homes, pay taxes and add to the wealth of the nation, and then are compelled to compete with the cheap laborer of Southern Europe, besides they are obliged to pay tribute to the trusts for protected articles consumed. How are they benefited by a protective tariff? Many claim that the laborers of this country are better paid than in any other country. That may appear plausible on the surface, but investigate and you will find that the extra pay they receive is fully offset by the extra cost of living under a high tariff. The greatest protection that the laboring man gets is through the labor unions, and were it not for these his road would indeed be a thorny one. Stop the cry of the "home market" for the farmer and "protection of American labor," they are myths that are fast vanishing and will soon be things of the past. They are being exposed and exploded.

North Dakota Doubtful.

"North Dekota can safely be placed as a doubtful state, gradually moving into the Bryan column. The Republican party is on the defensive and will remain there until the close of the campaign.

"From present indication, W. J. Bryan will be our next president, therefore it will be for the best interests of this state to elect our Democratoc congressman in order to co-operate with the president in carrying out the many reforms advocated in our platform. Special efforts should also be made to elect a majority of our legislature in order to elect a United States senator for the same reason.

In regard to state issues, Governor Burke should be re-elected, because he is well qualified for the position, he has given a good, conservative administration, he has made an honest effort to enforce all laws without fear or favor, he has fulfilled every pledge made by him, he is governor and not controlled by 'bosses.' Governor Burke is making a splendid campaign and will be re-elected by a good majority.

"The Democratic board of equalization should be elected to co-operate with the governor in equitably equalizing the taxable property of the state.

"The Democratic board of railway commissioners should also be elected in order to inforce the laws on our statute book relating to railroads. In fact for the best interest of the state the entire Democratic ticket should be elected, thus wiping out gang rule."

WOMEN SUFFRAGETTES IN JAIL AND NOW WILL THEY BE GOOD?

MISS PARKHURST. MRS. PARKHURST.

Miss Cristobel Pankhurst and her mother, the widow of Dr. Pankhurst, long a prominent barrister of Manchester, spent the night in Bow street jail in London, following the attack this week on parliament, accused of a breach of peace in connection with the suffragette demonstrations. They had been summoned in court, but refused, and in the evening surrendered too late for a hearing, and so suffered the punishment of being prisoners. Miss Pankhurst and her mother are leaders in the "Votes for Women" crusade and were founders of the Women's Social and Political Union, which gave vigor to the suffragette campaign. Miss Pankhurst, after a course at Victoria university at Manchester, headed the list of successful bachelors at law. When she asked to be called to the bar, her plea was denied, and she then began her crusade, which has as its object equal rights for women. The young woman is one of the youngest of the crusaders, is of medium height, plump, has curly light brown hair and deep gray eyes. She is rich, gifted, splendidly educated and fitted to adorn any sphere of life, but has given up every ambition except that of securing recognition for all women on the same plane with men. She has been arrested several times for her work.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD SYNOD

Annual Gathering of Church in Minnesota in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reports from pastor evangelists along historical lines of the work done during the year in the vrious presbyteries took up a part of the opening session of the Presbyterian synod of Minnesota which is being held in House of Hope church.

Rev. D. K. Lourie told of the organization of this youngest presbytery in the northwest of the state. The great problem in this section is the giving the gospel to a scattered population.

Duluth presbytery reported through Rev. Samuel A. Jamieson. The work is being pressed in the mines of the iron range and in the lumber camps.

A report on Macalester college submitted by President T. M. Hodgman showed a substantial gain in attendance, the enrollment two weeks after the opening this year being 257, as compared with a total enrollment last year of 227.

The college budget will this year reach $38,000, President Hodgman said, a slight increase over that of last year.

The report detailed the improvements which have been made in the past year, including expenditures for permanent repairs, and the building and equipping of Wallace hall at an expense of over $90,000.

Rev. A. D. Sutherland of Philadelphi, explained a movement to provide sustentation for aged ministers by a plan of insurance. The ministers take out a policy similar to the annuity form, paying 20 per cent of the premium, and the 80 per cent being paid from a fund provided for that purpose. The synod adopted a resolution commending the Presbyterian Sustentation fund.

Rev. S. C. Stevenson of the Presbyterian college at Salt Lake City, made a strong plea in behalf of the work there. He explained the failure of the Mormon church, to give the gospel. Westminister college, the one under the charge of the Presbyterian church, has undertaken the educational work.

William Shaw, international general secretary of the Christian Endeavor movement, spoke of his experience with the Presbyterians and the work they have done in advancing the Endeavor movement. He urged the Christians to go to the polls as well as to prayer meetings.

The following standing committees were appointed:

Bills, ect., Rev. W. S. Ward, J. C. Faries, J. T. Henderson and Elder C. T. Thompson; judicial business, Rev. J. S. McCormack, Joseph Lauman and Elder H. A. Campbell; finance, Elders S. A. Blair, Mark Wanwig and D. K. Lawrie; devotional services, Rev. D. D. Mitchell, F. J. Barackman, C. E. Fulton and Elder Thomas Scotten; leave of absence, Rev. J. H. Sellie, Guy S. Davis and Elder F. M. Stewart.

Rector Exonerated.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Rev. A. W. Griffin, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, has been exonerated of the charges preferred against him by the choir boys. The exoneration was embodied in a report addressed to Right Rev. Bishop C. P. Anderson by the investigating committee.

HUNGRY PACK AFTER THEM

Wolves Pursue Family Near Brookston Who Flee for Safety.

Wailing of One of Children Attracts Beasts From Timber.

Brookston, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pursued by a pack of hungry wolves intent upon attacking them the members of the family of John Ciocarelli had a thrilling experience a few nights ago which culminated in their seeking refuge at a friend's house for the night while the baffled brutes howled about the dwelling until morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ciocarelli and two children are holding down a homestead claim two miles east of the village, and they spent the afternoon with C. T. Larson and family, who are also homesteaders near here. They started for home at about 7:30 o'clock, and were about half way home, when one of the children commenced to cry. This sound evidently aroused a pack of wolves that were lingering in the neighborhood, for in a moment there were no less than a dozen of the brutes seemingly right at the heels of the family. Mr. Ciocarelli lost no time in figuring about what action he would take should the wolves attack them, but went straight for the home of Joseph M. Larson, whose house is about a half mile from that of Mr. Ciocarelli's.

They found the door unlocked, and made themselves at home for the night, as they did not care to take a chance on going the rest of the journey until morning. The wolves seemed to surround the house immediately after the family had entered, and kept up a dismal howl for some time afterward. Mr. Ciocarelli had a rifle with him, but as the night was very dark he could not get a bead on any of the animals, though he fired one shot in an endeavor to frighten them. The shot had no good effect, as it seemed only to make the beasts howl louder than before.

It has been known for some time that there were wolves close to town, as the forest fires of the past summer have driven the animals from the thick woods, but it did not seem that they were hungry enough to get so close to town and almost attack a person at this season of the year. The experience of Mr. and Mrs. Ciocarelli will not soon be forgotten by them, and in the future Mr. Ciocarelli says that when he travels at night he will be armed with both rifles and lanterns.

BROOKSTON HAS BAD FIRE.

Three Thousand Dollars Loss Sustained by Lumber Company.

Brookston, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 3 o'clock Tuesday morning fire was discovered in the mill yard of the Eklund Lumber company, and in a short time $3,000 worth of stock was destroyed.

There is no telling how the fire started, as everything seemed to be all right at 10 o'clock Monday when the watchman made his last round for the night. After midnight several persons passed near the mill, but they claim there was no sign of fire at that time. The night car repairer, who was inspecting a train at 3 o'clock, was the first to notice the fire from this side of the river, and he immediately gave the alarm, which was in turn sounded by the shrieking of a locomotive whistle. Nearly all of the townspeople got up and were taken across the river, and a bucket brigade was formed and after a few hours' hard work the mill and planer were saved. The wind was blowing briskly from the south, and was very fortunate for saving the mill, else everything would have been destroyed. The fire of Tuesday morning was the third that has occurred at the mill during the past year, but this last blaze was the most disastrous of the three. The fire protection has been scant, but each time everybody has worked with a will and a determination that deserves commendation. The burning of the stock of lumber will be a severe blow to the company, as quite a sum of money has been spent in overhauling the mill lately.

None of the passengers were hurt.

GIRL SAVED BROTHERS.

Young Miss Risks Her Life in Burning House.

Hansboro, N. D., Oct. 16.—Thurza Brown, the 15-year-old daughter of James Brown of Hansboro, is the heroine of the north end of the county for her bravery in saving three of her little brothers from burning to death in their home. The hired man had started a fire in the kitchen stove, about 5 o'clock, and then went to the barn to do the chores. When Mr. Brown awoke the interior of the kitchen and the entire roof of their cottage was in flames. Mr. and Mrs. Brown and some of the children barely escaped in their night clothes.

Three of the younger children, who slept in a bedroom off the kitchen, were cut off by the flames, and when the family realized the danger of the little ones, they were paralyzed with fear, but not little Thurza. She instantly realized that the only way of escape for the children lay through the burning room and at once started through to save them. She could carry only one at a time, and three times entered the burning house, each time returning with the sleeping form of a chubby child in her arms. The little girl herself was not very severely burned, though not five minutes after she brought out the last of the sleeping children the roof caved in and the house was a smouldering heap of ruins.

POPULAR FARGO GIRL HONORED

MISS MARY BENTON.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The selection of Miss Mary Benton of Fargo by Governor Burke to christen the new battleship, North Dakota, was a happy one and gives the utmost satisfaction here, where Miss Benton was born and has grown to womanhood.

She is the talented daughter of Col. John D. Benton of this city, a pioneer resident of the territory and state and leading attorney and capitalist. The colonel is best known because of his prominence as a Democratic leader. Twice he was nominated for congress and made a gallant fight against overwhelming Republican strength. Another time, when the Republicans of the state legislature were deadlocked, the colonel came within three votes of being chosen United States senator, but was betrayed by men who had agreed to vote for him.

Miss Benton, after completing her education, went to Lausanne, Switzerland, where she attended a school for young ladies for a year. She spent several months traveling on the continent, and when she returned to this country she took a three years' course in the Art Institute at Chicago. Following this she devoted three years to the study of miniature painting in the New York Art league.

Miss Benton is tall and slender, very graceful and attractive, and a leader in the exclusive social affairs of Fargo. She is to be chaperoned at the christening by Mrs. Alice Nelson Paige, a well-known North Dakota newspaper writer and correspondent. They will probably go East early in November in advance of the rest of the christening party and spend some time with friends in New York and Boston prior to the christening exercises of the great dreadnaught which is to be named after this state.

FINNISH FARMERS' MILLS

At Salo, Mich., Busy Turning Out Flour.

Hancock, Mich., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Finnish Farmers' Milling company's plant at Salo is busy turning out its capacity, fifty barrels of flour per day, nearby all custom milling work. Prominent members of the company state that the season promises to be a good one, and the quality and supply of the wheat brought in by farmers of this vicinity is exceptionally good.

The farmers seem to be marketing their grain early this year, as at present the warehouse of the company with a capacity of about 3,000 bushels is full and a number of patrons are engaging the service of the mill to do their grinding as soon as possible.

TAKEN TO REFORMATORY.

Houghton County Officers Place Three in Ionia Institution.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Shackled to the wrists of Sheriff Beck and Deputy Leo Patrick Cook, three prisoners sentenced by Judge Streeter to serve indeterminate terms in the state reformatory at Ionia, left on Wednesday's train, where for at least six months the three will be in custody. Abram Kemora, sentenced to serve from six months to two years, for being an habitual drunkard and disorderly person; Joseph Maribite, sentenced to from one to three years for a statutory crime and Dan Ekholz, forger, who received a similar sentence to that given Maribite, comprised the trio of prisoners taken away.

OLD COUPLE ASPHYXIATED.

Overcome by Coal Gas, Are Dead When Found.

Grafton, N. D., Oct. 16.—Having missed Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman for several days, neighbors broke into their home Wednesday evening and found them both in bed dead from coal gas. They were last seen on Monday and must have expired that night, as the coal fire was built in the afternoon.

Both were 70 years old and pioneer settlers. They are survived by one son, J. Coleman, an attorney of Everett, Wash.

FIND CHARRED SKELETON.

Bullet-Pierced Skull Points to Mysterious Crime.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the deepest mysteries in the annals of crime in this country is baffling the Menominee county authorities. While hunting in the extreme end of this county, Edward Bergman and Ole Harsted of Bark River, found the charred skeleton of a man.

The skull was pierced by a bullet, causing the man's death, and then a fire was built about the body, consuming every evidence leading to identification. Careful investigation produced the remnants of a grey soft hat, a few wisps of light colored hair and the skeleton of a man about five feet in height.

Two theories are accepted by the authorities, that the man was either shot by some unknown enemy, or killed accidentally by a careless hunter, who hoped to escape punishment for manslaughter. The remains were brought to this city.

DIES IN HIS WATER TANK

Fifteen Burned Skulls Found in Ruins of Destroyed Cars.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 16.—At a late hour this afternoon details were still lacking about the disaster that overtook the relief train coming from fire-stricken Metz to this city, but it is known from Millersburg that fifteen burned skulls have been found in the ruins of the destroyed relief train and that the fireman was burned to death in the water tank of his locomotive, where he had taken refuge.

It is not yet definitely known how many persons were aboard the relief train when it pulled out of Metz, nor whether any of the refugees except the two trainmen who have arrived at Posen, escaped with their lives. The information received from Millersburg told only that the skulls had been found in the wreck, and that Conductor Kinville and Engineer Foster escaped form the burning train by crawling along the tracks on their hands and knees, with the forests on either side roaring furnaces.

The forest fires above Alpena in Presque Isle county suddenly became threatening again yesterday, after it was thought that the heavy rains early in the month had extinguished them. They spread rapidly and were soon menacing a number of towns along the line of the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad. The little village of Metz, with about 100 inhabitants was one of them. Its situation became acutely dangerous last night and a relief train of box cars was sent. Household goods and store stocks were loaded on some of the cars and people filled the others. How many were taken aboard is not known, nor is it known whether any of the farmers from outlying points had come into Metz seeking refuge from the flames. If this is the case there may have been more people on the train than the inhabitants of the little village could have furnished.

Flames on Both Sides.

With its load of frightened men, women and children, the train pulled out of Metz and started for the north. There were flames along the tracks on both sides and the roar of the burning timber rose above the sound of the engine. The train proceeded toward the north as far as Hawks station, about half way between Metz and Millersburg. There the flames were sweeping across the track so fiercely as to make further progress in that direction impossible. The train was immediately headed back toward Alpena. The necessity for returning again into the flame-ridden section from which they had been fleeing increased the terror of the passengers aboard the ill-fated train. As they were rushing through the fire and smoke the train struck a culvert which had been burned through. It left the rails and piled into the ditch, according to the meager reports received through the two trainmen who had escaped.

What scenes of horror must have followed when the terror-stricken refugees found themselves helpless, amid the fire from which they had been fleeing, are not yet known from the lips of any survivor. Conductor Kinville and Engineer Foster managed to crawl into Posen early this morning on their hands and knees, both badly burned. Kinville is reported to be blinded by his burns. No story has been obtained from them yet, owing to lack of wires. Only the bare report that they are alive and in the village, has come out.

From Millersburg about noon came the first positive confirmation of the fate of at least part of the train's passengers. It was but a brief statement. It said that fifteen burned skulls had been found in the ruins of a gondola car which made up part of the train, and that the body of Fireman Arthur Lee had been found in the water tank of the engine, where he had sought refuge and had perished. The report also said that Mrs. Cicero of Metz and three of her children were among the dead. This is all which the anxious newspaper men and railroad officials here were able to get over the wire from the village of Millersburg up to noon.

Wires Are Down.

Wires are down in many places through the country, and it may be several hours before anything additional can be learned from Millersburg. Nothing definite has yet come from the north as to the fate of the village of Metz. It is thought to be more than possible that there will be loss of life there, if the flames have completed the work of destruction which had begun when the last report was received. It is thought possible that there have been only women and children and helpless persons placed aboard the relief train which met such a horrible fate, and that some, at least, of the strong men of the hamlet may have stayed behind to fight for their homes. Millersburg added to its statement to that fifteen skulls had been found, and that most of them were thought to be those of women and children.

The operating department of the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad, at East Tawas, has been unable thus far to secure any information except the tidings from Millersburg. The road has not yet received any statement from the conductor or engineer, who are at Posen. Neither have they been able to learn the fate of any of the little villages north of Millersburg, on the line of the road.

THE MAN OF TODAY IS A WISE MAN!

Stout Men

are too often victims of their tailors, and are compelled to suffer in their feelings through lack of knowing how, on the part of the cutters, who design their clothes.

Stein-Bloch has made a study of stout men's needs for 54 years.

Their clothes fit.

The man of today is a wiser being than the man of twenty years ago. This is particularly true of his buying. He makes up his mind that he wants a thing, and he generally gets it.

You are interested in clothes, for never has pride in personal appearance been so important in the world as today, but are you getting exactly what you want?

Are your clothes wholly satisfactory to you? Do they fit as smoothly as some you have seen? Have they that atmosphere of distinction which people call style?

These things are hard to get in clothes—in exactly proper quantity. The average tailor cannot give them to you. If he could he would not be "average." You probably can hardly afford the other kind.

But you can afford what Stein-Bloch do for you. They gather from all parts of the fashionable world the best in fashion and in fabrics.

These various features they assemble and review, and the clothes are handed over to you, perfect composites of the best fashion of the day. They fit you smoothly and impart to your whole physical being character and style. They are modern clothes for modern men, and are sold at a price whose fairness is made possible only by wise management and long experience. From $18 up to $35.

Call or write for "Smartness," a book of fashionable clothes as they are worn by the best dressed men today. Full of illustrations—sent free. And insist upon seeing the label before you try on. It is in every Stein-Bloch coat, and stands for 54 Years of Knowing How.

TWO BALLOONS LOST IN OCEAN

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The German balloons Plauen and Hergezell, which left here Monday in an endurance contest with twenty-seven other competitors, have not been reported, and the Aero club committee is convinced that they have been lost at sea.

The other airships have all been accounted for.

The Plauen was piloted by Herr Hackstetter and the Hergezell was in charge of Lieut. Foertsch. Both airships were of comparatively small capacity, the Hergezell measuring 1,450 and the Plauen 1,896 cubic measures.

WOMAN ON TRIAL BEFORE A JURY

Mrs. Annie Peterson was placed on trial before Judge Cant, in district court this morning, on a charge of conducting a disorderly house at 2805½ Helm street, in the West end, June 15 of this year, and prior to that time. A jury was speedily secured, and the taking of testimony for the state was begun.

The house of the Peterson woman was raided by the police June 15, and the woman was arrested. Complaints had been made to the police by the neighbors, who said that noisy demonstrations were frequent and disturbing, men visited the house day and night and the place was disorderly.

Milton J. Rockwell, a street car motorman, who occupied the first floor of the house from May 28 to June 15, was the first witness for the state. He said he had often heard dancing, singing, piano playing and noise like shifting furniture and falling chairs upstairs. He said he had also admitted men, who had inquired of him where Mrs. Peterson lived. Mrs. Rockwell corroborated his testimony.

TRIAL OF MORSE TO BE EXTENDED

New York, Oct. 16.—That the trial of Charles W. Morse, organizer of the American Ice company and a big coastwise steamship combination, and Alfred H. Curtis, ex-president of the National Bank of North America, on charges of violating the national banking law will be a long and bitterly fought legal battle, was indicated when the case was resumed today.

Edward B. Wire, cashier of the National Bank of North America, who was subjected to a searching examination yesterday, was recalled and after a few questions by counsel for the prosecution was given into the hands of Attorney MacFarlane, counsel for Curtis, for cross-examination. From the manner in which Mr. MacFarlane began his cross-examination it appeared that he intended to go into every phase of the direct testimony.

CHANLER INSISTS HE'S NOT INSANE

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 16.—Sensational testimony was promised when John Armstrong Chanler (or Chanlorer, as he has called himself in recent years), ex-husband of Amelia Rives, the authoress, and alleged brother of Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, Democratic candidate for governor of New York, took the witness stand today in his own behalf in the insanity proceedings before Commissioner Booth.

The object of the suit is to legally establish Chanler's sanity and to recover his fortune, which he alleges has been confiscated by New York courts.

BIG MEETING AT BEMIDJI FOR GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Largest Crowd Ever Assembled There at Political Gathering.

Jacobson Pointed Out as Enemy of Northern Minnesota.

Cass Lake Fills the Theater at an Afternoon Meeting.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson held a reception with the people of Beltrami county at the city opera house in Bemidji last night, and he was welcomed by the largest crowd that ever assembled at a political meeting in this city, fully 100 more than were present to hear the governor speak two years ago, when the crowd was a record-breaker.

The governor spoke at Cass Lake in the afternoon, and a good-sized delegation of Bemidji Democrats went over to Cass Lake on the noon train to assist in welcoming the governor when he arrived from Duluth.

The Bemidji band and a large delegation of Bemidji citizens met the governor and his party at the depot in Bemidji, when the Great Northern train pulled in at 8:15 last evening. The crowd marched to the city hall in a body and the building was soon filled to the rafters, there being an overflow in the halls outside. It is estimated that fully 300 people were unable to gain admittance to the hall and were compelled to leave without hearing the governor talk.

Was in Good Form.

Although somewhat hoarse from his strenuous talks on the iron range, Governor Johnson was in good form, and his talk all through the evening was of a brilliant nature, he being interrupted again and again by prolonged applause.

On the platform with the governor sat W. E. McEwen of Duluth, P. H. Nelson of Hibbing, Democratic candidate for state treasurer; Andrew J. Gilkinson of Osakis, Democratic candidate for congressman from the Sixth congressional district; L. F. Johnson of Bemidji, chairman of the Democratic county committee; J. Russell, secretary of the Democratic county committee and Democratic candidate for county attorney, and many prominent Democrats from all parts of the country tributary to Bemidji.

L. F. Johnson acted as chairman of the meeting, and as soon as the band had played a piece, Mr. Johnson introduced the governor, saying but a few brief words.

Governor Johnson, when he stepped to the front of the platform, was given deafening applause.

The governor paid a glowing tribute to William Jennings Bryan, and urged the Democrats present to vote and work unceasingly for the "Commoner."

Tariff Needs Revision.

He intimated that it was unnecessary to discuss the tariff at any great length; everybody knew that the tariff needed attention and the only question is whether it will be revised by its friends, or by the people through representatives imbued with their wishes in the matter.

The governor told of his working in harmony with the Republican legislature, and how much needed legislation was secured by suggestions from the executive office. He then discussed Mr. Jacobson, who insisted upon standing on his record, instead of duscussing issues. He thought it the duty of a candidate for the office of governor of a great state like Minnesota to let the people know where he stood, where he stands and where he intends to stand upon all great public questions. He mentioned the appointment of the tax commission and recited some of the good works of that commission, the work of which had been done in a splendid manner.

The governor told of the now famous "Belshazzar feast" in Duluth at which Jacobson spoke, and intimated that the Republican candidate would be "weighed in the balance and found wanting." It had been said that Mr. Jacobson had been nominated by "the interests," and the only answer the Lac qui Parle man made to the insinuation was that he (Jacobson) "stood on his record."

Enemy of Northern Minnesota.

Of Mr. Jacobson's record he said that Mr. Jacobson had been a tireless enemy of Northern Minnesota and its development, and said that his legislative "record" proved that assertion.

In replying to Candidate Jacobson's assertion that the legislature and the state executive had been recklessly extravagant, the governor told of how Jacobson, when a member of the board of control, had recommended to the legislature that they make an additional appropriation for carrying on the affairs under their supervision, and when the appropriation was secured, he (Jacobson) had cried extravagance.

The speaker suggested to the voters that they get in the habit of voting for themselves, that is, of giving their own interests careful consideration and study before voting "for the other fellow."

The governor gave a very good account of his stewardship during the four years of his incumbency, and declared that he could look any man in the face and defy him to say wherein he had failed to live up to his promises and perform his full duty. This statement brought forth a storm of applause.

In closing Mr. Johnson gave a very pretty allusion to the time when election day has drawn to a close and the dawn of the succeeding day will find him smilingly; he was a cheerful loser, and possibly the smile would be a little broader were he selected for the third time as governor of the great North Star state.

At Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Minn., Oct. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson was given a warm welcome when he arrived here at 2:45 yesterday. The depot platform was crowded with people eager to gaze upon the great executive. He was escorted to the Endlon hotel by Mayor Lange and the Democratic committee, of which L. H. Burns is chairman.

At 4 p. m. he was scheduled to speak at the Unique theater and notwithstanding the fact that it was during working hours, men deserted their occupations to be present. The hall was packed to its utmost capacity; even standing room was a scarcity. At 4 o'clock the governor in company with Dr. Gilkinson, candidate for congress, entered the hall and as soon as his presence was known he was loudly applauded. Judge Joss acted as chairman of the meeting and first called upon the quartet for a musical selection. They sang "The Star Spangled Banner," and were joined by the audience.

Dr. Gilkinson Speaks.

The chairman then introduced Dr. Gilkinson, who delivered an eloquent and forceful address touching principally on the national campaign. He explained why he believed the Democratic party should rule, and dwelt briefly on the platform adopted. He bitterly assailed the Republican government for the panic of 1907; criticised the passage of the Aldrich bill; condemned Cannon and Fairbanks for permitting and assisting such wrongs; paid a high tribute to Senator La Follette, saying he was the only Republican in the senate, who worked rightly in connection with this matter; told how the Republican party refused to adopt the election of United States senators by the people and how they refused to consider the guaranty of bank deposits. He highly praised John Lind and stated that the Democratic party presented to the people as a candidate for governor, a man who had twice before been elected and once by the overwhelming majority of 72,000. He took pride in mentioning the name of John A. Johnson.

Governor Johnson Talks.

The chairman next introduced Governor Johnson and in doing so he said: "Fifteen years ago I became acquainted with a young man working in a printing office as 'the devil.' Gradually this young man worked his way from the case to the editorial desk and then he was elected to the legislature and now he appeals to the people for a third term as governor of Minnesota. I take pleasure in introducing Governor John A. Johnson." The governor was loudly applauded as he arose.

Governor Johnson's speech was largely along the lines of the address he delivered at Duluth. He reviewed the record of his two terms as governor. He felt satisfied that he carried out all the promises he made four years ago and pledged himself, if re-elected, to continue the good work he had started.

dolpr Hearst, excited, emerged from his hiding place and he accepted the papers which the deputy thrust out. He appeared less indignant than his wife.

Mr. Hearst said that the summons was entirely unexpected; that he had not the least suspicion that anything of the kind was to occur in Omaha.

"Why did you conceal yourself and refuse admittance to the officer?" was asked.

"Because myself and wife were retiring for the night," explained Mr. Hearst. "I have no objections to being served with these papers here in Omaha or anywhere else.

Little Damage to Car.

"Frankly, I don't believe this case will ever come to a trial, and the knowledge that this suit has been filed does not disturb me in the least. When Governor Haskell said not very long ago that his only reason for not bringing action against me was his lack of funds, I offered to donate the necessary amount from my pocket, and this offer still holds good."

After serving the papers on Mr. Hearst, Deputy Sheriff Stewart left the car. Examination of the door of the stateroom disclosed the fact that no great damage had been done aside from breaking the lock.

The petition in the case follows:

"Plaintiff for his cause of action states at all times herein mentioned, defendant was and now is the owner and publisher of a certain newspaper, published daily in the city of Chicago, Ill., and known as the "Chicago Examiner," that said newspaper is given a wide and extensive circulation in said city and state and in the entire United States, and especially in the state of Illinois and Nebraska.

"That at the times herein mentioned, the plaintiff was and now is the governor of the state of Oklahoma; that he was chosen chairman of the platform committee which drafted the national platform for the Democratic party in the presidential campaign of 1908, and was later chosen treasurer of the national Democratic committee, and, that as such public servant and party official, he enjoyed the public confidence and esteem of the people of his own state and of the people throughout the United States.

"That Sept. 19, 1908, because of his hatred, malice and ill-will against plaintiff, defendant maliciously, wantonly and wickedly spoke at Memphis, Tenn., and Sept. 20, 1908, printed and published in his said newspaper, of and concerning the plaintiff, the following false, defamatory and libelous article, to-wit:

Standard Oil Again.

"'I have shown how the Democratic party altered its platform to suit the Standard Oil and made Mr. Haskell, who an agent of the Standard Oil, the chairman of their committee on platform.

"'I have shown how the Democratic party first held out its hand to the Standard Oil and then held out its hat to the Standard Oil an dappointed this same Haskell as its national treasurer to take up the collection.

"'Here we have a president who apparently does not heed this advice, and then we have a Standard Oil tool made chairman of the committee on platform at the national Democratic convention and treasurer of the Democratic campaign fund.

"'Why is Mr. Haskell placed in these important positions in the Democratic party? Is it, first, to make a platform that will hold the Standard Oil and then make a proposition that will hold up the Standard Oil?

And Du Pont, Too.

"'Mr. Bryan says that the Republican party cannot possibly be sincere in its attitude towards the trusts, with Mr. DuPont, a member of the powder trust, at the head of its speakers' committee.

"'My friend, Mr. Mooney, who is one of the best editorial writers in the United States, emphasizes that point in this morning's Commercial-Appeal.

"'I am going to subscribe to his paper in the hope that he will tell me some time later how the Democratic party can possibly be sincere in its attitude against the trusts with a Standard Oil tool placed at the head of its platform committee, and then at the head of its treasury.'

"That by said statement and publication the defendant meant and intended to insinuate and charge, and did insinuate and charge, and was by the readers of said article understood to mean and charge that this plaintiff, Charles N. Haskell, while governor of said state of Oklahoma, and while chairman of said platform committee, was an agent and tool of Standard Oil, and that by such he knowingly, wickedly and corruptly formed and framed, and assisted in forming and framing the platform of the Democratic party, or a part thereof, to protect and promote the interest of said Standard Oil company, to the prejudice and injury of good government and of the people at large; and that, as treasurer of said Democratic national committee, he knowingly, wickedly and corruptly, without honor and integrity, took up the collection from, and 'held up' said Standard Oil company, the defendant insinuating, meaning and charging thereby, and was by the readers of said article understood to mean and charge thereby, that said Charles N. Haskell, willingly disregarding and ignoring his duties and obligations to the people at large, did corruptly collect enormous funds from, and dishonorably incurred improper political obligations to, said Standard Oil company.

Denies It All.

"Plaintiff states that the publication above noted, in all its meanings and innuendoes, wilfully, wantonly, wickedly and malliciously made by defendant of and concerning the plaintiff, Charles N. Haskell; that the same was and is false, which facts were well and are known by defendant at the time of the publication thereof; and that the same was and is designed to, and has the tendency to expose, and does expose, the plaintiff to public hatred, contempt and ridicule, to deprive him of the benefits of public confidence and social intercourse, and to blacken, villify and destroy his good name and reputation.

"That the false statements and publication above quoted were published and circulated in various counties and cities in the state of Nebraska, and in Douglas county.

"That by reason of said publication above quoted, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $300,000, and that by reason of said wilfull, wanton and malicious act, and as an example and warning to other wrongdoers, and as punishment to defendant, said William Randolph Hearst should be required to pay plaintiff exemplary and punitive damages in the additional sum of $300,000.

"Whereof, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant for said sum of $300,000 as actual damages, as aforesaid, and for the further sum of $300,000 as exemplary or punitive damages."

threatening attitude that for a time grave fears were entertained for the safety of the two big grain boats lying in the river and the Calumet elevator, which, it is said, contains more than 1,000,000 bushels of corn.

The salt docks were practically destroyed wthin half an hour after the alarm of fire had been sent in. Four years ago the docks were destroyed, incurring a loss at that time of more than $1,000,000. The freighters were towed to a place of safety by a fire boat after the flames had reached within fifty feet of them. Ten companies of firemen were detailed for almost an hour at the elevator and succeeded in preventing the flames from reaching it.

The fire was one of the most spectacular that has been witnessed in Chicago for many years. Thousands of persons hurried to the scene and the police had considerable trouble in keeping the crowds outside the fire line. Rumors were current that the fire started from sparks from a passing engine, but railroad officials declared that no engines were in the neighborhood for almost an hour before the fire was discovered.

MANY PERISH ON A RELIEF TRAIN

weakening the track and that the rails spread, derailing the relief train, which was then destroyed by fire. Engineer Foster and Fireman Lee took refuge in a water tank, where they stayed until the water became so hot that they had to leave the tank and run for their lives. They are reported badly, but not seriously, burned.

The fires in the immediate neighborhood of Alpena have receded today, and this city is now out of danger. It is feared that there has been much loss of life in outlying hamlets and farms throughout Presque Isle county.

Sixteen Coffins Sent.

Detroit, Oct. 16.—Reports to both the Detroit News and the Detroit Journal from Alpena state that it is definitely known that fourteen people were burned to death in the relief train from Metz. They were principally wome nand children, who were cooped up in box cars, the only ones available when the train was hurried out of Metz. It is reported from Alpena that sixteen coffins were sent north on the train, which left early this morning.

The dispatcher of the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad at East Tawas stated to the Associated Press over the long distance telephone that he does not know how great was the loss of life in the burning of the Metz relief train. He had been and is making every effort to get into communication with some office near the scene of the fire. Reports, he says, have come to his office in various ways of heavy loss of life, but he knows absolutely nothing that is authentic. The relief train was made up of several box cars and a way car. The last report the dispatcher received about it last night was that the women and children from Metz were being placed aboard the train to be taken out of danger.

This Report Says Sixteen.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 16.—According to meagre information available here today at the office of the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad, there were sixteen persons burned to death in the Metz relief train last night which was destroyed by the forest fires. The wires north of Alpena are down and the officials of the Detroit & Mackinaw road here are powerless to secure details or even confirmation of the train's destruction. The reports which have reached here today say that after loading the people of Metz on the train with their household goods a start was made for Cheboygan.

Flames made it impossible to proceed further than Hawks station. Then the train was headed south toward Alpena. After passing Metz, it is understood here that the train left the rails near Pulaski and was destroyed. The forest on both sides of the track was a blazing mass. The engineer and firemen are reported as to have jumped into the water tank of the engine, only to be forced out as the water grew hot and were burned to death. A message from Alpena states that sixteen coffins have been ordered sent north.

Can't See Across River.

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 16.—Forest fires have again broken out in Chippewa county and are threatening in the extreme. Brimley, a town fifteen miles west, is in serious danger of destruction, and Neebish settlement was saved last night only by heroic efforts of the fire department from the Canadian Soo, which went there with an engine on a tug boat. The smoke is so thick that it is impossible to see across the river today and boats are either tied up or operating under check. Unless there is rain soon losses will reach thousands of dollars. The flames reached the city limits here last night and are threatening a dynamite storehouse.

Electors Will be Asked to Pass on Agricultural School.

County Board Wants Power to Appropriate Necessary Money.

In accordance with a resolution passed by the county board at the August meeting, the people of St. Louis county will be called upon at the coming general election to decide whether the county board shall have the power to appropriate money for the establishment of an agricultural school for the county.

The school is provided for in chapter 14 of the general laws of 1905, giving counties the power to establish agricultural schools, the money to be appropriated on the approval of the voters of the county. The act provides that the amount of money appropriated for the erection and maintenance for the school shall be not to exceed $20,000 in any one year. Under the act, the county agricultural schools shall be free to all residents of the county, with certain qualifications as to education required.

Though the county board made no expression for or against the school, the members of the board, in considering the resolution providing for submitting the question to the electors, spoke very favorably of the proposed school, for which they consider St. Louis county, as an agricultural district, is ripe.

The agricultural school question will find place at the extreme foot of the county ballot at the coming election.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The finely padded shoulders of the young married man were firmly wedged in the crowd around the tie counter, at which the sale was going on. Men were in front of him, men were in back of him and men were closely beside him. Occasionally in the crowd a woman's hat arose and necessitated her taking up a good deal more room than she was entitled to. Gradually it was borne into the innermost consciousness of the young married man that something sharp had penetrated the fine shoulder pads and that the same sharp thing was prodding itself into his flesh. The young married man removed his shoulders and the hat pin by the same movement and looked backward and down into the upturned eyes of his own heart's desire.

"What are you doing here?" he asked of her.

"Buying ties," said she. "I thought I'd save some money for you, so I came down town just as soon as you left."

"Now see here," said the young married man, gently albeit, firmly, "I'll choose my own ties. I never wear anything but the quietest colors and the most subdued and modest patterns. And although I'm sure that——"

"Oh, that's all right," said the wife. "That's just the kind ' like best, too. And they are cheap, aren't they. Just think of it, only 10 cents each. One could almost waer any kind of tie, if it was as cheap as that, couldn't one?"

"Not on your life" said the young married man.

In his earnestness he pushed her back out of the crowd.

"Now see here, Jane," he said with the dreadful earnestness of one who is afraid of the outcome, "you simply must not pick out ties for me. You can choose the rugs and hang up all the Japanese prints you want to, but I insist upon buying my own ties. I insist," he said and he emphasized his remarks by waving aloft those he had chosen from the sale lot.

"What are these?" asked his wife in a withering tone, and she held between a disdainful first finger and thumb a bright green tie of "emerald" tone barred in the section where it crossed over with a sickish looking lavender.

"And this," she asked sending speechless messages at one of a grass green with a thin line of golden orange running through it. "And this," she said, puckering her lips and lifting her nose at one of red and yellow plaids. "Are these your quiet, subdued tones?" Infinite contempt breathed forth from her silent inspection. The married man looked at them dazedly.

At the counter a tall blonde young man and an equally tall rather dark young man found themselves at either end of the same tie, shoving away from each other as rapidly as possible.

"Let go," said the blonde young man with a fierceness which the occasion hardly seemed to warrant.

"Let go yourself," said the dark young man, flushing angrily and taking an extra twist in the tie under contention.

"I won't," said the blonde young man.

"Gentlemen! Gentlemen!" protested the ever gentlemanly clerk.

The gentlemen glared at each other fiercely, and by a last muscular effort the blonde young man ripped the tie from his opponent's hand.

"Selfish pig!" muttered the dark young man to himself.

"The goat!" said the blonde young man as he pocketed the tie in triumph.

"Gentlemen! Gentlemen!" muttered the ever gentlemanly, but harrassed clerk to himself.

Men at a sale, as always, are very interesting.

CHILDREN NOT MORAL

Nor Immoral, Either—Simply Passive.

"We do not expect paternal feelings in a child of 5," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in October Woman's Home Companion. "Why, then, should we expect any other of those race-regarding impulses which we term 'morality?' Even to appeal to the 'better feelings' of a child or 3 or 10 is often almost as irrational as the celebrated apostrophe of the emotional Irish barrister, who in the fine frenzy of his peroration whirled upon the judge with the thrilling appeal, 'Sir-r, was you ever a mother?' To appeal to a child's better nature, while excellent, in moderation, often does little more than make a hypocrite out of him before his time.

"He has got your hair, and his mother's eyes and voice, and some of your little tricks of manner—and temper—now, and he is just as safe to develop your superb, self-control and civic devotion and consideration for others if you will only give him time—and set him a good example. Meanwhile preaching to him that he should possess these qualities will expedite matters precious little, and unless backed up by example, not at all. Remember that life and growth of all sorts are but a response to environment, and new responses can only occur as opportunity is afforded for them."

BURLESQUE CIRCUS.

Great Affair Being Planned for Y. M. C. A. Gym.

Since the erection of the new Y. M. C. A., the complete gymnasium has attracted and developed such a wonderful array of athletes that the officers of the physical department have decided to give a real old time one ring circus on Nov. 5 and 6, so that Duluth may see and appreciate what is being done three. There will be tumblers, contortionists and acrobats for those who revel in feats of strength; clowns, trained animals and curiosities for lovers of the grotesque. A burlesque band from among the best musicians of the city will furnish music. The circus will be given in the gymnasium, where a sawdust ring will be provided. Rehearsals are already under way and the interest among the members is so great that Duluth may well expect something entirely new and pleasing in the way of amusement.

The affair will be one of the first since the opening receptions at which women will be entertained at the building, and it is being anticipated with much interest.

HOME WEDDING.

The bride wore a gown of white silk trimmed in lace and carried a shower bouquet of roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The rooms were prettily decorated in ferns and flowers. Miss Martin was formerly a resident of Bedford, Ind., but has made her home in Duluth for a year. Mr. Cobb is a member of the Duluth Builders' Exchange and a member of the board of education. Mr. Cobb and his bride will be at home in this city.

Phelps, and Miss Mary Naughton gave an entertaining talk on the subject, illustrating her remarks with demonstrations in clay modeling. There was a vocal solo by Mrs. Bailey.

BEAUTY AND MYSTERY.

That is Woman—or What She Should Be.

A vast majority of women are falling in love in the good old fashion, writes Anna McClure Sholl in Appleton's, marrying and rearing families, and some of them will be able to prepare their boys for college when the time comes, on the strength of their own academic degrees. But whether college bred, or bred in that sweetest of all schools for a girl, her own home, this majority is keeping alive the old traditions of chivalry which are founded not on an ancient feudal system, nor on the ideals of an aristocratic society, adoring the great dame and scorning the peasant woman as a clod of the field, but on the instinct of strength to protect weakness, to worship beauty, to yield to the sway of mystery; and beauty and mystery are represented in this world chiefly by women. Beauty is their birthright, and mystery is a part of their very constitution, being, as they are, nearer than men to the spiritual side of life—the hidden procreative force which peoples both heaven and earth.

Wash Dresses.

Wash dresses will be worn more than ever the coming fall and winter by young girls. It really is a most excellent plan, for the dresses are easily laundered, and by the wearing of warmer underclothing one may dress quite as comfortably as though the dress were of heavy material. The wash dresses seem more sanitary than garments which cannot be cleansed frequently.

Match Your Eyes.

If your eyes are blue, of the pale, china-doll tints, or of that nondescript tone, half gray, half green, then by all means choose a frock or ribbon garniture of Copenhagen or porcelain blue.

This particular shade will deepen the tone of pale-blue eyes two tones and transform the nondescript ones into quite a blueness.

Don't, however, if your eyes are the blue that goes with red hair, indulge in blue gowns. It will make you washed out and characterless.

A PITIFUL CASE FOUND

It was a pitiful tale told by F. E. Hardwood at the fire relief headquarters, Second avenue west and First street, this morning, and the key to his whole trouble was that he had not read a newspaper for the past six weeks.

For nearly six weeks, since the flames had devoured his home and all his worldly possessions at Chisholm, he had to slave so constantly to provide for a sick wife and four little children, that he has been too weary to read the daily news when he had a chance. Consequently he had no idea of the assistance he could obtain from the Duluth relief committee.

On the night the fire swept the range town, his wife was lying ill with the diphtheria. She was carried to Hibbing, where friends took her in, and nursed her back to health.

Hardwood came to Duluth, where he got night work on the Northern Pacific road. In the days when not too tired, he picked up odd jobs about town. When his wife had recovered she came to Duluth also, with the children, and friends at 2023 West Superior street, took them in.

Hardwood learned this morning for the first time there was a place of relief for fire sufferers in Duluth.

"I need a pair of shoes," he said, and held up his foot, showing that there was no longer any sole there and no stocking either. He explained that doctors, medicine and the support of the family had brought him to such straits. Even his hat was the same as the one he had worn the night he had fled from Chisholm. It was burned about the crown and brim.

Before Hardwood left the headquarters he was clothed in full, and carried away an armful of garments for his little ones and wife.

ACROSS SEA TO MARRY

After three years' service in the Swedish army, during which he had fond dreams of a home with the girl of his choice in the land of the free, Axel Johnson's hopes will be realized, for he and Clara Sjokvist secured a license to wed today from the clerk of the district court.

Axel didn't secure the license, for he was lost in the maze of safeguards thrown around marriage by the laws of the United States. Miss Sjokvist, however, came to the front in the emergency. Explaining to the court that her bashful swain, just arrived from Sweden a week or so ago and couldn't talk a word of English, she gave the necessary information under oath and was given the license to marry.

Three years ago, Clara Sjokvist came to the United States and about the same time, Axel Johnson was forced to take up arms and prepare to fight, if necessary, for the honor of his native land. The courtship of childhood days was thus rudely interrupted, but was not broken. Vows of loyalty were given and all during the separation, they were faithfully kept. As soon as Axel secured his discharge from the army, he boarded a steamer and hurried to Duluth, where his Clara awaited him.

They will lose no time now, but Axel will begin his battle with the new world, aided by a wife, who knows the ropes and can keep him in the channels that lead to wealth and prosperity.

GIVEN $1,500 FOR HIS EYE

Valuing the sight of an eye at $1,500, a jury in district court this afternoon returned a verdict for that amount in favor of Mike Sakich and against the Consumers' Ore company.

The suit was for $15,000 for the loss of an eye, due to injuries sustained by Sakich while in the employ of the company at Buhl. He was engaged in cutting a piece of tubing with other men, using 14-pound hammers, when a splinter, supposedly from the tube, entered his eye, completely destroying the sight.

The case was begun Wednesday and was given to the jury about 10:30 o'clock this morning. W. J. Power, for the plaintiff, claimed that the injury was caused solely by negligence, as the men had been hammering on the steel for hours with heavy hammers, resulting in its becoming disintegrated. He claimed that Sakich hadn't been warned of his danger and was not aware of it, having worked but ten days at the time.

Pacific Fleet's Plans.

Washington, Oct. 16. — Admiral Swinburne of the Pacific fleet now cruising in the South Pacific ocean, will visit the western coast of South America after completing target practice at Magdalena bay about Dec. 1. The fleet is made up of eight armored cruisers, the West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Tennessee, Washington, California and South Dakota. They will touch at Panama, Callao and Coquimbo, Peru and Talcahuano, Chile, and will return to Magdalena bay in time for spring record practice at the targets.

Everhart Here.

Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart, who is a guest at the St. Louis hotel, believes that the chances for Jacobson are improving. He says that the battle will be in the cities and that Jacobson is showing more strength there than he was at the beginning of the campaign. Mr. Eberhart predicts a Taft victory in this state, but also says that Bryan will receive a heavy vote in Minnesota.

Lots of men, in buying clothes, are not half particular enough about quality; they'll buy almost anything that looks stylish, and fits; especially if the price is low.

It's the wrong way to buy clothes. We hope you don't buy yours that way. The right way is to be sure first of the quality you're getting. "Is it all-wool? Is it well tailored?" A price means nothing unless you know what you're getting for it.

In this store we want you to know what you're getting for your money; we're not afraid to tell you, either. Ask if the goods are all-wool; ask if they're tailored right; ask about style, wear; try the clothes on.

But if you see the Hart, Schaffner & Marx label in the clothes, just consider it an answer to your questions; all-wool; clean, honest tailoring; correct style, best wear. The price will be right.

Suits $18.00 to $35.00

Bridgeman-Russell company's milk is real milk in its natural state, cleansed, cooled and sealed in bottles to prevent contamination, just as you seal up your canned fruit in summer. If not properly cared for our milk will sour, as all good milk should do. But if you will keep it cool and leave the cap on until you are ready to use, you will find it always sweet and palatable with nice rich cream at the top—the ideal food.

Order a bottle or two and try it. That's the true test. Our wagons pass your house every day.

UNJUST RATES DEPRIVE CITY OF MANY CUSTOMERS

Duluth is Discriminated Against in Matter of Freight Rates.

Robert Mee Points Out Unfair Conditions That Exist.

ROBERT MEE,
Democratic Candidate for Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner.

Robert Mee, Democratic candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, is at the Lenox hotel today. Mr. Mee has made a thorough study of freight rates, as affecting the northern part of the state, and has some very interesting figures that are of vital interest to the people of this part of the state.

Mr. Mee was seen by a Herald representative this morning and gave out some figures that show a discrimination in rates against Duluth, which has resulted in freight being distributed from Chicago instead of from Duluth. Mr. Mee proves that more coal, more lumber, and more general class freight could be distributed from Duluth, provided the railroad and warehouse commission did its duty.

Mr. Mee was asked how and to what extent do these discriminations affect Duluth.

The Coal Rates.

"Let us take for example the rate on coal," replied Mr. Mee. "Faribault pays the sum of $2 a ton on hard coal, from either Duluth or Chicago, and as a result Chicago gets a small portion of the coal business of Southern Minnesota. This is unjust to Duluth and to Faribault. It is unjust to Duluth because the railroads pulling the coal from Duluth to St. Paul receive $1 a ton, while the roads pulling the coal from St. Paul to Faribault, receives the same amount. The distance from Duluth to St. Paul is 152 miles. The distance from St. Paul to Faribault is fifty-two miles. Therefore the roads making the final haul get as much for hauling the coal fifty-two miles as the road making the initial haul of 152 miles. This is entirely out of proportion.

"Suppose a train of 800 tons of coal were to start from Duluth to St. Paul. The road making that haul would receive $800 for a haul of 152 miles. The road having the final haul of fifty miles receives exactly the same amount, $800. If the first road were to pull it that additional distance, the distance from St. Paul to Faribault, at the same rate it now receives, it would receive $275, or $525 less than the road now having the final haul to Faribault. Therefore, if we should secure the rate we should have from Duluth, all of our coal would necessarily come from Duluth. That would mean more business for this city.

The Lumber Rates.

"There are many other discrepancies that affect Duluth in this way. The manufacturers of lumber are very much discriminated against by the rate south and west from St. Paul. Let me show another example of this discrimination. Let us take a train of 8,000 tons of lumber. Ship it to St. Paul or Minneapolis, and we would pay a freight charge of $880 or 5½ cents a hundred weight. If we take the same train on to Faribault (fifty-two miles), we will pay $1,200 additional freight. This would make the through freight rate 13 cents per hundred from Duluth to Faribault. If the road making the initial haul should have continued that haul for that fifty-two miles at the same rate at which it hauled it for the 152 miles, it would have received $300 additional, instead of receiving $1,200, which the road making the final haul receives under the present rate.

"This, of course, is unjust to these shippers, as lumber is sold delivered, and much more lumber could be sold in that territory from these points, if you had a decent rate from here.

Class Rates.

"To all class rates to the principal jobbing towns in Southern Minnesota, is added an arbitrary differential of 15 cents per hundred on first-class freight over St. Paul and Minneapolis, whether the freight comes via Duluth or Chicago. This is as unfair as the coal rates, for exactly the same condition exists concerning this rate as it does regarding the coal rate. For this reason Duluth gets a very small proportion of the first-class freight from New York and Boston."

Mr. Mee was asked if Duluth would distribute all of the freight, should the differential be placed where it should be.

"That certainly would be the fact," he replied, "for there would be a sure saving of from 7½ down to 2 cents a hundred, from first to fourth and fifth class freight."

Mr. Mee stated stated that the railroad and warehouse commission has the authority to remedy this discrimination. They could adjust these rates upon a fair basis, according to Mr. Mee, who stated that this power to revise these rates was substantiated in the New Ulm rate case, in which the United States supreme court held that the commission had the right to establish a joint rate and to divide the amount of the rate between the two roads, in just proportion to the mileage haul.

Mr. Mee stated a slight difference should be allowed for local handling of freight, over the through haul, but stated that the difference would be nominal.

"It is 200 odd miles from Duluth to Faribault. The distance from Chicago is 400 odd miles," said Mr. Mee. "The railroads are keeping these points on an equal rate basis, the rates from Duluth and Chicago to these southern part of the state shipping points, being the same. In this way millions of tons are diverted from Duluth and are distributed through Chicago and other shipping centers. Thus Duluth is deprived of its natural territory and Southern Minnesota is deprived of the benefit of having the seaboad brought within the borders of our state."

Mr. Mee stated that these points had been brought before the attention of the railroad and warehouse commission at the time when the New Ulm case was decided, the members of the commission refusing to make the necessary reduction. Mr. Mee stated that he had been working on this rate evil for the past five years. He has given the subject a great deal of careful study, and states that if he is elected to that commission he will devote his best efforts toward remedying a patent discrimination in the rates of the state. Mr. Mee is of the opinion that it should be the duty of every state officer to be loyal to the interests of his state, rather than loyal to the interests of other states. He believes that the remedying of the rate discrimination would result in furthering the industries in this state, and has exerted his efforts in the past to securing some relief in the matetr. He says Mr. Bjorge, Democratic candidate for the commission is thoroughly in accord with his views upon tuis question.

Mr. Mee stated that the roads have an interest in favoring Chicago in the matter of rate discrimination, as they get much of their business there. He says that by keeping the rates on a parity between Duluth and Chicago to the southern part of the state, the roads are working to their own advantage to the detriment of the interests in this section of the state. Mr. Mee states that the members of he railroad and warehouse commission are alive to this fact, but have refused to take any action that would abolish this rate unfairness.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

Duluth Leads Other Markets in a Good Up Turn.

Flax Has Better Tone and Closes Higher Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 16.—Duluth led all the other markets in the advance today, going a point over yesterday's close at the strongest period of the session. The strength here was largely on a firm demand from Eastern millers, augmented by a stiff cash market. Opening prices were weak, but the softness did not last.

News from the winter wheat district is still bullish. The Modern Miller this week says:

"Drought conditions still delay seeding of winter wheat, though some farms are plowing and seeding in the dust. The areas under winter wheat will be less than last fall. A small increase is reported in Texas. The situation is worst in the soft winter wheat states. In Kansas and Nebraska seeding is further advanced, these states having been favored with occasional rains."

Argentine shipments were liberal, being 1,624,000 bus., against 624,000 bus. last week and 584,000 bus. a year ago.

Liverpool closed unchanged to 1d lower; Antwerp ⅜c to 1¼c lower, Berlin ¼c lower and Budapest 1¼c lower.

The December option closed ¾c higher in Duluth and Winnipeg, ½@⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅝@½c higher in Minneapolis and ⅝c higher in New York. Wire trouble again prevented the receipt of the closing prices in the Southwestern markets. The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, ½c higher in Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York and ⅞c higher in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago and ⅝d to ¾d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ¼c higher in Chicago.

Bradstreet's cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The market at the opening was affected by the weakness in American cables yesterday, increased Winnipeg receipts and cheaper new La Plata offerings and values showed a decline of ¾d. Following the opening there was a show of strength as offerings became lighter and prices advanced ¼d. Large houses supported on the scarcity of offerings and the fact that there was an absence of nearby cargoes. Toward mid-day, however, part of this advance was lost on profit-taking, stimulated by the liberal shipments from Argentina, an increase of stocks and a general ½d decline in spot markets. At this time market was dull and ⅜d to ½d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was easy at the start and ¼d lower and later declined an additional ½d. Weakness resulted from free selling, prompted by the liberal Argentine shipments, weakness in Argentina cash, free offerings of cargoes and increased American and European offerings."

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,454,000 bus., last year 1,392,000 bu. Shipments 475,000 bus., last year 838,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 294,000 bus., last year 729,000 bus. Shipments 160,000 bus., last year 636,000 bus.

Wheat opened easier in the Duluth market but gathered strength after the first hour, on an improvement in the demand from the East. Trading was of good volume during the day. December wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.00¾, declined to $1.00⅝, rallied to $1.02 and closed at $1.01⅞, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. May wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.04¾, went off to $1.04½, reacted to $1.06 and closed at $1.05¾, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¾c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over December wheat for No. 1 northern.

Flax advanced during the session and closed firm. October flax opened unchanged at $1.02¾, declined to $1.20⅛, rallied to $1.21¼ and closed ¼c higher than yesterday at $1.21. November flax opened unchanged at $1.21, declined to $1.20⅜, rallied to $1.21⅞ and closed ¼c over yesterday. December flax opened unchanged at $1.20, went off to $1.19⅜, rallied to $1.20⅞ and closed at $1.20¼, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. May flax opened unchanged at $1.24, declined to $1.23¾, rallied to $1.24⅞ and closed at $1.24½, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—The wheat market opened weak, with prices a shade to ¼@⅝c below the previous close, owing to general selling based chiefly on a sharp decline at Liverpool, as shown by early cables. A rally at Liverpool was followed by a fair upturn here, some of the leading bulls buying freely. The drought in the Southwest was still unbroken, but unsettled weather is forecasted for parts of the winter wheat territory. December opened at 99⅛c to 99⅜c, sold at 99¼@⅜c and then advanced to 99¾@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 873 cars against 810 cars last week and 781 cars a year ago.

The market gained additional strength during the last half of the day owing to reports of severe frost last night in parts of Argentina. December advanced to $1.00½. The market closed strong with December ½@⅝c higher at $1.00⅝.

Buying by shorts caused firmness in corn following a weak opening. The buying was inspired by fears of wet weather for the corn belt. The decline at the start was due partly to lower prices at Liverpool. December opened ⅛c to ¼c lower at 62⅞@63c and advanced to 63½@⅝c. Local receipts were 144 cars, with 33 of contract grade.

The market became stronger in sympathy with wheat, December advancing to 63¾c. The close was firm with December up ⅝c at 63¾c.

Trade in oats was quiet and the market was steady, December opened unchanged at 48⅝c and sold at 48⅜@48¾c. Local receipts were 209 cars.

Provisions were weak because of selling by pit traders, who were influenced by a 5c decline in live hogs. At the start prices were 2½c to 35c lower.

Close: Wheat—December, $1.00⅝; May, $1.03⅜; July, 98⅛c. Corn—October, 71⅞c; December, 63⅝c; May, 63⅜@63½c; July, 62¾@62⅞c. Oats—December, 48⅜c; May, 50¼@50⅝c; July, 46c. Ribs — October, $8.57½; January, $8.07½; May, $8.12½@8.15. Rye—Cash, 75c; December, 76c; May, 80c. Barley—Cash, 56@63c. Timothy, $3.50@3.70; March, $3.70@3.80. Clover—October, $8.

Cash: Wheat, No. 2 red, $1.00¼@1.01⅜; No. 3 red, 99¼c@$1; No. 2 hard, $1.00¼@1.01⅜; No. 3 hard, 98c@$1.01; No. 1 northern, $1.05; No. 2 northern, $1.02⅜@1.04½; No. 3 spring, 97½c@$1.04. Corn, No. 2, 72@73½c; No. 2 white, 75c; No. 2 yellow, 78½c; No. 3, 73c; No. 3 yellow, 78c. Oats, No. 3 white, 46@49c; No. 4 white, 42½@46¾c; standard, 48½@49c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Advances After Having Made Declines Early in Day.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 16.—Wheat made early declines and then turned around and advanced, closing strong. Early weakness was on lower cables and lack of trade, also a better outlook for rain in winter wheat states. Later there was a report of frost in Argentina and a summary of dry weather conditions in Missouri and Kansas that made it firm up. Minneapolis elevator stocks will increase about 2,100,000 bushels for the week. Receipts today 454 cars against 285, in Duluth 430 against 393, in Winnipeg 69 against 103. September opened $1.01; high, $1.01⅝; low $1.00½; closed $1.01½. Old December closed $1.01½. May wheat opened $1.05⅛, high $1.05⅞@1.06; low $1.04¾; closed $1.05¾@⅞.

Good cash demand ruled for top grades, but demand for the medium and low grades was not so good. No. 1 Northern was fully firm at 20c over September and fractionally firmer than that for selectins. No. 2 was quoted December price with selections quarter cent over. No. 1 Northern spot or to arrive, 5-.03⅛; No. 2 Northern spot, $1.01⅛@$1.01¾; to arrive, $1.016; No. 3 wheat, 90½@$1.00½.

No. 3 yellow corn, 75¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 44⅞@45⅜c.

No. 2 rye, 70¾@71¾c.

Barley receipts, 70 cars, against 101 last year; shipments, 54. Good malting barley was firm, but feed grades were half to 1c lower. Close, 50@59c.

Flax receipts 80 cars against 75 last year. Shipments 196. Crushers took it ½c under Duluth October. Close, $1.20¾.

Millstuffs steady at $17.75@18.25 for bulk bran.

Flour quotations are on a wider range, but otherwise unchanged. There is a fair demand generally although not quite so good as last week. Shipments, 60,847 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $3.90@4.20; second clears, $2.90@3.20.

EUROPEANS DISLIKE US

J. G. Ostby Finds Cordiality in Japan and Chilliness in Europe.

J. G. Ostby, who has completed a tour of the world, is of the opinion that the United States as a nation is more cordially disliked in England and Germany than in the land of the mikado. Mr. Ostby came to this impression after he had visited each of the three countries.

"This opinion of us, which seems to prevail in Germany and England," said Mr. Ostby, "I believe has been caused by the lavish manner in which some of our wealthy families have lived while abroad. The people of England and Germany have come to the conclusion that we are vain, boastful and proud of exhibiting our wealth.

"I didn't find any hatred of the Americans in Japan. On the contrary, there seems to be a cordial liking for this country among the Japanese. I talked with many of the educated Japanese, and they seem to believe that after all we are the friends of Japan. I was very much surprised, for I had been led to believe that there was a hatred for Americans in the minds of the Japanese.

"I visited Australia, the Philippines, Hawaii and about every country where the regular steamers touch at. I found things progressing in the Philippines. There street cars used to move at a snail's pace. Now they have the fastest cars I have ever ridden in. That is just one instance of American progress. We are slowly civilizing the Filipinos."

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Started Out With Little Change and Apathetic.

Business Increased, But Close Was Extremely Dull.

New York, Oct. 16.—Opening dealings in stocks today were apathetic and unimportant price changes were the result. Declines of ½ in Union Pacific and Reading were of most effect on the speculative sentiment in the narrow market. Canadian Pacific lost a point.

The stock market gave a brief exhibition of strength when a keen demand arose for Union Pacific, St. Paul and Reading. A readiness to take moderate profits in these stocks caused a sympathetic sag in the rest of the list, and the advances were wiped out.

The market was very dull for a time around last night's level and then stiffened slightly. Consolidated Gas declined 1 and Minneapolis & St. Louis rose 1. Bonds were firm and active.

A slow upward movement brought St. Paul and Reading up again to the top figures, but there was no feature elsewhere. Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred gained 1½ and North American 1. Federal Mining preferred sagged 1¾ and Wisconsin Central 1.

Business increased, but although St. Paul continued its rise and touched 138⅛ at a rise of 2⅛, the rest of the list did little more than hold its own. Prices yielded a fraction at the end of the hour.

The market closed easy and extremely dull. Signs of profit taking sales under cover of the rise in St. Paul and Union Pacific disturbed confidence in the traders, and prices fell back. Baltimore & Ohio, Atchison and Erie sold a point below last night, and some other prominent stocks a fraction.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 16.—Barrett & Zimmerman report the horse trade continues about the same as it has been for the past month, and no great improvement is looked for until after election. There was a moderate inquiry for good 1,400-pound farm mares. Dealers have an extra choice lot of logging horses on hand with the demand for them very backward.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 16.—Notwithstanding better cables than expected, the cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points, and ruled rather irregular at first, owing to October notices, good weather, continued heavy receipts and Southern selling of the late months. The market held steady late in the forenoon with prices about 5 to 8 points net higher at midday on continued covering by near months' shorts and the absence of aggressive offerings. Spot, quiet; middling uplands 9.20; middling gulf, 9.45.

My own wires to the Copper country. Also connections to Eastern Markets.

OCT. 16, 1908.

Mr. Hornee J. Stephens, one of the greatest authorities on copper mines in the world, has been through the Butte-Ballaklava mine and has made a thorough examination of the property. He comes out strong and states that he believes it will, when further developed, show up the greatest deposits of high-grade ore of any mine opened up in Butte since the North Butte. He states that the North Butte is one of the richest mines in the world. Buy Ballaklava, for these statements are true, or we would not dare publish them. Our statements regarding this mine have always been right, and some of these days in the very near future we will back them up with some of the biggest and richest deposits of ore in the country. It would be a good plan to take on some Butte-Ballaklava about this time. It closed $8 bid.

Shattuck also looks better and sold today at $15. Red Warrior was very strong today on good report from the mine. The following is a copy of a message received today from Milford, Utah:

"North drift first level in ore, North drift second level, 35 feet from shaft, in high-grade lead carbonates. Cnat tell how wide. Full face of drift in ore. Having samples run. Will wire later."

Second message:

"Sample No. 1—Lead, 86 per cent; silver, 17 ozs. Sample No. 2—Lead, 57 per cent; silver, 25 ozs."

Copies of messages can be seen at our office. They came from the superintendent direct to one of the officials.

The Red Warrior is surely making a wonderful showing. If they keep up this gait at the property, we may see it another Daly West proposition. This last named property has paid dividends for years and years on a very big scale. Red Warrior closed $6 bid.

Carman is hard to buy today. We understand the developments have again begun on this property, which has the same general veins as the La Chispas mine. The Carman people have begun reachlug out for these same great ore deposits. Stock closed $3.25 bid.

Butte-Montana is getting harder and harder to locate. Thousands and thousands of shares of this issue have found their way into the strong boxes of people who know what can be expected from the mine. We have a report on this property by Mr. Wm. Farrish, one of the greatest mining engineers in the United States, and the examination was made only about four weeks ago. He claims big things for the Butte-Montana mine, and as do we. How can they help but open it up rich when the lends are now all in ore and the 1,000 and 1,200-foot levels not drifted on yet? We hope to make an announcement in a few days in regard to certain men who will be interested in a big way. We will mail you a copy of Mr. Farrish's report for the asking. Keep on buying Butte-Montana, for it is selling too low altogether, and you are at least getting four times your money's worth. If the property is not worth $2,000,000, then it is not worth anything.

Globe Consolidated is getting along better every day, and Mr. Hovland deserves a whole lot of credit for carrying this property to such a successful stage. Stock closed $6.75 bid.

Copper Queen is very cheap at $1.06 and should, we believe, be bought at this level.

We will do our best to give the people the right information on all mining properties. We are not narrow and therefore, no matter which one shown up good or bad, we are here to advise you of the actual conditions of each property. Give us your business.

GOD MADE THE TRUSTS
—(Dolliver.)

Iowa Senator Says Deity is Responsible for Regulation.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 16.—Senator Dolliver of Iowa, declared last night before an audience here, that God made the trusts, not man, and that God would be responsible for their regulation. Senator Dolliver said in part:

"Trusts are governed not by any statute but by the laws of God, made for the protection of his own people. The laws of Good are equal to the task of regulating the growth of the trusts."

Citing the law of maximum consumption Senator Dolliver said that it was to the interest of the trusts to make prices low so that consumption would increase; that postage stamp revenues increased in proportion as the price of stamps was reduced by law; that sugar sales increased and the profits therefore with the reduction of the prices and fell with its advance.

"The sugar trust," he said, "is in the hands of the author of the universe."

THEIR TURN TO LAUGH

Johnson Supporters Smiling Over Statement of Republican Chairman.

George Frederick Williams Will Speak at Armory Tonight.

It is to chortle.

The Johnson supporters have a snicker coming along, self contented soulful, snicker.

W. E. Culkin says through the News Tribune that the armory meeting of Governor Johnson and the range trip was the heaviest gun of the Johnson campaign and that it was a blank shot. Mr. Culkin is the chairman of the Republican county committee.

By one of the strange accidents that happen in making up a newspaper the statement is placed immediately beside an advertisement containing the picture of a large bunch of grapes—probably sour ones.

"No harm has been done, and what little Johnson feeling there is here, will ebb from now on" says Mr. Culkin, who also discovered that half of the people at the Johnson meeting were staunch Jacobson supporters. It was probably the Jacobson supporters who stood for two hours outside the building waiting for the first meeting to be over, so they could pour into the building and "root" for a second meeting—an incident without precedent in the political history of Duluth and probably the state.

Charles Jesmore of Eveleth was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Jesmore is of the opinion that Johnson will receive a larger vote than he did last year, in the range districts and believes that Johnson will carry every range town.

"The enthusiasm that greeted the governor was something that even we, who were expecting an enthusiastic demonstration, were surprised at," said Mr. Jesmore. "The effect of the range trip of the governor will be, in my opinion, to make hundreds of votes for him. There is no getting way from the fact that the people of the range believe that the governor is friendly to the interests in the northern part of the state, and that they are of the opinion that at no time has the governor opposed the interests here. If there was anything needed to confirm this belief, the trip of the governor to the range certainly convinced the people that he is a friend of the interests of this section of the state.

"I know that he will receive the heaviest vote he ever received in Eveleth, and from what I hear I am sure that he will receive a very heavy vote all over the range. I am not in the habit of predicting, but I will predict that governor Johnson carries every town upon the range."

Robert Mee, Democratic candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, was at the Lenox hotel yesterday. Mr. Mee was a caller at Democratic headquarters during the day and brought the information that conditions were favorable in the southern part of the state. Mr. Mee lives in Faribault. He has been out among the people since the primary election, and he is of the opinion that the Democratic sentiment is growing.

Duluth Democrats will witness at least one more big rally before the campaign draws to a close, and will have the opportunity of hearing another speaker of national reputation.

George Frederick Williams of Boston, Mass., one of the most prominent Bryan men of the country, and a staunch supporter of the Commoner since 1896, will be in Duluth on Oct. 23 and will address a meeting at the armory on that evening. He will speak in Superior on Oct. 22.

Duluth voters will have two more chances to get their names on the voting lists.

Tuesday, Oct. 20, and Saturday, Oct. 24, will be registration days in Duluth, and those who did not vote at the primaries must get their names on the lists then or they will not be allowed to vote at the election in November.

Both parties will be very active during the next two weeks, holding rallies, organizing clubs and conducting meetings throughout the county.

The Democratic committee has planned for meetings at Midway, Winton, Scanlon and Cloquet in the near future. Andrew Nelson will address all of these meetings. Other speakers to be selected by the committee will also assist Mr. Nelson at the meetings.

J. W. Reynolds and Dr. O. A. Oredson, Democratic candidates for the legislature from the Fiftieth district, will address a meeting at Duluth Heights Saturday night. Alfred Jaques will be on the program with the two legislative candidates. A meeting has been planned for West Duluth, and the members of the Democratic county committee are endeavoring to secure some prominent speaker to address the members of the West Duluth Democratic club.

Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart will address a Republican meeting at the West end this evening. Clarence B. Miller will speak at Hibbing tonight and at Floodwood Saturday evening. W. E. Culkin, chairman of the Republican county committee, will also deliver an address at the Floodwood meeting. John Heino and Odin Halden will be on the program also.

Alderman McKnight and J. P. Palmer, candidate for the office of register of deeds, will address a McKinley meeting tomorrow evening. Meetings are planned for every night next week, according to W. E. Culkin.

W. E. Culkin is endeavoring to secure some national speaker for a Duluth date, but as yet nothing definite has been decided upon by the state central committee.

LINE BOATS IN BIG RUSH

The Package Freight Business is Again Opening Up.

Many Boats May Run After Their Insurance Expires.

After a dullness for the past six weeks in the package freight business, the trade is again opening up, and the different agents report the biggest rush of the present season. Most of the companies will run their boats until Dec. 5, when the insurance runs out, and if the weather will allow, many of the lines will take chances and run their boats up to the very last.

"It is just a matter of the number of trips the boats can make," said one agent this morning," and as business is rushing, we will try to crowd in as many trips as possible. A while back it was a matter of getting a cargo, but now it is how many trips?"

Every company is rushed with business, and all of them have contracts which must be filled within a certain date. Owing to the lack of traffic some time ago, many of the companies loaded themselve up with contracts. The lines which took no contracts are now reaping a harvest, for in view of the small number of free boats, and the great amount of freight to be carried before the close, the shippers are offering fancy rates.

Some of the lines are chartering new boats to care for the improved business.

The Owego, a lower lake freighter, now under charter to the Mutual Transit company, arrived in port this morning for the first time. She will be kept on the run until the close of the season.

PROGRESS ON PATCHWORK SLOW

Holes in Sacramento Are Much Larger Than Thought at First.

The work of patching the holes made in the steamer Sacramento is progressing much more slowly than was expected, owing to the finding of much greater damage than was believed to exist at first.

Capt. Joseph Kidd, who has the work in charge, expects to have the patchwork finished by tonight, and the work of removing the mud and water from her hold will be started Saturday morning.

James Davidson of West Bay City, Mich., arrived in the city last night. After discharging her cargo of coal at the Northwestern Fuel company's dock, which will be not later than Monday or Tuesday of next week, the boat will go to the Superior shipyards, where it will undergo permanent repairs.

Colonel Fitch Home.

Col. Fitch of the United States engineers arrived in the city this morning from Detroit, where he has been the past week on official business. He expects to get busy at once on the proposed harbor changes, and will give his decision in the course of a few days.

ARE INJURED AS VESSELS COLLIDE

Passengers Hurt and One Knocked Overboard, But Rescued.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 17.—The steamer Cottage City, Capt. Jensen, which left Seattle last night, bound for Alaska, was in collision with an unknown lumber schooner off Jefferson Head early today. Purser William Jones of the Cottage City was knocked overboard, but was rescued uninjured. An Italian passenger, whose name could not be learned, suffered a broken leg. Several of the other passengers were injured, but their names and the extent of their injuries are not known. The whole upper works of the Cottage City were torn away, the steering gear put out of commission and the vessel otherwise injured.

E. B. BUCKLAND DENIES BOARD'S JURISDICTION.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The controversy over the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission as to joint rates between water and rail carriers, was thrashed over at a hearing before the commission yesterday. The hearing grows out of the ruling of the commission May 4 last, in a case where a steamboat line agreed upon joint rates with a rail carrier for certain passenger and freight traffic in which it was held that a water carrier could not unite with a railroad company in making a through route and joint rate on a particular traffic without subjecting all its interstate traffic to the provisions of the interstate law, and to the jurisdiction of the commissions.

E. B. Buckland, president of the New Haven & Hartford railroad appeared on behalf of the railroads and denied that the commission had jurisdiction over rail carriers in such cases. F. S. Martin appeared for the water carriers.

FIRE DEAD REACH 27

Flames Raging Furiously in Numerous Counties in Michigan.

Whole Villages Blotted Off Map; Lumber Camps Destroyed.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 17.—With twenty-seven people known to have perished yesterday in Presque Isle county and with forest fires still raging uncontrolled through the counties of Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Alpena and Alcona, as well as in other scattered districts through Northern Michigan, diligent search was begun today to determine the full extent of the holocaust.

It may take many days to reveal tragedies that are likely to have occurred on isolated farms, with families fighting bravely to the last to save their lives and their homesteads. The death list may not be fully known for a week. But it needs no elaborate details to determine that the property loss will run into the millions. Whole villages have been blotted off the map and logging camps by the dozen have been destroyed with their entire season's output. Near Turner, in Arenac county, a flock of nearly one hundred sheep were burned alive. In the immediate vicinity of Millersburg in Presque Isle county, alone the losses are estimated at half a million dollars.

Other districts where bad forest fires are reported are in the neighborhood of Elmira, Gaylord and Johannesburg, in Otsego county, Cadillac, in Wexford county; Grayling, in Crawford county, where 4,000,000 trees planted by the state forestry commission, were destroyed; Grawn, in Grand Traverse county, and Caseville and Badaxe, in Huron county in the "thumb" district. In the upper peninsula, threatening forest fires are reported around Sault Ste. Marie, Menominee, Escanaba, Calumet and Houghton. At Koss, near Menominee, eighteen homes

WAR SITUATION IS MORE GRAVE

France Continues to Urge Bulgarian-Turkish Peace.

Paris, Oct. 17.—The situation between Bulgaria and Turkey today is regarded as distinctly more grave owing to the attitude of Bulgaria and the latter's preparations for war. The report that Bulgaria refused the offer made by Germany and Austria-Hungary over the Oriental railroad directly with Turkey is officially confirmed.

The French government in response to a Turkish circular sent out yesterday calling attention of the powers that Bulgaria's alleged warlike preparations has directed her minister at Sofia to renew his counsels for peace and prudence.

KILLS SELF IN CROWD

Brother of Sausagemaker Luetgert First Fires in Air.

When All Eyes Are on Him, Fires Bullet Into Brain.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Arnold Luetgert, brother of Adolph L. Luetgert, the Chicago sausage maker, whose trial and conviction for the murder of his wife was one of the most sensational in the criminal annals of the country, has committed suicide in a spectacular manner at Elgin, Ill.

Luetgert was visiting an amusement park, when, to attract the attention of the crowd, he fired three shots into the air. With everybody staring at him he then sent a fourth bullet into his brain.

The suicide, who in his career had been a butcher, a school teacher and at the time of his death was in the real estate business, was a daily attendant at the trial of his older brother Adolph.

According to the testimony at the trial the elder Luetgert killed his wife and destroyed the body by boiling it in a sausage vat. The corpus delicti of the case consisted of a small sessomoid bone, around which the police built a circumstantial structure which resulted in the prisoner being sentenced to a life term in prison. After serving a few years he was found dead in his cell one morning.

GALES FAN COSTLY FIRE

Flames in Oshkosh Lumber Yard Cause $100,000 Disaster.

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 17.—Losses totaling $100,000 were sustained at an early hour today in a fire in the lumber yard of the Morgan company of this city. The loss to this company is estimated at $75,000. Other property owners having losses which bring the total up as above, are the H. C. Doman company, engine builders; Maj. R. P. Davidson of Highland Park, Ill., who lost a cabin launch; John Openberg, Samuel Hawthorne and W. F. Doman.

The fire was made more severe because a gale of wind which carried the embers far up into the business section of the city. Several small fires were started, but were put out by volunteer firemen.

It is estimated that about 2,500,000 feet of factory planks of cypress and white pine were burned.

Military Academy Burns.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 17.—The Nebraska military academy, located three miles west of this city, burned today. The fire started in the northwest wing over the kitchen. FOOTBALL EXTRA!

YALE GETS 6; WEST POINT, 0

Hot Weather Knocks Out Players On Eastern Gridiron.

Chicago University Defeats Illinois On Marshall Field.

West Point, Oct. 17.—Before 10,000 persons the annual football game between Yale and West Point started at 2:59 p. m. today, when West Point kicked off. The halves were twenty minutes each. Dean kicked off, but the ball went over the goal line and was brought back, the army being penalized five yards for offside play. Dean kicked again and Brides brought the ball back fifteen yards. A line plunge gained two more yards for Yale. Soon after West Point got the ball and took it to Yale's twenty-five-yard line. West Point fumbled on the next play, but recovered. The army was penalized fifteen yards for holding. West Point then tried a forward pass, but Yale blocked the ball and Nadle got it for a touchdown.

The ball was returned to Yale's fifty-yard line and given to West Point. An exchange of punts brought the ball to the army fifty-yard line. The army was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Another exchange of punts brought the ball to the army's forty-yard line. Failing to gain through the line, West Point punted. Yale fumbled and Underwood got it for the army in the fifty-yard line. Yale got the ball on her forty-yard line on an onside kick. A double pass failed to gain. Coy punted for the army's forty-yard line and Dean punted to Coy, who returned the pigskin to the center of the field. First half: Yale, 0; Army, 0.

Second Half.

At the opening of the second half, Dean kicked to Yale's 50-yard line. Coy punted out of bounds and the ball was given to the West Pointers on New Haven's 50-yard line. Dean punted to Coy, who held on Yale's 25-yard line. Philbin made five yards through left guard. Yale attempted another line buck, but lost twenty yards and punted to West Point's 35-yard line.

West Point returned the ball to the middle of the field, and Murphy, on a quarterback run around right end, made eight yards. Brides made seven yards more through left tackle. Coy added eight yards through center on two bucks, but fumbled on the next play, and the ball went to the Army on its twenty-yard line. Dean punted to Yale's forty-yard line and Coy returned the punt to Yale's fifty-yard line. Dean punted to Murphy, who ran it back to Yale's forty-five-yard line.

Johnson went in for Carberry at right end on the Army line.

Punts Are Exchanged.

An exchange of punts gave the ball to Yale in the center of the field. Wheaton went in for Philbin at left half for Yale. The hot weather interfered men on both sides. Baehr was substituted for Chamberlin at full back for West Point.

Coy gained two yards on a fake kick. He punted to the Army's 35-yard line, but West Point fumbled on the next play, Coy made four yards through center.

The ball was now in Yale's possession on the Army's 10-yard line, and the Cadets on the side lines were frantically yelling "hold 'em, hold 'em."

Two more line bucks brought the ball within two yards of the Army's goal. Coy failed to gain against the line, but on the next play carried the ball over for a touchdown.

Murphy punted out to Coy, who kicked a goal. Score: Yale, 6; West Point, 0.

Dean kicked off to Brides on Yale's 15-yard line. Coy punted to the Army in the center of the field, Greble making the catch.

Line bucks by Greble failed to gain and Dean punted to Murphy, who heeled on Yale's 30-yard line. Coy punted to Greble, who returned the ball back to the Army's 40-yard line for a pretty catch.

An exchange of punts gave the Army five yards. An on-side kick was grabbed by Murphy on Yale's 30-yard line and he ran the ball back five yards. Coy attempted to punt, but the pass was bad and Coy fell on the ball on his 20-yard line. Coy's second punt put the ball in the Army's possession in the center of the gridiron when time was called. Final score: Yale, 6; Army, 0.

The line-up:

Yale.		West Point.
Lilley	left tackle	Byrne
Andrus	left guard	Weir

CHICAGO, 11; ILLINOIS, 6

Urbana Huskies Taste the Bitter Dregs of Defeat.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—The starch was taken out of Illinois University in the first half of today's football game, when Chicago University scored five. Lineups:

Chicago.		Illinois.
Hoffman	left tackle	Wham
Badenoch	center	Hull
Ehrhorn	right guard	Van Hook
Kelley	right tackle	Railback
Page	right end	Richards
Steffen	quarterback	Sinnock
Crowley	right half	Pettigrew
Worthwine	fullback	Bremer

Illinois' defense proved a surprise to Chicago enthusiasts and confirmed the suspicions of the Chicago men that Illinois had not been going at full speed in its earlier contests. Chicago won the toss and Illinois kicked off. From the start the Illinois line showed that its weight was combined with football skill, and Chicago's efforts to gain for fifteen minutes were blocked as fast as the plays were made.

Bremen, the Illinois fullback, followed a good gain of Sinnock with a dash through center for ten yards. Twice Capt. Steffen was downed in his tracks as he reached Illinos' punts. The first score for Chicago followed a ten-yard run of Eddings, followed by a Chicago criss-cross, that netted fifteen yards.

On a forward pass, Steffen to Schimmer, the Chicago left end got around the Illinois end for the first touchdown. The kick out was fumbled by Page, and the score stood—Chicago, 5; Illinois, 0.

Illinois tired perceptibly as the half drew to a close and time was taken out for Capt. Van Hook.

The final score was Chicago, 11; Illinois, 6.

Catholics Score on Wolverines, Playing at Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 17.—The Wolverines opened up on Noire Dame by place kicking a goal within the first four minutes of play. The Indiana's tried hard to reach Michigan's goal by punts and fake plays. The Michigan line refused to budge and the ends played a masterful game. Douglas and Davison of Michigan ran over and around the Notre Dame ends, making repeated long gains. First half—Michigan, 8; Notre Dame, 0.

The Notre Dame attack seemed to take the heart out of Michigan in the early portion of the second half of today's game. Twice Indiana attempted to place kicks and failed. The ball see-sawed in Michigan's territory for twenty minutes. Then Vaughn broke through the Michigan line and ran forty yards for a touchdown. Hamilton kicked a goal. Later Douglas made a fair catch, and Waller kicked a goal for Michigan from the 40-yard line, making the final score—Michigan, 12; Notre Dame, 6.

JUDGE A SUICIDE; WAS CRITICIZED

Newark, N. J., Oct. 17.—Judge Howell of the criminal court of this city, shot himself in the head in one of the city parks today while his court was waiting for him to appear. Judge Howell was criticised in the political campaign and he challenged his accusers last night to answer questions he asks.

MINNESOTA, 0 NEBRASKA, 0

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—The Minnesota and Nebraska state universities met this afternoon on Northrop field for their annual football struggle. Although the weather was threatening, the day was ideal from the players' standpoint. The Gophers trotted on the field first and went through a bit of practice. The Corn Huskers were at work sixty seconds later.

Nebraska held Minnesota nothing to nothing in a gruelling game. Three times Minnesota had the ball inside of Nebraska's five-yard line only to be held for downs. The bulk of the play was in Nebraska's territory.

Minnesota was a good ground gainer in the open, but without an accurate drop kicker, and unable to pierce the stout Nebraska defense in close play, was unable to strike across the goal.

CENTRALS DOWN NELSON DEWEY

Take Superior Team Into Camp By Score of Eleven to Nothing.

Duluth Centrals and the Nelson-Dewey team of Superior are having a hard game at Athletic park this afternoon.

The first half passed without any scores. Neither team was able to gain consistently, and time after time the ball changed hands.

The first half ended without any scoring.

Duluth took a decided brace in the second half, and went after the Superior men with their heads down. Nearly all of the play in the second half was in the visitors' territory, and after a short period of play, Cook got away for a sixty-five yard run and crossed the Superior goal line. Crawford failed to kick a difficult goal.

The Centrals went at the game with renewed vigor, and after a succession of hard line plays, Cummings got around the end for twenty yards. Crawford kicked the goal, and the final score was 11 to 0 in favor of Duluth.

The game was witnessed by the largest crowd of the season, and the rivalry between the rooters was intense.

WISCONSIN, 15; INDIANA, 0

Badgers and Hoosiers on the Gridiron in Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 17.—Indiana university clashed on the gridiron here today with the powerful eleven from Wisconsin university. The Madison outfit was in prime condition and furnished a formidable spectacle. Lineups:

Indiana.		Wisconsin.
Hatfield	left tackle	Boyle
W. Hoover	center	Stiehm
Trimble	right guard	Dreuter or Orpin.
Dutter	right tackle	Octhoff or Bell.
H. Paddock	right end	Lowman or Dean.
Berndt	quarterback	Moll or Sprinker.
Cunningham	left halfback	Culver
S. Paddock, (Captain).	right halfback	Mucklestone
Winters or Sutphin	fullback	Wilce or Richards

Near the end of the first half, Wisconsin, on a fake pass, got the ball on Indiana's 30-yard line and scored by a drop kick. Neither team could gain much ground by line plays, nor was the forward pass used to much advantage.

The game ended—Wisconsin, 15; Indiana, 0.

HOT CAR HELD WOMEN, CHILDREN

Survivor of Ill-Fated Metz Relief Train Describes Horror.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 17.—Wesley Irwin, a Bay City traveling man, who was one of the survivors of the Metz relief train disaster, gave a thrilling account of the forest fire tragedy. He said:

"The train left Metz about 6 o'clock Thursday evening and ran into the fire three miles south of that place. A burning pile of cedar had warped the rails and into the trap the train leaped, carrying its human cargo to destruction. The five box cars immediately took fire and it was with difficulty that the 200 people in them escaped.

In a deep-bodied steel coal car were located the women and children and as the heat increased they were unable to escape. Men were forced to seek safety and could give no aid. It was terrible to witness, and I hope I will never be compelled to go through such agony again. It made one's heart sink as the pitiful cries of the women and children reached the ears of the fleeing men, calling pleadingly not to be left alone in that seething furnace. The women clung to their little ones and begged for aid. Agonizing cries rent the air and caused the blood in one's body to run cold."

BALLOONISTS PERISH IN SEA

Yarmouth, Eng., Oct. 17.—The German balloon Hergesell was today picked up in the North sea. There was, however, no sign of the occupants and the two aeronauts are believed to have perished.

The Hergesell was found floating half deflated 100 miles northwest of Heligoland by the Norwegian steamer Naddod and brought in here.

The German balloon, Paluen, which left Berlin Monday in an endurance contest, has been picked up in the North sea by a trawler. Clinging to the balloon were the two aeronauts, Hackstedder and Schreider, in an almost exhausted conditon. The men were brought here and Schreider is now in an infirmray, where his condition is said to be serious. The rescue took place about 240 miles from Spurnhead.

SUFFRAGISTS TO URGE CONGRESS

Buffalo, Oct. 17.—That an unsual effort will be made soon to obtain from congress some recognition of the cause of woman suffrage is certain. The advisability of this course has been pointed out by many of the prominent speakers at the convention of the National Suffrage association here, and today there was a round table conference on "Washington as a Center of Suffrage Work."

Aside from the regular sessions of the national association, prominent figures in woman's educational work today organized a branch, to be known as the College Suffrage association.

At the forenoon session of the National association Friday, reports were presented by state presidents, including Iowa, Eleanor Gordon, and Minnesota, Maud C. Stockwell.

INDICTMENT FOR HAINS

New York, Oct. 17.—Indictments charging Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., and T. Jenkins Hains with murder in the first degree were handed down by the Queens county grand jury at Flushing, L. I., today. They are based upon the killing of William E. Annis at the Bay Side Yacht club last August.

FARMER GIVES HIS WIFE TO HER GIRLHOOD LOVER, ALSO CASH GIFT

Petersburg, Ind., Oct. 17.—When Sherman Kime, a farmer of this community, left his home a short time ago in search of his wife, who had deserted him, there was murder in his heart.

It was his intention to seek out and kill the man for whom his wife had left him.

When he returned home he commenced preparations for divorce, in order that Mrs. Kime might marry the sweetheart of her girlhood days, and in addition he had given the man money enough to give him a fresh start in life.

It is doubtful if the strange tale has a parallel outside of fiction.

Posing as a stock buyer, Kime traveled through Arkansas until he had located his wife at the home of her sister. She confessed that she had left his home because of her love for John McArnold, whom she was prevented from marrying when a girl of 16 by her parents.

"I was going to kill McArnold and went to his farm for that purpose," declared Kime. "I had arranged never to return to Indiana, but when he told me his story of hard luck, it was so touching that I thought that if he loved my wife, as he said he did, he needed her services worse than I, although in giving her up I lost everything that was dear to me."

McArnold did not know Kime when he appeared, and became confidential. He told him of losing his wife by death a short time before, and of the death of a child a week before from want of proper care. He told him that all he owned was a few acres of land and several head of stock.

"Then he told me of the love he bore my wife," said Kime, "and I disclosed my identity to him. I felt so sorry for him that I supplied him with money and then went back to see my wife. I told her that I would secure a divorce, so that she could marry the man she loved."

Kime has already consulted his attorneys regarding a divorce, and when it is secured he will be the best man at his wife's wedding to McArnold.

ON THEIR DIGNITY.

London Standard: A telegram from Cherbourg describes a strange happening there yesterday morning. The fishermen had brought in a big catch of fish and shellfish and the market was just opening when a police inspector stepped up to one of the fishwives to make note of an infringement of the local by-laws.

The woman had stepped two yards further than the by-law allowed her to do. A minute later a second police complaint was made—against a woman who had undertaken to sell the fish of a fishwife who was ill. A third complaint was made against a fisherman who went out of his turn in putting up his catch for sale.

The news of the police officiousness spread quickly. Many of the women were still bargaining with the fishermen, but the last bids and counterbids could not be heard for the shouts of the women established behind the fish baskets on the market place. In two minutes the word was passed round that the fishwives were going to close the market in order to show their indignation against the police.

For some time all was hurry and bustle; within ten minutes the market square had been cleared and the fish returned to the boats in which they had been brought into harbor. Thus it was that the 75,000 inhabitants of Cherbourg were without fish yesterday. The strike came to an end today owing to the removal by the municipal authorities of the obnoxious police inspector.

Today is the last day of the sale of Cas-ka. $1 bottle for 35c, or 3 bottles for $1, at Boyce's Drug Store.

WOULD NOT PROSECUTE

Lumber Companies Allowed Case Against Thieves to Drop.

Men Had Children Who Would Have Been Left Destitute.

Owing to the fact that they are poor men and fathers of large families, two West Duluth longshoremen have escaped punishment at the hands of the law.

One of the men was arrested and confessed to hauling stolen from the Alger-Smith and Red Cliff Lumber companies several thousand feet of boards. The other man, though he is known, has not been arrested, and probably will not be, as the lumber companies have refused to prosecute them, out of consideration for the wives and families of the men.

Early in the summer the companies began to miss lumber from their piles, though nothing was said of it. Last Wednesday evening, at the Alger-Smith mill, the night watchman saw a party of four men, about to launch a raft of boards into the slip. They saw him before he could reach them and made a dash for their boat. The West Duluth police are working on the case of the other two men, thought to be in the party, and if they are caught, things are not likely to go as easy with them as with their companions.

When one of the party was held at the station after his arrest, he told the history of the excursions to the lumber piles, but would not admit that there were more than two in his party. Last Monday he made an agreement with a contractor to sell him 4,500 feet of lumber at half price, about $11 a thousand. He took the contractor to the bay front and showed him part of the lumber where had it piled. He agreed to deliver the 4,500 feet Thursday. He had stolen the lumber he had piled there from the Alger-Smith company. Monday night he, with his companion or companions, towed another raft of boards from the Red Cliff company's yards and took them to the foot of Forty-Sixth avenue west. On Wednesday evening he claimed that he intended to steal the remainder of the 4,500 feet from the Alger-Smith people, but would not admit he was with the party, which had been seen by the watchman.

The raiding of the lumber company's yards has been going on all summer, and sales of stolen lumber amounting to more than $100 have been made from time to time. Several people stated at the station that they had seen men towing rafts on the river at night, several times this summer.

THE NEW DRIVEWAY.

West Duluth People Delighted With the Boulevard Extension.

The pall of smoke, which hung over the city yesterday, somewhat dimmed the far-reaching view of the St. Louis river, bay, lake and city from the boulevard, but nevertheless, those who availed themselves of the opportunity of the drive over the west extension of the driveway, given under the auspices of the West Duluth Commercial club, were greatly impressed with the great possibilities of such a view on a clear day.

Except for the smoke, the day was fine, and a long procession of carriages, brakes, and automobiles, filled with people from every part of the city made the trip. Many on their return expressed the opinion that the new extension commands a greater variety and beauty of scenery than do the eastern and middle portions of the drive. At about Fortieth avenue west, there is a high promontory of massive rock, the top of which is said to be the highest point at the Head of the Lakes. It was here in the early days of navigation on Lake Superior, that the government had a signal station, the light from which could be seen for miles on a clear night. When Duluth was young, picnics were held on the top of this great bald rock. From there one can obtain a magnificent view of the lake, river, and surrounding country on all sides.

From about Fortieth avenue west on to the end of the boulevard at Sixty-fourth avenue west, the entire cost of building the road was about $4,000. This includes the price of the right-of-way. Another $4,000 was expended in making the highway from Twenty-fifth avenue west to Fortieth. The whole cost of the western extension was therefore about $8,000.

The road, except for needing a little working down in places, and a general widening along its whole length, is in splendid condition. It is now a little too narrow in some places for two teams to pass safely, but it is expected that by next summer, when the finishing touches have been added, that the park driveway above West Duluth will be the finest in the city.

About two years ago the members of the West Duluth Commercial club began agitating for the boulevard to be extended up around the hills back of that end of the city. They took the matter up with the park board, and it has been pushed to completion. The club members are greatly elated with the fulfillment of their plans.

The club's committee, which had charge of the drive, consisted of the following members: B. Getchell, A. Jolitz, W. F. Markus, P. Martin and J. J. Frey.

The guests of honor on the drive were the members of the park board and a number of the aldermen. There was a large delegation from West Duluth. Among those who went were: Miss Bowen, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. and Miss Holtman and Miss Phelps. The men were: Messrs. A. Ferguson, J. Foubister, J. Holtman, Bilsey, Peterson, Nelson, A. Eklund, J. Winness, W. Mallough, Murray, B. Getchell, F. B. Martin, H. Vion, Charles Kurth, Emil Zaurit, David Saug, L. A. Barnes, H. H. Phelps, W. Bailey, T. Olafson, W. Everett, Honigman, J. D. Morgan, Ed. Warner, A. Hendrickson, A. Bala, J. D. Sullivan, O. Simons, Stearns, Frazer, Jolitz, M. M. Clark, E. Bagley, Weeks, Frey, Helm, Silberstein, Jenswold and Mendenhall.

Launching Party.

A very pleasant launching party was given yesterday afternoon by R. B. Jennings in honor of Mrs. W. J. Lowrie. The party went up the river to Fond du Lac, where covers were set for nine at a picnic supper. The woodland table was prettily decorated with autumn foliage. Those present were: Mrs. H. McLean, Mrs. John Galbraith, Mrs. Janet Jennings; Mrs. W. J. Lowrie, Mrs. H Hewitt, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Simons and Mrs. Charlott Howard.

A FOOD LESSON

That the Teacher Won't Forget.

Teaching school is sometimes very arduous work. If the teacher is not robust and in good health, she can't do her best for her scholars or for her own satisfaction.

When it becomes a question of proper food for brain work, as in school teaching, many teachers have found Grape-Nuts ideal.

"I have been for many years a teacher, and several months ago found myself in such a condition that I feared I should have to give up work," writes a N. Y., teacher.

"So nervous was I that dizziness and spells of faintness were frequent and my head and stomach gave me much trouble.

"Several physicians who treated me gave me only temporary relief and the old ails returned.

"About three months ago I dropped all medicine and began eating Grape-Nuts morning and night. Now, my head is clear, pain in stomach entirely gone, and I have gained in flesh. I am not only continuing in school, but have engaged to teach another year.

"I owe my restored health, a brighter outlook on life and relief from doctor bills, to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason."

Salisbury. His salutation to the state was this:

"I am glad to come into the state of North Carolina this beautiful October morning, and to receive this cordial reception. Complaint is very often heard on the part of your people that North Carolina is not given her part in the administration of the government. She is not. She has able men, but as long as you are going to vote for the Democratic ticket, and the Republican party is in power, I do not see how those gentlemen who do the voting can expect to share in the power. In other words, let them vote as they think, and then we will wipe out sectional lines."

NOON TALK AT THE CLUB

Y. M. C. A. Secretary Gives Interesting Talk to Business Men.

Only 5 Per Cent of Men Fitted to Earn Fair Living Salary.

That many Duluthians are interested in educational matters was proven to the Y. M. C. A. committee, when a large number turned out at the noon hour today to listen to George B. Hodge, international secretary of the association, when he gave an illustrated educational talk at the Commercial club, telling of the work done in the various cities under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

He began by telling his audience of the great number of unskilled men in daily employment in this country earning small wages, which could very easily be doubled if themen would fit themselves. He showed the relative earnings of boys at different stages in their lives, and compared them with the wages of other boys, who had been fitted by the association for special work.

Mr. Hodge said, and proved his statements with statistics, that only 5 per cent of the men of the country had been fitted to earn a fair living salary. He showed on the canvas the different clubs and schools of the association throughout the country, and the work done in the shops, and in the class rooms. He showed the great difference in the methods of instruction, pointing out that the association was teaching all classes of men, from foreigners learning to speak the English language to classes in higher finance among the bankers.

He told of what it cost to keep these schools going, but said that in every instance the trouble and expense were well worth it. He showed how in Brooklyn, where once the "Jackies" found their way to the nearest saloon, they now have, thanks to the patriotic citizens, a handsome Y. M. C. A. building, where they spend most of their time.

Mr. Hodge touched on all the great works of the association, and gave a vivid picture of what is being accomplished. He showed how the government believed in the work, and how it has erected many buildings and put Y. M. C. A. secretaries in charge. One building built in Culebra, Panama, cost the government over $50,000.

Mr. Hodge's talk was very interesting. He used pictures to good advantage. "Brains and Dollars" will be the subject of an address to be given Sunday afternoon in the assembly room of the association building.

STABBED WITH POCKETKNIFE

Superior Man Has Narrow Escape From Fatal Wound.

John McLaren of Superior is very thankful that the knife wound he received in his neck yesterday was not the smallest fraction of an inch longer. In that case he would probably be in the care of an undertaker now.

In a street row in the Superior tenderloin district, some unknown person swung on him with an open pocket knife. The blade entered the neck, just grazing the jugular vein. To add to McLaren's troubles, he and B. H. Morefield were arrested, pleaded guilty and were fined $8 each. The rest of the men in the affray made their escape.

Released on Bail.

The bail of William Holman, a negro charged with attempting to kill Axel Anderson, was yesterday placed at $2,000 in the municipal court at the close of the defendant's preliminary hearing. It is claimed that the negro struck Anderson with a "jagging spike."

Grain Lost and Stolen.

From the monthly reports issued by the weighing department of the Wisconsin grain and warehouse comission, it is learned that hundreds of bushels are lost daily through leakage and theft, as a result of carelessness. The September report shows that out of 10,861 cars weighed, 5,941 were leaking, 2,075 had door seals missing, and 331 had doors open.

Two Runaways.

A party of women who were out for a drive yesterday, were badly shaken up and bruised in a runaway. They were passing the South Shore tracks when their horse became frightened and bolted.

The party consisted of Mrs. C. S. Knox who sustained a fractured wrist; Mrs. W. J. Whipple, Mrs. R. D. Merrill, and Mrs. Alfred Robertson.

In another runaway yesterday Charles Zachau was thrown from his rig. Fortunately he escaped without injury.

CURES

Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases.

Rectal Diseases Are Treacherous

And are the Direct Cause of Many Other Chronic Ailments.

Fever in the Colon and Pelvic Region produce such diseases as Piles, Fistula, Fissure, Pruritics, (Itching Piles. These latter diseases are more painful than bowel trouble, and also destructive to the general health, increasing the poisonous effects, causing a general nervous breakdown and finally a collapse. They terminate many times in Tuberculosis or Cancer. Attention to these diseases in their ealy stages is time saving and money saving, preventing much acute suffering and probably a premature invalidism or death. These diseases ar dangerous, for they become incurable if cancer develops.

Rectal diseases require the attention of a skilled specialist; one who has devoted a lifetime to the study and treatment of these diseases, is rarely able to cure them permanently. The knife is severe and seldom effects a permanent cure, as it does not remove the cause of the disease.

RUPTURE

A painless, plastic method that cures Quickly, Safely and without Operation, no Blood and without interfering with the Usual Occupation.

The efficacy of the method we employ for curing rupture can best be attested by the number of men whom we have cured without the use of the knife or other severe painful operation. We can refer you, by permission, to many prominent men of this vicinity who will tell you what our treatment has done for them. There is no delay or interference with your usual occupation in taking this treatment. By supplying the demands of nature in the form of tissue builders, a speedy and permanent cure will be effected. REMEMBER, NO KNIFE, NO BLOOD, NO EXPERIMENTS, but permanent cures.

We Guarantee our cures and have never failed yet in a single case to get permanent and lasting cures. There are many thousands we have cured of all kinds of chronic diseases.

They do cure you of all maladies peculiar to men. Nervo-Sexual Debility, Stricture, Syphilitic Blood Poison, Locomotor Ataxia, Bright's and Kidney Disease, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stomach and Bladder Trouble, Varicocele, Hydrocele, Sexual Weakness, Paralysis, Lost Manhood, Secret Vice, and all its complicating diseases. Cancer, Tumors, Brain Diseases, Impure Blood, Eczema and all skin diseases, Rectal Troubles, Piles, Fistula, Neuralgia, Rhepmatism and all chronic affections of men.

YOUNG DOCTORS ARE WANTED

Army Will Try to Secure Professional Men for Service.

An effort to increase the efficiency of the hospital service and the medical corpse of the United States army will be inaugurated by the army officials. Notice to that effect was received at the Duluth recruiting office today. The communication is from Adjutant General Benjamin Alvord, and is an order to the local recruiting officials to begin a campaign for the recruiting of all men of the highest ability for this branch of the service.

According to the local officials an effort will be made to enlist young doctors in the service. So important is this branch of the service, that all recruits will have to be passed upon for their final examination at Washington by the examining board of the hospital corps.

It is the plan of Lieut. Watts to interest some of the young doctors of this recruiting district in the opprtunities offered by the hospital and medical branch of the army service. He states that this branch of the service offers excellent opportunities for promotion by competitive examination, and an effort will be made to secure some recruits that have received a professional education along this line of work.

Land Auction a Failure.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 17.—An auction of 250,000 acres of Saskewatchen lands which was advertised extensively in Western United States papers for weeks at a cost of $30,000, to be sold at Regina this week, turned out a failure. Few persons attended the sale and the company cancelled the remaining days. The attendance of American buyers was slim.

BOY SENTENCED WHILE MOTHER PLEADS FOR HIM

Stanley Novack Must Learn Respect for the Laws.

Young Kleptomaniac Had Stolen Articles Worth More Than $500.

Despite the tears of father, mother and sisters, Stanley Novack must go to the state training school at Red Wing to learn the lesson of American citizenship and respect for laws. Judge Ensign stated that he believed more mercy would be shown the boy by sending him where he would learn the iniquity of the course he has been leading, than by turning him loose again.

The scene in the juvenile court room and later in the corridor of the court house, when Stanley was led away by Probation Officer F. E. Resche, was a harrowing one. The mother cried hysterically and two sisters of the boy added to the general confusion by giving vent to their emotions in sobs. The father stood by, agitated and solicitnous for a son gone wrong. When sentence was passed, the family followed the probation officer and the boy to the car, bringing the court house employes and habitues to watch the scene by their demonstrations of grief.

Stanley Novack was the most successful young thief to come to the attention of the police and the juvenile court for a long time. He was a kleptomaniac of the most pronounced type. Large for his sixteen years, he was unabashed and unscrupulous in his pursuit of a course of crime. He stole everything he could possibly lay his hands upon, usually with a fine regard to value. Stickpins, watches, rings, studs and jewelry of all kinds were his special prey. His serier of thefts have extended over several months and a "plant" near his home at First avenue west and Eighth street, contained articles valued at more than $500.

He operated in residences and stores alike, on the upper streets of the city, and was so clever in his depredations that he escaped detection for weeks. Finally, when discovered and arrested, he broke down and told all. He wept all day yesterday at the police station and this morning in juvenile court added his tears and sobs to those of his mother and sisters.

The parents believe in their boy. They say he has been led astray by evil associates and that at heart, he is a good boy—misled but capable of better things.

The boy will have a chance to show his real character in the training school. If he lives right and really reforms, he may be released in thirteen months, that being the period of probation in case of good behavior. The sentence is until he becomes of age and, unless he has learned his lesson and turns over a new leaf, he may not be released until he is 21 years of age.

READY FOR HOSPITAL

Contractors Will be Asked to Offer Bids Next Week.

Plans for a Two-Story Building Now Practically Completed.

Bids for the proposed city contagious hospital will be advertised for next week. Preliminaries have now practically been completed, and the plans will be ready for the contractors within a few days.

The structure will, to begin with, measure 40 by 60 feet, and will be two stories in height. It will be of brick construction, and will be so built that it can easily be enlarged at any time in the future that the city cares to provide addition room. There will be two wards upstairs, for diphtheria and scarlet fever cases.

The first building probably will cost $8,000 or $10,000. It will be located on the plot of ground at Thirteenth avenue west that was purchased for the purpose. A whole block has been secured, so there will be plenty of room to add to the building as the needs of the city require, and also to erect other buildings. Ultimately, a city hospital for all kinds of diseases will be built on the site, so that all city cases, contagious and otherwise, may be properly cared for.

While the contagious hospital may not be completed this fall, a start will be made on it, and there is said to be a good chance that it will be ready for occupancy before the winter is over. There is such urgent need for an institution of this kind that wor kon it will be rushed with all possible speed.

EXPLAINS DELAY.

D. M. Philbin Says Laws Regulate Working of Interstate Draw.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I noticed an article in last evening's edition of your paper, to the effect that the street cars are being needlessly delayed at the interstate bridge.

I beg to advise you that not a single street car has been unnecessarily held up at the bridge since it went into commission about three weeks ago. In the case cited the street car was delayed from 10:06 to 10:20 a. m., just fourteen minutes, which was entirely unavoidable. Two boats passed through the draw in that time, the last one moving light from the direction of East Superior, and it signalled just as the first boat cleared. This is the longest delay with the exception of twenty-six minutes about ten years ago, when nine boats passed through.

Government rules, paragraph 12, provides that: "Upon receiving a signal for opening the draw, the tender shall answer with a return signal, which will be the same as the signal for opening, and he shall proceed at once to open the bridge."

Section 5, act of Aug. 18, 1894, as amended June 13, 1902, attaches a penalty of $1,000 to $2,000, or one year's imprisonment in case the draw-tender unreasonably delays opening the bridge for any navigable craft. If it is perfectly safe to allow street cars, teams or pedestrians to cross over after a boat has signalled and is some distance away, it is done; otherwise the opening has necessarily to be made without delay. Yours truly,

D. M. PHILBIN.

BOOMING SOCCER GAME.

Enthusiasts Want to Organize Team in Duluth.

Soccer football, otherwise known as association football, hitherto almost unknown to Duluth athletic fields, may get a start this fall, if the efforts of W. G. Kennedy of 1812 West Second street and John Hall of Proctor are successful. Messrs. Kennedy and Hall, who are enthusiastic players of the English game, are scouting around looking for promising material and they are anxious to have prospective members of a team send in their names, after which a meeting for organization will be called.

Soccer football, an English institution, vastly popular in Canada for years, has made great strides in the United States in recent years. All of the big cities have their soccer teams and leagues and the growth of the game thus far indicates that the day is not far distant when it will be a recognized American sport. Several efforts have been made in recent years to establish the game in Duluth, but they died of lack of initiative, which Kennedy and Hall promise to furnish.

RAINS WILL CHECK FIRES

Nature Will Remove Menace From Small Blazes in Woods.

Conditions in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin Are Favorable.

Widespread rains throughout the state of Minnesota and the northern part of Wisconsin tonight and tomorrow promise to check the growing menace of small brush fires in Northern Minnesota and the lake region. Observer H. W. Richardson of the United States weather bureau says the rains will be general and heavy enough to extinguish the small fires and minimize the danger, which attends any sort of a fire in the woods.

Reports from Northern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin during the past week have indicated that the dry period was resulting in an increased number of small fires, which, while not dangerous in themselves, always threatened to spread. The settlers and people of the small towns scattered through the woods were untiring in their vigilance, and none of the small fires were allowed to spread and do damage.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range railroads had reports from along their lines this morning that were reassuring. There are a few small fires, some of them started by settlers to clear land and carefully watched, but nothing that threatened to develop into a forest fire.

In Northern Wisconsin, on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad and south of that line, there were also a few small fires, none of them likely to do damage.

Despite the absence of danger in the small fires, the rains will be warmly welcomed. While the woods are dry, there is also menace of a quick spread of the fires and a joining of the small blazes, which would soon start a conflagration calling for the strenuous efforts in fire-fighting brought forth by the widespread fires of the early part of September.

PRIMARY LAW HIT

Sensational Suit Begun Against North Dakota's Famous Act.

Said to be Violative of State and Federal Constitutions.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special to the Forum from Bismarck announces that the biggest political sensation of the campaign was sprung there today when the constitutionality of the primary election law, a feature in the election of United States senators, was attacked in the supreme court. The action was brought by private citizens from all over the state, despite the refusal of Little and Hansborough, the defeated candidates, or Johnson and Marshall, the two high men in the race, to co-operate.

It is claimed that the primary pledge of legislators is to vote for the candidate of their party nominated at the primaries or subsequently at a general election, and the additional qualification is a violation of the constitution of both the state and the United States. It is also attacked on the broad ground of being void under the constitution of the United States in that it attempts by indirection to do that which it cannot do directly, and violates many features of the general constitution. The action is brought against the secretary of state to prevent the certification to county auditors to prevent the distribution of ballots and against the state canvassing board on the ground that they had no jurisdiction because of large constitutional features.

The proceedings are on an order to show cause, and the court questions whether there is time to have a full hearing. No further features of the law were attacked. The suit has created state wide sensation because of the many interests involved and other features of the campaign are forgotten in the excitement of this action. If the petitioners win all the results of the expenditure of time and energy in the primaries will be entirely nullified and the selection of United States senators will be thrown back into the legislature as has been the custom heretofore.

OLD "MET" GOING.

Work of Gemoving Old Landmark Will Begin Next Week.

The work of dismantling the old Metropolitan opera house will begin the first part of next week. Announcement to this effect was made at the engineering office of the Wisconsin Central this morning. Work of removing the plumbing from the interior of the building has already begun.

The plans for the new depot upon the present site of the old theater and the excavation east of the theater site, have been completed and approved by the engineers in charge of the construction.

The final inspection of the work here has been completed and now that the depot and terminal plans have been approved, the only obstacle to the beginning of construction work upon the buildings and the terminal yards, is the completion of the excavation work.

ON EDGE OF WAR AS WEEK CLOSES

Turkey Mobilizes Troops; Bulgaria Expected to Cross Border.

Paris, Oct. 27.—The French government has just received official confirmation of previous reports of the mobilization by Turkey of the Anatolian army corps.

This is regarded in official circles as Turkey's answer to Bulgaria's refusal to accord compensation for the Oriental railroad, and it is believed to make war practically inevitable.

It is expected that Bulgaria immediately will begin to push troops across the Turkish frontier, in order to secure an advantage before Turkey can begin a general mobilization.

FINNY FATHERS AND MOTHERS

Queer Ways of Fish Families and the Methods Used to Hatch Eggs.

Skeptics assert that honorable mention, if not first prize, should be awarded to the story told by piscatorial experts to the effect that there is "a certain kind of fish" which hatches its eggs by sitting on them like a bird, says Tit-Bits. The disbelief of these skeptics, however, is to be partly attributed to the erroneous notions, shared also by other people, that finny fathers and mothers are not only cold-blooded, but also so hard-hearted that as soon as the eggs of the female have been deposited they desert their offspring and leave their parental responsibilities to Dame Nature.

As a matter of fact, that is quite a libel on some of he inhabitants of the water world. Take, for instance, the common little stickleback—the ppy of the small boy and the despised of the man with a rod, whose skill is often surpassed by his imagination. He is the most exemplary of parents, and is so fond of baby sticklebacks that he generally persuades several females to deposit their eggs in the very ornate nest which he builds early in the mating season.

But he is a jealous, selfish creature, for no sooner have the females deposited their eggs than he unceremoniously drives them away, and woe betide the luckless fish that ventures near the nest. The greater part of his time is now taken up in arranging the eggs and in fanning them with his fins. When, after a month, the young hatch, he is busier than ever trying to prevent the fry from straying, and thus falling into the hungry maws of probably their own mother. Should one get out, it is either driven back or the old fish seizes the truant in his mouth and carries him back. The statement, however, that a stickleback has been observed towards evening gently swimming round and round the nest softly gurgling "Go to sleep, my little pickaninnies," may be set down as an exaggeration.

Both sea and river catfish are notable for the parental care they exercise over their eggs and young. The mated pair usually excavate a rude sort of nest on sandy or gravelly ground in shallow water, and during the entire hatching season they are incessant in their efforts to prevent the smothering of the eggs, and to guard against their intruders. The eggs are kept constantly agitated and aerated by a gentle fanning motion of the lower fins, and foreign particles; either on the bottom of the nest or floating near the eggs, are removed in the mouth or by the fins.

When the fish begin to swim they cluster beside the old fish just like a swarm of bees. In the case of some species of catfish the young swim in large shoals over the mouth of the parent fish, and, when danger threatens, the father or mother, as the case may be, opens its mouth, and the fry find a safe retreat in the thorax. At least, so say those who ought to know.

Some sea catfish are even more remarkable in their habits than the fresh water members of the family. In most species the female lays extremely large eggs, some being the size of a small marble. As soon as the eggs are fertilized by the male, he takes them into his mouth. The interior of his mouth is capacious, and by a peculiar arrangement the eggs are confined to that cavity and cannot pass into the stomach. The number of eggs so carried varies between eight and fifty.

At this time the male presents a very comical appearance, as his pharynx is so distended that he cannot close his mouth. The length of time during which the eggs are retained within the mouth is unknown, but it must be considerable. While carrying eggs in this way the old fish does not feed and frequently becomes very much emaciated from his long fast.

Another species of fish which carries the eggs of its young in its mouth for a considerable of time are the cichlids, or New Testament fish, so called because they are said to have formed the miraculous draught of fishes recorded in the New Testament, and which are found today in the fresh waters of tropical Africa and America.

When breeding, the female deposits about 200 eggs in a little excavation which she works out among the rushes and roots. The male fecundates them, and a few minutes afterward he takes the eggs, one after another, into his mouth, and keeps them in the buccal cavity against his cheeks, which then appear swollen in an extraordinary manner. The eggs, although they are not attached by any membrance or adhesive substance, remain securely in his mouth, and are never dropped while he is in the water. In this novel incubator the eggs hatch out in a few days. The fry, however, do not quit their parent's mouth even then, but remain packed in there for some days. Finally, the young leave their babyhood home, but as soon as danger threatens they all re-enter the old fish's mouth.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

JOHNSON BY 100,000

Minneapolis Man Predicts Landslide for the Governor.

Says He Will Carry Minneapolis by 18,000 Votes.

"People may say I am crazy, but I predict that Governor Johnson will carry the state by 100,000 plurality this year," said Alderman James Dwyer, chairman of the Hennepin County Democratic committee, and a member of the Democratic state central committee, who is in Duluth today.

"Johnson carried Minneapolis two years ago by about 14,000 votes. This year he will carry the city by at least 18,000. He had about 7,000 plurality in St. Paul two years ago. He will have even larger a plurality this year, and should come out of the Twin Cities with more than 25,000 votes to the good.

"He had a meeting in the auditorium at Minneapolis Saturday night, and the big building was packed. They waited until 12 o'clock to hear the governor, as he was the last speaker on the program and also had to address an overflow meeting.

"I stick to my prediction of 100,000 plurality in the state, and you will see that the returns will bear me out. It is a landslide.

"Bryan sentiment is very strong in Minneapolis this year also."

AUTOMOBILISTS INJURE TWO MEN

Two Unknown Drivers Race Their Cars on London Road.

Two big automobiles, one red and the other yellow, while racing on London road this morning at about 11 o'clock, ran down Charles O. White, an aged resident of Lakeside, and Alderman Frank Jordan. Neither men were seriously injured, though both were badly bruised and shaken up.

One of the machines, it is said, is owned by City Attorney Wilson, although he was not in it at the time. It was the city attorney's car which struck the member of the city council, they say. The owner of the other auto is still unidentified.

The machine did not stop after the accident.

White was leading a horse along the road, when he was run down from behind by the machine. He was only struck from the side, being thrown out of the way by the heavy car, or he probably would have ben killed. He was carried from the road where he was lying into the home of H. L. Chase, 5809 London road, where a physician was called and his injuries dressed.

Alderman Jordon was run down on another part of the road. He was but slightly hurt.

SUE TO PREVENT RATE REDUCTION

Five Railroads Act Against Interstate Commerce Commission.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Suit to prevent the carrying into effect of the reduction in rates between Mississippi river crossings and Missouri river points ordered for Oct. 28 was filed against the interstate commerce commission in the United States circuit court here today by counsel representing five railroads affected.

These roads—the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago-Great Western—allege that the reduction would cause the loss of millions of dollars annually to the roads.

They also declare that the commission overstepped its authority in ordering the reduction. The reduction ordered in the five classifications run from 3 cents in the lowest class to 9 cents in the highest.

LOSES LIFE AS A HERO

Mate Malcolm McGregor Falls From Rope Ladder Exhausted.

Steamer Scottish Tries to Rescue Lightkeepers in Distress.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17.—A despatch to the Journal from Grand Marais says that the steamer Scottish came in there today and reported the loss of Mate Malcolm McGregor at Iroquois Point Thursday night, while an attempt was being made to rescue the lightkeepers, who were blowing urgent distress signals. The shore about the point was all afire.

When the men did not come out from the lighthouse. A yawl was lowered and Mate McGregor and four men started in. The wind was too strong and they could not make the shore. The steamer came to the yawl's relief, but when McGregor was half way up a rope ladder on her side he fell back exhausted and was lost. The distress signals were still being sounded when the Scottish left the harbor.

VICE ADMIRAL SAITO WILL WELCOME SPERRY.

Tokio, Oct. 17.—The official reception headed by Vice Admiral Saito, who is minister of the navy department will leave tomorrow for Yokohama and the party will assemble aboard the battleship Mikasa. Upon the arrival of the American battleship at 9 o'cock in the morning the committee will board the flagship Connecticut and present the address of welcome to Admiral Sperry.

After the exchange of official calls it has been arranged that the American officers shall attend a garden party, followed by a dinner, at which the mayor of Yokohama will be host. In the evening there will be a ball game given in their honor by Kimihira Sufu, prefectural governor of Kanagawa.

The scene in Yokohama on the eve of the fleet's arrival is of the liviliest. The city is crowded with Japanese and foreigners and every house, however poor, is decorated with crossing flags. In some instances the display on the more pretentious buildings is little short of magnificent.

$250 FOR CORSETS.

Tit Bits: Whatever views may be held on the subject of small waists and tight lacing, it is a fact which is often overlooked by the critics of women's fashions of today that corset-making has progressed on such enlightened lines during the last decade that it does not follow because a woman wishes to reduce her waist by several inches that she must undergo the "refined torture" which anti-corsetites declare is necessary. The secret of a small waist really lies in a certain amount of exercise, proper diet and a good corset. If a fair price is paid for the latter, a woman need not suffer through tight lacing.

Of course, it was not always so. It is not a hundred years ago since stays were composed not of whalebone or hardened leather, but of bars of iron and steel, from 3 inches to 4 inches broad and 18 inches long. Again, during the reign of George III, the top of the steel stay busk had a long stocking needle attached to it to prevent girls from spoiling their shape by stooping too much over their work.

In the days of Catherine de Medici, 13 inches was the fashionable size for the waist, and to achieve this an overcorset of very thin steel plate was worn. It was made in two pieces, opened longitudinally by hinges and was secured when closed by a sort of hasp and pin, like an ordinary box fastening.

The box corsets of today are made on a foundation of Greenland whalebone, which has steadily risen in price from 700 pounds to 3,000 pounds a ton. Cheap whalebone can be bought for 30 pounds and 40 pounds a ton, but it soon dries and becomes brittle, thus spoiling the corset as well as the figure. It is better to pay three guineas for genuine Greenland bone corsets than one guinea for imitation bone, for not only do the former last three tmes as long, but the bone can be taken out and used again.

By the way, it may surprise many readers to learn that the fair Parisienne often goes to America for her corsets, where they are made in the most extravagant styles. Fifty pounds for a single pair is frequently paid. Corsets at this price are not only made of the finest silk, but are decorated with brilliants, the husk being of 18 carat gold.

After Blowing Missabe Safe at Taconite Are Frightened Away.

Taconite, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yeggmen blew open the safe in the Missabe depot here about 1 p. m., today, but were frightened away before they secured any of the money inside. Two suspects have been arrested at Holman and will be given a hearing some time this afternoon.

The night watchman employed by the railroad company was eating his lunch in a nearby restaurant, after midnight, when he heard the roar of the explosion and ran toward the depot. He saw a man fleeing and took a shot at him without result. Examination showed that the door had been blown from the safe, but nothing inside had been tampered with. The safe is understood to have contained a large amount of money, just how much the railroad officials will not state.

COLERAINE IS FORGING AHEAD

Church is Being Made Finer and Roosevelt Avenue Improved.

Coleraine, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thursday evening the trustees of the Methodist church awarded the contract for inclosing the Twentieth Century Institutional church to Frank Carson of Bovey for $3,100. The foundation and walls of the superstructure have been completed. They are built of native rock. This building when completed will be the most substantial church edifice for use seven days in the week of any on the iron range. The history of church building in a new country is first the log or frame church, and after a period of a few years, rebuildings in brick and after a half century, erecting places of worship built of stone. In Coleraine a Twentieth Century church is erected in the infancy of the city and built in the most substantial manner.

Roosevelt avenue is being transformed from a plain village street into one of metropolitan appearance. Concrete lamp posts have been erected on both sides of the avenue at the intersection of the streets and in the middle of each block. Each post is supplied with twelve incandescent lamps clustered in five ground glass globes. Concrete sidewalks, built in a substantial manner have been completed on both sides of the avenue throughout the business district. The street is being paved with crushed rock covered with a layer of finely ground granite shipped from Duluth. This will give Coleraine the best business street of any town of its size in Minnesota.

EVELETH SCHOOLS ARE GOING AHEAD

Increase Pupil---Work on the New High School Progressing.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 17.(Special to The Herald.)—The work in the schools is now going on steadily and though handicapped to a certain extent by the number of buildings in us as school houses the standard of the work is the same as last year. Since the first of the semester the total enrollment has been increased to 1139, while at the same time last year only 1054 pupils were enrolled, showing an increase of eighty-five. All pupils have been well taken care of and all except Miss Kingsford's classes in the first grade are going all day to school.

At the Fayal kindergarten building where the manual training department is now installed six lathes have been put in, for those who wish to take wood turning. Six electric discs will be here in about a week for the domestic science department, to be used in place of the stoves. One of the discs has been on trial in the department and as it has been approved by Miss Mandeville the teacher in charge, the other discs have been ordered.

Work has commenced on the building of the new high school. A crew of about thirty-five men were placed at work on Wednesday. Mr. Hendrickson of Duluth has the general contract. The building is expected to be finished by next August so as to be ready for the fall term.

The commercial department, the latest to be added to the high school course, has attracted many in the high school who are taking advantage of securing a course that many high schools do not have. The Mesaba Mount hall in which the department is located is some distance from the main building, putting the students to some inconvenience in going to and from the high school buildings.

Two Small Eveleth Blazes.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A small fire near Stein's store on Grant avenue broke out early Friday. The fire department was quickly on the spot and put out the fire without any damage. About 9 a. m. another alarm was rung in while the fire team was out exercising. The driver made a hurried run to the barn and in a very short time the hose cart was over to Hall's laundry, where the roof had caught on fire, presumably from a spark from a nearby chimney. Little damage was done.

PROCTOR GROCERY STORE DAMAGED

Prompt Work by Fire Department Prevents Far Heavier Loss.

Proctor, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night at about 10:30 o'clocg the store belonging to J. W. Rehbein on the west side took fire. Before the fire department arrived the flames were bursting out of the front of the building. After a few minutes the department succeeded in getting the fire under control. The fixtures and stick of goods are a complete loss, but the outside and roof of the building were not badly damaged. The drug store, also a frame building, adjoining caught fire but was extinguished. A great loss was narrowly averted, for the store is surrounded by frame buildings, and the damage would have been much greater had the fire started at a later hour. This was the only grocery store on the west side, since A. H. Eller's store burned a year ago.

HUGO'S ARTICLE IS ONE OF VALUE

New Age Magazine Publishes Interesting History of Duluth.

The current issue of The New Age, a widely-circulated magazine published in New York, is commanding a ready sale in Duluth, on account of the article it contains on "Duluth and Its Scottish Rite Masonry," by Hon. T. W. Hugo.

The article in question is of considerable historical value, giving as it does a careful and authentic history of explorations of Greysolon Du Lhut, as well as a history of the Scottish Rite Masonry in the city. The adventures of Du Lhut are reviewed, and the whole article is written in a very interesting fashion. Mr. Hugo does not forget to speak a good word for local climatic conditions, and otherwise to boost the Zenith City.

The writer tells how the Frenchman landed on what is now Minnesota Point in June, 1679, how he took the "little portage" across the point and pressed on across the bay and up St. Louis river, landing at what is now Fond du Lac. Then follows an interesting account of the explorer's treaties with the Indians, and further adventures in the Duluth territory. Several trading posts, among them Fond du Lac, were established.

The year 1854 marked the extinguishment of the Indian title to the land on which Duluth is built, and the organization of the town of Oneota by the Rev. F. F. Ely, a missionary who had been at the Head of the Lakes since 1833. About this time Superior had a big lead as a town.

On Feb. 23, 1853, the Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Minnesota was formed, and on Jan. 29, 1870, a dispensation was granted to Palestine lodge, A. F. & A. M. Several fine illustrations are given in connection with the article, showing exterior and interior views of the local Masonic temple.

Among the world's best things to drink is "Salada" Tea. Its purity, flavor and deliciousness stand unrivalled.

"Such a world cruise undertaken by the magnificent navy of our friendly neighbor breaks the record in naval annals, and it will be watched until its completion with the most intense interest because of its bearing upon the naval relations and achievements in the future of all naval powers.

"I hope our friendship and commercial relations with the United States will be more closely cemented by this auspicious event."

Charcoal Purifies Any Breath

And In Its Purest Form Has Long Been Known As the Greatest Gas Absorber.

Pure willow charcoal will oxidize almost any odor and render it sweet and pure. A panful in a foul cellar will absorb deadly fumes, for charcoal absorbs one hundred times its volume in gas.

The ancients knew the value of charcoal and administered it in cases of illness, especially pertaining to the stomach. In England today charcoal poultices are used for ulcers, boils, etc., while some physicans in Europe claim to cure many skin diseases by covering the afflicted skin with charcoal powder.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges go into the mouth and transfer foul odors at once into oxygen, absorb noxious gases and acids and when swallowed mix with the digestive juices and stop gas making, fermentation and decay.

By their gentle qaulities they control beneficial bowel action and stop dairrhoea and constipation.

Bad breath simply cannot exist when charcoal is used. There are no ifs or ands about this statement. Don't take our word for it, but look into the matter yourself. Ask your druggist physician, or better still, look up charcoal in your encyclopedia. The beauty of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges is that the highest pharmaceutical expert knowledge obtainable has been used to prepare a lozenge that will give to man the best form of charcoal for use.

Pure willow and honey is the result. Two or three after meals and at bedtime sweeten the breath, stop decay of teeth, aid the digestive apparatus and promote perfect bowel action. They enrich the supply of oxygen to the system and thereby revivify the blood and nerves.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are sold everywhere in vast quantities, thus they must have merit. Every druggist carries them, price, twenty-five cents per box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

THE BUSY WHIRL OF POLITICS

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

Johnson Supporters Are Not Resting on Their Oars.

Williams, Lind and Jacobson Are Coming to Duluth.

Supporters of Governor Johnson are not resting on their oars after the whirlwind tour of the ranges, and the monster gathering in Duluth Wednesday evening.

Governor Johnson has some of the staunchest friends in St. Louis county he possesses anywhere in the state. When the governor was forced into the third term campaign, they made a little vow that he would not regret it, and that St. Louis county would give him a larger plurality than it did two years ago if hard work and untiring effort would turn the trick.

And they seem to be making good. Never has a state campaign been conducted with greater vigor than the present one. To carry the county by 3,000 votes, and to get a Johnson majority in every town in St. Louis county, and it looks as if they would certainly deliver the goods.

There have been attempts to belittle the Johnson meeting at the Armory, but they are absurd on their face, to anyone who saw the crowd and the enthusiasm. The meeting was without precedent in the annals of the county politics, and probably in the state. There never was such a meeting held in Duluth before. Never have people stood all through one meeting waiting to fill the Armory for a second gathering. That wasn't the effect of the "warm summer evening." There were votes behind the enthusiasm that would keep people standing outside the Armory for two hours waiting for a chance to hear the governor speak. There have been other brass bands, but never such a meeting as that.

And the range meetings were simply small editions of the Armory meeting. They varied in size in proportion to the population of the town where they were held, but the ranges showed just as strong a Johnson sentiment as did Duluth, and what that means, Duluth people can best judge for themselves.

Everywhere Governor Johnson's straightforward handling of the issues of the campaign told. There was no attempt to evade any issue that has been raised by the opposition. He came out in a straightforward manner and flatly declined himself on every question. He left, in addition, enough things for Jacobson to answer to keep that candidate very busy during his tour of the ranges.

Charles Jesmore, candidate for sheriff, was a caller at the Democratic headquarters yesterday. He has been over the range thoroughly, and states that conditions are looking very favorable. Tomorrow afternoon he will address the first meeting of the Third Ward Democratic club. The meeting of the club will be held Sunday, for the reason that most of the men who will join the club are laborers, and it was believed that Sunday was the best time to get these men out. It is expected that 200 men will join the club. Robert Mee, Democratic candidate for state railroad and warehouse commissioner, will also be one of the speakers and it is planned to have others on the program.

Mr. Mee spent part of yesterday afternoon at the Democratic headquarters. He is from Faribault, and is of the opinion that Johnson will sweep the southern counties of the state. Mr. Mee states that he has encountered encountered nothing but a pronounced Johnson sentiment in every part of the statehe has visited, and that there is nothing to speculate upon other than the size of the plurality by which the governor will defeat his opponent.

Andrew Nelson, chairman of the Democratic county committee, is the most enthusiastic man in Duluth. Yesterday afternoon he made the prediction that Johnson would carry this state by a larger vote than he did two years ago.

"I am willing to stake my ability as a political prophet upon this statement," said Mr. Nelson. "After the meeting in this city and those on the range I can see no other result. Johnson sentiment has swept this state like wildfire. It will be a landslide. The only thing that this party need work for now is the size of the plurality by which the governor will defeat his opponent. He will receive a wonderful vote in this county, and he will carry the state by an unprecedented plurality."

Mr Nelson announced yesterday that the date of the appearance here of G. Fred Williams, the eminent Boston Democratic orator, has been set for Oct. 23. Mr. Williams is a brilliant speaker and one of the prominent eastern Democrats. The members of the Democratic committee are congratulating themselves upon being able to secure Mr. Williams for a Duluth appearance.

It is now practically certain that John Lind will speak here. Mr. Nelson stated yesterday that he had been assured by the state central committee that Mr. Lind would speak in this city and possibly upon the range. Arrangements are being made to have Mr Lind address the members of the West Duluth Democratic club.

It was announced yesterday at the Republican headquarters that the Jacobson time in this county has been reduced to two days. W. E. Culkin stated that he had received word from the Republican state central committee that Mr. Jacobson would be unable to devote more than two days to this part of the state. That means that Mr. Jacobson's time upon the ranges will be shortened. He will be in this county Oct. 28 and 29. Mr. Culkin states that the county tour of Jacobson will be of the whirlwind order. He will speak in Duluth Thursday evening, Oct. 29, after taking the same trip that Johnson did.

Mr. Culkin is still endeavoring to secure some national Republican speaker for a local appearance. He had received no definite reply to his communication to the state central committee up to yesterday, and he is still awaiting some information upon the subject. It is said that the members of the local county Republican committee, telling the members of that body that some effective spellbinder is needed in Duluth, and is needed badly. If arrangements can be completed, Mr. Culkin says that some prominent speaker will be heard in this city before the close of the campaign.

Mr. Culkin announced yesterday that John Stokke of Floodwood had been chosen secretary of the Republican county committee. He also announced that ex-Lieutenant Governor L. A. Smith will speak the coming week at Ely, Tower and one or two of the Mesaba range towns.

From this time on the chairman of the county committee says that there will be two or three meetings nightly. Cr. Culkin has planned a strenuous campaign for the remainder of the month.

There will be a meeting of the Svea Republicans tonight. Harvey Clapp, Paul Welsh and James Boyle of Eveleth will be the speakers. These three speakers and Clarence B. Miller will be used in this city and upon the range next week.

Good reports were received of the progress of the Democratic ticket, during the week. Dr. O. A. Oredson, candidate for the legislature, from the Fiftieth district, is reported to have made good progress. Dr. Oredson has addressed several meetings, has met many of the voters here and upon the range, and has reported to the members of the committee that conditions are looking very promising for his election. Joseph W. Reynolds, Democratic candidate for the legislature in the Fiftieth district, is another candidate who has put in an industrious week. Mr. Reynolds has been over his district very thoroughly and brings good reports to the Democratic headquarters.

Anton Borgen and Richard F. Grant, the Republican candidates in the Fiftieth district, have also been active during the past week. They have no doubt of the result. They both received a heavy vote at the primaries and the members of the Republican county committee are confident of the result in this district.

Anton N. Thompson of Virginia, candidate for clerk of the district court upon the Democratic ticket will speak in Duluth during the coming week, if the present plans of the county committee are carried out.

The members of the Democratic committee are firm in the belief that Emil A. Tessman will win out for county commissioner in the First district. This is a Democratic district. Mr. Fraser, his opponent has stated that he has seen practically every voter in the district. He has made a house to house canvass of the First district and has reported to the Republican committee that he is confident of being elected.

J. J. O'Brien, county commissioner, candidate in the Third district, was a caller at the Democratic headquarters yesterday. Mr. O'Brien has covered the district thoroughly during the present week and members of the Democratic committee claim Mr. O'Brien stands a very fair chance of defeating Joseph W. Cumming, the Republican candidate.

John Lowe, Democratic county commissioner candidate in the Fifth district, has been out in the rural precincts during the week. He came down from Floodwood last night. Mr. Lowe states that in Floodwood several stores refused to allow Jacobson pictures in the windows.

"You can place pictures of the rest of the ticket in the window, but you can't put any Jacobson pictures here," are the remarks reported to have been made by several of the Floodwood merchants. Mr. Lowe says that Johnson sentiment has swept the range. He states that there is nothing but Johnson talk there, and that throughout his district the voters are solid for the re-election of the governor. Mr. Lowe has met all of the voters of his district and tells the members of the committee that his chances of election look promising.

Albert Overton the Republican candidate, was on the tracts of candidate Lowe the present week, and his reports to the Republican county committee, are to the effect that he will win.

John Cashin, who is the candidate for the office of register of deeds upon the Democratic ticket and M. C. Palmer, the Republican candidate, put in a hard week upon the range. Mr. Cashin reports a fire of enthusiasm for the head of the state Democratic ticket, and says that Johnson will carry every town upon the range, with the possible exception of some of the smaller settlements where there is but a few scattering votes.

The two candidates for coroner, Dr. J. H. Jern, the Democratic candidate, and J. A. McCuen, the Republican candidate are both working.

A test of the Johnson popularity was made the night before the governor spoke in this city. Austin Conley, who is in charge of the Democratic headquarters, took fifty Johnson buttons and stood on the street. He offered a button to every man that came along, and not one of the buttons was refused. Mr. Conley said that he personally knew that some of the men he offered the buttons to were Republicans, yet they all accepted them and said they were proud to wear them. The Johnson buttons ran out yesterday afternoon and a new supply was ordered from St. Paul. Wednesday evening it is estimated that over 1,000 Johnson buttons were given away by the members of the committee. This does not include the buttons that were given to volunteer Johnson workers, who came to the headquarters to secure buttons to pass out.

Commercial traveling men have been hard workers in the Johnson cause. They are frequent callers at the Democratic headquarters, and from the reports brought here by them, the Johnson sentiment is solid throughout the state. The prediction was made at Democratic headquarters by a person who is not connected with the Democratic party, that Johnson would carry every county in the state, with the exception of Lac qui Parle county, Jacobson's own county. It was estimated by this person, who does not want his name used, that Johnson would carry Hennepin county by 18,000 votes; Ramsey county by 10,000; and that the governor would receive a prurality of 3,500 votes in St. Louis county. It was said that the governor had increased his following among the business men of the state, that he would secure a larger vote in the cities of the state, and that the Norwegian farming districts of the state would be the only place where the governor would not increase his vote of two years ago.

From the southern part of the state, the report has come to Democratic headquarters that the Republican party lash is being used with stinging emphasis. Desperate efforts are being made to get the party in line, and from the tenor of the reports, the Republicans are working with energy born of desperation to stem the tide of Johnson sentiment.

The closing two weeks of the campaign will be strenuous ones. Both machines are well organized. The speakers' bureaus are perfected and during the coming week and the week following that, every corner of the county will be invaded by the speakers of both parties. Politics is in the air. Both headquarters are daily flooded with inquiries, and are thronged with visitors. The visit of the governor put vigor into the fight. The Republicans are counting upon the appearance of Jacobson to make another political sensation. The battle is on with increased energy and the closing days of the campaign promise to develop even greater interest.

DEMOCRATS ASSEMBLE

Rousing Meeting Held by the West End Club.

County Candidates Speak and Outline Their Campaign Platforms.

A very large attendance was present at the last regular meeting of the West End Democratic club, held at Sloan's hall last evening.

Andrew Nelson, chairman of the county Democratic committee, Charles Jesmore, candidate for sheriff, Dr. J. H. Jern, candidate for coroner, Dr. O. A. Oredson, candidate for the legislature from the Fiftieth district, and Robert Mee and Hans P. Bjorge, candidates for railroad and warehouse commissioners, and John Jenswold, Jr., completed the list of speakers.

Mr. Jenswold dealt with questions affecting the national parties. He went into the party platforms, showing by comparison why the Democratic platform would be the best for the interests of the people. He told the members of the club that the interests of the common people would be best served by the election of a Democratic president.

Dr. O. A. Oredson stated that certain interests had led to the nomination of his Republican opponents, Richard F. Grant and Anton Borgen, claiming in the event of their being elected, they would not be in a position to serve the interests of the people.

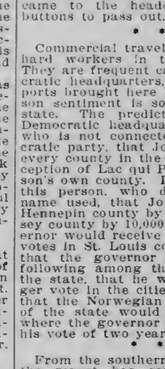

Dr. Oredson clearly defined his position upon the tonnage tax, and pledged himself to do everything in his power to defeat the measure, should he be elected. Dr. Oredson also expressed himself as opposed to the unfair representation of the districts in the northern part of the state, promising to do everything in his power to bring about a reapportionment, should he be elected to represent the Fiftieth district.

Robert Mee and Hans P. Bjorge showed by figures and facts the discriminations against the northern part of the state by the railroads. They explained that thousands of tons of freight that rightfully belonged to this shipping territory, were diverted from Duluth by the unjust discrimination of the roads in placing rates from Chicago to the southern part of the state on a partity with rates from Duluth to the same sections. Both candidates for the office of railroad and warehouse commissioner stated that if they were elected they would use all their influence to correct this rate evil.

Charles Jesmore gave an address and told the members of the club that should be be elected he would serve the interest of the people with all his ability, and endeavor to conduct the office upon a high plane of efficiency.

Refreshments and a smoker followed the political meeting. This was the last regular meeting scheduled for the present month, but plans are under way for another special meeting before the close of the campaign. It is planned by the Democratic committee to provide the club with some strong speaker, and in this event a special rally of the club members will be called.

Last night's meeting was one of the most successful in the history of the club. There was great enthusiasm and the spirit of the evening spoke well for the success of the party efforts.

M. E. MATHEWS,
Democratic Candidate for Attorney General of Minnesota.

Marvin E. Mathews was born near Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1849, and moved with his parents to this state in the spring of 1854, settling on a farm near Rochester, Minn. As a boy he attended country school, and later graduated from the high school of Rochester.

After leaving school he studied law in the office of Hon. R. A. Jones of Rochester until 1872, when he went to New Ulm, in which city he accepted a position as teacher in the high school, continuing his studies of law at the same time. In 1873 he opened a law office in New Ulm, where he practiced until 1876, at which time he removed to Marshall, Lyon county, Minn., where he has since made his home. He is a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and was one of the foremost practitioners of that state.

Mr. Mathews is a life long Democrat, in which party he is a recognized leader. He has served as county attorney of his county and also as receiver of public moneys and special disbursing agent of the United States land office at Marshall, Minn. In the campaign of 1900 he was unanimously nominated by both the Democratic and People's parties as member of congress from the then Second Minnesota district.

HER HATPIN FOILS NIGHT ASSAILANT.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Quinlan, a clerk in the delivery department of L. S. Donaldson & Co., Minneapolis, was arraigned in police court today on charge of attempted criminal assault. The woman is Mrs. Adolph Breuer, and it was only by strenuous exertions that she was able to ward off the attack. Her hatpin, however, proved effective. Mrs. Breuer, who is the wife of a locomotive engineer was returning late at night from a social gathering in Minneapolis unattended.

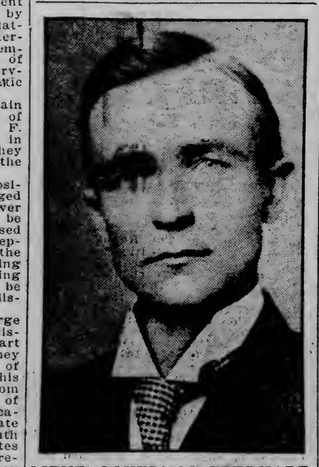

EBERHART GIVES TALK

Principal Speaker at Republican Rally in West End.

Fervently Boosts Gubernatorial Candidacy of J. F. Jacobson.

Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart devoted most of his speech in Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, last evening, to telling an audience which comfortably filled the hall, his reasons why Candidate Jacob F. Jacobson was entitled to substantial recognition by the voters and that it was high time John A. Johnson ceased to be governor of the state of Minnesota.

Mr. Eberhart boosted fervently the candidacy of the gentleman from Lac Qui Parle, took a couple of swipes at Governor Johnson and an excursion or two into national issues, ridiculing particularly that Democratic plank, the guaranty of bank deposits.

The Lieutenant governor tickled the risibilities of the faithful Republicans exceedingly when he remarked that if the Democrats were to have the say in national affairs, the necessary thing to do would not be to guarantee bank deposits, but to get money enough to put in the banks.

The speaker had a great deal to say about the record in the legislature of the Republican candidate for governor, dealing at length with some of the measures passed of which he claimed Mr. Jacobson was the sponsor. He denied that his candidate was hostile to the interests of the northern part of the state or that the bills over which he worked and for which he spoke in the legislature were measures antagonistic to the best interests of the common people or that there was any collusion with capital in their enactment.

Mr. Eberhart mentioned a measure introduced in the legislature by Mr. Jacobson, which afterwards became a law, providing that freight tariffs on commodities such as grain, produce, fuel and the like, could not be changed without the consent to the state railroad and warehouse commission and after a thorough investigation of the justice of the movement by that body and with the full knowledge of the people interested.

Mr. Eberhart said in part:

"Mr. Jacobson succeeded in getting a number of good measures passed at a time when it was very difficult and there may have been aspects of them at the time which made people feel that they were laws which would benefit capital, but that feeling has vanished. It has been shown that Jacobson's interests were always with the people and that he was merely ahead of his time. Time has shown that all of Jacobson's laws were good.

"The people are sending men to the legislature who do not betray their trusts and it is a great mistake to think that the corporations can go down to St. Paul and buy anything they want. The days of crooked work are past. Governor Johnson's talked-of record is merely the good work of a friendly Republican legislature. Jacobson has done his good work himself.

"Governor Johnson is running for governor again just for the good of the party. It is merely to keep his 'kitchen cabinet' of office-holders in their places. It is said that he can make more money by lecturing than by acting as governor of this state and I am of the opinion that the people should give him an opportunity to go lecturing about Jan. 1.

"John A. Johnson has had glory enough, more, perhaps, than any governor of Minnesota has had, and it is time he was stepping aside to make room for someone else. If we are going to keep Minnesota in the Republican column, we must elect a Republican governor this year."

Mr. Eberhart characterized the "injunction plank" in the Democratic platform as a "sugar-coated pill to catch the workingmen's votes."

Richard F. Grant, candidate for the legislature from the Fiftieth district, delivered a short talk, devoted mostly to a denunciation o fa tonnage tax, which would wrest from the country the funds that are necessary to build its schools, its roads through a new country, and for other improvements.

P. E. Dowling, editor of the Eveleth Star, also spoke, making a plea for Jacobson.

The rally was under the auspices of the West End Republican club and George M. Jensen, president of that organization, acted as chairman.

EXTENDS THE TRIAL HOURS

Attorneys in Butte & Superior Case Must Work Later Now.

Attorney Richards Opposes Introduction of Samples in Evidence.

Judge Ensign has decided that speed measures are necessary, if the case the Butte & Superior Copper company against John McAlpine is ever to go to the jury. He announced at the close of court yesterday that in the future, the trial will begin at 8:30 in the morning and continue to 6 o'clock, with two hours' adjournment at noon. The judge said that he can stand it and the attorneys certainly should be able to do so.

The introduction of samples and assays as evidence in the case is meeting with strong opposition on the part of Attorney Richards for the defense, who insists on conclusive identification, which cannot always be secured. A merry argument came on just before the close of court yesterday afternoon, when R. C. Davis, superintendent of the Butte & Superior properties, identified a sample of ore from the Elm Orlu mine, a Clark property, just west of the Black Rock and on the same lead. The efforts of the plaintiff are in rebuttal of the testimony of Patrick Meany, the expert for the defense, who testified that copper ore of merchantable quality and quantity could be found on the Rainbow lode.

Victor Rakowsky, the company's engineer, was on the stand again yesterday afternoon under cross-examination by Attorney Richards for the defense. Mr. Richards went into the questions of concentration and smelting and the effect of the large percentage of zinc in the Black Rock ores on the copper values. Mr. Richards inquired into the penalties imposed by the smelters of the Butte district on copper ores bearing more than a certain percentage of zinc.

Mr. Rakoksky said that, although the Butte smelters imposed a penalty for zinc in copper ore, the dry process of concentration, as exemplified by the mill at Dallas, Tex., to which the Butte & Superior company shipped a cargo of ore, was such that the zinc could be separated from the copper completely, so as to retain the values in both. Mr. Hollister announced that they would show the percentages of zinc than 21.5 per cent, which the assay introduced Thursday showed, and they would prove that it had value outside of the copper values in the ores.

After Mr. Rakowsky retired from the stand, R. C. Davis was called and the arguments on the introduction of samples followed. Little progress was made before adjournment.

WANT BUTTONS AND LITERTAURE

Johnson Boomers in Eveleth Active—Clapp Will Speak at Hibbing.

A letter received this morning by Andrew Nelson, chairman of the Democratic county committee, gives an idea of the political situation upon the range.

The letter is written by John W. Peterson, a well known citizen of Eveleth, and states that the Johnson appearance there accomplished wonderful results in the way of removing any belief that the governor was opposed to the interests in the northern part of the state, or that he was in favor of a tonnage tax.

The letter states that a Taft-Jacobson club was organized at Eveleth on Oct. 15. The letter states that there were not more than thirty people present, and of these a majority were Johnson sympathizers, there out of curiosity. The writer requests that more Johnson buttons be sent to Eveleth, as the last Jounson button to be had, was one that was torn from the buttonhole of one of the Johnson workers by a man, who was determined to secure a Johnson button at any cost.

The county committee is also requested to send some literature to the range. Literature in the foreign tongue, the letter states, is particularly requested, a sthere is a strong Johnson sentiment among the laboring class at Eveleth.

Hazers Cry "Louder, Louder," While Miss Helen Taft Makes Speech for Bryan

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17.—Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the Republican candidate and freshman at Bryn Mawr, has been hazed by the college sophomores.

Miss Taft is not saying much about it, but a talkative sophomore said that what they did not do to the notable freshman was not worth telling.

Among the things Miss Taft was forced to do, and to which she gamely submitted, are these:

Had to eat supposed chocolate creams, which looked good outside, but had only lard inside; forced to sweep the floor of her room, holding the broom in her teeth; obliged to mount a table and make a rip-roaring speech for Bryan her hearers all the time crying, "Louder, louder;" walked through the halls of the dormitory and made to give three cheers for Bryan, on penalty of being thrown into the campus pond; compelled to sit on the floor, tailor fashion, with other freshman, and sing "Home, Sweet Home;" feed her neighbor with tiny teaspoons while blindfolded and sip water poured out of bronze teapots.

MARINE NEWS

NEW LIGHTHOUSE TENDER IN PORT

"Anemone" is the Finest Government Boat on the Lakes.

The new United States lighthouse tender Anemone, on her first trip north of Detroit, arrived in port last night.

Capt. Kariger is in charge. The Anemone recently was completed in the American Shipbuilding yards at Camden, N. J., and brought to fresh waters. She is carrying Capt. James Smith of the Seventh district, United States navy, on a regular tour of inspection which has included all Lake Superior ports.

Inspector Smith has found everything in good condition thus far, with the exception of a few fog whistles.

In regard to channel lights the inspector says: "The kind of lights to be used here was decided by the lighthouse board at Washington upon a recommendation from the engineers of this district, and they have the best quality of lenses. Of course, if they are not found satisfactory we will make them so. It is the desire of our department to have the service as satisfactory as possible. Range lights are all right, but when a master gets on one, you can't pry him off with a handspike. I have hardly heard what you could call complaints. Captains merely remark of the dimness of the lights. This, of course, only was heard during the exceptional conditions prevailing recently."

The Anemone is the finest equipped lighthouse tender on the Great Lakes. She was built at Camden under a government contract which called for seven others exactly similar. They now are scattered all over the United States possessions. Two went to San Francisco, one to Key West, one remains in the service of the Third lighthouse district of New York and one went to Charleston and the last to Porto Rico.

The Anemone has two triple expansion engines capable of reaching a speed of thirteen knots. She is a 1,000-ton vessel, 190 feet in length, and with a 30-foot beam. A 20-ton derrick is provided on the forward deck, which tar exceeds present needs.

Investigating Sounds.

Capt. Albert Swenson, nautical expert at the local hydrographic office, Friday received instructions from Washington to collect all the information possible on the "aberrations of sound."

It seems that sounds on water are very much different than on land, and that at times a fog horn only a little distance away cannot be heard. The government is trying to find out how this can be remedied, and is asking for information for this purpose.

Removal of Shoal.

The shoal on the east edge of the Rice's Point channel opposite elevator H, where post light No. 1 stood, which was destroyed on Oct. 9, and where several vessels have since grounded, has now been dredged out, and vessels can now pass safely over the locality, and can run further to the east, where the harbor basin has recently been extended by dredging, taking care to keep to the west of all the dredges at work and outside a line of black buoys. A black can buoy was set today to mark the turn from the Duluth harbor basin into the Rice's Point channel. This can buoy is on the east side of the channel, nearly opposite the north edge of the old Imperial flour mill. The buoy is marked "Duluth Harbor Basin No. 3."

Paper Strike Spreads.

New York, Oct. 17.—Through the ordering out of men employed in the Independent paper mills it is indicated that efforts are being made to make the paper strike general. Several independent concerns were compelled to close down yesterday because the men were ordered to go on strike by J. T. Carey, president of the papermakers' union.

TWELVE-DOLLAR-A-WEEK BOY BORROWED THOUSANDS WORKING FOR C. W. MORSE

New York, Oct. 17.—A tow-headed youth of 19, until recently a $12 a week clerk in a broker's office, was the star witness at the trial in the criminal branch of the United States court of Charles W. Morse, financial man and promoter, who, with Alfred H. Curtis, a former president of the National Bank of North America, is charged with having violated the national banking laws.

In the testimony of Edward P. Moxey, a government examiner, it had been revealed that a person by the name of Leslie E. Whiting had been one of the heaviest borrowers from the National Bank of North America, at one time owing the institution as much as $350,000. There was hardly a week went by the year of 1907, the testimony showed, that Whiting did not borrow $100,000 or more, giving ice stock, principally, as security. It always appeared in the records as presented, however, that the enormous sums of money borrowed by Whiting were credited to the account of Charles W. Morse.

At the conclusion of Examiner Moxey's testimony, Leslie Whiting was called to the stand and those in the court room who had expected to see a dignified business man step forward were astonished to see a smooth-cheeked boy of under 20 years walk nervously to the witness stand. A smile swept the room and Judge Hugh rapped sharply for order.

After Whiting had been made to describe how he had come to sign the notes, which made him indebted to the bank for such large amounts, he was asked:

"Could you have paid this note I hold here for $52,000?"

"What, me?" answered the startled boy.

"No—— No, I couldn't."

"Could you have paid a note for $1,000?" asked the attorney for the prosecution.

"No sir," responded the boy, a trifle more assured.

For half an hour longer the youth was kept on the stand while a bunch of letters, both in the signature of Leslie Whiting and directed to the National Bank of North America were read. These letters, couched in business like terms, gave orders to the bank for transferring collateral, charges and renewals of notes. A sentence in one letter read:

"Enclosed please find my check for $200,000, which apply to my account."

The witness explained in answer to questions that he had been sent to the bank of his employers to sign the notes. He said he knew he was incurring an obligation but felt sure his employers would protect the notes. Whiting testified that he had never talked with Mr. Morse or Mr. Curtis concerning the signing of notes or the putting up of collateral. The boy also said that he did not think his employers knew that he was not of age.

NEGRO EDITORS ARE BARRED FROM CHURCH.

CAUSE: POLITICS.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 17.—The negro editors' convention, representing Eastern, Southern and Middle states, were tonight barred from their meeting place, the A. M. E. Zion church in Arthur street, because many members of that congregation objected to the drastic political action taken by the colored editors last night in adopting a declaration of principles and a set of resolutions censuring President Roosevelt and Candidate Taft.

SHELDON, ANSWERING STRAUS, SAYS "LIE."

New York, Oct. 17.—George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican national committee said in reply to a statement made by Nathan Strauss at Democratic headquarters, that many Republicans in Wall street had been required to give $500 each to the Republican campaign fund.

"That statement, like all other statements made during the campaign referring to contributions, is absolutely and unqualifiedly false."

Twitching of the Nerves

Became almost unbearable until Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills brought about a cure.

Tapping of the fingers, restlessness, sleeplessness, inability to control the nerves.

What a story of exhausted nerves is told by these symptoms. Nervous prostration and paralysis are not far away unless restorative treatment is used.

The writer of this letter was fortunate enough to learn about Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and tells his experience for the benefit of other sufferers from diseases of the nerves.

Mr. I. W. Oakley, Montrose, Pa., writes: "I was troubled with nervous exhaustion for several years and was so nervous I could not lie in bed, but would walk the floor and my nerves would draw and twitch until I was almost wild. I tried all sorts of medicines in vain until I used Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. Six boxes cured me and the old trouble never returned I am very grateful to say."

EIGHT SONS ARE ALL JOHNSON "BOOMERS"

The Eight Evenson Brothers: E. W., A. F., C. H., Roy, G. M., Fred, M. G., and H. C.

Eight Johnson boomers in one family is an extraordinary record, but it is the record of the family of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Evenson of St. Peter.

Mr. and Mrs. Evenson are neighbors of Governor Johnson in St. Peter, and knew the governor's parents intimately from the time they arrived in Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Evenson have eight sons. They grew up with Governor Johnson, and there are no more enthusiastic Johnson boomers in the country than the Evenson brothers. A. F. Evenson is the chairman of the state grain inspection board, with headquarters at Minneapolis. He was with Governor Johnson on his recent range trip. The other brothers are: E. W., of Spokane; C. H., of Baker City; Roy and G. M., of Sioux City; Fred, of St. Paul; M. G., of Waterloo, Iowa; and H. C., of La Crosse, Wis.

On July 3, on the occasion of the golden wedding anniversary of the parents, eight sons went to St. Peter, and the entire family camped for one week on the shore of the lake there. The accompanying picture was taken at that time.

BRYAN DEMANDS LIGHT ON CONTRIBUTIONS TO REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN

Denver, Oct. 17.—W. J. Bryan took for his text last night: "Let there be light," and said in part:

"The Republican policies are without form and are void. Darkness conceals their plans. The awakened conscience of an aroused people calls out 'Let there be light.'

"What evils are marshaled behind the Republican ticket? What debts are being contracted? What mortgages are being given? 'Let there be light.'

"The Democratic committee has set the example. For the first time in our national history, a national committee has taken the nation into its confidence and given forth a list of its contributors. This is in the interest of honest politics and honest national government. It opens a new era. Will the Republicans dare to defy a universal sentiment and maintain the secrecy that has given predatory wealth its hold upon the government?

"The Republican national convention deliberately voted down a plank pledging publicity, and the Republican candidate insists that the contributions should not be made known until after the election, when the information can be of but little service.

"We demand the election of the senators by the people and this is in the interest of honest government. Let senatorial elections be held in the daylight and not behind closed doors in secret caucuses where corrupt influences can cheat the people out of representation. The Democratic convention declared for the popular election of senators. The Republican convention, by an overwhelming vote, rejected the idea, and the Republican candidate has merely expressed a personal inclination toward this reform.

"The public demands light on the tariff question. The Republican platform deals in generalities. The language employed may mean anything or nothing, and the speeches of their candidate intensifies the gloom that the convention threw over the state. Let there be light that the people may know whether the tariff schedules are to continue to be made by a few beneficiaries in their own interests of by the people's representatives for the people's good.

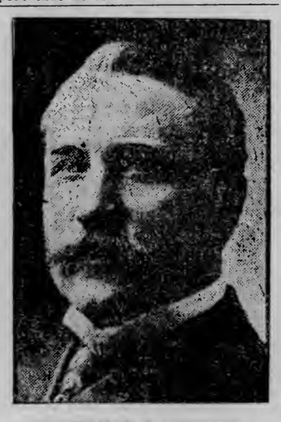

"What does the Republican party intend to do with the trusts? Let its plans be stated. Let its remedies be made known. Let there be light on this question also. We have seen one of the greatest of trusts obtaining legislative permission to absorb a rival. Is this to be continued as a settled policy of the Republican party? It is not sufficient to find fault with Democratic remedies. What is the Republican remedy? The people are entitled to know.

"What is the Republican party going to do on the labor question? Here again there is need of light. The Republican party claims to be the friend of labor. Let it define the friendship that it intends to show. If it is going to oppose needed labor legislation, let it boldly declare itself and not betray the toiler with a kiss.

"What is it going to do on the Philippine question? It has enormously increased the appropriations for the army and the navy in preparation for wars that ought never to come. It has boasted of possessions in the Orient, while the Filipinos clamor for announcement of the nation's policy. Let there be light. Let the national purpose be proclaimed, that the world may know that we have not surrendered our ideals or abandoned the principles of government that have given us our pre-eminence among the nations."

YEARNS FOR NO TOGA, HE DECLARES

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—In his first campaign speech at Sun Prairie, Governor Davidson has put a stop to a report that he is a candidate for United States senator and will be La Follette's opponent two years hence. "I am a candidate for governor, and no other office," declared Mr. Davidson.

CHINESE SMUGGLERS ARE WELL ORGANIZED.

Seattle, Oct. 17.—What is believed by government officials to be a new gang of men engaged in smuggling Chinese into the United States from British Columbia, is now operating on such an extensive scale that immigration officials are worried greatly.

Harry Edsell, immigration inspector in charge of the immigration station brought down five Chinamen to give them a hearing before United States Commissioner Armstrong.

"The cases are coming so fast that it is keeping this office on the jump," said United States District Attorney Tood. "It looks as if there was an organized and well disciplined gang of Chinese smugglers at work."

BRYAN FIGHT IS WON, DECLARES MACK.

New York, Oct. 17.—National Democratic Chairman Mack says:

"The fight is won, but we must keep everlastingly at it for the remaining two weeks of the campaign. It is too early to give our figures and I will not attempt to do so, but I will say that New York, Ohio and Indiana are Democratic this year and my prediction does not take into consideration a number of other states that will swing from the Republican to the Democratic column two weeks from Tuesday."

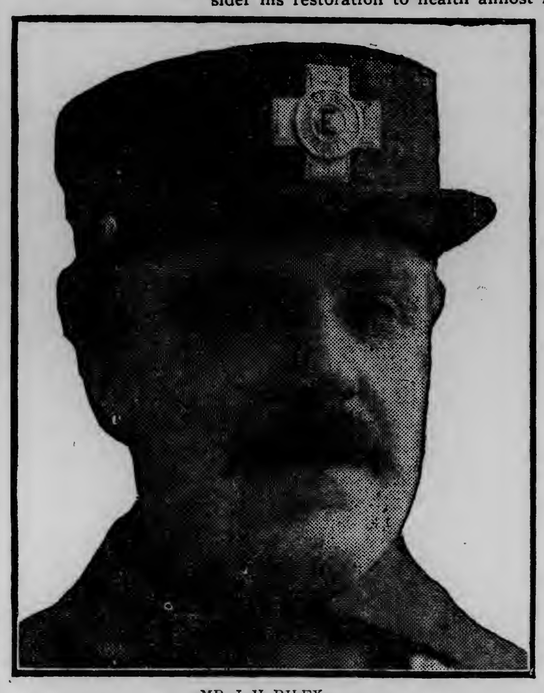

BESIDES, HEARST IS A LIAR—HASKELL

Guthrie, Ok., Oct. 17.—Anent the statement accredited last night to William R. Hearst, Governor Haskell, upon his return from Ohio, said:

"As to Hearst's Omaha statement that he sent me a letter stating that he would help pay the expenses of my prosecution of him and accept service of summons by a notice mailed to him at any time, his statements are falsehoods. He has not sent me word of any kind, neither by letter nor telegram nor in any other way. When I found that he had left his spectacular caravan on the Pacific coast and was traveling eastward incognito, I immediately guarded every trunk line gateway, St. Paul, Omaha, Kansas City, Fort Worth and Houston, determined that he should not escape me."

Malaria and Heart Trouble

Read the interesting story told by Mr. J. H. Riley, pensioned fireman of South Boston, Mass. We print Mr. Riley's recent letter verbatim. Mr. Riley's comrades in the Fire Department consider his restoration to health almost miraculous.

MR. J. H. RILEY.

"I joined the Fire Department of South Boston in 1890, and was lately pensioned off because of a bad fall while in service, which telescoped my spine.

"A little over a year ago I was taken sick while in the engine house, and it developed into heart trouble and malaria. I went to a number of doctors and two different hospitals and went through a course of treatment from each, but I did not receive much benefit from any of them. The doctors would not let me go in swimming, nor smoke, nor drink anything but water. I stopped both tea and coffee. My case was getting very serious when a friend said to me: 'Why don't you get a bottle of Duffy's Malt Whiskey? I know a man who was given up for all time and he took Duffy's Malt Whiskey and today he is as well a man as you can find.' So I commenced taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and the result is that the doctors now say that I am all right, and I never felt better in my life. Of course, I am very little good as far as heavy work is concerned, owing to my injury, but I am well, and that is a good thing to be able to say. I thank you for the remedy that put me on my feet again."—J. H. RILEY, 866 East Sixth Street, South Boston, Mass.

Mr. Riley's experience is similar to that of thousands of others who have suffered untold agonies from different diseases and were cured by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey after they were given up to die. What wonder is it that doctors of all schools prescribe and use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as the great tonic-stimulant blood-purifier and body-builder!

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain. It is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It cures nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run down and weakened conditions of the body, brain and nerves. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in large sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for a free copy of illustrated medical booklet and free advice.

GOETHALS IS MADE A TARGET

War Department Hears Brothers Charge Unfair Canal Methods.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Unfair methods, improper influence and the offerings of a 10 per cent commission to a government officer by a prospective contractor are some of the charges that figure in a hearing at the war department in the complaint against Lieut. Col. George W. Goethals by William F. Brothers, president of the Balanced Crane Cable company of New York.

Mr. Brothers alleges unfair methods in the awarding of a contract for cranes for use on the Isthmian canal. Inspector General Garlington presided at the hearing, which was in continuation of an investigation begun in New York. Gen. Garlington will later report to the secretary of war.

C. B. Strickler, an engineer on the canal since Jan. 1906, who had been detailed to inspect the plant of the Balanced Crane Cable company, testified that he had not made any statement to Mr. Brothers about the specifications for the cranes, as he knew nothing about them. He denied having said anything about using his influence to have Brothers' device accepted by the canal commission.

A. M. Lawson, who went to Panama in the interest of the Brothers company, denied that he had told Mr. Brothers that improper influences were at work against him. He said he was to receive a salary of $65 a week and his expenses, but had not received a cent of salary.

TRADING SHOWS MUCH CONFIDENCE

Dun Reports Moderate Improvement in Most Sections of Country.

New York, Oct. 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

Moderate improvement is indicated in reports of current trade from most sections of the country, with pronounced confidence regarding the future.

Although many undertakings are held back in the iron and steel industry pending the result of the election, numerous small contracts are being placed, and specifications on old orders involve a considerable tonnage. Progress is slow, but on the whole there is a distinct improvement each week, export business continuing liberal. Ore movements on the lakes is about over for the season and shipments will probably amount to little more than 22,500,000 tons. Prices of pig iron are somewhat lower on contracts for this year's delivery, but neither producers nor consumers are eager to operate for shipment in 1909. There is a similar reluctance about forward contracts for coke, makers asking better prices than are offered. There is a fairly good demand for structural shapes, while plates are wanted by car builders. Only a few orders for steel rails have been placed this week. Improvement is pronounced in the primary market for cotton goods, buyers exhibiting more interest, and it is generally believed that prices cannot be expected to go any lower. While it is not the season for extensive activity among jobbers, there is a good volume of filling in orders and the statistical position is firmly held by the curtailment of spinning, which is still considerable. Full quotations are now asked in lines upon which concessions were obtainable a week ago. Export sales are larger, although most bids from China are still below the views of makers. Clothiers' salesmen has not yet made sufficient progress to establish the trend of demand for men's wear in woolens, and there is little duplicate business in heavy weights.

Conditions in the footwear industry were unsettled by the labor controversy at Lynn and some other factories are closed for inventories. There is no controversy regarding prices. Similar conditions exist as to heavy leather, small stocks being carried by the shoe factories and quotations are well maintained. Light sole and upper leather is more abundant, sales of the former being made at pronounced concessions. Export demand has sustained the market for glazed kid, but domestic trade is poor. Weakness in hides is more noticeable, natives being relatively easier than branded varieties.

NEGRO SOLDIER WANTS TO RE-ENLIST

Washington, Oct. 17.—President Roosevelt has had referred to the war department an open letter recently written to him by First Sergeant Mingo Sanders of the Twenty-fifth negro infantry, a battalion of which was discharged without honor two years ago by the president for alleged participation in the Brownsville, Texas, riot. Sanders seeks permission to re-enlist into the army, declaring he is innocent of the charge made against him. Secretary Wright has not yet made final disposition of the case.

HEARST CHALLENGES FORAKER AND TAGGART TO SUE HIM, TOO

Chicago, Oct. 17.—W. R. Hearst says: "I do not at all care whether the method of serving the summons in the Haskell case was contrary to law or not, and I am perfectly willing to receive the summons. I do not hold anything against the deputy sheriff except the fact that he did not say that he was an officer of the law. He did not say that he had a summons of any kind or a legal paper of any kind to serve.

"I was in the bedroom at the time not avoiding any one, nor suspecting any one. Some one knocked and Mrs. Hearst went to the door. She thought he was a drunken ruffian. She declined to let him in, and he broke open the door. I stepped out and asked what the trouble was all about and the man said he had a summons in a civil suit to serve. Of course his action was high handed and contrary to law, but I accepted the summons notwithstanding, and I invite Mr. Haskell's suit immediately before election.

"I am going to New York late today and will pass through Indiana. If Mr. Taggart has any suit to bring, I will be pleased to accept his service.

"I am then going through Ohio, and if Mr. Foraker has anything in the way of a suit, I will be on the platform waiting to accept his service.

"I make these statements and give out my itinerary in order that if any suits are to be brought they may be brought without unnecessary annoyance to my family."

WANTED---A GOOD GAME

Why Cannot Central Highs Arrange for Better Schedule?

A Little More Dope on That Hockey Proposition.

What is the matter with the high school football management this year?

It's been a long time since Duluth football enthusiasts have been treated to as poor a lot of football games as has been witnessed on the local gridiron. Every week the same story is told over and over again, the team which was a fast one has backed out, and some bush team substituted.

It's getting rather tiresome along about this time and a great many people are wondering, "Are we going to see any football games this year?"

Minneapolis Central, Ironwood, St. Cloud and St. Paul Mechanic Arts backed out in turn, and each week Duluth people look forward to the next Saturday as the real beginning of the football season.

Where the real trouble lies is unknown. It seems hardly possible that all these teams are without exception afraid to meet Duluth. As is well known, high school is the only football seen in this neck of the woods and it seems as though a much faster schedule could have been furnished than the one that has been sewed up from week to week.

Next Saturday Minneapolis East Side is expected, although the management is not sure. Neither is it sure about the St Paul Central game on Oct. 28.

Nov. 7 is still open. Blaine plays on Nov. 14, and from the showing made by that team it may refuse to meet the locals. There is a possibility of meeting Minneapolis North Side on Nov. 21, but there is nothing definite about it.

It looks now as though the football season will come abruptly to a close even before the present schedule is played off.

YALE AND WEST POINT

Scrappy Military Team Has Big Game on Today.

Captain Burch, of Yale Will Not be in the Game.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 17.—West Point is aflutter over the annual game of the cadets with Yale here today, which, next to the struggle with the navy, is the greatest event in the army's football schedule. Elaborate preparations for the care of the spectators have been made. Extra stands have been put up and special trains are bringing enthusiasts from New York city and surrounding towns.

The cadets are more confident than ever this year, and expect to improve upon last year's tie to the extent of at least one field goal or touchdown. Coach Tipton has developed a new forward pass, which the soldiers feel will mean five points on their side of the score board, while Dean, the left halfback's steady improvement in both drop and place kicking is also expected to prove dangerous to Yale's chances.

It was announced yesterday afternoon that Captain Burch of Yale would not be able to take part in the game, as the injuries which he suffered at Yale field Thursday in practice when he was rendered unconscious, have proved more serious than at first supposed.

The probable lineup of the two teams:

West Point.		Yale.
Underwood	l e	Kilpatrick
Byrne	l t	Richardson
Wier	l g	Brown or Andus
Philoon	c	Biddle
Moss	r g	Goebel
Besson	r t	Lilley
Carberry	r e	Mercereau

PLAYING WITH SUPERIOR TEAM

Centrals and Nelson-Dewey Mixing It at Athletic Park.

Nelson Dewey high school football team of Superior is playing with Duluth out at Athletic Park this afternoon.

This is the first time the two teams have met in some years, and as the Superior bunch is touted as being the best Superior has this year, the students and their friends are much concerned over the outcome.

The Duluth boys go into the game today badly crippled and it is just at this time that the team needs all the encouragement that the rooters can give it. Students are going to the park with every noise-making device known, and they promise to make things lively along this line.

The rooting is always the chief attraction between Duluth and Superior teams, students from across the bay loyally support their team at all times, and always bring a trainload of rooters to help them win their game.

Helmer will not be in the game, and Olson is taking McFarlane's place at tackle. Crawford is not in the best possible shape, and it is a fact that not one night this week have all the boys been out for a good stiff signal practice.

Hard luck has been the cry of the men all week, and it will be to their credit to go into the game today—and win.

The line-up follows:

Duluth		Superior.
Larrowe	c	Erikson
Boyle	q	Cooley
Quinn	lg	Williams
Kent	rg	Densteau
Olson	rt	Dente
Crawford	re	Jordan
McFadden	le	Weber
Ostergren	rh	Wagland
Bowen	lh	J. Gordon
Cummings	rh	Hudson
Cook	fb	H. Gordon

PLAYERS LIKE BENNETT PARK

Cubs Say Its Arrangement for Batting Is Ideal.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—The Cubs praise the Detroit park extravagantly. This sounds queer, considering the small size of Bennett park and its limited crowds. What the Cubs like, it seems, is the superior batting facilities of the place. They say the park is so set, and the background so arranged, that the batsmen have the best chance in the world. No other field in the country, they say, gives the batsmen such a show. This, very possibility, helps explain the good batting done in Detroit for twenty years. It is well known that the soil and background of Comiskey's park combine to make it the lightest batting spot in either league, and the fans can now understand why the Tigers can hit .266 and yet beat out the Sox, hitting .230 only on the final day.

IN CALIFORNIA.

Michigan Team May Play All-Stars New Year's Day.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—If plans that are now under way mature, Southern California football fans will be treated to one of the most toothsome gridiron dainties as a "New Year's gift." One of the leading features of the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena on New Year's day will be the importation of the University of Michigan football eleven west after their season closes, to play a bame New Year's day with a picked All-Southern California college team. The men will be picked from the Occidental, University of Southern California, St. Vincent's and Pomona. The advisability of admitting some of the Sherman Indian cracks to the team is being considered.

WILL FEEL OUT BASEBALL FANS

A Meeting for This Purpose Will be Called Soon.

Duluth fans are to be felt out.

At a meeting to be called some time this month Al Kuehnow, the well known manager of the Duluth team will ask them just what they want done in regard to Duluth baseball the coming year.

If they show that they are in earnest in regard to the forming of the new league to include St. Paul, Minneapolis, La Crosse, Eau Claire and Superior, plans will be made for a meeting of all the managers in St. Paul some time next month, at which time the situation will be thoroughly gone over, and definite plans laid.

There has been very little done toward the forming of the new league up until this time for the reason that the different managers wish to feel out the ball fans, and see whether or not they would support the new league.

In every other town they seem to be enthusiastically in favor of it, and should Duluth people show the required amount of interest the league, so it seems, will be a go.

CARPENTER HAS BEEN SUSPENDED

British Amateur Association Disqualifies Him for All Time.

New York, Oct. 17.—James E. Sullivan, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, yesterday received official notification of the permanent suspension of J. C. Carpenter of Cornell university by the Amateur Athletic Association of Great Britain. Carpenter was the member of the American Olympic team who finished first in the 400-meter race on July 23 last, but who was disqualified for alleged "boring," and it went to Halswelle, the English runner. The annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States will be held on Nov. 23 next, and the suspension of Carpenter by the British association will be taken up.

There is intense feeling in athletic circles here over the suspension of Carpenter, and it is said that the action of the British official may result in a severance of athletic relations with that nation.

Such severance would result from a refusal of the American athletic authorities to sustain the British body's action regarding Carpenter.

The suspension of Carpenter will have a far-reaching effect in international athletic meets, as the rules of the Amateur Athletic association provide that no English runner can compete against Carpenter or against any other athlete who takes part in a contest in which the suspended runner is entered.

GLEANS in the SPORTING FOG.

Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, hit off a little more than he could chew at Philadelphia when he met two opponents in the same ring. The plucky little fighter had been considered too clever for the ordinary 105-pounders around the Quaker city, and, in hopes of giving the patrons a run for their money, the promoters billed Johnny against two bantams.

Coulon met Eddie Doyle and Young McGovern. The former outpointed Coulon by a wide margin, while the other earned a draw after three rounds of slashing fighting.

Coulon seemed slow in punching, while he is by no means a hard mark to hit.

Eddie Doyle made a name for himself in the first section of the bout. Doyle weighed 105 ringside, while Coulon's weight was 104 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

At times Doyle had Coulon fought off his feet. The third was much the same, Doyle holding his lead by lightning boxing. While Coulon never was in danger of being finished, he was greatly outpointed in three rounds.

McGovern proved a different type of gloveman. He was of the same style as Coulon, who this time handed with better success. McGovern, however, fought back vigorously and fully held his own at all times.

Once, in the second round, McGovern sent in the blows so fast that Coulon ran around the ring to avoid them. Altogether the Philadelphia fighter gave Coulon one of the most interesting fights of his career.

Long live Covaleski! That's the champion Cubs' watchword. It was his prowess that helped them win the pennant by defeating the Giants three times in five days. In recognition of his work, which gave them a slice of the money in the world's series, the players are making a collection and will send him a financial reward.

Covaleski is a Pole and does not speak a great deal of English. He can understand most of what is said to him, but in the heat of battle the "coaching" of such men as McGraw makes no impression on his mind. Most of the "talk" that "Mack" hands out at such times is not of the kind that a man likes to hear, but it falls like water off a duck's back when addressed to Covaleski. He doesn't understand most of it, and doesn't care about the rest.

It seems quite certain that before another world's championship series rolls around the rules governing these games will be so changed that players coming from minor leagues after Sept. 1 will be eligible to play in the big series. The ban will be only upon players transferred by one major league club to another.

The circumstance which is responsible for this prospective change is that concerning Infielder Bush of the Detroit team. Bush was secured by the Tigers about three weeks ago, and during that time has been doing such consistently good work that he is credited even by the officials of the Detroit club with being responsible for the team winning the pennant.

"We wouldn't have finished in third place if we hadn't had Bush at short," frankly acknowledged one of the Detroit club officials.

Yet, according to the rules governing the world's series, Bush was ineligible to take part in the games, notwithstanding the fact that President Murphy of the Cubs expressed a willingness to waive the rules and allow Bush to patrol the beat which is generally conceded now belongs to him.

"The intent of that rule barring players from the world's series who had joined a team after Sept. 1," said President Herrmann, "was to prevent juggling with talent. For instance, had this rule not been in force, any club in either league might purchase several stars after some other club's chances for position were gone, and so cinch the big end of the world's series coin. But I do not believe that it was the desire of the rulemakers to bar minor league players under these circumstances, and I would not be surprised if the two leagues changed the rule accordingly for next year."

Now for that hocky rink.

Here we are where water freezes, where there is little else in the sporting line done during the long winter months, but skate and ski and curl. Ever since the old Union rink was turned into a livery stable, Duluth has been without that which even its smaller neighbors enjoy—a place where people can go and see a hockey team play.

The last census said "nearly ninety thousand" That's quite a number of people to be amused, and Duluth just at this time is short in the sporting line for the winter months.

Another reason why Duluth as almost everyone knows has many Canadians. Canada is the real home of hockey, and these residents get lonesome for an exhibition of their national game once in a while.

Many natural born Americans enjoy pay some far seeing man to provide pay some far seeing man ti provide Duluth enthusiasts with a rink.

FAST AND WEST ON THE GRIDIRON

Carlisle, Pennsylvania, Cornell to Play Western Teams in November.

(By Walter H. Eckersoll.)

Chicago, Oct. 17.—With the football season well under way and the strength of various teams throughout the country known to a certain degree, Western enthusiasts are wondering what chances the West ern teams have with the Easterners. It will be remembered that Cornell, Penna and the Carlisle Indians come West later in the season to meet Chicago, Michigan and Minnesota, respectively.

Chicago was defeated by the Indians, 18 to 4. After it had won the Western championship from Minnesota. Michigan was beaten, 6 to 0, after a hard battle, in which the Wolverines scored a touchdown which was not allowed by the officials, owing to a technicality in the rules. Minnesota was beaten by Carlisle, 12 to 10, in a stubbornly fought game. Owing to the closeness of this score, Chicago was picked as a winner over the redskins, but the Indians had an easier time with the Maroons than they did with the Gophers.

One thing is certain. This year Michigan cannot expect to win from Penna, by old football. Yost, though strongly opposed to the new game, must adapt himself to it, and the sooner the better.

Penna. has shown good early season form in its game, with the exception of the contest with Penn. State last Saturday, when the Quakers fumbled repeatedly within striking distance of their opponents goal. In Hollenbeck the Quakers have a kicker who will be a deciding factor, as he will outkick by several years any booter on the Wolverine team.

Gophers Improving.

Minnesota is improving with every game and may be in good enough shape at the end of the season to give the Indians a good game. The Gophers have not shown enough strength in their two games to feel confident of a victory. It must be admitted, however, that Carlisle is not as strong as last season. Several veterans are missing from the rankh, the most prominent being Mount Pleasant, the great quarterback, and Houser, the dashing fullback and place kicker. The former did not play in the Wesetrn games owing to an injury, but Houser was instrumental in deciding both contests.

Minnesota has lost Capron, the player who was an important factor in every contest. His drop kicking in games last year made Minnesota a strong contender for the Western championship, and his loss will be apparent in Gopher games. The Indians appear better at present, but Minnesota may improve enough by the end of the season to meet the redskins on an equal footing. Carlisle also will meet St. Louis university on Thanksgiving day. The Southern aggregation may take their scalp, as Cochems has gathered a team which is playing good football. This will make a hard trip for Carlisle, and it is improbable that they will be successful in both games.

On present form Chicago has the better chance of winning from its Eastern opponents. Cornell will meet a worthy opponent in Amherst the Saturday before, while Chicago has no game on that day. The Ithicans are strong this year, but it is doubtful if as good as last season, when they beat Princeton. This season Chicago has showed better form, and the Maroons should be in great shape when the game is played. Chicago defated Cornell in the last invasion of the Easterns in 1899, 17 to 6.

NEBRASKA SEEMS TO BE STRONG

Rooters Give Her an Even Chance With Minnesota.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—For the first time in several years, Minnesota rooters are conceding the Gophers only an even chance with the Nebraska team whom they play this afternoon on Northrop field. The Cornhuskers arrived yesterday and are in fine condition. Nebraska will outweigh Minnesota several pounds to the man and the Cornhuskers will have nine veterans in their line up while Minnesota will have only three of last year's men. As both teams have been spending considerable time in perfecting the forward pass, a spectacular game is looked for.

The teams will probably line up as follows:

Minnesota.	Position.	Nebraska.
Pettijohn	le	Johnson or Minor.
Young	lt	From
Ostrand	lg	Harte
Safford	c	Collins
Rosenwald	rg	Ewing
Farnham	rt	Chaloupka
Hubbard	re	Harvey
Atkinson	qb	Cooke
Johnson	lhb	Beltzer
McGovern	rhb	Birkner
Plankers	fb	Kroegere

TO THE ORIENT.

Fisher Announces Make-Up of His All Star Aggregation.

Mike Fisher, formerly owner of the Tacoma and Fresno clubs of the Pacific Coast league, has given out the official lineup of the team that he will pilot through the Orient this winter. The following named players are now billed to make the trip: Tyrus Cobb, outfielder, Detroit Americans; Bill Burns, pitcher, Washington; Pat Flaherty, pitcher, Pittsburg; Bill Sweeney, infielder, Boston Nationals; Jack Bliss, catcher, St. Louis Nationals; Jim Delehanty, infielder, Washington; Buck Freeman, infielder, Washington; Nick Williams, infielder, San Francisco; George Hildebrand, outfielder, San Francisco; Joe Nealon, infielder, Santa Cruz, Cal.; Roy McArdle, infielder, San Francisco. The "all stars" will leave San Francisco for Honolulu early in November, and after playing a series in the Hawaiian Islands, will visit the principal cities in China, Japan and the Prilippine Islands. The schedule calls for their arrival home some time in February.

SCHOOL ELEVENS ARE PLAYING

South and West Clash While Central Meets Mechanics Arts.

Minneapolis, Oct. 17.—With the West Side in a championship game at Nicollet park this afternoon and with Coach Webster's Central high players lined up against the Mechanics Arts team at the same time at Minnehaha park, high school football enthusiasts will have a chance to see two exciting and closely fought battles. Although West high has lost its star half, Bright, who was hurt in the game with East last Saturday, that team is slightly the favorite, due not only to the fact that the boys made a good showing in the game with the Cardinals, but to the fact that South has not yet made a showing this season. Before South and West meet there will be a preliminary game, called at 2 o'clock between the Second West high team and the Lakeshores. The big game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Central is really an unknown quantity and Webster will depend almost entirely on open play, as his eleven is the lightest the school has had in years. Mechanics has a strong bunch and the St. Paul team is confident of returning home as victors. However, Central's trick and fast backfield with Lyle at full, should prove a decided stonewall to the Saintly City players.

MAROONS IN GOOD SHAPE FOR GAME

Stagg's Team Picked as Easy Winners Against Illinois.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—With the maroons in the best of shape and the plays especially evolved for the Illinois game perfected, it is probable the midways will beat the down staters in the contest today. Not since 1901 has Illinois triumphed over the maroons. Since that time the orange and blue had some strong teams, but these never were able to win.

Reports from Urbana have it that if Illinois is successful in winning the majority of its games this year, the graduate system of coaching will be dropped and another game hit upon whereby better results will be obtained. This also is the consensus of opinion among the alumni, and if the reports are true, some gigantic strides must be taken by the coaches if they expect to win the goodly number of games.

The state team has shown nothing in its two games to warrant such confidence—in fact, the showing has been poor. It is hardly likely that a team can improve enough in a week to defeat an eleven that has played brilliant football in its contests.

BLAINE PLAYING WITH HAYWARD

Two Strong Wisconsin Teams Clash at Superior Driving Park.

In the third game of the season the Blaine high school football team is today stacking up against the strong team from Hayward, Wis.

The Blaine team, while thus far it has played with only the weaker teams of the state, has won all its games, and is now said to be in first-class shape for the harder games of the season.

At the game this afternoon the largest crowd of the season is cheering on the warriors from the Blaine school. Friday afternoon at the close of school, a big rally was held at which yells were practiced and the students promised to turn out en masse to give the team the proper kind of support on the occasion of the first hard game of the year.

Enthusiasm is running high at the Blaine school, as the team is showing up much better than was at first expected. During the next few weeks Blaine will play a number of stiff games.

TO WRITE INSURANCE.

Mathewson Will in This Way Keep His Arm in Practice.

New York, Oct. 17.—Christy Mathewson, the Giants' star pitcher, has been engaged as a special agent of a life insurance company. Matty expects to write about $200,000 worth of insurance during the season. "This is my first venture in the insurance business," said Matty, "but Im sure I can make good. Of course, I'll go back to baseball in the spring."

ED. WALSH IS A MARVEL

Chicago Flinger, Using "Spit" Ball, Makes Great Record.

Donovan, Working Less Frequently, Has a Better Average.

Around big Ed Walsh of the White Sox might be written several books on successful pitching. He has been called upon to work more frequently than any other man in the league. He participated in fifty-two games which were charged to him and in about twenty-five or thirty others which he finished when the pitcher who started was going to the bad. In addition to that he worked in about thirty more behind the grand stand lest the pitcher in charge go to the bad. It is doubtful if a pitcher in modern baseball has been called upon to deliver so much for his club in one season.

Walsh used the "spit" ball with greater success than any other pitcher. He gave one less base on balls than his number of games, which is remarkable even for a man who does not employ the wet deceiver. Of course, were the "spit" ball legislated out of baseball Walsh might become only an ordinary pitcher, but it is still permitted, and he should have full credit for using every means at his command.

Bill Donovan has the best winning percentage, but he worked only at select times when he was feeling just right. He was relieved of labor in the early spring and so received no setback from cold weather.

Adrian Joss of Cleveland is third on the list. He took twenty-four games out of thirty-six. Four times his club was blanked, but Walsh drew that hard luck six times. Berger, Dineen and Cy Young come next, with young Summers of Detroit tied with Young. Summers' performance was remarkable for a youngster. Chech, Rhoades and Falkenberg are the other Cleveland pitchers who stand well to the front. The figures on the season follow:

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE FIGHTERS

Johnny Frayne of San Francisco and Cyclone Johnny Thompson of Sycamore, Ill., will be the card that Charlie Lercarl will offer the fight fans of San Francisco for this month's attraction. Lercarl will stage the pair for a 20-round go on the night of Oct. 30 in that city.

Both fighters are well known to fight followers. Frayne's most notable victory here was his win over Fred Landers in the preliminary to the Tommy Sullivan-Abe Attell fiasco. After winning from Landers, Frayne went East, and while he fought only a few times, he made a creditable showing.

Thompson is a veteran at the game. He has fought more than 100 ring battles, and, while there are a few decisions against him, no one has ever knocked him out.

While this match is not of championship caliber, both Frayne and Thompson are good fighters and should put up a worthy exhibition.

Attell Makes a Joke.

Abe Attell, the greatest lemon gardener in the prize ring, and the man who holds a title that is somewhat clouded by two draws with Owen Moran, is continuing to talk of a fight with Battling Nelson. Attell's talk about a match with Nelson is taken by the fight fans as a huge joke. The regular fight fans are next to Attell's desire to get advertising at the hands of the gamest and most honest, if not absolutely the greatest, lightweight fighter that ever entered the prize ring.

If Attell is seeking the gore of some fighter, there is a boy in New York named Jem Driscoll, who seems willing, and eager, to hook up with the American champion.

Driscoll is a late arrival from London, and he brings with him a record that is very creditable. Albeit he is a bit heavier than Attell, it does not look reasonable that Abie should duck him on that score, as he has fought many a lightweight in his day, including one 15-round battle with Nelson and a 6-round setto with the same fighter. Driscoll lays claim to the featherweight championship of England by right of his victory over Joe Bowker.

Fast Fighters Scarce.

Attractive matches between high class fighters are becoming what Cockey O'Brien would term the rara avis in sporting circles. One can count over the fighters now before the public and available, and he could tell them all off on the fingers of one hand and be shy a digit.

In the heavyweight division there are really no high-class men now in America. If one were to search the claims of the heavyweights carefully Al Kaufman, the big California horse sheer, would top the list, but that defeat he suffered at the hands of Jack O'Brien still looms big and threatening when Al is spoken of as a heavyweight possibility. For all that, Kaufman is about the most prominent of the heavy ring men now in America, and he may yet have to be reckoned with in the making of champions. Since O'Brien beat Kaufman the big fellow has been coming along nicely and he is fighting at top speed now. His polishing off of Bradley a week ago, while no marvelous performance, is quite a feather in the Kaufman cap.

In the middleweight class the return engagement between Billy Papke and Stanley Ketchel, when Jack Gleason has carded for Thanksgiving day, looks very attractive. Of course Papke did things to Ketchel in their last meeting that were very unclubbike, and many of the fight fans think he will repeat.

After Papke stiffened Ketchel in their last meeting the Michigan mauler put forth the claim of lack of condition. Be that as it may, Papke gave Ketchel as pretty a dressing as any of Armour's butchers ever slipped a Texas steer, and when the Thunderbolt got through with Ketchel it took a corps of surgeons to patch Stanley up again so that his features would hang in unison.

"WILD BILL" DONOVAN,
The Famous Detroit American League Pitcher.

A match between the winner of this battle and Hugo Kelly should prove very attractive. Kelly has fought Papke twice and they were both close and hard fights. In these Papke-Kelly battles Kelly scored three knockdowns, while Papke failed to disturb the equipoise of the Italian.

Ketchel did for Kelly very speedily when that pair hooked up before Marisch's club, but the fans who saw that battle were very much taken with the Kelly style of milling, and many of them claim that Kelly's early upset at the hands of Ketchel was both untimely and accidental.

While the fight lasted it was as artistic a mill as has been seen in a twelvemonth. Kelly's work was stamped all over with class. He displayed a remarkable precision in landing his punches, and had he not grown careless in the second round and fallen afoul of Ketchel's terrible shift there might have been a different conclusion to that battle.

McFarland and Nelson.

Of all the matches that hang in the future the most attractive is a probable one between Packy Mcfarland of Chicago and the champion, Battling Nelson. McFarland seems to be the only legitimate rival in the field for the Nelson crown. There is no denying the cleancut style of this Irish lad. To the old fight fans at the ring he appears to be a pugilistic throwback to the days when fighters took all the points of the game into consideration and developed them. McFarland disposed of Britt so handily and in such an artistic manner that he immediately jumped into favor with the fightgoers, and since that fight McFarland has been talked of as the one best man to oppose Nelson. Whoever gets the Nelson-McFarland battle will land the biggest plum in the pugilistic orchard, and as Nelson is not thinking of fighting McFarland less than forty-five rounds it looks as though Jimmy Coffroth has a cinch on this attractive match.

WAS LOYAL TO HIS DEATH

Pittsburg Youth Lived Until Cubs Defeated the Tigers.

A mere youth, who was frightfully injured through an attempt to board a train that would take him to the world's series second game in Chicago, passed away in a Pittsburg hospital with his lips framed in praises for the champion Cubs.

All through the summer, the fortunes of the teams of both leagues were followed by none of their tens of thousands of admirers more attentatively and enthusiastically than by Frank Tureck, a 17-year-old boy of this city. He was loyal to the Pirates in their game struggle for the premiership of the National, but the moment the men of Chance sealed Pittsburg's doom in that Sunday game a week ago he went over heart and soul to their conquerors.

Thursday night, as soon as he learned that the Cubs and Tigers would play in Chicago on Sunday, he made quiet preparations to get to the Windy City. He stuffed his pockets with little packets of food, went down to the Pennsylvnia yards, and awaited his opportunity to catch a train. Along came a "freight" going fast. Tureck leaped for one of the drawhead platforms, slipped, and fell beneath the wheels.

Some men in the yards saw the mangled form whirled out alongside the track. They hurried him to the hospital, and there the doctors called into play the best their scientific training afforded in an effort to save his life. Yet they knew it was only a question of hours. He was semi-conscious Saturday morning, unconscious all Saturday afternoon and evening. Along toward Sunday morning he rallied and his first question was:

"'Doc,' what did the Cubs do to 'em?"

As soon as the startled physician could reply, he told Tureck about how the Chicagoans had slaughtered Eddie Summers in that bad half of the ninth.

"They'll do it again, today, 'Doc!'" cried Tureck. "Who pitches today?"

"Donovan for Detroit, Frank," said the doctor.

"Wild Bill's good, but that crazy crowd will massacre him. Now, you see if they don't.. And I'll stick here till they do it," gasped the lad.

Soon he relapsed into a comatose state, from which he did not recover until nightfall. Again, his first question—and it was to be his last—was:

"What was the score?"

"Chicago 6, Detroit 1," they told him.

"Oh, I guess there is some class to those Cubs," he murmured, raising his clenched hands an inch or two above the sheets.

As the word passed his lips, the glow died out of his eyes, and he was gone.

KICKING IS IMPORTANT

Walter Eckersall Says It is Whole Game This Year.

Gives Advice Regarding the Manipulatiou of the Ball.

By Walter H. Eckersall.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—The tremendous importance of kicking under the new rules in football has been again and again emphazied by contests in the last two years, and is likely to be exemplified again in the big games to come. In these kicking is likely to play an extremely important part and may readily decide many of the issues.

Kicking, in the true sense, includes the following and the handling of the ball quite as much as the act of driving it up and down the gridiorn. The ability of a kicker to get away tremendously long kicks may prove a detriment to a team rather than an advantage, by reason of lacking ends and tackles fast enough to follow the ball. Just as readily may the whole advantage of a good kicker be thrown away by the failure of the backs to catch returning punts, so that in estimating a team's kicking ability, it is as essential to consider the corollary play as well.

Chicago is perhaps best equipped of any of the Western teams in straight kicking strength.

Steffen has improved greatly in his punting, getting good distance coupled with accuracy, and seldom failing to get the ball away. He kicks a long spiral punt which carries exceptionally well, and when not hurried, gives the ends a fair amount of time to get down under it.

This makes an exceptionally effective combination, and with good work by the ends in following the ball, ought to worry any team Chicago plays. Added to this is the goal kicking ability of Stefen and Schommer.

The former is a reasonably sure drop kicker and has dropped some pretty goals, but the place kicking of Schommer, especially when near the goal, is a greater asset. Schommer has developed the art by constant practice, and while yet a little slow in getting his attempts away, will acquire speed with practice.

A great factor in helping the kickers is the inflation of the ball, a point frequently overlooked. Few kickers seem to realize they can get better distance and accuracy in their boots if the ball is not blown too hard. The oval should never be inflated to its capacity, as it does not permit of a rebound, and if not kicked just right will not travel through the air any distance. Before each game the punter should take the trouble to go to the gymnasium and have the ball inflated to his liking, always bearing in mind not to have it too hard. Another thing which aids a kicker is an elastic ankle brace, or a rubber bandage around his ankle, as the brace gives the instep a better surface and the ball receives better accuracy than otherwise.

The Western teams are not as well fortified as the Maroons in this department. Where they have a good kicker they have not the ends to cover the punts. Gardner of Illinois is a good punter, but his distance is shut down greatly through the inability of the ends to get down the field with the ball. Last year in the Chicago game his punts were run back half their original distance by Steffen, and the same thing is likely to occur this year.

THE GREAT KID McCOY COMES BACK

Defeats Jim Stewart Before a Representative Sporting Gathering.

New York, Oct. 17.—After an absence of four years from the ring, "Kid" McCoy re-appeared here Friday night at the National club and easily defeated Jim Stewart of Brooklyn in a six round bout.

Since the days before the repeal of the Horton law, no such representative gathering of sporting men has been seen at a boxing exhibition in this city.

Stewart seemed to be terrified from the outset of the bout and a hard left smash on the chin, which sent him to floor in the opening round, took all the steam out of him. McCoy weighed about 168 pounds fully forty pounds less than the Brooklyn man. While McCoy did not look anything like his former self, he showed wonderful ability in footwork and his sparring and feinting were as clever as ever.

Although the law does not permit of a decision being returned, there could be no doubt as to who the winner was.

SPALDINGS TO PLAY SUPERIOR

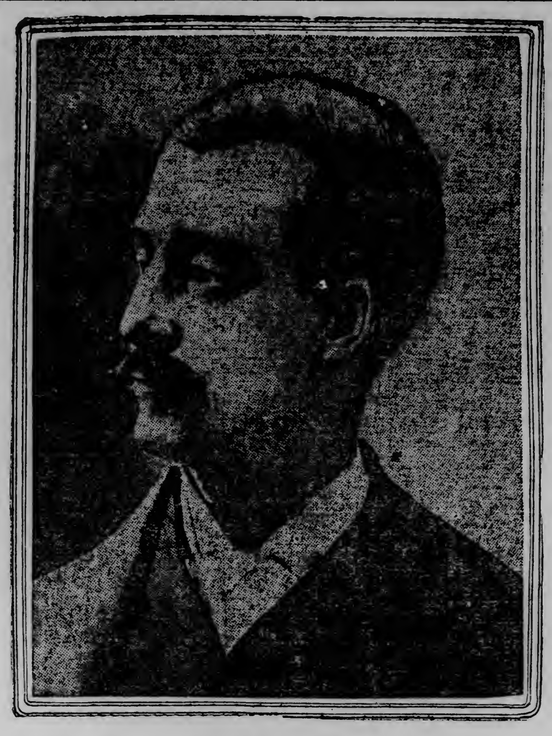

Columbias Will Try to Down Duluth Team Sunday.

The Spalding football team of Duluth will line up against the fast Columbia team of Superior Sunday afternoon at Athletic park.

The Spaldings have shown unusual ability thus far this year and the game tomorrow is expected to be a fast and furious affair, as the Superior team is said to have it on the locals in weight. They have been practicing with the Blaines for the past three weeks.

On Nov. 22, the Spaldings will reach out and try to gather in the semi-professional championship of the state when they will meet the Lyceins of Minneapolis in that city. This team last year cleaned every team in the state that was willing to try conclusions, and they are said to be just as fast this year.

THE RICHEST HORSE TRAINER

Jimmy Rowe Tells How He Was Dragged Into the Racing Game.

"Which was the best horse I ever trained?" Jimmy Rowe, the great trainer of the great Keene horses, repeated the question after me when I had finally inveigled him into telling me the story of his life, says the New York World. "That is a question that I cannot answer offhand.

"I have trained so many great race horses, and the period of time when they raced stretched over so many years, that it is impossible to properly decide which was the greatest.

"Race horses, like our presidents, have many traits and characteristics and qualities. Some men have always maintained that George Washington was our greatest president, while others have sung the praises of Abraham Lincoln. It was merely a matter of time and the opportunity, and they passed judgment accordingly. This applies to the race horses that I have trained. Some were great in one year and others at different periods. I cannot say which was my greatest horse, but I can tell you that I believe the title rests between Sysonby and Colin."

Lolling back in an easy chair in the sitting room of his little cottage, just outside of the stable which sheltered James R. Keene's race horse, Mr. Rowe, the man who has won with his charges in twenty-eight years nearly $3,000,000, puffed on a cigar as he told me some of the incidents in his life and those of his race horses. As he spoke Rowe gazed fondly out of the window to the stall where Colin was nibbling hay. His face was aglow with animation and his eyes sparkled with pride as he mentioned the name of the great son of Commando. But there was not that in his voice which showed any great degree of affection. For he is reticent by nature and not given to be demonstrative.

"Do you think that colts are superior to fillies?" I asked him.

"Well, I don't know," was the noncommittal answer. Colts will stand much more racing than fillies, but when you get one of the gentle sex that is sturdy, has bone and courage, they are hard to beat. Such fillies as Miss Woodford and La Tosca were much above the average colt and beat many horses that were called champions. I always had good luck with fillies. Perhaps that is why I am rather partial to them."

"What caused you to enter the turf world? Was your father a horse owner or trainer?"

"No. I was sort of dragged into it. My parents were Virginians and I was born in Fredericksburg. I was alive and old enough to realize the important victory that 'Stonewall' Jackson gave the South when he whipped Burnside in his historic battle at that town. I was not big enough at that time to shoulder a gun or I might have worn a gray uniform. Being a Virginian, my sympathies were naturally with the South. I remember at the time that I regretted my youth, for I wished to follow old 'Stonewall' in his campaigns.

"It was during the reconstruction period, and while I was keeping close watch over a newspaper and tobacco stand, that the golden opportunity to become a jockey came strutting past me in the form of Col. McDaniel. Next to being a soldier, I thought a jockey was the greatest thing in life for a boy. Accordingly, when the colonel, who had a big string of race horses, came up to my stand and asked me if I wanted to be a race rider. I thought he was nearly as great as 'Stonewall' Jackson, and the latter, you know, was my hero. My parents objected when I told them that I was going with the colonel, but when I said that I would go North with or without their consent, they reluctantly granted the desired permission.

"I did not weigh more than 73 pounds at that time. But in less than a year I was riding horses in a race. My first winning mount was on a mare named Maho, which Col. McDaniel had purchased from August Belmont, the father of the present chairman of the Jockey club. That was in 1870. A few years later I had the mount on Harry Bassett when that horse beat Longfellow. That was a great day of triumph for me, for Longfellow was considered the greatest race horse of his day.

"Although I was the leading jockey and had many leading mounts to my credit, I failed to make money as rapidly as the present-day riders. Old Dame Fortune used to glance at me, but that was all, and her shower of gold went into Col. McDaniel's lap. You see, the colonel was a thrifty old soul, and he had an all-prevailing belief that money in the hands of a youth meant a quick race on the straight road to perdition. Consequently, the colonel sought to save my soul by checking my hankering after the fleshpots of the East. Instead of giving me money after winning a race, the old gentleman would say:

"'Now, James, you have been an exceedingly good boy. You have ridden well and I intend to reward you handsomely. You have always wished to own a pair of nice red-top boots. Well, I will buy them for you. The ones with the brass tips look much nicer than those that are plain. Remember to keep the brass well polished and try not to stub your toes.'

"At other times he would purchase a suit of clothes for me. There was a bit of Scotch blood in the colonel, and it is not surprising that he was inclined to be thrifty. The clothes were not always made of the best fabric, and the amount of the bill was never more than $7 or $8.

"After several years of this kind of remuneration for my services I had a quarrel with the colonel and quit his employ. My fame as a rider caused P. T. Barnum, who was about to inaugurate some hippodrome races at the old Gilmore's Garden, to engage me as a jockey. I rode in the arena races, and when we went on the road I mixed my profession by acting as an acrobat. With me at the time was Charley Fox, who recently owned the mare Economy, now a jumper.

"The circus was a good place for a young man to learn to be self-reliant and to understand that he had his own potato patch to hoe if he wished to make a success in life. It was a grand place for experience, and I learned many things there that have been useful to me in the latter days of my life, but I failed to accumulate any large amount of money and soon returned to the race track.

"It was at this period of my life that I entered upon my career as a trainer. The following summer I blossomed out in that vocation by handling Cadi, a horse that belonged to Dick Shea, a well-known betting man. I won several races with that horse, and then obtained an engagement with T. B. and W. R. Davis of Virginia.

"After a short engagement with the Davis brothers I signed a contract to train for Phill pJ. and M. F. Dwyer. The 'butcher boys,' as they were known in Brooklyn, were just gathering together a string of horses. With such horses as Rhadamathus, Warfield, Luke Blackburn, Hindoo and Miss Woodford I won many of the big stakes. Success attended my efforts for many years, and while I was with the Dwyers the red and blue racing colors became noted.

"In 1886 the late August Belmont hired me as his trainer. While in his employ I won many big turf classics with Potomac, La Tosca, Raceland and Prince Royal.

"After the death of Mr. Belmont I was engaged to act as a starter on the Metropolitan race tracks. These were the days before the barrier was in use. My friends and the turf reporters said that my work was satisfactory. I never heard any great complaints against it, and I managed to make equitable starts without the aid of a barrier or starting device of any kind.

"Just why that new fandangled thing is used to start horses I cannot understand. If a man cannot line horses up and send them away on even terms without the aid of a barrier he is not a good man to intrust with a field of race horses and cannot be called a starter. If I had my way all the starting barriers would be burned up or sunk in the sea. You cannot start race horses with a machine.

"After I had a short fling as a starter I acted as a judge of racing. It was during the days when the old Bay District track was in existence in California. After a short session of this kind I went back to training horses. I came East and was signed by Col. Thompson to look after his horses. He died shortly after I went into his employ, but his two sons, W. P. and L. S. Thompson, took up the stable and I looked after their interests. They had such good horses as the One I Love, Requittal and Preston, and I won the Futurity for them later with L'Alouette. The latter was a very poor filly and was probably the worst horse that ever won a Futurity.

"Soon after this James R. Keene was in quest of a trainer and he selected me. This was in 1899, and I have been in his employ ever since. During this last part of my career I have trained some of the greatest horses that were ever foaled in the United States. They all saw the light of day for the first time at the California Stud farm, with the exception of Chacornao, which I sold to Mr. Keene for $25,000. The horse proved to be a good bargain, for he later won the rich Futurity for Mr. Keene."

ICE BOATING TO FURNISH SPORT

Yacht Club Plans Races for Coming Winter Months.

Winter sports are the talk of the members of the Duluth Yacht club just now, and if present plans are carried out, racing on the bay will furnish as much amusement during the frosty months as the boat races do during the summer.

Ice boating will be taken up by the members this year, and some fast races will be pulled off. A number of the members have already begun work on new boats, while many are busy on the old ones.

Last year a number of races were run off, but the races were only run when there happend to be a number of boats on the ice. This year the races will be run the same as the boat races, and a number of cups will be donated to promote rivalry among the members.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Bryan Republican Club Formed and Speakers Arranged for.

Cross Country Club Organized and Runs Made Every Afternoon.

Minneapolis, Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bryan Republican club is the latest university organization. Thursday night they held a mass meeting in Wilson's hall to effect a permanent organization. Officers were elected and several speakers for this fall were announced. Frank B. Larrabee of Minneapolis will give a lecture, and Howard Morris, a Bryan Republican from Ohio, will give a speech.

Tuesday afternoon, the Cross Country club was organized for practice for spring track work. Considerable interest has been manifested this fall in this line, and as freshmen are eligible, about fifty have joined the club.

Jack Bush of the track team is leader of the runs which are made every afternoon from the armory to the Franklin avenue bridge.

The first rounds have been played off in the girls' tennis tournament, and a few of the seconds. Much enthusiasm reigns among the co-eds in this sport, a large number having joined the tennis club this fall, or entered the tournament. The handsome prizes offered are an unusual incentive. A handsome sweater has been offered by one book store, while the other has offered a $5 tennis racket. J. B. Hudson has presented a handsome silver loving cup to be contested for, for two years.

The question of Hamline medics voting with the Minnesota medics was brought to a crisis at the class meeting of Senior "U" medics Monday afternoon, when the Hamline men remained in body. After many heated discussions and compromises, the Minnesota men reconsidered the question, which was decided against Hamline last week. At the final ballot it was decided to give the Hamline men a voice in the election, with the understanding that no class faction should use their added strength to control class affairs. The united classes then proceeded to elect the officers for the coming year.

Dramatic club trials have been the excitement of the week. Over 100 have been trying to fill the twenty-five vacant places, so the trials were divided into sections for every afternoon this week after Monday.

The old joke about girls telling all they know has been disproved. A society has been in existence for seven years in the medical department at Minnesota and not a word had been heard about it until this fall.

A chapter of Alpha Epsilon Iota was established in the medical school in 1901 and ever since then an active chapter has been maintained. Owing to the small number of girls studying medicine, the chapter has never been large, and at present there are only five active members. However, there is a large alumnae chapter in the city.

Sixty girls are going to the Y. W. C. A. state convention at Northfield next Friday. Carlton college has charge of the convention this year and wide interest has been aroused. The list from Minnesota has been closed, for accommodations are limited to that number for the university. Ninety other delegates are looked for from the other Minnesota colleges.

Plans for two big affairs are being laid by the Women's League council. A Thanksgiving dinner will be given for all out-of-town girls and entertainment provided for the evening. This custom was instituted last year and was a great success.

On Oct. 31, the Women's League will dance in Shevlin hall. This is the first of the dances for league girls alone.

A good many very valuable charts have been secured by the sociology department for use in the social pathology course. These charts are all hand-made and are copies of the originals in the social museum in Harvard. Probably the most unique and interesting chart is the one comparing the growth of divorce with the price of wheat.

Six men were chosen Thursday at the final try-outs to fill vacancies in the university crack squad. The squad will try to maintain the same high standard which was reached last year, when they made a hit at the Orpheum, the Military Ball and the state fair. Plans are under way whereby the squad will make an extended trip this summer through the different amusement parks of the country. Competition for places was very keen and careful consideration was needed in making the selections.

AT THE LYCEUM

ROSE MELVILLE IN "SIS HOPKINS" ON MONDAY AND TUESDAY. MISS MAUDE LEONE IN "JANICE MEREDITH" FOR REMAINDER OF WEEK.

THERE is much sweet sentiment in "Sis Hopkins," that delightful rural comedy drama, which comes to the Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday for an engagement, with Miss Rose Melville, the originator of the quaint country girl, playing the title role.

The sentiment is of the kind which appeals to one's finer feelings, and this with Miss Melville's acting and the clean comedy of the play, has made it the marvelous success which it is. This is the tenth season that "Sis Hopkins" has been presented and everywhere Miss Melville is greeted with crowded houses. The story of the play is not complicated by any social problems. It is a plain, unvarnished tale of the simple life of the people of Posey county, Indiana, where "Sis" was born and brought up. In the action of the piece, there comes into the life of this girl, an unscrupulous man, who trading on her affections, endeavors to defraud her of a pitifully small bit of meadow land. Discovering his treachery "Sis," whose philosophy brightens the play, leaves her home to go out into the world to learn at first hand what it really is like. Clad in the homespun of the farm she departs; and when she returns it is as an accomplished, beautifully gowned young woman of the world, who however has lost none of her gentility or purity of character. The play abounds in situations which are thrilling in their dramatic intensity; it brims with delectable comedy and quaint philosophy, and Miss Melville's art in the portrayal of the character of "Sis" gives to the drama the finish that is needed. Miss Melville's manager, J. R. Stirling, has given the play a scenic production this season, which is artistic.

THE MACK-LEONES.

"Janice Merideth" Will be Presented for Four Nights.

Of all the historical episodes that have developed dramatic possibilities, no one has ever given quite the atmosphere for love, poetry, romance and adventure that the Colonial days have.

It may be a matter of pride; it may be the picturesque style of dressing; it may be one of a thousand reasons, but the fact remains that nearly all the dramas dealing with Washington, Lee, Howe and Cornwallis have all been successful, and the greatest of all of these is "Janice Meredith." Mary Mannering used it for three seasons and even after ten years of stock productions, it still commands higher royalty than nine-tenths of the successes written since.

The Mack-Leones, here for a brief visit before they make their trip to the coast, have selected the play for a four-night production, commencing Wednesday, Oct. 21.

At no time during her two years in this part of the country has Miss Leone ever done better work than in "Janice Meredith." The story is one of men who made that epoch in history one that changed the map of the world, and with Gen. Washington always in the foreground and his memorable trip through the river of floating ice, used as the chief incident in the play, it makes dramatic material for the boy in the gallery and his grandfather down stairs. Those who see this play will see one of the best productions the Mack-Leones have ever given. Besides Miss Leone's "Janice," Mr. Mack will be seen as Clos the Bondman, afterwards Maj. Brenton; Mr. Quigley as Squire Hennion; Mr. Farnum as the country lout, "Philemon"; Mr. Hicks as Lord Clowes; Mr. Joiner as Meredith, and the Misses Cleveland and Small in congenial roles. The play will only be given four nights, and to accommodate the large matinee audiences, two matinees will be given, on Thursday and Saturday.

THE WESTERN TOUR.

Route Arranged for Mack-Leone Company in "On Parole."

The following route has been arranged for the Western tour of the Mack-Leone company in "On Parole:" Miles City, Nov. 2; Billings, Nov. 3; Livingston, Nov. 4; Bozeman, Nov. 5; Helena, Nov. 6; Great Falls, Nov. 7; Butte, Nov. 8 and 9; Anaconda, Nov. 10; Missoula, Nov. 11; Wallace, Nov. 12; Spokane, Nov. 13 and 14; North Yakima, Nov. 16; Tacoma, Nov. 17 and 18; Victoria, Nov. 19; New Westminster, Nov. 20; Vancouver, Nov. 21; Bellingham, Nov. 23; Everett, Nov. 24; Olympia, Nov. 25; Aberdeen, Nov. 26; Hoquiam, Nov. 27; South Bend, Nov. 28; Portland, Nov. 29 and 30; Pendleton, Dec. 1; Weiser, Dec. 2; Boise City, Dec. 3; Logan, Dec. 4; Ogden, Dec. 5; Salt Lake City, Dec. 6, Colonial theater (new) stock.

Lyceum Notes.

Few plays ever attain the record-breaking popularity that has marked the two years' run of "The Great Divide" in New York. This play was produced by Henry Miller two years ago at the Princess and transferred to the historic Daly theater last season, playing more than 600 performances to the largest receipts in the history of either house. It will come to the Lyceum in the near future.

Cohan & Harris will produce George M. Cohan's latest rural musical comedy "Fifty Miles from Boston," at the Lyceum next month, with what is said to be the highest salaried company ever organized for musical comedy. The play has been presented in the leading theaters and is said to have played to capacity the entire past season.

With Phoebe Davies, Ulric B. Collins, Ella Hugh Wood, Charles Burke, Robert S. Taylor, John E. Brennan, James T. Galloway, Josephine Bacon, and the other members of the New York cast, "Way Down East," that beautiful play of life in old New Hampshire will be the attraction at the Lyceum theater for the week beginning Monday, Dec. 14. More than usual interest attaches to this engagement, as the company and production are so large that less than a weeks engagement in a city is unprofitable, consequently they are booked here for that length of time. The company, with two carloads of scenery and a carload of cows, horses, sheep, etc., comes here direct from a week's engagement each in the Metropolitan at St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The attraction booked at the Lyceum theater for Nov. 28 is "Quincy Adams Sawyer," the great New England drama in its sixth season of uninterupted success.

"Every woman will love this play! She will love every character in it, even to the men who are not as good as some of the others, and she will love every word they speak. And, why? Because the men in the play talk like husbands, brothers, fathers, sons and sweethearts of real life; because the women in the play are like the women we like to have round us at home; because what they all say, the men and women of 'The Man of the Hour,' is the speech of human beings, and sounds like what we hear every day at home and on the street. In short, 'The Man of the Hour' is bound to succeed wherever it is acted in the United States, because it shows American men and women of all clases as they really are."

The foregoing was written by Amy Leslie, the famous dramatic critic of the Chicago Daily News, in her paper on Monday, May 13, 1907, the day following the Chicago production of "The Man of the Hour."

And this is the play, "The Man of the Hour," by George Broadhurst, which is to be acted here for four nights by William A. Brady and Joseph Grismer's special compnay.

AT THE BIJOU

A JAY CIRCUS WILL BE THE BIG FEATURE OF NEXT WEEK'S VAUDEVILLE BILL AND TWENTY PEOPLE IN THE CAST. :-: :-: :-:

THE BIJOU will have a complete circus on the boards next week.

The big feature will be The Dan Sherman and Mabel De Forest company, which presents a "Jay Circus," which is the biggest comedy sensation that has appeared in vaudeville in several years.

In producing a "Jay Circus" a complete set of special scenery is used. It is produced in two scenes. The first shows the exterior of the Lemon Bros. circus. The second scene shows the interior of the white tops with all the properties and paraphernalia used in the country town circus, showing the daring gymnasts, comical clowns, funny comedians, razorbacks, grafters, shortchange artists, etc., and the general adjuncts of the small circus. During the act Sherman and Morrisey will perform their sensational trapese act, the same as when they were the recognized aerialists of the world. About twenty people are in the production of a "Jay Circus."

Another act that comes direct from the New York Hippodrome, where it has had a run of six months as one of the gymnastic features, is Miss Alice De Garmo, who is assisted by N. J. Keough in one of the most sensational and daring aerial gymnastic novelties ever presented at the Bijou.

An excellent singing and dancing act will be offered by Payne and Lee, who sing several good character songs and do some expert dancing.

The petite comedienne, Amelia Mazette, will introduce a clever specialty, consisting of songs and acrobatic dances, which are said to be exceptionally good. As an extra feature attraction, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young will present an elaborate transformation scenic production entitled, "Early Days of East and West." Both Mr. and Mrs. Young are exceptionally clever dramatic actors. The following is a recent notice from the Minneapolis Journal: "In an elaborately staged and well-acted sketch Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young and their company, playing at the Unique this week, revive the style of drama and music in vogue in the ante-bellum days. Both are well adapted to this style of work, being accomplished musicians and character impersonators. The comedy element, as well as the musical feature, is ably handled. The opening act is, written along the lines of the rural dramas that had a run a decade ago, and the last act is the original 'Arkansaw Traveler,' staged somewhat better than it was in the days of wagon shows."

Isadore Silver will sing one of the latest waltz song successes entitled, "Garden of Dreams," which is one of the prettiest songs ever illustrated.

The moving pictures for the week will be "The Miller and His Son," and the roaring comedy film, entitled, "Jim Is Fond of Garlic."

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

GATTI-CASAZZA BACK FROM EUROPE WITH NEWS FOR METROPOLITAN OPERAGOERS—NO SEX PROBLEM IN BERTHA KALICH'S LATEST PLAY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Giulio Gatti-Casazza of the directorship of the Metropolitan Opera House arrived last Sunday on La Touraine. Through the summer months he has been doing for the Italian wing of the season at the Metropolitan the same that Andrea Dippel has done for the German. Since he left here in May Mr. Gatti-Casazza has divided his time between Milan and Paris.

"The first novelty in the Italian repertoire," the director said yesterday, "will be given in the fourth week of the season. This is Puccini's maiden opera, 'Le Villi,' which will be sung by Mme. Alda and MM. Bonci and Campanari. Signor Toscanini, who is to have charge of all the Italian operas, will conduct. As the opera is short, it will be given in conjunction with 'I Pagliacci' or 'Cavalleria Rusticana.' For the Mascagni work I have prepared an entirely new production, with scenery painted by the artists of La Scala. In this performance Mme. Destinn will sing Santuzza, while Signor Caruso is to appear for the first time here as Turiddu. 'Aida' is another opera which has an entire outfit of new scenery, painted by the artists of La Scala."

Signor Toscanini, the new conductor, arrived here on Wednesday. He has been associated for the last ten years with Mr. Gatti-Casazza in the control of La Scala.

"Signor Toscanini is to conduct some of the German operas as well as the Italian repertoire," said Mr. Gatti-Casazza, "and will make his debut as a Wagnerian conductor with 'Gotterdammerung,' which he conducted in La Scala last winter, when the opera was heard for the first time in Milan. It will be sung in German, of course, by Mmes. Fremstad and Homer and MM. Schmedes and Feinhals. Then he will conduct "Tristan und Isolde,' for which special scenery has been prepared at La Scala. 'Habaners,' in which Mme. Gay is to have the principal role, also will be conducted by him. He is a great admirer of the modern French school and showed this last winter, when at La Scala he conducted both 'Pelleas et Mellsande' and 'Louise' with great success and without a score."

The director said he had spent most of the summer in listening to singers, but had heard no voices that seemed to him remarkable except the young artists he had engaged for the Metropolitan. These are two tenors, Rinaldo Grassi and Arlodante Quarti, both of whom are still in the 20's. Concretta Paterna, the new buffo, is just as young. The new baritone is Pasquale Amato, and Jean Note is the bass. Mr. Gatti-Casazza believes that all of these will meet with success here.

"While in Paris," he said, "I secured the rights to Dukas' opera 'Ariane et Barbe Belue,' which has been produced with success in so many European cities. Then I have a short opera by Maurice Ravel, called 'L'Heure Espagnole,' which is to be sung for the first time this season at the Opera Comique. Debussy will give to the Metropolitan his next two operas, one based on Edgar Allan Poe's "The Fall of the House of Usher,' and the other made from the same author, 'The Devil in the Belfry.' The first opera is in two acts and the second in one, and the composer insists that both be performed on the same night. He assures me that they are wholly different in style from 'Pelleas et Mellsande.' He has also promised us his next work, 'La Legende de Tristan,' which he hopes to have completed by next year.

"Then I have two other new French operas for next season, both by Xavier Leroux. One is 'La Reine Fiamette' and the other 'Le Chemineau,' which has now been sung or announced in almost every important opera house in Europe. These works will not be heard until next season."

The orchestra and the two choruses have started to work on "Tiefland." Next week the ballet will sail from Italy. Mme. Torriani and Lodovico Saracco from Naples are to be the premieres and ballet master. Accompanying the director on La Touraine were Giulio Setti, the new Italian chorus master, formerly at La Scala, and Francesco Romeli, one of the assistant conductors. Signor Setti was formerly a conductor and has been at Buenos Ayros all summer with Signor Toscanini. Thirteen of the Italian choristers also were on La Touraine.

Bertha Kalich will appear shortly in a new play which Harrison Grey Fiske has had written especially for her by Mme. Fred. de Gresac.

Although the play is neither gloomy nor tragic, it contains a serious interest which affords Mme. Kalich splendid opportunities to display her incomparable emotional powers. The comedy interest of the new piece, however, is paramount throughout—brisk, sparkling dialogue adding effect to situations that are unusually amusing. The scenes are all laid in Paris or Switzerland, and especial endeavors have been made to reproduce faithfully the gay, spontaneous life of bohemian and artistic circles, with a natural abundance of comedy of character.

Mme. Kalich will create the role of a gifted, fascinating and impulsive woman, who is swayed by the conflicting claims of love and an artistic career. In refreshing contrast to most modern French plays there is no discussion in the piece of the sex question or problem of morals.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi," in which Thomas A. Wise and Douglas Fairbanks are appearing at the Bijou theater, is a story of political graft. When a Mississippi politician who is honest arrives in Washington he runs against dishonest politicians and lobbyists, who at first sight consider him an easy mark. They involve him in a land deal, but he does not like the bill that is before the senate and holds up the "ring" in spite of the fact that it will probably ruin his public career. This part is capitally acted by Mr. Wise, who is ably assisted by Douglas Fairbanks in the role of a smart and knowing newspaper correspondent. The play is a hit and should make money for Managers Bray and Grismer.

Rosabel Morrison is in town rehearsing "Faust" preparatory to the starting of her tour next month. It will not be her first appearance as Marguerite, for as a very young girl she created a furore in the role. Her impersonation had much to do with the success in Goethe's famous tragedy of the late Lewis Morrison. For this revival Manager W. E. Gorman promises a production that will not only be magnificent, but novel. The Brocken scene and the church scene will be extremely elaborate. In the latter will be shown the interior of the church with the pews, pulpit and organ aloft, with the minister preaching his sermon, the congregation at prayer and a choir of picked voices singing sacred songs. This surely will be realism of an unusual order.

Mrs. Fiske started rehearsals of her new play in New York last week. It is called "Salvation Nell," and was written by Edward Sheldon, a young Harvard man, who has never attempted anything for the stage before. A great deal is expected of this play, for it is a marked departure from the line of dramas in which this distinguished player has been seen. The story deals with life in a tenement district saloon in New York city. Mrs. Fiske plays the part of the scrubwoman, ignorant and surrounded by vice in its worst form. Into her life comes the wisdom of self-abnegation and the joy of spiritual love. Though the surroundings are sordid, the atmosphere of the play lays less stress upon the misery and is relieved by the treatment which shows the joys and the quaint humor of the people. The staging will be picturesque in detail and a big company will assist Mrs. Fiske to establish the story.

Though Clyde Fitch has been quoted as threatening to write the libretto of a musical comedy, and "Fluffy Ruffles" was said to be from his pen, he has not yet committed the book of a piece with music. There is another well-defined rumor that he will soon break into the class of the real big royalty collectors. He is now reported to be at work upon the story of a piece that Sam Bernard will play, and which is to be known to fame as "The Stenographer." The management of Bernard professes ignorance as to the music. But they insist that Fitch is really writing the book.

The Friars' dinner for the near victorious Giants is off. In fact, to quote the wronged wench in George M. Cohan's minstrel after-piece, the word sent to the Giants by the Friars was that "our affair is terminated." This was due to the fact that the dinner was announced before the league race was determined, and the Friars, being a trifle premature, withdrew the offer before it could affect the possible chances of their baseball pets. Now that the final game has been adverse to the Giants, their hosts will have to cast about for a more cheerful guest, or body of guests.

Collins and Harlan, who have long been heard without being seen, have hit upon a novel specialty for vaudeville. The twain have long been foremost workers in making phonograph records. They are now going into vaudeville with a repertoire of new songs, and will give these a novel touch by intredneing them in exactly the way they would go about it to make them permanent in the phonograph machines. The idea is unique, and it ought to be a big go.

Miss Ethel Barrymore will go into New York with her present success, "Lady Frederick," earlier than was contemplated in the Frohman office. This was due to the shift in attractions at the Hudson theater. Miss Barrymore will take up the Edeson run there at the end of next week, and Robert Edeson will lay aside his play, "The Offender," and return to "The Call of the North," which he will play on the road.

Charles Wyndham presented in London last week a new new play by Roy Harriman called "Bellamy the Magnificent." It was not overly praised by the critics, and is looked upon as an indifferent success. Robert Lorraine and Paul Arthur, former American favorites, were in the cast supporting Sir Charles.

The long-drawn-out litigation as to the prior interest in "The Belle of New York" was disposed of in the New York court of appeals last week, when the lower court was upheld. This means that the right of George W. Lederer in that once famous musical comedy has been thrown aside, and that for all usage the property is vested in its authors, Charles C. S. McClellan and Gustave Kerker. The case has been disputed in the courts since 1904, following the surrender of the property by the late Sam S. Shubert, who took it over from Lederer and made his first theatrical production as the manager of the road tour in that piece. Kerker and McClellan claimed that Lederer owed them back royalties, and that the piece reverted to them for non-payment under the original contract. The supreme court so ruled, and the court of appeals has affirmed the decision.

It is reported that American capitalists will lend their aid in the erection of a new opera house in Paris. It is to be known as the Champs Elysees, and will be managed by the same interests that book the American tours of so many foreign artists. The Rothschilds of Berlin and the Sierras of Paris are promoting their end of the venture, while their American associates will be J. P. Morgan, William K. Vanderbilt, James Hazen Hyde and James Stillman.

The new play, "Via Wireless," which Frederick Thompson is now rehearsing, is to be presented at the Liberty theater in New York in November, when Lillian Russell ends her run there in "Wildfire." Paul Armstrong is to make the dramatic version, with the assistance of Winchell Smith and Messrs. Balmer and Edwards. The Balmer part of the story was written for a magazine some time ago. Edwards is a stage electrician, who saw possibilities in it, and arranged it for the stage, in one-act form. Thompson bought it and will incorporate the ideas of this into the enlarged story by Messrs. Armstrong and Smith. Quite a mixup of authors, but it is hoped the play will be a sure-fire hit, despite the medley of talent in its early bringing forth.

De Wolf Hopper is downcast and sad because his favorites, the Giants, did not reach. The big comedian is the best-natured of rooters and a game looser, but he was surely disappointed in that final game. These sad influences gave rise to stories that he was badly injured in a stage accident at Syracuse early in the week and would be unable to appear. Hopper was hurt, but not so badly that he will lose any time from his tour in "What Happened Then." His pain has nothing to do with what happened then; it is traceable to what happened at the Polo grounds, and there is no getting over that wound until next season rolls around.

Otis Harlan likes Chicago because they like him as a comedian. The rotund fun-dispenser got busy last week and moved his family from their home on the Jersey coast to the Windy City that lies adjacent to the lake and the Annex. Harlan is playing at the Whitney Opera house in the musical hit, "A Broken Idol." Not that he is fitting the title role, but because they like him in Chicago he has decided to become one of them. Along with him are former lights of the gay Rialto like George Lederer and Joe Dillion and Harry Askin. Quite a quartet, now that the Harlan boy has cut in to sing his share.

The startling announcement was made last week that when James T. Powers next appears on Broadway he will be in Havana. At first blush it might be asked how James is going to be in Broadway and flirting with the senoritas on the escolta at one and the same time. But "Havana" exists in this instance only in song and story, and is a musical comedy now running in London, and when it comes over here Powers will be the funny man of the cast.

Klaw and Erlanger have decided to postpone the New York production of "Little Nemo" until Oct. 20. The big spectacle is now running in Philadelphia, where it has made a great hit. It will be moved to Gotham the last of the week and ample time taken to get it in tiptop shape at the New Amsterdam theater for the metropolitan premier. The piece will dislodge "The Merry Widow," which has held sway in that theater for the greater part of last season and all of the present one up to date.

Messrs. Cohan and Harris are reported to have served notice upon David Belasco that they will resist his right to produce Eugene Walter's latest play, "The Easiest Way." It is a revival of the old claim of Harris and Cohan that they have a contract giving them the exclusive call on all of Walter's writings for the American stage for the next four years. The matters will likely be taken up to the courts to dispose of before the play is eventually produced.

Mabel Taliferro's condition turns out to be not so serious as was at first supposed. Her collapse in Chicago was due to a mild attack of appendicitis. The physicians have decided that a short rest will be effectual, and they have even held that an operation in her case is not necessary. She will rest for a fortnight and then resume her role in "Polly of the Circus," which during the interim is being played by her younger sister, Edith Taliferro.

Dorothy Russell is planning to resume her work in vaudeville in a singing and piano monologue. In her piano playing she will introduce her own composition, "The Wildfire March," written by her and dedicated to her mother in honor of her big dramatic success of the same name.

John Blackwood has been so taken with the dramatic possibilities of Goodman's play "The Test," tried out in Los Angeles last week by his company, that he has made several offers to Al H. Woods to take an interest in the production of that play for Blanche Walsh's use later in the season.

Dave Ferguson, a vaudeville actor, is starting an agitation that is somewhat old but timely just now. It has to do with an effort to have congress make some special law whereby actors traveling on the road can vote in presidential elections. Ferguson says there are about 20,000 actors on tour annually, and that 75 per cent of these are property owners. By the nature of their business they are practically disfranchised, and he is trying to get a solution of the problem. It has been undertaken before, but with no success.

The newest musical comedy in London is "The Hon'ble Phil," which was produced at the Hicks theater there last week. Cable dispatches bring favorable reports of the piece. G. P. Huntley is the comedian and our own Julia Sanderson is the bright particular feminine star of the cast.

Though Belasco and Fiske have contracts for a few years to come whereby the play houses in control of the Shuberts, it developed last week that Belasco will not play the Shubert house in Brooklyn, but has booked his attractions in the New Academy of Music there. This is explained on the ground that Belasco is anxious to get a hearing in Brooklyn and made his contracts at a time when the Shuberts did not have a house in that city. It is denied by both parties that there has been any friction about the new deal.

Joseph O'Mara has sailed for this country accompanied by Joseph Brooks, and will at once start rehearsals for the tour in "Peggy Machree" under the management of Brooks and Dingwall. The coming of the great singer of Irish ballads is already being the subject of great interest and special receptions are being prepared for Mr. O'Mara, not only because of his welcome to America, but to show his former fellow countrymen their recognition of his services in behalf of the old Irish songs and melodies in which he has aroused an awakening interest in London even.

Julie Hearne, the younger daughtter of the late James A. Hearne, made her debut as a dramatist in St. Louis last week, where she presented in a vaudeville theater her one-act play, "A Mountain Cinderella." It is a story of the Tennessee mountain country and is said to show the same quaint touches that her father often got into his plays. George D. Parker collaborated with Miss Hearne in the revision of the piece, and it is voted quite a hit.

Harry Bulger has taken a stellar part in the big musical comedy, "Alberia," and is to be featured strongly in the refreshed edition of that piece. Owing to illness in the East the run of the show in New York has been abandoned until after election, when it goes on the road in excellent shape to win out in great style. The piece was handicapped upon its Eastern opening by several prominent people in the East taking sick just when they were about to open.

The death of Bronson Howard created a vacancy in the office of President of the American Dramatists' club, which was filled last week by the election of Augustus Thomas to that place. J. I. C. Clarke, who deserted play writing to become the publicity man of the Standard Oil company, was chosen vice president, and Charles Klein named as his second.

Mr. Thomas has not taken active charge, as he is making a tour of the country delivering political speeches for William J. Bryan in the presidential race. Thomas has created a furore by his telling speeches and laymen have discovered what has long been known in theatrical circles that he is, if anything, a better speech maker than he is a dramatist, and that is saying a good deal.

William Jerome and Jean Schwartz, the authors who are responsible for "Bedella," "Mr. Dooley" and a score of similar song hits, as well as the lyrics for many musical comedies, have decided to give vaudeville a trial and for one week next month they will appear at Hammerstein's house in New York in a singing and musical act.

Israel Zangwill's new play, "The Melting Pot," which was produced in Washington last week, with Walker Whiteside and Chrystal Herne in the leading characters, appears to have made a deep impression. Its theme is an argument in favor of intermarriage between Jew and Gentile, and in this instance Zangwill brings together the children of widely separated families. The significance of the title lies in the locale of the play, America being the common ground upon which the lovers meet, and the broader opportunity of life in this country is the pot in which prejudice is reduced to a nonentity.

Whiteside impersonates a Russian Jew who has fled to America to escape the horrors of the Kishenev massacre, in which his family was wiped out of existence. He meets in the lower East side of New York Vera Ravendal, a revolutionary member of the Russian propaganda, who has been compelled to seek refuse in America on account of her political activities. Their association in settlement work, through the young Jew being asked to play his violin at a charitable entertainment, brings them into closer contact, and it develops soon that they are in love. Vera is of a proud Russian family, and the discovery that David is a Jew is explained by her relatives as a reason for their marriage being out of the question. The young American who had been helping the settlement worker and the young composer in bringing out his opera through jealousy of David, abandons the proposition in the end all prejudices are wiped out, and the pair decide that a marriage is the ultimate of their association.

The play is described as Zangwill's best effort, and it is a symbolism of his regard for the future possibilities of America. It is finely acted by a company of exceptionally well chosen players, and promises much.

Nance O'Neil opened at the Majestic last week in "Agnes," a new play by George Cameron. In "Agnes" Miss O'Neil has made a distinct departure from the tragic roles in which she gained almost all her popularity. The title part furnishes ample opportunity for the emotional work in which she excels, and to say that she takes full advantage of the opportunity is only telling half the story. Miss O'Neil is magnetic and alluring, presenting an impersonation that is finished and artistic. Agnes is a young woman who has been tricked by her mother into marrying a wealthy man whom she does not love. It is an interesting story convincingly told. An excellent supporting cast includes Robert Drouet, Cuyler Hastings and Mrs. Adeline Stanhope Wheatcroft, who returns to the stage after an absence of several years.

Arnold Daly's admirers filled every seat and box in Wallack's theater, when George Egerton's play, "His Wife's Family," had its first performance, with Mr. Daly in the leading role, that of an old beau, a Maj. Patrick Sarsfield Desmond. The scenes of the piece are laid in England, and the author has worked out two or three extremely effective situations, in which Mr. Daly is seen to unusually fine advantage. George Egerton is the wife of Golding Bright, a London play broker. She is Irish by birth, and the characters in her play are all of the Irish gentry, except one. Mr. Daly's return to light comedy, and Irish at that, is a welcome event. During the performance there was vigorous applause and many curtain calls for the star and his company, which includes Edwin Arden, William Harrigan, Doris Keane, who must be credited with an excellent impersonation of the wife, and our old friend Edward Harrigan, who was most cordially welcomed back to Broadway.

An example of Belasco detail is exhibited in Blanche Bates' new play, "The Fighting Hope," now playing to capacity houses at the Belasco Stuyvesant theater. Miss Bates as Anna Dale, stenographer, during the course of the drama is called upon to write several letters for her employer, Mr. Temple, president of the Gotham Trust company. Where the less exacting producer might have used almost any kind of paper for this purpose, Mr. Belasco had printed a thousand letterheads bearing the title "Gotham Trust company," together with the names of all the officers of the concern as they appear in the cast.

Charlotte Walker, who plays with such vivacious and entrancing charm the role of Agatha Warren, in "The Warrens of Virginia," has a hobby as unique as it is feminine. Nothing gives her greater pleasure than the designing, arranging and elaboration of woman's headgear along original lines. She not only designs her own hats—and to wear all she has modelled would require more time than is usually allotted to woman on this earth—but there are several of her friends whose fashionable headgear might bear the Charlotte Walker trade-mark did the actress care about the fact becoming generally known.

With thirteen years in the "legitimate" and other dramatic roles played on Broadway, Edwin Stevens declares he never had a role that gave him such an opportunity, in a certain way, as the title role in Franz Molnar's remarkable comedy, "The Devil," which he is now playing at the Garden theater. At any rate, he has never been seen in New York in anything that was a better fit for his versatile and brilliant gifts as an actor. Of course, New York never saw his Hamlet, which he played in San Francisco on a Monday night following the close of his season in the comic opera "Wang," but some day he hopes to show his Eastern admirers that the role of the Dane lies well within his powers.

His triumph won in Molnar's choice contribution to current dramatic literature is no surprise to Mr. Stevens' many friends who have followed his success under the managements of Augustin Daly, Charles Frohman and David Belasco. For three years he was with Daly, being selected to follow in the star roles of the late James Lewis. For seven years he was with the Empire company, which was enough to establish any actor's reputation for refinement and intellectual portrayal of splendid characters. His first real dramatic success came when he appeared as Malvolio, but the complete repertoire of his roles would equal that attained by the oldest living actors on the American stage. Some of his best remembered parts include Baron Stein in the "all star" company in "Diplomacy," Sir Peter Teazel, the Baron, in "The Two Escutcheons," that had one of the notable runs on Broadway, the title role in "The Magistrate," and in recent years the delicious Colonel in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" at the Belasco.

But Mr. Stevens is the most versatile actor on the stage and his work has not been confined to the drama. Heaven gave him a richly sonorous baritone, and it has been well cultivated, so that Mr. Stevens has found almost as great success in light opera as in the drama. Years ago he starred in "Wang," and later on appeared as the Marquis in "The Geisha." His name has been associated with a score of musical successes, including "Nancy Brown." Mr. Stevens will continue to attract the smart set to see his Devil at the Garden until Mr. Savage decides to present him in a new play, which will not be until after this season.

"Honeymoon Trail," the successful musical comedy which ran for over two hundred nights last year at the La Salle theater, Chicago, is now touring the country with one of the best selected casts ever assembled for the production of a musical play. Among its principal members are: Harry Stone, late light comedian with Henry W. Savage and Klaw & Erlanger's companies; Miss Olive Vail, Miss Alma Youlin, Miss Dorothy Brenner, Miss Bessille Merrill, Bert Baker, and others of equal prominence.

Everyone who follows the theaters knows that histrionic talent often runs in families. The Booths, the Drews, the Barrymores and the Jeffersons are famous examples of families in which many members have been plentifully endowed. Liebler & Co., began assimilating whole families early in their career, when they engaged the two talented daughters of the late James A. Herne, Chrystal and Julie, to support their father and when they took Viola Allen's father and brother into their fold together with that star. More recently they have acquired the services of two young sisters, Olive Wyndham and Janet Beecher, who, though they bear different names, respectively exhibit the same family standard of ability in "The Man From Home" and Harold Daly's company. At present they seem engaged in the absorption of the various Farnums. Early last summer they announced that they had signed a contract with Dustin Farnum for a term of years, by which this young actor was to appear as star in a succession of plays, beginning with "The Squaw Man." Almost immediately upon this announcement followed another by which it was made known that William Farnum would take the stellar role in Paul Armstrong's new play, "The Renegade." There still remains an elder Farnum, one of the most popular and experienced managers in the profession, and a third brother. The younger Farnums began their stage careers together in a popular-priced stock company. Since they separated their advancements have been marked by the same remarkable rapidity. Dustin got his great opportunity first, when he was assigned to the title role in "The Virginian," but William's successes in the Goodwin production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and as the Mohammedan prince in the "The Prince of India" have put him on a par with his brother in the public estimation.

While awaiting the completion of the new play which Eugene Walter is writing for her, Miss Viola Allen has had enough leisure time at her command to make elaborate preparations for the coming season. It is her intention to give a series of Shakespearian matinees during her New York engagement. It may be remembered that New York is not as familiar with Miss Allen's charming Viola in "Twelfth Night," as is the rest of the country, as Miss Allen's New York engagements in this revival was brought to a sudden close by an illness. Miss Allen has all the scenery, costumes and properties of this very elaborate production, so the "Twelfth Night" matinees can be given without great expense to her managers. It is expected that a number of other Liebler & Co., attractions will be playing in New York at the time of Miss Allen's engagement, so that a mnotable company may be engaged for the revival.

Alice Lloyd will fill a brief vaudeville engagement before she begins rehearsals for her new musical comdey, "The Bonnie Belle of Scotland," under the management of Klaw & Erlanger. Miss Lloyd is quoted as receiving $2,000 a week for the contract.

Paul Armstrong has completed for Klaw & Erlanger the big naval play, "In Time of Peace," which will be produced by that firm in a few weeks.

McIntyre and Heath, who are now playing a brief engagement in vaudeville, will appear shortly in "The Steeplechasers" under the management of Klaw & Erlanger.

"The Mountain Boy," a play of contemporaneous life in Kentucky, by Marion Short and Pauline Phelps, is the next production of Klaw & Erlanger. Rehearsals will begin after the opening of "Little Nemo" at the New Amsterdam theater. Donald Gallaher will play a leading part. Others in the cast will be Edna May Spooner and Howard Kyle.

"Wildfire," with Lillian Russell, has achieved a notable success at Klaw & Erlanger's Liberty theater. The play has demonstrated that Miss Russell need no longer depend on her reputation as a prima donna to entertain theatergoers. Resigning as queen of comic opera, she has become the princess of comedienes. Miss Russell will play return engagements in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago before she makes the Pacific coast tour.

Miss Adeline Genee, the Danish dancer, who, under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, danced her way into the hearts of all New York last season, will go on tour this season, stepping back into her dancing shoes in "The Soul Kiss," in which she won victories last season. Mlle. Genee will be assisted by nine codyphees from the London Empire. She will be seen in the four dances which were popular in her last season's repertoire, namely "The Soul Kiss," "The Money Ballet," "Sir Roger de Coverly" and "Hunting." A comedy is being prepared by Klaw & Erlanger for the use of Mlle. Genee next season, in which the ballet, "The Dryad," will be introduced.

"The Round Up" is renewing in Boston the triumphs it achieved there on its first visit. This time the play of the Arizona desert is being given at the Hollis Street theater by Klaw & Erlanger. The engagement at the Academy of Music, New York, was highly successful. Maclyn Arbuckle still continues in the role of the fat sheriff. Only one of the original New York cast is missing in the present production. That actor is a bucking broncho. On the first night of the season he took his place in the spotlight in the center of the stage and refused to move except in a vertical plane. The next night he bucked his way into the orchestra pit, wrecking the bass drum and frightening its player so badly that he forgot to meld a hundred on aces in his next game of pinochle, thereby starting a fight in the band room. The third night he pitched his rider, who had to be taken to the hospital with a broken leg. The management decided that he was too strenuous an actor even for "The Round Up" and gave him notice. "The Round Up" is one of the best and cleanest American plays ever produced.

DULUTH'S PRETTY CHILDREN

"How many pretty children you see in Duluth," is a remark frequently heard by strangers in the city.

It is a fact frequently commented on that children born in Duluth and brought up in the fresh, brisk climate, almost invariably have clear and beautiful complexions, and Duluth can probably boast of more pretty babies than any other city of its size in America.

It may be that the brisk, bracing climate has something to do with it; it may be that the northeasters make a good complexion lotion; or it may be that it is simply inherited good looks. Whatever the cause, the fact is not disputed that the pretty babies exist here.

AT THE BIJOU NEXT WEEK.

NORMAL NOTES

To add to the interest of the class in sociology, and also to give an insight into various social questions of the day, each member has taken a special topic. After reading upon these subjects in the library, and writing papers on them, the students will read them in class. The topics which have been chosen are: "Truancy and Truant Schools," "Immigration," "Children's Games," "Hull House," "Organized Charity," "Reformatory Idea," "School Punishments," "Communism," "Socialism," "District Primaries," "Labor Unions," "Greek Letter Fraternities," "Children's Playgrounds," "Cooperative Movement in the United States," "Mentally Deficient Children," "Anthracite Coal Strike," "Red Cross Sstem," "Pure Food Law," "School as a Social Center," "Employment Agencies," "Night Riders," "Voluntary Organizations of the City," and "Municipal Government of Duluth."

Writing and spelling classes were organized this week. The spelling class meets on Monday with Miss Carey at 1:30, and the writing classes with Dr. Kune on Wednesdays at 3:30.

Three important senior class meetings were held this week. The seniors had planned to give a party for the juniors and faculty the Friday night before Halloween, and as it conflicted with a party which the Athletic association had arranged, it was necessary to make new arrangements. The seniors will give their party on the first named night, but the association has postponed theirs for a week.

Miss Pettingill, supervisor of Washburn hall, has left the city for a few days' vacation.

Mr. Grae, the Humane officer of the city, visited the school on Wednesday.

The freshmen held a short business meeting Friday noon.

The Athletic association will entertain at a dancing party the first week of November for the members and their friends.

At the last meeting of the Glee club, the members began the study of some very pretty new songs.

Mr. Bohannon gave a short talk Monday morning on the care of the school grounds, the trees in particular. The scenery around the school grounds is very pretty, especially since the leaves have begun to change their color, and much has been accomplished this year. The campus has been enlarged and the shrubbery all cleared out. Before the end of the year it is hoped that rustic bridges will be put in the pretty little glen on the west side of the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Rabinowitz visited their daughter, Pauline, at the school on Thursday.

The students in the observation classes, beginning with next Monday, will observe in a different grade. Each student observes six weeks at a time in each of two successive grades, and later teaches the same length of time in these grades.

Dorothy Bateman was added to the enrollment of the school this week. Miss Bateman has recently come from England.

• • •

Mr. Bohannan has been reading a very interesting book this week, entitled "Books, Culture and Character." It is a collection of addresses made by J. N. Larned before high schools, library schools and universities, and contains talks on the qualities of books, the missions of books, and gives hints as to reading.

WASHBURN HALL AND ITS OCCUPANTS.

What you may do:
Make fudge.
Study.
Entertain your men friends Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday evening. It had better not be the same one for three evenings in succession, however.
Make fudge.
and
Study
What you may not do:
Shirk a study hour or break article 61 of the code of the regular army which recites the penalty for conduct unbecoming a soldier and a gentleman which in this case may be liberally translated to a student and a lady.

It is a good deal easier to think of the things which you may do at Washburn hall than those which ironclad rules say you may not do if you are a resident there. However, you must go to bed at 10 o'clock. That's about all. You also must not frivol the four study nights of the week, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. That's really about all. For the rest you may enjoy yourself to your heart's content, always keeping in mind that your primary object in being there is to learn how to guide young America in the paths of rectitude and educated honor.

The state board of control has seldom done a finer thing in connection with the Duluth State Normal school than it did in making the appropriation for Washburn hall as a dormitory for the accommodation of out of town students, who are in Duluth to receive their education. The hall is situated ideally, and the living accommodations which are offered the students are such as to make more than one girl who is struggling to get her education, breath a little separate prayer of thanks. The hall on the brow of the hill commands one of the finest views in the city overlooking the harbor and the lake, and the western hills are also in the picture. Every room has large windows and the fresh air is abundant. In each of the rooms are two single iron beds, a dresser and a large study table and chairs. Two roomy clothes closets are provided, and for the rest, the taste of the occupants is responsible. College pennants, posters, picture postals and home pictures and the inevitable chafing dish, give to the rooms a personal touch and home comfort. The girls take care of their own rooms, and they take turns in serving at the table. For the cleaning and cooking and baking, five servants are employed.

Miss Florence Pettingill, of the domestic science department of the Normal faculty, presides as preceptress of the hall, and to her the girls look for the gentle words of guidance and cheer. The hall was established by an appropriation by the Normal board, but must be self supporting. The students are boarded there for fifteen dollars a month, and this year there are forty-five living there.

One evening this week, when a few outside guests were entertained, the girls came trooping from their rooms in response to the sounding of the Japanese gong announcing dinner. Ten were seated at each of the five tables and at each of these tables two of the girls quietly slipped from their places between courses to do the serving.

"This is the last bottle full of water that comes to this table tonight," announced a dark eyed maiden, who was doing her stunt in serving.

"Is Lake Superior giving out?" inquired a thirsty one across the way.

"No, but I am. This table has a thirst that is positively unladylike and I don't propose to leave my dinner again for the fifth bottle of water," said the temporary waitress.

"Could I have a little more water, please?" asked a demure one across the board.

"Yes, you may," said the waitress, starting for the kitchen. "But you just wait till next week."

Following the evening meal a number of girls gathered around the piano for a half hour's enjoyment and the dear old classics, "I Don't Like Your Family" and "Love Me and the World is Mine," filled the halls. Another group was gathered on the settee half way up the stairs, and an ominous quiet reigned. Miss Pettingill passed by and an adventurous spirit stepped forth.

"Oh, Miss Pettingill! We want to go and hear Governor Johnson at the Armory tonight, and a palpitating silence ensued.

"How about lessons?" asked the gentle preceptress.

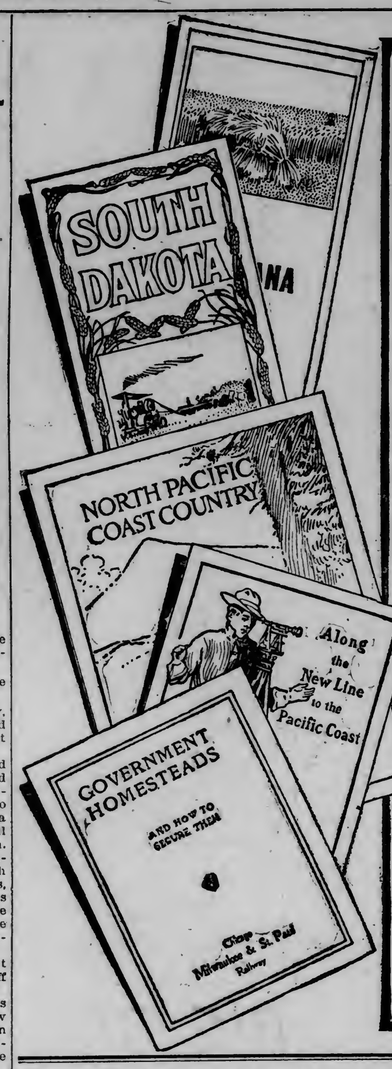

Oh! they all had their lessons. My, yes! Did any one think they would even think of going anywhere without having their lessons? Mercy! No!

And so permission was granted, and there was a scramble for wraps and hats, and in a very few minutes thirteen of the students sallied forth to hear the next governor of Minnesota speak at one of the most wonderful political meetings ever held in Duluth. The group in the living room gradually dispersed, until one lone, foolish virgin, who didn't have her lessons, and so couldn't go to the Armory, was singing gently to herself while she played an accompaniment sadly to the tune of "I don't like the faculty, faculty.

"They don't make a hit with me, hit with me...." and the rest drifted off into silence.

From the cracks under the doors along the halls there gleamed yellow lines of light, which did fairly well in lieu of midnight oil, there was a stillness and quiet that invited repose and close study of child psychology.

Study hour reigned.

THE M. E. CHURCH WORK IN THE DULUTH DISTRICT

Annual Report of Rev. Dr. Clemans, District Superintendent, Telling of the Great Progress Made During the Past Year.

Rev Dr E. C. Clemans, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church for the Duluth district, gave the following report to the recent meeting of the Northern Minnesota conference at Litchfield. The reading of the report was frequently interrupted by applause:

The past year in the Duluth district has been an unfavorable one as far as financial conditions were concerned. A little over a year ago the tumultuous drop in the price of copper stocks financially embarrassed many people who had been generous givers to church building and church finances. Had the Psalmist lived in these days, and in the Duluth district, and perhaps elsewhere, he would have modified his exhortation so that he would have said, "Put not your trust in copper." The iron and lumber industries heavily felt the money panic of last fall and when these great industries fall there are, indeed, "hard times" up our way. Notwithstanding these hindrances, churches have been built, improvements in church property have been made, debts have been paid and the reports will show that salaries and benevolences are equal to those of better years. Last conference ten charges were taken from the district and given to the Brainerd district, this at my own request, as the district was rapidly growing, and within the past three years twenty-six charges have been given up, and today the district has more members and more material resources than it had when it was placed under my supervision, five years ago.

Pastoral Changes.

Soudan, left without a preacher, has been supplied by A. S. Kitto. Barnum, "left to be supplied." has had the faithful services of O. C. Tomlinson, a Quaker preacher. In March W. G. Fritz of Mount Iron asked to be relieved of his work on account of sickness, and Henry Mecklenberg has filled out the year, doing good work. In June, Lewis Keast of Aitkin was sent to the Bigfork country and traveled that circuit for two months, being relieved by A. C Petrie. In January, Jalmar Ketonen, a Finnish missionary from Finland, arrived in this country to take up work in the district. His good wife was delayed a while in Brooklyn by the birth of a little boy, but arrived at Split Rock soon enough to begin faithful work on his charge. With these exceptions, all the preachers have remained faithfully during the year at their posts of duty.

Material Improvements.

The church property has been improved at Aurora, Orris Suver, pastor; Cloquet, Rupert Swinnerton, pastor; Asbury, Duluth, Thomas Grice, pastor; Lester Park, Duluth, J. A. Geer, pastor; Winton, C. H. Blake, pastor; Cohasset, H. G. Gardner, pastor; Proctor, C. W. Ramshaw, pastor; Sandstone, H. P. Long, pastor, and Two Harbors, W. E. J. Gratz, pastor. At Carlton, A. L. Richardson, preacher in charge, a lot has been secured for a parsonage, and at Chisholm, J. D. Manly, pastor, an additional lot has been secured on which to build an enlarged church in the near future. At Deerwood, Julius Parish, minister, the church has been greatly improved by the addition of fine pews and stained windows, the gift of Mrs. E. J. Longyear of Minneapolis, in memory of her sister, Mrs. Emma Taylor, who died at Deerwood, a faithful member of the church. At Aitkin the church has been enlarged, giving the extra room demanded by the large congregation, a basement with furnace has been put under the building, the parsonage has been improved at an expense of $1,200, so that Aitkin is now, as far as material conveniences are concerned, in a most desirable appointment. M. O. Stockland, pastor, has led in these improvements.

E. A. Wood, pastor at Nashwauk, has succeeded in getting the Finnish church building at that place so far completed, so that it is now used by both the English-speaking and Finnish-speaking people for church and Sunday school purposes. Hibbing, at the beginning of the year, had a debt on its property of $2,100. Five hundred dollars of this was secured from the Oliver Mining company by the former pastor, Rupert Swinnerton. This year every cent of this indebtedness has been raised and we now have a property at Hibbing that almost equals any in the district, besides this a gracious revival in the winter, which has given nearly a hundred members to the church. These are some of the great results of the pastorate of J. F. Pickard. At Sparta, in the Eveleth charge, the church property has been bought by the Oliver Mining company, who will mine the iron under the property as the town of Sparta is to be moved and the trustees have $1,400 in the treasury to build another church with as soon as the new Sparta is located. R. J. Taylor is pastor.

First church, Duluth, has been undergoing a wondrous transformation. The interior has been decorated and beautified at an expense of $7,000, cement sidewalks have been placed around the property and First church is more than ready to meet its great opportunity under the leadership of the pastor, M. S. Rice. More than this, the reports will show that First church this year will give to all the disciplinary benevolences, to all other benevolences and to conference claimants, $4,000, a great record.

The Chisholm Fire.

At this time mention should be made of the great fire at Chisholm. On the afternoon of Saturday, Sept. 5, a great fire from the burning forest surrounding the city swept upon Chisholm and in a few hours a city of nearly 4,000 people was in ashes. There was sufficient warning of the fire so that no lives were lost, but thousands of men, women and children were made homeless. Our pastor, J. D. Manly, and his wife, rendered great service to the stricken people and their services will not be forgotten by the people. At the height of the fire, as it seemed to be sweeping upon our church and parsonage, Brother and Sister Manly, taking their four little children and a few articles of wearing apparel with them, turned the key in the door of the parsonage and left it to find some place of safety, expecting never to see their home again. Leaving his wife and children in a place of safety several miles away, Brother Manly returned to find our property still untouched by the flames. The property was finally saved by his exertions, though buildings just across the street were destroyed. Our church and parsonage, the Roman Catholic church, two large schoolhouses and about fourteen homes were saved. Churches and schoolhouses were saved, but forty saloons were wiped off of the face of the earth. It was the most discriminating fire I have ever heard of. This fire is but part of that great conflagration of Christian sentiment in the hearts of Christian voters which is sweeping over our land and will not stop until every saloon, every brewery and every distillery in America is wiped off of the planet and we can live in a saloonless land under a stainless flag.

Dedication.

The church at Deer River was dedicated on Sunday, Sept. 13, by the district superintendent, assisted by the pastor. The church cost $7,000 and, with its splendid basement for social and other purposes, is the best and most convenient church building from the Red to the St. Louis river. During the year the old church has been converted into a parsonage, a donation of $200 from the Board of Home Missions and church Extension greatly helping in this direction. Every cent of indebtedness was provided for, before the building was dedicated and great praise for his successful leadership of his people is due to the pastor, W. G. Boyle, who has so greatly made good. A little church at Ude on the Brainerd division of the Northern Pacific railway was dedicated on Sunday, Sept. 20. The building cost about $1,000 and was built by the struggling pioneers who from their little gave enough to dedicate it free of debt. I thought when dedicating this little church that, but for these little churches in the country, our city churches would eventually come to a hard struggle for members as the bulk of the city membership comes from these country churches. The pastor, Norman Batdorf, worked faithfully under great difficulties to get this building for his people and his is the joy of the victory.

On Tuesday evening, Sept. 13, the church building on Garfield avenue, Duluth, was dedicated. This building was purchased from the Presbyterians at a cost of $1,000. The Board of Home Missions and Church Extension generously gave a donation and loaned $1,000. The property was repaired in August at an expense of $700. The building is situated in purely mission territory, and a Sunday school has been built up of nearly 200 scholars, and this in a locality where the Presbyterians gave up their work because there was no opportunity. The property is owned by the Methodist Alliance of Duluth, and the pastors and members of the various churches in Duluth, have helped greatly in securing this mission and making it a success. The pastor is J. A. Roberts, who is certainly the right man in the right place. He has worked early and late in securing money to run the mission and for the improvements. The business men of Duluth have confidence in him and cheerfully respond to calls for assistance. He is well fitted for mission work on Garfield avenue, where so many nationalities live, for Brother Roberts speaks seven languages and I take great pleasure in here testifying to his faithful services in building up the mission and certifying to the abundance of his labors. To quote his own language, I can but say, "Labor omnia Vincit," "Veritas Prevalebit."

The Virginia Church.

The last Sunday in September witnessed the dedication of the splendid church building at Virginia, F. G. Clark, pastor. Two years ago while the conference was in session at Minneapolis, word came that the old church bluilding had burned. The pastor then, Henry Logan, led his people in the building or a church edifice of brick, that when completed cost $12,000, but was not dedicated on the day set because the debt was too large. During the past year, Brother Clark and good people, in spite of the money panic, have reduced the debt over $2,000 and opened the way for dedication. Virginia has now a building to be proud of, and with improvements on the parsonage property, the pastor is to be congratulated on the success of his work. Then the pator was his own evangelist in a revival that added nearly a hundred to the church membership, making it altogether a great year in the history of the Virginia church.

New Work.

At Coleraine a splendid institutional church is in the process of erection. Coleraine is a town that is being built on model lines by the United States Steel corporation and when present plans are completed it will be the finest city on the iron range. Lots on a good corner facing a beautiful lake were donated by the company and, when the pastor reached the town last October, he commenced the work of securing money for the building of a church that would be a credit to this model town. Nearly $7,000 in good subscriptions have been secured. The foundations and walls are now up ready for the roof. Everything so far being of stone and iron, and the size of the building being 50 by 73 feet with a basement whose walls are 14 feet high. The basement is to be used for Y. M. C. purposes that greatly will help in the care of young men, who in a large mining city are practically homeless and churchless. The pastor, F. W. Hill, has been his own supervising contractor and has secured results that are astonishing, considering the little outlay. The building as it stands could not be duplicated for $6,000 and under the pastor's supervision has cost hardly $3,000. The building will be completed the coming year and we will have an institution that will meet the spiritual and physical needs of the community. During most of the year Brother and Sister Hill lived in two rooms and have sacrificed much to make this work possible. Brother Hill can rightfully take his place among the church builders, who have done such great work in the Duluth district.

At Holyoke, A. J. Roberts, pastor, lots and subscriptions have been secured and a church will soon be built. At Vineland, G. W. Hunt, pastor, an acre of land has been donated, suitable building purchased and in the coming year a church will be dedicated. Brother B. Norman Batdorf at Wright has secured lots, a donation has been granted by the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension and a church will be built. At my last visit to Taconite with the pastor, F. W. Hill, an application was made for lots, and the prospects are good for the building of a fine church in this thriving mining town. At Bigfork on the Bigfork circuit and at Ericsburg on the Ashawa circuit, donations of lots have been made and churches will be built. The pastors on the district are wide-awake to opportunities and that more churches are not built is because of a lack of means. The Duluth district alone ought to have $3,000 in donation a year from the board.

The Endion Church.

Work was commenced on the new Endion church at Duluth, J. W. Powell, preacher in charge. The old building has been moved to the rear of the church lot, an additional adjoining lot has been purchased and, by next conference, Endion will have a church building that will cost $35,000, and will be a credit to the city of Duluth. The delay in building was due to a change of plans and somewhat to the financial flurry, but all difficulties are out of the way and the building will be pushed to completion. So confident are the people that they will soon have a splendid church building, that Brother Powell has been requested by his quarterly conference to invite the next annual conference to meet in Duluth, in the new Endion church next year, and at the proper time, he will present the invitation.

Indian Work.

Progress has been made in the work among the Chippewa Indans in the district during the past year, and the two missionaries, Frank Pequette and J. W. Martin, have labored faithfully among their people. There have been many conversions and baptisms, and the moral and spiritual conditions of the Indians reached by the missions have been raised. A visit to the missions and an attendance at the meetings would convince you that our Christian Indians have a real witness of the Spirit and a living Christan experence. The record of Brother Pequette's missionary trips on his great field would read like the journals of the early Methodist missionaries in America.

Finnish Work.

The Finnish work in the district has advanced during the year, owing to the addition of a new missionary, Jalmar Ketonen, who was sent to the district by Bishop Burt, last November. He is located at Split Rock, where we have a little church, and he travels all over his territory. One Lutheran-Finnish church of some forty members has voted to join in a body, our church. Some Lutheran churchos have been shut against him and, as some Finnish communities, so active is the opposition of the Lutheran ministers that he cannot find a farm house to preach in. One settlement, where everything has been closed, and even physical injuries threatened, he persists in visiting and when I told him that he had better keep away from that locality he either does not understand the way I talk the Finnish language, or he does not care for what I say for he goes there just the same and I am thinking that he will bag another Lutheran church before long. Matti Lehtonen is abundant in labors and covers the Iron Range. He is a power for good among his people and with the great tendency of the Finnish people toward Socialism and anarchy, his work is needed among his people. The completion of the Nashwauk cshurch has been delayed but we expect to dedicate it the coming year.

Sunday School Work.

No work is more important in the territory covered by myself than Sunday school work. This is recognized by other denminations, for the Presbyterians, the Congregationalists and the American Sunday School Union have missionaries in the district. Pastors are faithful and many Sunday schools are organized, but the district needs the work of a man who will at all times devote hiself to this work, and I hope that the new board of Sunday schools will put a missionary into the territory of our conference. The board is going to do this in ither conferences.

Remarks.

At this conference, W. H. Knowles, an honored member of the conference, will sever his relations with us to enter the ministry of the Presbyterian church. Brother Knowles has done faithful work among us and I see him go with regret. He believes that God has called him to this field of labor and that his active life will be prolonged many years by the change, as he had taken last year as supernumerary relation in our confrence. I am sure that we all pray that God may bless him in his new church activities.

R. J. Taylor, at this conference, will ask to be left without appointment, and will move with his family, to take up work, eventually, in Southern California. Brother Taylor has labored hard and faithfully in the district in his seven years' pastorate at Eveleth, and the great institutional church that he built at Eveleth, and which he leaves in practically easy financial condition, will be his monument in all the years to come. God go with him as he leaves us.

C. H. Blake is compelled by the failure of his voice, to give up work this year. His physician says that if he preaches this year the penalty will be the total loss of his voice. Brother Blake's heart is in his work and he has signal tokens of the success of his ministry in souls that have been saved, and it is with intense regret that he retires for a while from the active work of the ministry. May God speedily restore him.

In Memoriam.

One home of the district was deeply bereft in the loss of the wife and mother, when Mrs. Anna Briggs, beloved wife of S. G. Briggs, pastor at Merritt memorial church, Duluth, passed from life to death in the fifty-fifth year of her age, on Feb. 2, 1908. She was a faithful wife, a good mother and a great helper to her husband in his work in the ministry, and the church has sadly missed her faithful services. The closing months of her life were months of intense suffering, but she bore all patiently, sweetly, trusting in her Saviour. The whole church and community mourned her departure. The prayers and sypathy of his brethren helped our brother to bear his burden, as he looked to God who doeth all things well. An extended memorial of her life will be read at the memorial services.

Brother and Sister Parkinson of Hinckley and Brookpark lost their little baby girl in April last. She came from Heaven to bless their home for but a few brief days, when God called her. They were comforted in their bereavement by the knowledge that Evelyn Ruth was nearly 2 years old and was the light and joy of the home. She was sick but a little while when the Saviour came into his garden to pluck lillies and plucked no fairer flower than little Evelyn Ruth. The mourning parents were grief stricken. It was hard to see the way and they stumbled a little at the promise that "All things work together for good to them that love God." But they were sustained by faith in a loving Father. The whole community rallied to help the sorrowing parents, and the kindness of the good people of Grand Rapids will never be forgotten by them. God helped the parents to bear their great burden. I loved this little child and mourned with the father and mother. As I go from parsonage to parsonage, I shall meet the children and whatever may be said of me when I day down my work in the district, I trust it can be said that the children were glad to see me come on my regular visis.

"We shall all go home to our Father's house—
To our Father's house in the skies.
Where the hope of our souls shall have no blight,
And our love no broken ties;
We shall roam on the banks of the River of Peace,
And bathe in its blissful tide;
And one of the joys of our heaven shall be—
The little child that died."

Deaconess Work.

During the greater part of the year the district has had the services of Mrs. M. J. Kriedler, deaconess. So great have been the demands for her services that she was unable to meet them, broke down in the midst of her labors, and went to her home in Decatur, for needed rest. She will be with us again this year. Realizing the need of more work along this line, and with the help and co-operation of the ladies of the Conference Woman's Home Missionary society, and especially of the ladies of the Duluth Auxillary, I am preparing for the starting and maintenance of a Deaconess' home in Duluth, and under the new general conference legislation this conference will be asked to give its sanction to such Deaconess home. The field is great. The territory has not only the English-speaking work, but there is the Norwegian-Danish, the German, the Swedish and the Finnish work, and deaconesses who can work in all these churches are to be secured as soon as possible. The outlook for this work is very favorable.

Revivals.

C. W. B. Ellis, the conference evangelist, has done faithful work in the district, and the pastors who have had his services speak highly of the good results secured. He is sane and safe. There have been gracious revivals at Asbury and First church, Duluth, Aitkin, Hibbing, Virginia, Holyoke, Sawyer, Nett Lake, Aitkin Circuit and Eveleth. God has manifested Himself in power, and this truth has again been demonstrated that where God's conditions are complied with, old-time revivals can be secured. The revivals at Hibbing and Virginia followed an earnest preaching of the Methodist Episcopal standard of amusements, and that worldly amusements and a religious life are not compatible.

Hamline University.

The interests and needs of Hamline university have been faithfully presented and our people have been urged to send their children to our own schools. The great state institution does not now, as formerly, so strongly appeal to the people, for they are beginning to see that in a smaller school, where students may come under the special supervision of Christian educators, there is a better environment for securing Christian manhood and womanhood. Under the wise leadership of President Bridgeman, our own university is taking a high place among educational institutions.

Conclusion.

With thanksgiving to God for many mercies to pastors and people and myself, I close this report of my fifth year ni the Duluth district. During this time, the whole five years, I have met every regular appointment without fail. I have myself never been better physically than now, and if I have not gained otherwise I have at least gained in avoirdupois. I was away from the district for one month at the general conference at Baltimore, but I felt that I had a right to go since the kindness of my brethren in the ministry made it possible for me to go at the expense of the church, and for this needed vacation I return my grateful thanks. Every year the great fact grows on me that I am privileged to labor among men and women who will some day rank as the founders of Christian empire. My brethren in the Duluth district are laying the foundations for a thousand years, and they are laying them well. I may be remembered, not for what I have done, but that in some small way I have been associated with you in your great work. My brethren, I love you and am glad to be numbered on your list of friends. God bless you. For your prayers, your sympathy, your co-operation, my brothers and sisters in the Duluth district, I thank you from the bottom of my heart. God bless you! Your fellow laborer in the Gospel.

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

A Hard Winter Ahead, According to the Relief Organizations---Some Practical Suggestions for Meeting Winter's Distress.

(Exclusive Service Charities and The Commons Press Bureau.)

According to charity societies and relief organizations in the big cities, the outlook for the unemployed during the coming winter months is not very rosy. In fact, the chances for jobs do not appear to be any more numerous than they were a year ago. That means a hard winter and plenty of suffering ahead.

The situation this year differs, however, in one important detail. In 1907 the crash came without warning. Thousands of workers were discharged; employment bureaus and relief agencies were swamped with applications for work which they were unprepared to fill. This year a hard winter is expected. Charity organizations will profit by the lessons of last winter and enter the winter's campaign as veterans of a year's war.

Chicago provided work for the unemployed last spring in a practical method that ought to hold suggestions for other cities, small and great.

During February, the Relief and Aid society put some of its applicants at shoveling snow from the streets upon which there are car lines, furnishing flat cars for hauling away the snow. For this work the society paid fifteen cents an hour, amounting to about $1.35 a night, the earnings being paid each morning. When the season of snow storms was over, the writer suggested that the men be employed to clean streets and alley crossings in the neighborhood around Ell Bates Social Settlement, these being given little attention by the street cleaning department of the city.

Practically all the streets of the neighborhood at that time were covered with solid ice for a space varying from three to twelve feet in width along the gutters. The ice varied in thickness from two to fourteen inches. This condition necessitated slow, hard work with constant use of the pick.

Luncheon was eaten in the settlement gymnasium, where an abundance of hot coffee and sandwiches was furnished the men, the Relief and Aid society paying the cost of the lunch at the rate of aobut 5 cents a man.

The number of men rose rapidly and steadily until the record of forty-three was reached. At first they were paid $1.35 a day for nine hour's work, but on April 2 this was reduced to $1 so that they would be more likely to hunt for some other work. At all times there were many more applicans than could be employed.

Arrangements were made through the city street cleaning department for teams to haul away the dirt, and from two to six were always at our disposal until work was stopped in this ward on June 6. The ward superintendent of street cleaning and his assistant were available for hiring teams. In all, 425 loads of dirt from streets, alleys and vacant lots were carted away from the rather small part of the Twenty-second ward in which the work was done. About five and one-quarter miles of street were cleaned every part being gone over several times.

After giving all the streets in the territory several good cleanings our cleaning of which was done by gangs of six or eight men under a foreman, with picks, shovels and rakes. Everything was gone over carefully, the dirt raked together in piles. The bad holes were filled with ashes. Wagons would then go through, each accompanied by three men to load. After the dirt and rubbish had been removed cinders were hauled in to fill bad places in alleys and crossings. The gas company furnished the cinders and teams free. In al labout 125 loads were used, enough to enable us to fix some sidewalks in front of vacant property.

While the street and alley cleaning and repairing were going on we began to give our attention to vacant lots, several in the neighborhood being cleared up. Fourteen were cleaned in the Nineteenth ward, which brought the total for this work to forty lots.

The work was from the beginning systematized The men were sent from the office of the Relief and Aid society with tickets stating just how many days' work each man was to have. Usually the first ticket for each man gave some indication of his record and the circumstances of his family. This was for guidance in placing the men in more permanent work when opportunity should arise. In all about 320 different men were employed. A number were sent several times, one man as many as nine times. A total of 2,109 days' work was done, an average of 6.59 days for each man.

Work has been resumed at the properties of the East Butte Copper Mining company. Pumps were installed a few days ago and the work of unwatering begun. The main shaft is more than 900 feet deep, and there is but 250 feet of water in it, so that the mine will be clear in a few days. The intention is to sink the shaft deeper and at the same time crosscut and drift on the 900, where there is a large station. A fine ore body in a new vein was cut while this was being made. There is consderable copper glance in it. The main shaft of the East Butte, designated as No. 1, is one of the largest and best built shafts in the district. According to the report of James Neill, the mining engineer, there are twenty-one distinct veins in the East Butte ground, striking east and west, and some of them are very large. The East Butte company is in a good financial condition. W. A. Paine of Boston and friends are in control.

FIFTEEN CLAIMS ARE SOLD

Promising Properties in the Lost Gulch District Near Globe Go to a Chicago Syndicate---Section a Very Inviting One.

Globe, Ariz., Oct. 17.—Announcement has been made of the sale of fifteen gold claims situated in Lost Gulch, to the Baldwin syndicate of Chicago. The property comprises the E. F. Kellner group of eleven claims, together with a five-stamp mill, two claims that were owned by Charles McHenry and Charles Wild and Sultan brothers, two claims on which McHenry and Wild had a bond and lease. The deal was made by Mr. Wild for the owners of the property, and G. T. Harrington representing the Baldwin syndicate. The terms of the sale were not made public.

On the Kellner property are several strong veins from seven to twelve feet wide, and the ore averaging about $8 or $10 in gold. About 1,000 feet of development has been done on the property. The ores are free milling.

The Sultan claims—Cedar Tree and Badger—are considered very valuable. Assays as high as $130 have been obtained from Badger ore and the average gold value is about $50 per ton. McHenry and Wild a short time ago, shipped twenty tons of ore from the Cedar Tree, which ran $28 per ton in gold and netted over $400.

Mr. Harrington will leave in a few days for Chicago to organize a company to develop and operate the Lost Gulch property. Upon his return to Globe a few weeks later, work will be begun in earnest. The mill is to be reconstructed and approved modern machinery installed.

Mr. Harrington in an interview with a representative of the Silver Belt, spoke very encouragingly of the Lost Gulch gold belt, and expressed surprise that there had been so little real mining done there. He said it was an inviting field for men of small means, as there are numerous gold bearing veins which could be easily and cheaply worked, and the ores from which carry good values. Mr. Harrington was for years in the employ of the Homestake Mining company of Deadwood, S. D., and he is confident that the property acquired for the Baldwin syndicate in Lost Gulch can be profitably operated.

In the event of his company being successful there, others would be attracted to Lost Gulch, and the result be most likely the creation of a prosperous gold camp.

A TELLURIUM PROPOSITION

New Gold District of Hachita in New Mexico May Rival Goldfield and Cripple Creek---Ground Reported Very Rich.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 17.—Many mining men in Bisbee and the Warren district are much interested in reports which have come from the new gold district of Machita in New Mexico, just across the Arizona boundary line. According to J. B. Rice, the well known commercial traveling man who was in Bisbee for a few hours yesterday, the new camp bids fair to rival Goldfield and Rawhide, the famous Nevada camps, and Cripple Creek, in Colorado.

According to Rice, the new camp is a tellurium proposition and very rich. Rice brought with him some very fine specimens of gold ore and dust which he panned himself. He declares that the ore is in every respect similar to that which has made Cripple Creek the greatest camp in the world.

"The rush to Hachita last spring failed because the prospectors who rushed in and took up claims did not understand the tellurium ores," Rice said in conversation with a Review man. "Many of those who went in got fine pannings, but the assays were bad and the excitement died out. The camp might have remained dead had not some old Cripple Creek miners drifted there and recognized the tellurium. Samples were sent to Denver and returned as high as thirteen ounces to the ton.

Sol. Camp, formerly superintendent of the Elkton mine at Cripple Creek, and Marvin Ish who operated in that district, have taken up a large number of claims, and they are getting them ready to lease out, much of it having already been cut up for the leasers. Arthur Philbrick, a mining engineer from Rawhide, is also a late arrival, and he believes that Sylvanite will equal, if not surpass, Goldfield in gold production in a short time. Camp is getting ready to ship his first car of ore which should net him between $2,000 and $3,000. On Camp's ground alone, 1,000 leasers can begin doing business at once.

"A man named Wood has driven a tunnel which at present has a depth of 150 feet, and the face of the tunnel is in ore that will run $30 to $50 to the ton. W. F. Nihart of Douglas has shipped three cars of the ore that netted him $30 a ton."

Rice added that no attempt has been made to boom the new camp and none will be made. He states that the ground will be let out to leasers. A number of Bisbee miners wired requests for information to N. A. Berry, formerly superintendent of the Old Dominion at Globe, who is said to be on the ground.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

More Companies Operating and More Producing Than for Many Years---Present Tonnage About 175,000 Tons of Ore Per Month.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 17.—Not since the boom days has the Black Hills seen such activity in mining or such a generally healthy condition. Today there are more companies operating and more producing than for many years, and even with the adversities that several have met within the last few months, the production for 1908 will be considerably larger than the greatest record the Black Hills has ever made. Many mining men hold that the present year will show a total output value of $10,000,000, although the conservative place this figure as a million too high. Heretofore the best the Hills has done for one year has been less than $7,500,000.

The present tonnage being run, which amounts to practically 175,000 tons of ore per month, is best shown by the figures as given by the operatives in the following table:

Mine—	Tons per Month.
Homestake	120,000
Mogul	10,000
Golden Reward	5,000
Wasp No. 2	6,000
Gilldedge Maid	7,000
Reliance	4,000
North Homestake	4,000
Minnesota Mines Company	2,500
Imperial	3,500
Golden Placer	1,500
Total	164,600

To be added to these are the irregular productions of the American Eagle, Cumberland, Lundberg, Dorr & Wilson properties, together with a number of small placer and other companies scattered around the hills that do not make a regular report for publication. This tonnage of 175,000 equals in value about $716,000 per month.

During the next few months this figure will be increased. The Golden Crest Mining company is now erecting a 150-ton mill which will soon be in commission. The Branch Mint has resumed and during the winter will reopen its big 800-ton mill. The Lucky Strike company will reopen its 150-ton plant and the Safe Investment has a 200-ton mill that is shortly going into commission again. The Minnesota will redouble its present capacity. The Standby has resumed at Rochford and is treating, while the Columbus-Hidden Fortune deal is still a possibility that will bring further production.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

The Keweenaw Company Enters the Ranks of Producers—The Physical Condition of the Osceola Never Better—Seven Rock Drills Being Operated in the Atlantic Mine.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The estimated production of the Lake Superior mines for the month of September was 19,206,955 pounds fine copper. This compares with an estimated production of 19,270,625 pounds during the preceding month and 18,897,930 during September, 1907. A new company the Keweenaw Copper company, has entered the ranks of the producers, and stands credited with 39,000 pounds refined copper produced during last month. Approximately 885,000 tons of rock were stamped during September to produce the total output of refined copper of this district for that month.

The Osceola is producing at the rate of 24,000,000 pounds refined copper annually at cost of about ten cents per pound, and the physical condition of the mine never was better than at the present time. It is one of the most valuable in the Lake Superior district, and could contribute in a large measure toward a longer life for the Calumet & Hecla company for which that company is so determinately fighting.

Increased Stoping Grounds.

Keweenaw's mill test to date has proven considerable of a disappointment, and the company finds itself under the necessity of providing more stoping grounds so that a better selection of rock may be had. To this end an assessment of $2 has been called, payable in two installments, the money thus secured to be used in further shaft sinking and the further development of lateral openings, of which latter there are now about 10,000 feet. The mine has been opened to a depth of 1,160 feet by a single incline shaft in which fourteen levels are established. The stamp mill, equipped with a single steam stamp of 250 tons capacity, is now operated on half time and treating about 125 tons of rock daily with little or no selection from which a recovery of sixteen pounds of copper mineral per ton of rock is being made. Much of the rock as it comes from the mine is very lean in copper content, and with a better selection of rock made possible by increased stoping grounds, as planned, there is every probability that the Keweenaw will yet develop into a paying proposition.

Good Prospects at Atlantic.

Developments at the Atlantic mine the past week did much to strengthen the faith of the management in this property. Drifting in progress at the twelfth, thirteenth and fifteenth levels discloses the Baltic lode fairly well charged with copper. The sixteenth level crosscut reached the lode this week and drifting will be in progress within a few days. The company is operating seven rock drills in this mine and is rapidly getting into position to hoist and mill 500 tons of rock daily. The steaming capacity has been increased and a new 20-drill compressor has been installed. Two steam stamps at the mill have been overhauled and will shortly be falling on rock from the Superior mine. The mill continues to treat the Michigan's rock, using two steam stamps therefor, and a fifth stamp has been made ready to drop on rock from its own mine at very little extra expense. The Wyandot encountered a strong amygdaloid lode forty feet wide in its diamond drill operations, but found the same barren of copper. Diamond drilling will continue in the hope of striking a copper bearing lode at greater depth. The crosscut driving across the formation from the bottom of a 700-foot shaft has attained a length of nearly 300 feet and recently passed through an amygdaloid lode carrying some copper. No drifting will be done upon this lode for the present or until further diamond drill results show this lode to be the master of this section.

At the Isle Royale.

The Baltic lode shaft of the Isle Royale Copper company has attained a depth of twenty feet, sinking being accomplished with the use of hammer and drill. A boiler is being installed and a small compressor and hoist will be in commission in the course of a few weeks. There is little likelihood that copper will be encountered before a depth of several hundred feet has been reached. The ground is badly shattered and indications point to considerable leaching having taken place. No. 4 shaft on the Isle Royale lode has been equipped with a 35-drill compressor which is now supplying air for this shaft as well as Nos. 5 and 6. A second compressor of equal capacity is being installed at the latter shaft. Both the rock houses and hoisting plants at shafts Nos. 4 and 6 are nearly completed, and will be in commission by the end of the year. Underground developments continue to disclose exceptional copper ground. No stoping is yet in progress at this end of the mine and the rock coming from opening work exclusively averages thirty pounds mineral per ton of rock milled. The No. 1 shaft opened on the old mine to the north is sinking below the twenty-fourth level and is producing two-thirds of the total rock tonnage milled by the company, though of a very low grade, probably not exceeding eighteen pounds mineral per ton of rock.

The Franklin Junior.

BIG ORE STRIKES AT BISBEE

Most Valuable Ore Body Ever Discovered in the Warren District Now Being Explored by Superior & Pittsburg Company—Great Ore Zone Revealed on the Shattuck-Arizona.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 17.—What will probably prove to be the biggest and most valuable ore body ever discovered in the Warren district is now being explored on the ground of the Superior & Pittsburg company, and although it may not prove as rich or as extensive as a few of the ore bodies which have made the Copper Queen one of the greatest copper mines in the world, it promises to become the richest asset of the Superior & Pittsburg company.

The ore body was encountered in a crosscut driven east from the drift on the 1,300 level which is to connect the Hoatson and Briggs shafts, the find being made on the Del Norte claim. It is not a continuation at depth of the ore bodies encountered on the upper levels as its location is on the opposite side of the claim.

The ore body on the 1,300 level has been penetrated for practically 100 feet, and the ore has yielded some very high assays, an average for the entire width of 100 feet being slightly over 14 per cent copper. The breast of the crosscut has at times during the progress of the work averaged as high as 20 per cent, though grab samples have run over 45 per cent.

Another feature of the strike is that it greatly betters the outlook for the Briggs mine as the ore dips toward the Briggs shaft.

Heavy S. & P. Output.

The Superior & Pittsburg will this month break all records for production, according to the statement of General Manager Powell. Shipments have been augmented from the various Superior & Pittsburg mines since the beginning of the present month, and it is expected that the Superior & Pittsburg returns will show a good net earning for October. The total production for the Calumet & Arizona smelter for the month of September was something over 4,200,000 pounds of blister copper.

At the Junction mine of the Superior & Pittsburg the new 1,500-foot station will soon be completed, after which a drift will be driven to the Briggs shaft on that level. At the station a new 2,500 gallon crank and flywheel pump will be installed. On the 1,400 level of the Junction driving is in progress to cut the ore bodies which were developed on the 1,300 level.

Strike at Shattuck.

Last week some unusually rich ore was uncovered in the Shattuck-Arizont. The new strike was on the 500 level, 400 feet from the shaft. It already has been uncovered to such an extent as to reveal a face of ore about one hundred feet in extent. Once the owners of this superb property agree upon erecting a smelter it will rapidly assume its place among the front rank of Arizona's copper producers. The cause of the dilatoriness upon the part of the Shattuck directorate in erecting a plant that would be used to reduce the great body of rich ore contained in their workings has been a matter of puzzling import to Arizona's mining world for many months. Revealing an ore zone that even the famous Calumet & Arizona does not surpass, controlled by several of the wealthiest mining men on the continent, nevertheless it still remains practically inoperative because of lack of a smelting plant. When asked for a reason for such procrastination, Shattuck says that if he had his own way in the matter he would erect a smelter in a minute, but when asked for a specific reason for the delay, he becomes taciturn.

North Star Shaft.

The North Star shaft on the property of the Warren Realty and Development company, situated east of the town of Warren, is being sunk with dispatch, being now 795 feet in depth, 768 feet of which is timbered. September was the shaft's record month, fifty feet having been cut during the thirty days. It is in a lime formation, iron-strained, fine-grained, and very dry. Thus far there has not been the slightest sign of water.

Mountain View.

The Mountain View property, situated four miles north of Bisbee, is being brought into the limelight during Clark's lease. Clark has just made his second shipment to the smelter, the latter consisting of about eight tons of ore that the shipper expects to average about $75 to the ton. The ore is different than that formerly shipped from the property in that it contains more or less gold in addition to the copper value. The majority of the stock of the Mountain View is held by Bisbeeites.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Stripping in Hibbing District on Large Scale—Shipments From Sliver Property Started—Cuyuna Range May Become Shipper Next Season—Marquette Range Complaining of Labor Scarcity.

Stripping operations in the Hibbing district continue on a vast scale. Rivalled only by the work on the Western Mesaba is that in progress and projected at the Steel corporation's mammoth Hull-Rust property—the greatest iron mine in the world. Both in the Hull pit and at the Rust portion of the big tract the stripping is being pushed vigorously. It will be years before the ore body will have all been uncovered. The work in hand is of huge proportions, and that it may be carried on with the greatest facility extensive preparatory operations are in progress. Machine shops, roundhouses and other necessary structures are being provided, as has been a new dump ground to which the trains have access over a long viaduct of stone construction. It will be a year yet before the preparatory program is fully completed. Eventually the Rust and the Hull pits will be connected, as already practically are the Hull and the adjoining Mahoning, and when that time comes, the excavation at the three properties will extend over more than twenty "forties" of land. With that at the nearby Sellers mine added, there will be a continuous pit over two miles long. The shaft at the Hull underground mine has gone out of commission, and that at the Rust underground workings will be abondoned shortly.

The Consumers' Ore company, which is controlled by M. A. Hanna & Co. of Cleveland, has started shipments from the Sliver property at Virginia, and will probably forward 50,000 tons of ore from the pit this season. Exceptionally good progress has been made with the work of opening the mine. Stripping was started only five months ago. Two shovels have been operated night and day, and 350 men have been given employment. The work will continue to be pushed vigorously. A large output, it is expected, will be made next season. The mine contains a large deposit, and the ore is of excellent quality. The huge Sauntry-Alpena property of the Steel corporation adjoins it on the east. At its Fayal mine at Eveleth, the Steel corporation has increased the working force in the underground portion of the property to the extent of a hundred men. Night as well as day shifts will hereafter be worked at both shafts, 2 and 4.

On the Cuyuna.

While the Cuyuna range, south and west of the Mesaba, continues much of a puzzle despite innumerable drill holes put down during the past six years, there is strong likelihood that the new field will become a shipper next season. Rogers, Brown & Co., who with the exception of Cuyler Adams of Duluth probably control a greater acreage than any other interest concerned in the district, have the development of the first mine well under way. This property is near Rabbit lake, three or four miles distant from Deerwood, Crow Wing county, and it is being opened by a two-compartment shaft, drifts from which have been extended to the ore body. A force of fifty men is employed. Considerable ore will be taken out during the winter, and in the spring the sinking of shaft No. 2 will be started, the machinery now in use being removed to the new location and a more substantial plant being installed at the scene of the present operations. A second mine is being opened by Rogers, Brown & Co., southeast of Deerwood and distant about six miles from the other. Sinking is suspended here, however, pending the installation af additional boiler and pumping capacity.

That the Cuyuna range is an extension of the Mesaba, geologically speaking, is the belief of Prof. C. K. Leith, head of the geological department of the University of Wisconsin and an authority whose opinions carry conviction. The formations, however, are very dissimilar, the ore strata of the Mesaba being flat and continuous, while those of the Cuyuna are vertical, or nearly so, and are convoluted and much broken. The ore varies widely in physical structure and in iron content. Some of it will have to be washed, like much of the product of the Western Mesaba, not many miles to the northward. The ore runs from a very low grade to an exceptionally good grade, and enough of the latter has already been found to give assurance the district will become a source of production of no small importance. Mining in much of the field will, however, be difficult. The overburden is largely of sand and, the district being in a region well watered by the Mississippi river and numerous small lakes, the ground at many of the properties is very wet.

SHIPS TO THE OLD DOMINION

Helvetia Sending Sulphide Ores to the Old Dominion Smelters---Pinto Creek Development Company Expects to Strike Ore Soon.

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 17.—Helvetia has commenced shipments of sulphide ores to the Old Dominion smelters.

With the failure of the reverberatory furnace to give the results expected, the Helvetia company decided to look about for a market for its ores in outside smelters. An arrangement was entered into with the Old Dominion company, by which mine, containing sulphur and iron sulphide ores from the Helvetia will be shipped to Globe to aid in smelting the Globe ores.

The shipments from Helvetia will approximate 100 tons daily. The ore is freighted to Vails station by wagon and taken from there over the Southern Pacific to Bowie, and thence over the Gila Valley, Globe & Northern to Globe.

Just at present the Helvetia management is experiencing considerable difficulty in securing enough teams to haul the ore and this is retarding the ore shipments somewhat.

Globe, Ariz., Oct. 17.—The Pinto Creek Mining & Smelting company, which owns a group of thirty-seven mining claims situated twelve miles west of Globe, on Pinto creek, has for some time ben driving a tunnel into the mountain at the level of the creek, which will cut the formation at a vertical depth of about 800 feet. This tunnel is now in 1,500 feet, and from it a drift has been run 500 feet. The tunnel for the greater part of its length is in very hard granite, which is now altered and considerably softer, and shows streaks of schist running through it, indicating a contact. The formation for the last fifteen feet has carried seams of chalcopyrite, which is very encouraging, and suggests the near approach of an ore body.

Above, the mine is opened by three tunnels, the deepest opening the ledge 300 feet from the apex. These levels are in ore, the best showing being on the third level, from which has been taken some very rich glance ore. This ore occurs in pockets, some of considerable size, from which has been taken pieces of solid glance that would weigh 1,000 pounds or more. The vein varies in width from three to fifteen feet.

FINE ORE AT EUREKA SHAFT

Indications Point to Development of a Great Mine in This Section of the Arizona Commercial Copper Company's Property.

Globe, Ariz., Oct. 17.—Another important copper strike has been added to the season's splendid record of developments in the mines of the Globe district. Ore has been encountered at the depth of 600 feet in the Eureka shaft of the Arizona Commercial Copper company. It is good, lively looking hematite showing some green carbonate of copper, identical with some of the ore found in the workings at the old Black Hawk shaft and at the Great Eastern shaft of the Superior & Boston company.

The strike is considered one of the most important made in the district for some time and confirms the opinion expressed by President Amster and the local management of the Arizona Commercial, that the vein would be found to carry good values below water level at the Eureka shaft.

Near the east end of the Black Hawk claim a good ore shoot was opened to a depth of more than 500 feet and levels were run at 300, 400 and 500 feet in ore. The ore on the 400-foot level was forty or fifty feet wide; and on the 500-foot level east of the main crosscut and at the bottom of the winze, fifty feet below the level, the ore is carbonate and glance, going 12 per cent copper and 6 per cent copper and six ounces in silver.

The Black Hawk shaft and the Eureka shaft, nearly 1,000 geet apart, are connected on the 500 foot level by a drift in ledge matter the entire distance, from which the copper has been largely leached. Now that ore has been found at water level in both shafts, the inference is strong that ore will be found to be continuous between the two shafts below water level.

Both Supt. H. A. Colin and Mine Foreman at O'Neil are gratified by the favorable development at 600 feet, the depth at which they estimated the ore would be struck, and they are now more confident than ever that a great mine will be opened at the Eureka shaft.

PITTSBURG CAMP IS ACTIVE

Twenty Men at Work Developing the Arizona-Pittsburg's Property in Santa Cruz County, Arizona---Shaft Down Ninety Feet.

Patagonia, Ariz., Oct. 17.—The Pittsburg camp in the Santa Rita mountains now looks very much like a mining camp. The boiler, hoist, pump and air compressor are all in place and in operation. The shaft has been timbered and sinking has been resumed, after a delay caused by waiting for the machinery. The shaft is down about ninety feet and going down at a rate of four feet a day. About twenty men are empolyed.

The men comprising the Arizona-Pittsburg company, owners of the property, have done considerable prospecting in Santa Cruz county during the past several years and have finally located on a piece of ground where everything points to the presence of a large body of copper ore and they have installed mining machinery of sufficient capacity to thoroughly and quickly prospect and develop the vein they are working on. Where the work is being done the ledge is twelve feet wide at the surface cropping. It is a highly mineralized quartz, carrying copper, silver and lead. As depth is acquired the lead in the rock grows less and copper more pronounced. For a width of four feet the rock now being worked in is pretty thoroughly impregnated with copper sulphides. The surface is almost perpendicular and the first seventy-five feet of the shaft is straight down, but from that depth the shaft will incline with the dip of the ledge, which is straight and to the north. The shaft will follow the vein down to a depth of 300 feet, when drifting and crosscutting will be commenced.

R. A. McDonald of Pitsburg, Pa., president of the company, visited the property recently, and immediately upon looking over the prospect and the vein upon which it is located, decided that the Arizona-Pittsburg company wanted all the ground obtainable in that section. The mine is located on the Veta Grande, the central one of the three big veins that are on the Patagonia slope of the Santa Rita mountains. Between the Pittsburg and the Leek-McDonald mines the I. T. Hosey company owned one claim, connecting the two properties. This claim the Arizona-Pittsburg company company bought in while Mr. McDonald was here, he and General Manager T. A. Cox going to Phoenix for that purpose and to secure an option on other claims owned by the Hosey people.

KNIGHT SMELTER IS CLOSED

Lack of Electrical Power Forces Temporary Suspension at Tintic---The Colorado Mine Has Made a New Record for Profit.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 17.—For the third time in one month of its operation the Knight smelter in Tintic was forced to close down its furnaces two weeks ago from lack of electrical power. The smelter was put into operation before actually completed in order to afford a market for Tintic ores and much trouble has been the result. An auxiliary steam plant is to be installed as rapidly as possible. Ajax, Rock Tunnel, Black Jack, Grand Central and Victoria of Tintic, Silver Shield of Bingham and Horn Silver of Frisco have been compelled to cease shipments. The Colorado, owned largely by the principal owner of the Knight smelter, has arranged to increase its shipments to the United States plant at Bingham Junction pending the resumption by the smelter.

The Colorado mine in Tintic has in the last ten weeks made a new record for profit. The ore taken out has paid $39,000 of accumulated debts, met the cost of a power line from Utah county to the Tintic smelter, paid for a compressor plant for the mine and in addition provided $240,000, distributed in dividends has come largely from ore taken out in development. It is said that less than 600 of the 2,600 feet of proved lode has been even partially stoped and not one fot of it entirely exhausted. Drifting has reached through only 1,200 feet of the lode, leaving 1,400 feet not yet opeden. Of the unopened portion nearly 1,000 feet lies north of the old shaft and as drifting, sinking and crosscutting progress into it the ore body develops a width of sixty to ninety feet, containing it is estimated, at least thirty feet that will average between $75 and $100 a ton.

The New England Gold & Copper company, operating at Bingham, has issued a circular to stockholders which says in part: "New England company since resuming operations has opened additional ore bodies and especially a fine showing of copper ore which promises to develop into a large body. Most of the development work of the past has been along the line of the silves-lead formation, as that was nearest at hand, but it has always been maintained that a lower depths bodies of copper would be encountered." The company now proposes to explore the ground for copper.

The Dewey mill at Bingham, owned by Col. E. A. Wall, is to be restored and improved so that it will have a daily capacity of 150 to 200 tons. It

MR. YOUNG STULTIFIES HIMSELF.

Commenting upon Governor Johnson's quotations from a letter written by Attorney General Young last spring to The Herald, in which the attorney general charged the "interests" with opposing him and with bringing about his defeat for the Republican nomination for governor, Mr. Young in a letter to the St. Paul Dispatch says: "Several weeks before the convention The Duluth Herald contained an article saying that because of the opposition of the 'interests' I had concluded to withdraw as a candidate. I immediately wrote to that paper denying that I intended to withdraw, and in that letter I truthfully stated that I knew the 'interests' were opposing me; but neither then nor at any other time did I say that Mr. Jacobson was their candidate, because I knew he was not."

This is strange talk from a man whose eyes are as wide open as Mr. Young's. He knew that Jacobson was not the candidate of the interests, did he? Then he was the only man in the state that knew it, and his letter to The Herald shows clearly that he knew it, too. In that letter he said: "You say that I am against a stone wall, because IN ADDITION TO JACOBSON'S PERSONAL FOLLOWING THERE IS DUNN'S SUPPORT AND THE SUPPORT OF THAT STRONG FACTION THAT DOES AS DUNN SAYS AND WITHOUT WHICH NO MAN CAN SUCCEED. The fact that the liquor and corporate interests are opposing my candidacy has been known to me and to every one in the capitol for some time. As attorney general I have made the saloons obey the law. I have diligently prosecuted the timber trespassers, and have recovered many judgments against them, recently one in the supreme court against Tom Shevlin's company for over $16,000. The opposition of these interests and of the group of politicians and newspapers that are habitually controlled by them was to be expected. IT IS KNOWN THAT THEY HAVE ALL UNITED IN THIS CAMPAIGN AND THAT BOB DUNN, THE PATRON AND FAVORITE OF TOM SHEVLIN AND THE TIMBER INTERESTS, HAS BEEN APPOINTED THEIR GENERAL AGENT TO TAKE CHARGE OF THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST ME. HE HAS OPENLY DECLARED THAT HE WAS GOING TO 'SKIN' ME. But, Mr. Editor, I beg to advise you that Bob Dunn, Dar Reese and Tom Shevlin do not constitute the Republican party, and it is not necessary to secure their favor before becoming a candidate for governor. Bob Dunn and his assortment of interests are not going to be allowed to take possession of the party machinery, or dictate its policies of candidates; nor is Dar Reese going to be able to put the liquor interests in the Republican saddle."

Brave words, these, but they do not square with Mr. Young's present attitude, nor with subsequent events. Mr. Young did withdraw, just as The Herald said he would; his name was never presented to the Republican state convention. Bob Dunn and Dar Reese and their associates did "take possession of the party machinery and dictate its policies and candidates." They nominated Jacobson, and Jacobson's silence on vital issues speaks eloquently of the price he paid for their support.

Now, Mr. Young, when you say that you knew that Jacobson was not the candidates of the interests, do you speak the truth? Do you mean that you did not know whom Bob Dunn and Dar Reese were then supporting for the governorship? Bob Dunn had publicly made his boast that he was going to nominate Jacobson and show people a few things; Dar Reese headed the Ramsey county delegation, which was instructed solidly for Jacobson.

Mr. Young, you did know that "Bob Dunn and his assortment of interests" were supporting Jacobson, no matter what you say now. You showed by your letter to The Herald that you knew, as everybody else in the state knew, that the triumph of Bob Dunn and Dar Reese meant Jacobson's victory and your defeat.

HOW WORRY KILLS.

Do you doubt that worry kills more people than disease? Do you doubt that most of the ills afflicting humanity are made infinitely worse than they should be by worry? Do you doubt that, in fact, worry—the baneful effect of a suffering and anxious mind upon a suffering body—constitutes a very large percentage of all ailments?

Then listen to the result of an experiment conducted by French physicians and described in Harper's Weekly. It was a cruel experiment, one infinitely worse than the vivisection of animals, and one that could be conducted only by men whose devotion to science and the relief of humanity in the abstract was great enough to steel their hearts against the sufferings of a human being in the concrete.

These doctors wanted to know just what effect worry would have upon the digestion of a healthy man. So several of them—they were noted physicians whose names rank high in the world of investigation—made arrangements with the authorities to use as a subject a man condemned to death.

He was purposely allowed to believe, until three days before the date fixed for his execution, that his sentence would be commuted to life imprisonment. Three days before the fateful date upon which the guillotine was to decapitate him he was told that at the end of that time he must die.

This man had always been a healthy, rugged, athletic man, a heavy eater who had never known trouble with his digestive organs. Before being told of his fate—the fiendishly but scientifically cunning experimenters deliberately arranged it so—he ate a hearty meal of various foods, of which a note was made by the physicians.

After that he ate but little. The amount of food consumed decreased in inverse proportion to the increase in his mental worry. When he was executed a post mortem examination was made, and it showed that the food he had eaten three days before, a few moments ahead of the time when he was finally condemned to death, was still undigested. The organs were still perfectly normal from a pathological point of view, but their functions had been interrupted by worry.

That is why, more than for any other reason, people who worry have "stomach trouble." A healthy man, with no thought of trouble upon his mind, can eat almost anything, and eat it almost any way he chooses, without harm. But even a healthy man, who lets himself worry, will thereby arrest his digestive functions, and ultimately, if the process continues, the functional derangement becomes organic and the trouble spreads to other organs and kills him.

A cheerful optimism, then, is not only good medicine, but it is a splendid prophylactic—preventing disease. The man with a tired or feeble stomach finds that his condition creates worry, and that the worry makes him worse. The more he worries the worse he feels, and the worse he feels the more he worries. He needs distraction to get his mind away from his physical condition, so that healing nature, always busy in the effort to restore diseased conditions, can have a fair chance.

IT IS AND IT ISN'T.

The manner in which the News Tribune continues to babble feebly about "tonnage tax" and "royalty tax" reminds one of the fellow described in the ancient tongue twister: "He thrusts his fists against the post and still insists he sees the ghost."

This morning the Jacobson organ—which isn't for Jacobson but is only against Johnson—provides the public with a luminous lot of information concerning the matters that have so agitated it of late. It all seems very simple. The royalty tax, says the morning paper, is a very different thing from the tonnage tax; which shows that The Herald's attempts to instruct the morning paper have not been entirely wasted. Nevertheless, the News Tribune explains a little later, they are exactly the same thing. They are radically different but still exactly the same thing. Very simple, you see.

Also, the royalty tax is a very good thing, continues the morning paper, and far be it from the News Tribune, whose owner draws royalties, to oppose it, even though it has been hysterical in its opposition to it for a week or so. Nevertheless, the morning paper thoughtfully adds, the royalty tax is a very evil thing, and Governor Johnson ought to be defeated for talking about it. Very simple, you see.

But—

Will the News Tribune kindly give a single reason why Jacobson should receive a single vote in Northern Minnesota? It has overlooked doing so thus far.

REGISTRATION DAYS.

Next Tuesday, Oct. 20, and next Saturday, Oct. 24, are the last registration days. If you voted at the primaries, you are registered. If you did not vote at the primaries, you must register next week or you can't vote. Don't overlook it.

THE TAX AMENDMENT.

Some of the people of this state have been led to believe that the adoption of the "wide open" tax amendment, which removes all restrictions upon the legislature in the making of tax laws, would be a good thing for the state.

Would it be? Maybe it would; but let nobody take it for granted that it will. It may be vastly harmful. We earnestly believe it cannot turn out otherwise. But nobody should approve it without knowing exactly what it means.

As The Herald has shown, the proposal of this amendment was the result of the agitation of so-called tax experts, who are really tax theorists. They said that tax laws would be better if the state could get its revenue from indirect taxes, and by the abolition of the direct state tax let each county and city and village arrange its tax machinery as it pleased.

Now, according to Dr. Frank L. McVey of Minneapolis, a member of the Minnesota tax commission, that theory has been abandoned. At the recent meeting of "tax experts" in Toronto it was the consensus of opinion that it is better to have a direct state tax because that continues the interest of the taxpayer in the disposition of the state's funds, and because it continues the interest of the state in the proper making of local assessments.

The tax experts are talking sense, now. They were talking wild theory when they proposed the plan which Minnesota is asked to adopt by approving the tax amendment to the constitution. They have abandoned that wild theory now; yet Minnesota is still asked to make an experiment with it.

Why should Minnesota take up a plan which those who proposed it have dropped?

This section of the state is said to oppose the tax amendment because it permits a tonnage tax on iron ore. It does oppose it for that reason, as well as for others; but let nobody suppose for a moment that the tonnage tax is going to be the only fruit of that tax amendment if it is adopted. Its fruits—and they are rotten to the core—will prove embarrassingly abundant.

How would Goodhue county, which has valuable clay beds, like a tonnage tax on the output of those beds for the benefit of the state?

How would Stearns county, which has granite beds, like a tonnage tax for state purpose on the output of those beds?

How would Blue Earth county, which produces sandstone, like a state tax on its product?

How would Pine county, which also has sandstone, like to have the state step in and take the taxes from one of its chief industries?

How, for the matter of that, would farmers like a state bushel tax on grain? How would merchants like a state percentage tax on their gross business? How would bankers like a state tax on their capital and surplus or on their deposits?

How would the state like it if, under "county option" in taxation, the Twin Cities got to fighting the country merchants by exempting their mail order houses from taxation?

All these things could be under the "wide open" tax plan, and most of them must happen if the plan is carried to its contemplated conclusion.

HARD TIMES AND CRIMINALS.

There are those who scoff at the idea that there is any relationship between poverty and crime. When the social reformer dares to say that if economic conditions were more favorable to the masses, and that if there were less plutocrats growing richer out of great crimes there would be less paupers forced into small crimes, he is attacked as a jaundiced and narrow judge of conditions, and as an enemy to the security of society. When it comes to that, there is a very large element of society that has nothing to risk by a change, no matter how revolutionary, and the constantly dwindling number of those who have much to risk by change should never lose sight of that fact.

Warren F. Spalding, secretary of the Massachusetts Prison association, has compiled some figures, published in Charities and The Commons, that show a very intimate relationship between poverty and crime—at least between hard times and crime, which is the same thing because hard times mean greater poverty for those who are always upon the verge of poverty.

The depression of the first part of this year registered a marked effect upon the number of petty crimes in Massachusetts. Assaults were more numerous in every month in 1908 than they were in 1907. The first seven months of this year showed an increase of 22 per cent, and the arrests in the seventh month were the highest of the year.

In March, 1907, the arrests for drunkenness began to increase very materially. There were 940 more arrests for this offense in March, 1907, than there were in March, 1906. The remaining months of 1907 showed increases of 188 to 607 over the corresponding months of 1906. The calendar year showed an increase of 4,751. This year there has been an increase over 1907 for every month except March. In June, this year, 3,888 persons were arrested in Massachusetts for drunkenness, the highest ever known and 702 more than in June of 1907. The increase over 1907 for the first seven months of 1908 was 2,337.

Arrests for burglary in Massachusetts were 68 per cent greater in the first seven months of this year than in the corresponding months of last year. The number of vagrants arrested was nearly three times as many as in the same month of 1907. In miscellaneous offenses there was an increase of nearly 50 per cent. Taking all the arrests together the aggregate for the first seven months of 1908 was 38,970, against 32,200 in 1907, an increase of 21 per cent. The largest increase was in July, when the unhappy record reached 6,574 against 5,070 in July, 1907. If the rate of increase persists through the calendar year, the number for 1908 will be 69,667 compared with 48,146 in 1905.

Mr. Spalding says in his report that he believes that the effect of the depression as a producer of crime will not be outgrown for a long time, because many who have become criminal in the past year will not be able to recover their places in the ranks of good citizens.

PURVEYING POLITICAL NEWS.

One of the chief reasons for the passing of the old style partisan newspaper, which persists only in a few scattered instances, is the fact that its political news could not be relied upon. It tinctured its news columns with its partisan bias, and painted the chances of its candidates in rosy colors and the chances of their opponents in gloomy ones, no matter what the real situation might be.

Most people who buy a newspaper buy it because they expect it to furnish the news. They don't want a newspaper to report things as it would like them to be, but as they are. The editorial columns are reserved for the expression of a newspaper's opinions and beliefs, but the news columns should be free from partisan bias; they should give the news and nothing but the news.

A newspaper which reports all of the meetings held by its party as being largely attended and most enthusiastic, and all of the meetings held by the opposing party as being attended by slim and apathetic crowds composed largely of women, children and dogs, is prostituting its functions to serve the uses of partisanship; and it does not serve them at that, because its readers know enough to discredit its utterances. The Herald's policy is to put its opinions in its editorial columns and news in its news columns; which explains why it reports the meetings of candidates to whom it may be opposed as fully and as generously as it does the meetings of candidates whom it favors.

A noval newspaper enterprise has been taken up jointly by the Philadelphia Press, a Republican newspaper, and the Louisville Courier-Journal, a Democratic paper, which is a step toward providing the voters with what they want to read. These two newspapers have dispatched their Washington correspondents, both well known and reliable men, to survey the situation in the doubtful states. They travel together, and their reports appear side by side in each newspaper. Partisanship is by no means eliminated, however. While both the Republican correspondent and the Democratic correspondent manifestly try to represent conditions fairly, each is clearly controlled by a desire to find what his partisanship leads him to hope for. There is a natural tendency to minimize the bad conditions and to exaggerate the good. Besides, both of these newspapers are frankly and staunchly partisan, and the headings they place over these articles are partisan. In the Republican newspaper the headings over both reports are calculated to give hope to the Republicans; in the Democratic newspaper the headings offer hope to the Democrats.

But this plan gives readers a chance to make comparisons between the views of those who are biased toward Republicanism and the views of those who are biased toward Democracy; which helps a great deal. To the intelligent reader, fairly conversant with the general situation, they will be helpful and more or less luminous. But they show the obvious tendency of newspapers to keep partisanship out of the news columns; and that is a hopeful and wholesome tendency.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Ellis Westlake, a member of the engineering crew employed upon the construction of the Soo line extension from Brooton to this city, was at the Spalding hotel yesterday. Mr. Westlake states that the grading of the Duluth extension has extended five miles this side of Moose Lake, and that the contract calls for the completion of the grading to this city during the present year.

According to Mr. Westlake, the road is being pushed as rapidly as the contractor can rush the construction work. There is a very heavy construction crew employed upon the work at the present time. To complete the work to this city this fall it will be necessary to rush the grading along at a very high rate. According to the rate of progress established up to the present time, Mr. Westlake expressed the opinion that the grading would be completed to this city within the time limit specified in the contract.

The Soo extension strikes the main line of that road at Brooten. The completion of the Duluth extension will furnish another shortline to Winnipeg and will open another traffic artery to Western Canada. Mr. Westlake says that the territory touched by the Duluth extension is a very rich one, and with the completion of the new line this city will be placed in touch with a very fertile market that will afford a good return to the jobbers and merchants of this city.

Joseph Austin of Chisholm, who was at the St. Louis yesterday, says Chisholm is recovering rapidly from the catastrophe that almost wiped the little village out of existence. He says that shanties are being erected by the men whose homes were destroyed by th conflagration, and energetic preparations are being made to meet the rigors of winter weather. Mr. Austin says that the citizens of Chisholm displayed a courageous spirit all through the trying ordeal of the fire, and that the spirit shown by the citizens at that time is being reflected at the present time in the manner in which they are preparing to rebuild their homes.

H. S. Barto, a special representative of a New York insurance company, stated at the St. Louis last evening his belief that the prohibition movement that at the present time is sweeping over the South, would result in New Orleans becoming a prohibition city within the next two years.

"You have no idea of the strength of the prohibition movement in the South," said Mr. Barto. "I was in the South all of last winter and spring. I will give you an example of the reason why the movement is growing in the southern states.

"At Birmingham, Ala., they have large roller mills. Before the days of prohibition in Alabama it was found necessary for these mills to employ a surplus of labor. In other words, if a mill utilized 1,500 men, it was found necesary to employ perhaps 500 additional men. The reason for the rather startling statement was because of the fact that drink incapacitated many of the employes. This is an actual fact. The mill officials were not certain as to the effect prohibition would have upon the men. They were of the opinion, at least some of them, that they would have trouble to keep some of their laborers. The prohibition movement resulted in a very great good. It resulted in the officials of the mills being able to do without the substitute workmen.

"The people of the South have found that they can prosper without liquor. Of course, there is much liquor shipped into the prohibition states. But this amount does not represent one-fiftieth part of the amount consumed before the passing of the prohibition laws. Cities, which in the days before the passage of the prohibition laws, were considered tough towns, have been improved wonderfully by the prohibition of the saloon. I have talked to citizens of these cities, and they have told me that not only was the moral character of the city raised by the abolition of the saloon, but that prosperity has increased with the removing of the saloon.

"The people of the North have little idea of the extent of the prohibition sentiment in the South. It was born, in a measure, through the need of protection from the vicious negro. The business men of the South have recognized it as a means of increasing rather than diminishing prosperity, and I am of the opinion that not only will the prohibition territory of the Southern states increase, but also that the laws will never be appealed in states where prohibition laws have been passed."

D. A. Murphy of Virginia, roadmaster of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Murphy says that passenger travel and freight traffic over the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road have increased steadily since the completion of the link with Winnipeg. This represents not only local travel and freight, according to Mr. Murphy, but there has also been an increase in through freight and the numbers of travelers to Winnipeg.

Mr. Murphy says the opening of the link between this city and Winnipeg will result in developing the country between the two cities, offering greater markets to the jobbers and merchants of this city, and will result in the steady settlement and development of the country traversed by the road. Mr. Murphy states that the American towns of Roosevelt, Warroad and Baudette are developing rapidly, since the construction of the Canadian Northern railroad to the American border, and that trade between the towns and this city has increased wonderfully within a short time.

P. E. Dowling, editor of the Eveleth Star, at the St. Louis last evening stated that the rebuilding of Chisholm was progressing very rapidly. In the spring and summer of 1909 the citizens will begin the work of the permanent city, according to Mr. Dowling. At the present time he says preparations are being made to meet the cold weather.

THE WEATHER.

The northeaster didn't come, but instead this morning was warm and clear and splendid. However, the weather man still insists that worse weather is coming; he says there will be rain tonight and probably tomorrow, and that it will be cooler, with brisk northwest winds. Yesterday's highest temperature was 72 degs., and last night's lowest was 60 degs. A year ago today it was warm and fine. The sun rose this morning at 6:20 and sets tonight at 5:18, making 10 hours and 49 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Colorado storm has divided its forces into two disturbances, one of which is central this morning over Western Lake Superior, the other being over Arizona. These low pressure areas caused rains throughout the Rocky mountains, plateau regions and eastern slopes during the past twenty-four hours. There has also been a decided rise in pressure and a corresponding drop in temperature over these districts since 7 a. m. Friday. The barometer continues high in the Atlantic states and another area of this character has developed in the far Northwest. Indications favor scattered rains and colder weather at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Sunday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Helping and Being Helped.

Surely this is a great day for the altruist. The motto is no longer "everyone for himself," but "watch out for the other fellow." Not for naught have the preachers, the papers and the magazines been emphasizing the second commandment. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Despite all the selfishness that is, as yet, unexpelled from many bosoms, the spirit of helpfulness is abroad in the land. Before very long the man who never helps his fellow-man is going to be an inglorious exception.

Ideally, then, we are all in the helping business, to a greater or less extent, but some of us could accomplish more if certain barriers not of our own raising could be removed. A great many people make it hard for us to help them because they are indisposed to do much to help themselves. They remind us of those words of President Roosevelt to the effect that if a man is down and can't get up, it is ours business to help him on to his feet, but if he is lying prostrate out of pure laziness, it is better to pass him by. Charity workers often run up against such cases where it seems as if there were no native power in the man or woman to grasp the outstretched hand. Such people want to be carried, not helped, for help means taking hold with another of a common load. On the other hand I know of a young woman left a widow the other day with five small children who, by her pluck and determination, if possible, to be independent, is winning general approval. As some one said about her in my hearing only yesterday: "She does so much to help herself that it makes every one eager to help her."

A still harder person to help than the lazy man is he who over-estimates his own abilities and who confidently expects that this or that concern will want his services at a very liberal figure. Even college professors display this characteristic now and then. One such sat down in the private office of the president of a board of trustees recently and bristling with self-sufficiency, inquired: "Well, what are you going to do for me?" Such an attitude is not only impolitic, but it discourages the friends of such a man from trying to do anything for him.

At the opposite remove from this pompous expectation that other people are burning with desire to pass over to you at once whatever you may claim, is the spirit of obsequiousness that flatters and cringes before the one whose benefactions it would receive. There is a golden mean of respect coupled with a disposition not to think of oneself more highly than one ought to think. The person who yokes these two qualities can consistently seek help when he needs it and in many cases the proffer to help will anticipate his coming. To sum it all up, there is no sharp differentiation of humanity into two distinct classes, the helpers and the helped. Most of us belong in both classes and our attitude toward our fellow men is to be that of those who want both to extend and to receive help. We all need to give of what we possess—be it time or money, or talent or affection, to others. We all need to have the springs of our life replenished by what others, with superior knowledge or ability or faith, have to give us. Above all we need to maintain such an attitude toward God as will make it possible and easy for Him to help us in our trouble, suffering or sin.

THOUGHTS ON BOYS

By J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

Author of "The Young Man and Himself," etc.

HIS CLOTHES.

(Copyright, 1908, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

We seem to be getting away from the good old days when the laws of heredity had charge of the boy's clothing department. The second hand dealer, the weary tramp and the frontier missionary, with his seven closely graded boys, have come to his aid in securing the heirlooms to which he alone used to be heir apparent. Still there is a boy here and there living under the old dispensation and there are men in abundance who once lived the life of pensioners on the bounty of preceding generations. Two boys were engaged in the usual kind of a conversation and one said: "My father has some new teeth that the dentist made him." With significant promptness, his chum asked: "What's he goin' to do with his old ones?" "O, I don't know," was the response, "I suppose they'll put 'em down and make we wear 'em."

I suppose that old regime was really due to the necessity for economy, but maybe it was due to the fact that a hearty boy seldom cares for a suit of clothes bought solely for him and worn exclusively by him. Of course not! The rest of the time he would rather wear clothes that his older brother has worn, or his father or his uncle, or his grandfather or his great-grandfather or his great-uncle. It enables him to enter so happily into the family history and preserve the family esprit de corps, whatever that may mean. This is the original hand-me-down. Such clothes also have a decorative value that no tailor, however artistic, could ever impart, in the copious variety of pieces that are assembled to build and beautify a boy's habiliments, and in the varied colors—reds, yellows and browns—which his predecessor has succeeded in bringing out as he stood before the scorching fire or slushed through mud and snow.

His clothes affect his feelings, his feelings affect his conduct and Mathew Arnold was somewhere near the truth when he said that conduct is three-fourths of character. Their clothes, conduct and character are three terms that mean something when written close together. His feelings will grow out of what he thinks of them. There was a time when he loved to have gay clothes and to hear people tell how pretty he was, but he had no more respect for his clothes than to wallow in a mud puddle, if he was not watched. Clothes that heightened his boyish beauty meant little to him. But his sense of the value of clothes grew apace, especially when he would have them to match up with his growing muscle and satisfy his pride as a rapidly developing candidate for athletic or heroic distinction. But one day the value of clothes began to soar, as the traders say. He suddenly learned their true mission and it was to give him standing in certain eyes. A new world has opened up to him and deathless interests are involved in the appearance he makes. Now he deliberately washes behind his ears, shines the heels of his shoes even when in a great hurry; finds that a mirror is an indispensable article furniture for his room, gives careful attention to parting his hair and combs and brushes it all the way back, is humiliated at the little patches on his trousers that are within view of his own eyes and actually blushes when he thinks of patches around on the other side of him, which he cannot see but others can. When the question of calling to see certain persons comes up, it always involves the prior question of clothes.

Those who were children so long ago that they have forgotten all about it are apt to treat the whole matter in a cavalier way and say: "It is not your clothes, my son, that count, but yourself. Pretty is as pretty does." All of which is true, but not all the truth. That new consciousness of self calls for a suitable care of his physical self—clothes. The new sense of others requires him to present himself to them in a satisfactory way—clothes. A new pride in his own family calls for clothes. There are two ways to treat this clothes instinct—fight it and bring on the great irrepressible conflict or cultivate and correct it and co-operate with him in doing so.

To him as to every one else, there is power in apparel. Let the color be blue and the buttons brass and the seams down the trousers distinctive and he is already nerved to deeds of heroism. Put on him clothes that do not wound his taste nor puff up his pride and he has no artificial load to carry. Teach him to dress himself with due regard to comfort and to the sanctity of that sacred mystery, the body, and you have given him some of the deep lessons of life. There is a culture in the art of dressing, which first of all puts the man above all millinery and then adapts the millinery to him with a sense of his absorbing superiority.

MODERN PORTIAS WILL PRACTICE BEFORE THE U. S. SUPREME COURT

Sisters Who Are Admitted to Honor Were Born in Nova Scotia.

Two Washington women—Miss Ethel M. Colford and Miss Florence M. Colford, twin sisters—were admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States the other day.

The Misses Colford have been practicing law in the capital for several years, and have been associated with their uncle, Clarence Colford.

They were born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, but received much of their education here, graduating from the Convent of the Visitation. Their legal studies were pursued at the Washington College of Law, from which they graduated in 1903 as bachelors of law. The following year each received a degree of master of law. Last year George Washington University conferred upon each of them the degree of master of patent law, this being a unique distinction, as they are the only women who hold that degree.

Shortly after graduating from the Washington College of Law they were admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia and Court of Appeals. They

DIET AND HEALTH

MILK FOR BABES, BUTTERMILK FOR ADULTS.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

All authorities on diet say that milk is a perfect food. This is true in a sense, and in another it is altogether untrue and misleading.

The natural food of the infant is mother's milk. But the appalling mortality of infants is due chiefly to the use of cow's milk, carrying the seeds of disease from the cow, the air and water, and planting them in a soil made favorable by improper feeding, lack of fresh air, bathing and exercise. Not even cereal starch kills more infants between the ages of one and six than does milk in the first two years.

Cow's milk differs materially from the infant's natural food, containing twice as much proteid and only about half as much sugar, but the danger lies more in the contamination of the milk sold in the cities. Fortunately good work is being done in many places to remedy this evil.

Milk is called the perfect food because it contains all the elements necessary for the growth of the infant, and in the proper proportion. But the physical constitution and development of the infant differ much from those of the adult, and the food should differ accordingly.

The growth of the infant in the first six years is rapid, and a large proportion of lime is necessary to build the bony framework. Milk is in this respect an appropriate food for the infant and inappropriate for the adult. The lime of milk being little needed for maintaining the bony framework of the adult, is largely deposited in the arteries, contributing to the distinctive disease of old age—hardening of the arteries.

Hardening of the Arteries.

The prime cause of hardening of the arteries, which is also a cause of "heart failure" and of certain forms of insanity, is auto-intoxication, or self-poisoning, resulting from the absorption of waste matter from the lower part of the alimentary canal, of which I shall have more to say in dealing with "Bread," in a subsequent article.

Deficiency of iron in the blood of the adult is serious; the percentage of iron in cow's milk is small, corresponding to the nervous inactivity of the infant. In this particular milk is a very unsatisfactory adult diet, though it sustains life indefinitely.

But the unsuitability of milk to the adult is more evident on comparing the infant with the adult anatomy and physiology: In the infant, for instance, the upper part of the alimentary canal is almost a straight tube, allowing the milk to pass quickly to the intestine, which is adapted to its digestion. The adult stomach is a deeply curved pouch, which in certain abnormal conditions retains the food for several hours longer than the proper time for digestion. The fermentation of milk alone is not always serious, but the fermentation of meat, cereals and fruits in the stomach, through the agency of milk, leads to serious results.

The proportion of iron in the blood is very small, but very important. When it is found to be deficient, it is very difficult to supply it. Probably its best source is excluded from our fine patent white flours, of which we shall speak later. Grapes, the brown part of wheat, cabbage (raw) and lettuce readily supply iron. It has been found that persons living exclusively on milk lack "sand," a quality which the infant never needs to display, since it is absolutely dependent.

The Infant's Liver.

In the infant the liver is relatively much larger and more active than in the adult. In a number of cases in which the results of an exclusive milk diet were found to be injurious, the liver was weak and inactive, as indicated by sallow skin, jaundiced eyes and internal indications. In such cases, as a rule, unfermented grape juice, pineapples, lemons and oranges are indicated. Sweet milk is always injurious in these cases in adults.

In flesh-eating animals the stomach and liver are much larger in proportion than in the vegetable-eaters. An apparent exception is found in the ruminating animals, like the cow, which gathers a large quantity of food and stores it in the first of a series of stomachs for future chewing. The development of the food tube indicates the food adapted to the animal. Although the infant digestive organs are better adapted to milk than the adult's, they are not perfectly adapted to cow's milk. To feed a dog or a child of two years on "what we eat ourselves" indicates a sympathetic but thoughtless disposition.

Sterilized or boiled milk is open to the same objection as roasted peanuts. Its vitality, its real life-giving qualities are largely destroyed.

It is most unfortunate that our people are ignorant of the value of goat's milk, especially for infant feeding. The goat is the healthiest of all animals and the slowest to degenerate when domesticated. Rarely, if ever, is the goat known to contract tuberculosis or any other disease. The milk is superior in every way to cow's, and the poorest can own a "poor man's cow," which can be fed on the potato peelings, cabbage leaves or anything else that is clean.

Hardly any other food is compatible with milk, except uncooked whipped eggs, rice or toasted bread. Flesh meat, being a stomach food, is particularly inharmonious with milk. The Jewish instructions on diet prohibit eating meat and milk together, though this may be for an ethical reason.

The Monodiet.

The writer has recently made several days' tests of an exclusive milk diet on himself and others, carefully recording results. A change from the ordinary mixed diet to any monodiet is beneficial, and milk is not an exception. But the benefits derived from the milk diet which have recently been much advertised should be credited to the monodiet, avoiding the injurious effects of mixing several incompatible foods at the same meal. Equally satisfactory results can be shown from many other monodiets—even the peanut, which is the most concentrated of all foods, containing an excess of albumen. Great gains have been recorded from exclusive diets of beans, oatmeal, wheat, etc., as well as milk, pursued for sixty days or more.

Prof. Metchnikoff, head of the Pasteur institute, who has made most praiseworthy investigations into the causes of our early decay, has concluded that the failure of the average man to live his natural term of life, 100 years, is due to the development of pathogenic germs in the lower part of the food tube from improperly digested, superfluous food, and recommends the use of butermilk as an antidote.

The chief causes of the offending conditions in the colon, the large intestine, leading to a constant poisoning of the stream of life, are: Too much food, eaten hurriedly; too much starch and not enough fruit, and bad combinations of foods, good in themselves. Buttermilk is not a natural corrective of these abnormal conditions, although it no doubt serves as an antidote, nor is the "internal bath," good in a way, the true remedy; the cause should be removed.

It has been said that "wine is the milk of age," and of unfermented wine this is true. The grape contains much sugar, acid and iron, which are deficient in milk. The most noted case of prolonged life in history, that of Cornaro, the Venetian nobleman in the sixteenth century, was due to a uniform diet, consisting chiefly of unfermented wine with an egg daily. The egg supplied the fat, sulphur and albumen deficient in the "light wine," or grape juice. Broken down at 40 by indulgence in eating and drinking, Cornaro lived to be more than 100 by simple living.

How to Make Good Buttermilk at Home.

You can make the best buttermilk any day in your own kitchen. And there is nothing better for digestive disorders, and especially for intestinal troubles, or as a substitute in infant feeding, in certain cases.

You can get at the drug store tablets containing the lactic acid bacterium culture that will convert sweet milk into full cream buttermilk by simply dropping a tablet into a quart bottle of milk and maintaining the proper temperature, according to the instructions. Not only because this full cream buttermilk contains the fat in emulsified form is it better than the buttermilk you buy of the buttermilk man, but because the lactic acid bacterium prevents the development of injurious bacteria in the milk. This is important in the case of infants. Cholera infantum, some forms of diarrhoea and perhaps typhoid can be avoided in this way. Here is the most important practical application of the germ theory yet made, a boon for infant humanity, a recovery in some degree of the loss due to departing from nature in infant feeding as a result of departing from nature in other ways.

Prof. Metchnikoff discovered that the Bohemians have a greater percentage of centenarians than any other people, and the Bohemians drink more buttermilk than any other people.

It has long been known that buttermilk is a valuable food medicine—even when soured by lightning. We can not always command the thunder, but science has discovered how to make buttermilk without a churn and without lightning, and without separating the butter. Butterless buttermilk is good, full-cream buttermilk is better in most cases.

Largely Predigested.

Cow's milk is digested by the infant with difficulty, often resulting in complete breakdown of the digestive and nervous system; but the adult digestive system is not so well adapted to the digestion of milk and hence flatulence and absolute revulsion often result from its continued use. But buttermilk causes no such difficulties, because it is in a sense largely predigested, the coarser curds of the casein in cow's milk being finely broken up.

This removes the greatest objection to cow's milk as a diet for infants and as an ideal monodiet for adults in severe stomach and bowel troubles.

A certain amount of fat is necessary to the best conditions for normal nutrition, and fat is about 2½ times more valuable as a heat and energy producer than other forms of carbon; and of the fats, butter is the most easily assimilated, except peanut and olive oil. But emulsified as the fat is in milk, it is much more easily assimilated than as butter. For this reason, and for others, the new way of making buttermilk gives a much more nutritious product and more digestible, especially for the infant.

Cow's milk cannot be made identical with the infant's natural food, but it can be approximated to it. The chief difficulty to be overcome is to adapt the large curds that tend to remain in the stomach longer than they should, as the development of the calf's stomach requires that its food shall have a much heavier curd than that required by the infant in which intestinal digestion is more important. The use of buttermilk tablets obviates this difficulty, besides overcoming other objections to the use of cow's milk. But the objection naturally arises that soured milk is not natural. The reply is that cow's milk is not natural. Certainly tests of buttermilk have proved it very satisfactory.

PETER: A novel of which he is not the hero. By F. Hopkinson Smith. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.50.

Dear old Peter! Some of us are certain to disagree with the author of this vastly entertaining and comforting book as to whether or not the real hero is Peter Grayson, whose twinkling eyes, rosy young-old face, shining poll and capacious heart will endear him to every reader of the book, no matter what the outcome may be of speculation over the candidates for the heroship. Our first glimpse into the story is over the shoulders of Peter, "still poring over his ledger on a dark afternoon in December, his bald head glistening like a huge ostrich egg under the flare of the overhead gas jets." Immediately our affections are permanently engaged for Peter, and a little later we are amazed and delighted at the number of lovable and admirable people the author has made us acquainted with. But no matter where we wander through the story with these other new friends, we shall always come back to dear old Peter, and revel in the companionship of his fine cheer and optimism, his charitable soul and his loving heart. It is distinctly a pleasure to turn from the salacious and the sensational to something so real and wholesome as this latest and most ambitious work of F. Hopkinson Smith, author, artist, architect and optimistic student of humanity. As usual, he brings into the book his artists and architects, breezy, wholesome fellows, in whose affectionate description the author always takes and gives delight. There are others not so pleasant, of course; they are needed as shadows to give relief and effect to the high lights; stockbrokers and purse-proud magnates, who affect forgetfulness of their humble beginnings and expand in vauntings of the costliness of their wines and the vastness of their stock-market killings. The nominal hero is fine, sincere, earnest and quixotic; the heroine is sweet and lovable—unaffected and womanly. There are other pleasant people in the story, particularly notable being a delightful Jew tailor, a friend of Peter, who is savant, gentleman and tailor all rolled into one. The hero does prodigies of intelligent and faithful and capable work, gets into a pretty mess through his quixotic friendship, and has to have the author get him out of it; all of which is done in the author's best and most charmingly gossipy style, making a story that will taste good in the taking and live pleasantly in the memory.

This captivating story will undoubtedly prove to be one of the notable children's books of the year. It is a verse-book recounting the delights of the Muffin Man and his shop, situated in Pudding Lane. The much-tried Jack and Jill, the sensitive Miss Muffet, Mr. and Mrs. Spratt, a study of contrasts, the Son of the Piper and his Spotted Pig, and many other inhabitants of Mother-Goose Land, visit the Muffin shop and buy muffins at a "penny each." The child is given fresh and sparkling glimpses of characters he already loves. It is a connected story delightfully told, and will appeal unfailingly to the little folks. By no means the least attractive things in the book are the illustrations in colors by Miss Hope Dunlap. They are sure to capture the child's fancy, for the pages are alive with gay color and the designs are most artistic.

THE LONG ARM OF MANNISTER. By E. Phillips Oppenheim. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

The author himself has mentioned "Monte Cristo," so he will probably not resent the statement that in the preparation of this volume of thrills he has taken a card from Dumas. Mannister is robbed of his wife and his fortune by a junta of rascals, and when he finds it out he plans revenge. One by one, with a different cruelty for each, he wreaks that revenge with refined and subtle malice—though the events disclose the fact that Mannister is not so completely a devil as the bald relation would make it appear. He has nine scores to clean off where Monte Cristo had but three, and where in another century he might have given orders to a band of assassins to "remove" them from his path, he devises more modern and more lawful methods, the descriptions of which, combined into this volume, form a story quite as absorbing as this master of thrills has ever produced.

THE MAN WHO ENDED WAR. By Hollis Godfrey. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

One moment a splendid modern battleship, proud in her flying colors and alive with her hundreds of men, plows a calm ocean. The next instant, without a sound or a ripple on the water, she disappears from the sight of men who rub their eyes and clasp their reeling heads in terrified amazement. She has been destroyed by the Man Who Ended War, and that is the way he ended it. After giving due notice to the world, he destroys battleship after battleship by the use of a powerful but vaguely-described force evolved out of radium. When war comes, in spite of his warning, he calmly destroys two hostile fleets, resolving the metals that composed them to their ultimate elements. Of course the telling of all this—and of the romance that accompanies it—makes a narrative to be followed with bated breath. There is something fascinating about the pseudo-scientific story, of which this is an example, always providing you accept the story without too critical analysis of the science which is its skeleton. In only one or two places does the interest lag, and taken as a whole, while the volume is a frankly unpretentious "shocker," it well serves the uses of those seeking distraction.

THE SUNNY SIDE OF THE HILL. By Rosa Nouchette Carey. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company. $1.50.

A very wholesome and entertaining novel for girls, dealing with a charming family of clean, wholesome, lovable young people, with real individualities—not mere puppets to set a scene of mechanical action. Miss Carey's admirable novels are intended for the young women who have lately given up the literature of childhood and who demand something a little more mature, with a clean type of romance in it. They are very much better for such young women than the recklessly-administered doses of miscellaneous fiction which so many of them are allowed to take nowadays, though no doubt it would create a prejudice in many young minds against Miss Carey's books if you mentioned that sentiment in their hearing; which would be an injustice to Miss Carey, whose books, though clean and helpful, are full of interest. They are notable for their lack of mawkinsh and overwrought sentiment. The literary style is good, and that is an influence not to be underestimated.

THE TETHER. By Ezra S. Brudno. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company. $1.50.

This is a realistic story of the Jews of America, written understandingly, but without literary whitewashing, by a Jew. The hero is a young Polish Jew peddler boy, whose thirst for knowledge and advancement are awakened by a young Gentile woman, who is an artist. His father is an extremely orthodox Jew, who yields reluctantly to the lad's desire to gain an education, fearing the influence of Gentile ways. This father, by the way, is a fine character, whose gentle and undecided prejudices are skillfully drawn by the author. The lad, with the help of American friends, goes to Harvard, and becomes a poet and a good deal of a popular favorite. He falls in love with an American girl, and the happy culmination of their romance is barely averted by the tightening tether of race prejudice. The author is merciless in his portraiture of Jewish snobs, and he is equally unsparing when the snobs happen to be Americans. He is particularly trenchant in his descriptions of those who, gaining coveted wealth, hold themselves aloof from those of their race who are less fortunate. His attack upon "rishus"—race prejudice—is just as scathing when it deals with rich Jewh who affect superiority by virtue of their riches alone, and Bavarian or German Jews who affect racial supremacy over Polish or Russian Jews, as he is when he deals with purseproud Americans who look down on the Jewish race as a whole. The story makes bitter fun of affectation and snobbery in Jew and Gentile alike. The quality of the story deteriorates slightly when it leaves the Boston Ghetto and the quaint types which it so well describes there and in the better sections peopled by rich Jews and Gentiles, and rises to its former level when the sweep of events takes it back to the environments in which the hero's boyhood was passed. The former Ghetto lad has triumphs, wins friendship and affection and even love among his Gentile associates; but just before complete success is grasped he is stayed by the Barrier and held back by the Tether—of race prejudice. Though uneven, the story has many elements of strength, and there is in it an abundant interest and much freshness and reality.

TRUE TALES OF THE PLAINS. By Col W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill). New York: The Empire Book Company. $1.

The life of Buffalo Bill, the "Last of the Great Scouts," as another volume has termed him, has been full of variety and adventure, and a good deal of both is crowded into this volume. The story is told simply and, withal, modestly. Born in Iowa, he moved with his parents to Kansas when he was 8 years old. His father becoming embroiled in the border warfare over slavery, the lad saw much excitement, and witnessed a fight in which his father received a wound from which he subsequently died. William, then 11, undertook to support his mother and his brothers and sisters. Getting employment with a firm of overland freighters, he was with a freight train when it was attacked by Indians, and in that fight he killed his first redskin—a chief. For more than a generation thereafter he was in the thick of the Indian wars that raged in the West. Many of these famous border battles are thrillingly described. The book will appeal not only for its thrills, but for its historical value. It contains some good pictures.

LEWIS RAND. By Mary Johnston. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.50.

This thrilling romance of the days of Thomas Jefferson is the first novel from the pen of Miss Johnston in the last four years. The plot centers about the Napoleonic character of Lewis Rand, who becomes one of the great men of his party and time—a self-made hero, a man of achievement and overwhelming ambition, whose fortunes are followed by the reader with absorbing and even breathless interest. In no American novel yet written have we had such a vivid picture of the exciting early years of the last century—the years in which the contest for supremacy between the party of Jefferson and the aristocratic Federalists reached an intensity which has perhaps never been paralleled in America. The personal complications and dramatic, often tragic, situations resulting from this warfare of the parties have afforded Miss Johnston the material for a narrative of tremendous power, and one which will be of special interest to American readers in a presidential year. Her brilliant, masterly portrayal of Jefferson, and of the trial of Aaron Burr, would alone make the book notable, while the rich background of the suave old Virginia life, with its stately homes, its beautiful women and rich, romantic ideals, has given her an opportunity to tell a moving love story with all the fire and fervor that the readers of "To Have and To Hold" so well remember. The book is admirably illustrated in color by F. C. Yohn.

REALLY BABIES. By Elizabeth B. Brownell. Chicago: Rand, McNally & Co. $1.25.

This is a book of charming rhymes, which will make a strong appeal to children. The verses are such that little folks will demand they be read again and again, and that grown-ups will delight in reading to children on account of the true pictures of the unforgettable days of childhood, so delightfully presented. The illustrations show a sympathetic understanding of child nature and unusual skill in photography. The arrangement of pictures and text is artistic and effective. A large full-page picture is shown on the left-hand pages, while on the opposite pages beneath the rhymes appear smaller illustrations. The book is beautifully printed in two colors, on a light shade of India tint paper. The pictures are printed in photo-brown over a tint block of lighter shade, producing a pleasing and artistic effect.

Among the Magazines.

Smith's for November appears on the newsstands with a bigger, better and more varied assortment of good things than we have seen assembled within the covers of any one number of a magazine in some time. Emma Lee Walton's complete novel, "The Uses of Adversity," is a splendid study of Chicago life that will catch every woman's attention through its humor, novelty and charming love-story. "The First Operatic War," by Rupert Hughes is a short history of one period in the growth and development of grand opera that no music lover can afford to miss. Those interested in houses, or who think of building or buying, should read Charles de Kay's article, "The All-Concrete Dwelling." Annette Austin's paper, "Shall the Girl Go to College?" should be read by every mother with a grown-up daughter. Florence Augustine contributes an interesting article on new ideas in hairdressing and the art of choosing a becoming hat that should interest every woman. The short stories in this number are far above the average.

Rita Graves' story of a suicide bureau advertising "Advice to Timid Suicides," in the November Smart Set, is one of the striking magazine features of the month. There is a curious story centering about the mysterious Madame Morte and her patrons, one of whom at least has cause at last to bless her and her activities in this unusual line of work.

Helen Frances Huntington shows a remarkable knowledge of a certain side of official life in the British Indian service in her story, "The Leaven of Regret." This tells of a young officer who spoils his career by a heedless blunder, and of the splendid reparation he makes for the sake of the "one" woman. "An Automobilist's Vocabulary," by Ellis Parker Butler, is a humorous take of a would-be tourist who contemplates a motor trip through France on a working vocabulary of "three French words and a shrug of the shoulders."

This issue of the Smart Set contains a complete novel, "An International Drama," by Christian Reid, and a round dozen stories of an intense, unusual type.

The Popuar Magazine for November is strikingly attractive in a colorful and realistic football cover by Leyendecker. Within, the college athletic tone is continued in a complete novel by Ralph D. Paine, "The Stroke-oar." This exuberant story of campus, river and harum-scarum adventure is fully up to the standard Popular has set for itself, of youth, vigor and Americanism. Mr. Paine's peculiar whimsical humor was a delight in "The Wild Man of Jersey," but here in an entirely different kind of story he proves his versatility. Himself formerly a Yale oarsman, he writes intimately of a life with every detail of which he is familiar. "The Avenger," by M. R. Rinehart, is a dramatic little bit with truth and a thrill in every line.

Modern geniuses promise much, and had some of those now operating in the field of construction lived in the days of Romulus, Rome might have been built in little more than a day at best. In the House and Garden for November, Lawrence LaRue discusses some different devices and system now employed for the rapid erection of houses and buildings where Portland cement concrete is used, and it would seem that the promise held out in the above heading might be reasonably safe of fulfilment within a very short time.

While magazines try—and usually succeed, too—to preserve a general high-grade tone in the matter they publish, occasionally they discover a story of rare merit that stands out like a prince among courtiers. Gunter's Magazine for November indeed offers such a story. This "find" is called "The Case of the Countess," by Arthur Cecil Edwards, and, besides being a delightful romance with a typical setting in the blue Mediterranean, it is also a most interesting psychological study of that fickle quantity, a woman's affection. The style of narration is both piquant and mellow. The hero is a pirate and the heroine a Frenchwoman. Here is a story well worth while.

Among the special features in the Delineator for November are: "Where 100,000 Children Walt," by Mabel Potter Daggett; "How I Preached My Greatest Sermon," by Charles H. Parkhurst; "Are the Dead Alive?" by Fremont Rider; "What Is the Matter With the Public Schools?" by Rheta Childe Dorr; "The Country Girl Who Is Coming to the City," by Rheta Satchelder; "What You Ought to Know About Your Baby," by Leonard Keene Hirschberg, M. D.; "My Lady in Haste," by Jean Dwight Frankin; "The Society Girl and Her Mother," by Mabel Herber Norner; "What Paris Is Wearing," by Edouard La Fontaine.

Among the most important of the 180 illustrations in the November number of Popular Mechanics are those of Wright Bros.' aeroplane in the recent tests at Fort Myer and of the accident which befall Orville Wright and Lieut. Selfridge. The Shop Notes department contains fifty-five articles and forty-three illustrations, every article written so any one can understand it. The Amateur Mechanics department for November is exceptionally interesting, describing among other things the construction of a thermo-electric battery, a mission library table and a bicycle catamaran.

The leading articles in the Technical World Magazine for November include the following: "Eliminating Railroad Accidents," by S. O. Dunn; "Growing the 'Gator for His Hide," by Day Allen Willey; "America's Greatest Water-Power," by Guy E. Mitchell; "Sauce for the Goose vs. Sauce for the Gander," a story by George Frederic Stratton; "Wright Brothers Make Good," by Rene Bache; "The American Hen—Her Right to Grow," by Jean Mitchell; "Case-Hardening With Gas," by J. F. Springer; "Profits in Bamboo," by Frank N. Bauskett; "A Wonderful Flitration Plant," by C. Ackenhell; "New Law of Heredity in Plants and Animals," by J. B. Van Brusset.

The hostess received in a beautiful gown of ivory ninon de sole inset with embroidered chiffon with diamond ornaments. In the dining room the tea table, centred by a bowl of pale pink orchids and lilies of the valley surrounded by spirals of the same blossoms, was presided over by Mrs. George Carruthers and Mrs. Howe (Minneapolis), who was relieved by Mrs. Philippen. In the billiard room lovely with great vases of yellow chrysanthemums, was another tea table in charge of Mrs. F. J. Sharpe and later Mrs. Cameron. One Diamond is Worth More Than Another of equal weight, first of all because it has BETTER COLOR and is MORE BRILLIANT. The possession of these two qualities adds from 10 to 25 per cent and often more to the value of the gem, and are therefore the first to be considered in the making of a purchase.

In buying a Klein diamond, there is absolutely no risk, for we have considered these valuable qualities in making our selection—and gems of questionable color find no place in our stock.

ELSIE FRENCH VANDERBILT, DIVORCEE, MAY MARRY AGAIN

Rumor Has It That Willing Spencer is Willing —Newport Society Man.

New York, Oct. 17.—With the arrival, on the steamship Rotterdam, of Willing Spencer, the Philadelphia and Newport society man, kinsman of Mrs. John Jacob Astor, there was another well-defined rumor that Mr. Spencer soon would wed Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, who was divorced only a short time ago from Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. Mr. Spencer denied the report.

"It is true that I saw Mrs. Vanderbilt while I was abroad," he said. "It is true that we are warm friends. I admire her very much. She is a charming woman, and any man who had an opportunity to become her husband should, indeed, feel highly honored.

"I believe that Mrs. Vanderbilt, when she returned from Europe a short time ago, characterized the reports as ridiculous. I cannot be any more emphatic than to use the same word she has. The report is ridiculous, and that ends it."

A fellow passenger with Mr. Spencer was William P. Burden, whose wife, Mrs. Natica Rives Burden, was killed by gas some time ago. Mr. Spencer and Mr. Burden are close friends.

TWO-CENT RATE HELPS NORTHERN PACIFIC ROAD.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 17.—According to the report of the Northern Pacific Railway company, just issued, combined freight and passenger business for the year showed an increase of $707,190.63. The great increase was in the passenger receipts, which totaled $18,133,238.52, or $1,812,377.20 more than that of the preceeding year. This was in spite of the reduction of a 2-cent rate.

The freight business of the company fell off to a great extent during the year and reported a decrease of $1,256,533.40. General expenses were reduced nearly $100,000. On account of the decrease in the transportation of lumber and other low class materials, the rate per ton mile of freight earnings increased from .00866 to .009.

the EVENING STORY

HIS FRIEND JESSIE

By Belle Maniates.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

The house seemed strangely big and empty to Edna as she sat in her boudoir, her head buried in her hands, trying to grasp the conditions of her position—a young society woman who had just instigated proceedings for a divorce. There had been no scene or scandal. The trouble had come very suddenly and quietly. Her husband, Walter Landon, had confronted her one evening with a serious face and the astonishing declaration that her cousin, Billy Jerome, was on altogether too familiar footing in their household, and that she was to bestow less time and attention upon him.

"Why, Walter," protested Edna, half amused and wholly amazed, "Billy and I have been brought up like brother and sister, and had never been separated until he went west a few years ago. I couldn't get up the least sentiment for him even if I didn't care for you."

"But you are not brother and sister, and I tell you frankly it maddens me to see him appropriate you as a matter of course, and I will not permit you to drive with him as frequently as you do."

Further argument followed, but Walter was peremptory in reiterating his commands. He left the city that night on a business trip, and in his absence Edna made her plans quietly and unalterably.

"Walter," she said coldly on his return, "I think it advisable that we separate. Not on Billy's account, not because he is anything to me, but because he is anything to me, but because of your stand in this matter. My eyes are suddenly opened to the fact that you are unreasonably jealous and narrow-minded. I tell you frankly that I will not accede to any request or command as absurd and uncalled for as the one you made in regard to my seeing Billy, studies. I desire a separation at once. A divorce can follow in due time."

He was as astounded as she had been at his first move. He remained silent for a moment. Then it dawned upon him that she was indeed infatuated with Billy, and taken this means to be free.

"If you desire a separation," he said in a low, strange voice, "you shall have one."

She was a little piqued and startled at his ready acquiescence.

"I have thought it all over," she replied. "Lillian and I can live here, and you can take apartments for yourself. We can quietly begin proceedings for a divorce on the grounds of incompatibility. I have my own property, and you can make suitable provision for Lillian."

"There is one point," he said, "you have overlooked. I cannot be separated altogether from Lillian."

"Walter! As if I would put a feather between you two. She shall come to you as often as you desire."

"But—" he hesitated. "In the event of your remarrying—"

She flushed and averted her face.

"In the event of my remarrying," she said haughtily, "I will give Lillian up to you entirely."

"She is indeed infatuated," he thought with a pang, "to be willing to part with her child."

The next day he moved into apartments, and Edna's aunt came to her. It was the time of year when nearly the every one was out of town, and the few who came to the house supposed Walter to be absent on one of his frequent business trips.

Two weeks, the longest ones of Edna's existence, had dragged through and she was more wretched than she cared to acknowledge. Even the moment of triumph, when Billy had announced publicly the fact of his approaching marriage to a girl out West, and had gone to the home of his future bride, did not bring her the enjoyment she had expected to feel in witnessing Walter's chagrin.

As she sat alone in her boudoir pondering over the estrangement, she heard the patter of little steps in the hall, and she lifted her head expectantly. Lillian had been spending the day with her father, and Edna was always interested in hearing the child prattle of these visits.

"Oh, mamma!" exclaimed the little girl, excitedly. "I had such a lovely time. We all went on the river in a big boat—and—"

"Who went with you?" asked Edna, quickly.

"Papa and his friend."

"What friend?"

"A new friend, Jessie."

"Lillian," she said, angrily, "don't ever mention that Jessie's name to me again.

The little lip quivered.

"Jessie was lovely to me! I like Jessie!"

So the intriguing Jessie was winning her child's affections as well as her husband's. She decided that she would not allow the child to go to her father again. She spent a miserable night. When the summons came for Lillian the next morning, Edna, who loved her child passionately, had not the heart to refuse Lillian's pleading.

Toward dusk, as she was beginning to be anxious at Lillian's prolonged absence, Dr. Brandon, an old friend, was announced.

"Why, doctor," she cried delightedly, "I didn't know you had returned.

"I came home a few days ago and have been trying to call, but have been prevented. Are you quite well?" he asked, looking scrutinizingly into her wistful face.

"Oh, yes, very well. I want you to stay until Lillian comes. She may grown so—"

"I came to tell you about Lillian. I have just come from—her father's. She is slightly ill—no, don't be alarmed! It's a very slight disorder, but the weather has changed so suddenly, I thought it prudent for her to remain indoors for a day or two. She wants you—In fact, won't stay tonight without you. May I take you back with me? My carriage is here."

"Has Walter told you?" she asked with a burning blush, as she looked shamefacedly from him on their way to the child.

"Yes," she replied, gravely; "and he said to assure you he would occupy my apartments tonight. They are just opposite his."

She scarcely heard him. A sudden flash had come to her troubled mind.

"Dr. Brandon," she exclaimed, "isn't your first name Jesse?"

"Why, yes," he replied in surprise.

"And were you up the river with Walter and Lillian yesterday?"

"Yes; the child asked me what my name was, and I told her 'Jesse,' and she proceeded to call me that to my delight and her father's distress."

He wondered at the radiant face uplifted. As they came into Walter's apartments she heard a door in the next room close, and knew that he had left because of her arrival.

Lillian gave a little pleased cry at the sight of her mother and friend. After a few moments Edna turned to the doctor.

"Will you please ask Walter to come back here a moment? I want to see him."

The doctor was away in a trice to do her bidding. With beating heart Edna heard the well-known step in the hall, and she went into the outer room. The door opened.

"Walter," she said, yearningly, "I know, now, how you felt about Billy—"

"Dear," she said when she was released from his embrace, "will you stop these awful proceedings?"

"Darling, I never began them! I simply couldn't."

FIST SHAKING IN OIL HEARING

Standard's Attorney Protests Against Conduct of Frank B. Kellogg.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Cross-examination of W. D. Hurlbut, expert traffic witness, called by the defense, brought out several clashes between counsel for the government and for the Standard Oil company today in the hearing of the railroad phase of the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company. At one point Judge Ferris was appealed to by Attorney Rosenthal to direct Frank B. Kellogg, government counsel, to stand farther away from the witness and to stop shaking his fist in the face of the witness." Judge Ferris held that he had seen no improper conduct.

On touching the establishment of a 13-cent rate between Whiting and Grand Junction by which, at the request of the Illinois Central road, the connecting roads are alleged to have blindlilled oil from Whiting to Evansville, Mr. Hurlbut testified that the Illinois Central acquiesced in the hauling of oil by the Chicago & Eastern Illinois road to the junction point, in order to share in part of the haul rather than have the oil shipped by way of its principal competitor, the Louisville & Nashville road.

The 13-cent rate he declared, was probably made because the Standard Oil company preferred to send the business by another road if that rate was not made.

Mr. Hurlbut insisted that the general practice of the railroads was to use local state rates in connection with through shipments until after the passage of the Hepburn act in 1906.

SHOWS GRAFT IN MOVING PICTURE SHOW.

New York, Oct. 17.—The investigation into the affairs of the city license bureau, which ras received in a number of answers "graft" charges, produced another sensation. Francis Edwards and his wife, who have a moving picture show at Jamaica, had been called to testify regarding the manner in which they procured a license for their place.

During their examination they pointed out and identified City Detective Arthur Tillman as a man who had collected $25 a month from them as "protection money." Tillman emphatically denied the accusations. The detective is attached to the staff of Police Inspector Sweeney.

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

RECTOR REFUSES TO BE BISHOP

Washington, Oct. 17.—Giving as a controlling reason that his work in Boston is still unfinished, Rev. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity (Episcopal) church of that city, has declined the position of bishop of Washington to succeed the late Right Rev. Henry Satterlee. Another convention will be called to fill the vacancy. Mr. Mann's declination is the third since the death of Bishop Satterlee about six months ago. Right Rev. Charles H. Bront, bishop of the Philippines twice refused the bishopric on the ground that his work there required his presence.

IN THE FASHIONABLE MODISTE'S SHOP

THE EXTREME OF A NEW MODE.

THE STRAMERED GAINSBOROUGH A PARIS NOVELTY IN TRIMMINGS.

THE GEORGETTE IN PANNE VELVET

COQUETTISH DIRECTOIRE POKE

French lace to shirr in graduated ruffles upon the brim and enough velvet ribbon to interlace over the crown and to form a band about it that may be knotted at the back in long loops and streamers. Despite the velvet trimmings, the lace brim lends the lamp-shade shape a distinctly summery air which is further emphasized by the cluster of orchids posed carelessly against the crown's edge directly over the wearer's eyes.

The New Cavalier.

Instinctively one thinks of dashing cavaliers, sixteenth century swashbucklers and eighteenth century guardsmen when milliners proudly exhibit the latest manifestation of the cavalier hat which is at its best when of some stiff material covered with thick satin or with panne velvet, for to be entirely correct the right brim must stand out stiffly from the crown and the left roll sharply against it, to be held in place, apparently, by a cluster of short thick ostrich plumes in self-color. It is the smartest thing imaginable in dark one-toned chapeaux, but it does not take the spectator long to realize that it is really our home-grown "Merry Widow" agreeably transformed.

Every Woman Her Own Milliner.

An amazing array of ostrich feathers causes the observer to exclaim: "If a woman had her choice of those long plumes, short tips, coronets, aigrettes and wreaths she could readily trim her own hats!" forgetting for the time being how exceedingly expensive such trimmings are if they are worth the buying, and how perishable in a climate of winds and dampness. Yet, despite its costliness and its fragility, it is the ostrich feather that bobs up serenely, season after season, and survives every change of fashion, solely by right of its beauty and the fascination which it has for the average woman. Providing that the amateur milliner has a supply of hats suitable for other occasions than those of ceremony, she cannot do better than devote her pin money to the purchase of one of the willow or South African plume wreathes made over white frames that may be adjusted to hats of any shape or size, for positively no further trimming will be necessary.

Broad, Flat Bows.

For the time being the so-called milliners' bow is in a state of eclipse and a bow that strongly resembles those worn upon women's pumps has superseded it, that going on hats, however, being in from three to five layers of flat loops, each one extending about half an inch beyond the other. These bows are never seen on any but the tailored hats of the better class, and often they form the sole trimming, the ribbon being of a thick, corded quality, somewhat resembling Ottoman and of rather extreme width. They are also used in connection with short wings and in nearly every instance are apparently fastened down with a large buckle or a pair of cabachon-headed pins.

How Hats Are Worn.

The latest receipt for properly adjusting the hat, as given by a well known New York milliner to a customer, is to stand before the mirror, suspend the hat straight above the head and then set it squarely and firmly upon the crown, allowing it to go as far over the sides of the head as it will. It matters not if the upper half of the face is entirely concealed or that the wearer has a depressed appearance of countenance, but she positively must not look rakish, as she inevitably will appear if a shape of mammoth proportions, unsustained by a bandeau, is permitted to tilt in the slightest degree toward one side or the other. In none of the autumn hats are bandeaux to be found, and as the hair is always worn flat and broad, the problem of adjusting the headgear correctly and then keeping it in position is one which a number of women have not as yet solved to their complete satisfaction.

Fabric Hats the Dernier Cri - Innumerable Chic Effects in the Ready-to-Wear Models - A New Shape Styled the "Bishop" - The Lamp-shade Chapeau and The Cavalier - Only One Way to Wear the Hat This Season.

Practically speaking, there are no small hats to be found in fashionable millinery emporiums, for all the shapes are either extreme or medium large. This is true not only of the expensive fabric-covered confections, but of the felts of the cheaper grade. In both these lines there is more or less similarity, in that among the moderately priced ready-to-wear shapes crowns are high and brims, whether or not extremely broad, flare in one direction or another and on the opposite side are depressed. These are the fundamental principles upon which the hats of the autumn and winter are built, and it is truly amazing that so many variations can be worked up from the original idea.

Tailored Effects.

What may be termed the typical winter hat, because it is the one which the woman who buys but a single hat in a season would naturally select, is the medium-sized black, brown, green, gray or blue felt with the six-inch-wide semi-saucer brim and the large square crown. This shape, if skilfully trimmed, may be made to look well above the face of any member of the gentler sex who has not weathered full 60 winters, for not only may the wings, bows or scarf be set up or knotted or bunched in an innumerable variety of ways, but the brim may be turned to best suit the individual set of features. There are, of course, shapes suggestive of the alpine, the boat and the turban; but these are perennial and not typical of the present season.

The Bishop Hat.

Among the variations of the wide-brimmed, high-crowned shapes is one that bids fair to be an immense favorite because of its exceedingly smart air; but whether it will prove generally becoming or not remains to be seen. This is known as the bishop's hat, and refers in this instance to a prelate of the Church of England, who would indeed cut a remarkable figure were his grave features surmounted by one of the pearl gray, mode, blue or mauve satin-covered confections which are distinguished for their almost straight, wide brims and their tall, convex crowns.

Scarcity of Trimming.

The Bishop hats, like most of the smartest specimens of the milliner's genius, do not demand a great deal of trimming, but what there is of it is good. Therefore because a hat has the appearance of being markedly simple, only a tyro would come to the conclusion that it was cheap. The person closely in touch with the commercial side of the hat business realizes that heavy trimming often covers up a multiplicity of shortcomings in regard to shape and material, and that only headgear of the very best description can afford to present itself almost uncovered to the gaze of a critical world.

Directoires Called Small.

Although to the uninitiated the Directoire hats may appear to be of goodly proportions, in reality they are now considered as in the same class as the turbans, which certainly have spread wondrously of recent months. But what the Directoire lacks in width it makes up for in height and in the mass of trimming which is piled upon its crown. Were it not for this erection of nodding plumes above voluminous crown decorations, the most striking hat of the winter might easily be confused in the minds of the old-fashioned with the poke of two decades ago. The true Directoire, according to the verdict of millinery authorities, is almost twice as tall as it is wide. The brim, short in front and perfectly straight, is turned up sharply behind, and the crown, which is trimmed high and full, has at its right side three nodding willow plumes. But the feature of the whole confection is the pair of satin streamers which are secured to the left brim with a self-fabric rosette. It is considered the acme of modish coquettishness to have one pink rose set upon the rosette, so that it may dangle Spanish fashion almost behind the ear.

Fabric Coverings Popular.

Not only are the silk and satin covered shapes of last year again prominently to the fore, but there are many of panne velvet and any number done in Ottoman. This last addition to the fabric list was reasonably to be expected, as the fancy for a hat precisely matching the costume is more than ever in vogue this year. Among the colors in these shapes which are most readily to be procured are the fashionable leather tints, the slate, taupe and pearl grays; almost any of the blues and naturally tobacco brown and black. If a woman can find a fabric covered hat of precisely the right color, she will in nine cases out of ten take it in preference to a felt or a beaver, as, save in the case of velvet, she may wear it from September to June without the possibility of comment.

Black With Colors.

Ever since the races at Longchamp and Ascot, during the early weeks of the late summer, when black hats created such a furore of admiration on account of their generally chic appearance in comparison with those of one tone, they have been taken up more and more by women of acknowledged taste in dress. But the term "black" applies only to the actual covering of the shape, for whether it be of gros-grain, taffeta, liberty or panne, the trimmings are invariably of some strong hue, preferably one of the bright shades of red, some of which suggest the scarlet of the rose geranium, in the vivid French army green which has quite superseded emerald as the fashionable green shade, or in any of the clear yellows which are without a tinge of brown.

Magpie Trimmings.

Quite as startling as are the combinations of black with vivid colors, are the black hats that are trimmed with white and black. These decorations start literally from the foundation of the shape, for while a hat may primarily be of black satin, its brim is faced with white satin and its entire upper side lightly veiled with white tulle, which gives it a curiously frosty appearance, which would be out of accord with its wreath of huge white roses were those flowers not of white velvet, with black chenille centers. As it is, the whole effect is wintry and weirdly smart. Magpie trimmings are so wonderfully simple in effect that they naturally prove a pitfall for the amateur milliner, who imagines that because black and white in velvet, plumage and plumes is modish, similar results can be evolved from ribbon and satin, whereas simple materials in such violent contrast rarely look well.

The Spotted Nets.

In line with the curious combinations seen in hats is the fancy for using spotted nets on winter hats. These, of course, are never to be used in connection with runabout street suits of mohair, cheviot or worsted, but with the fine broadcloth, satins and velvets that are made up into costumes de ceremonie. In this event the transparent covering of the hat—it is actually quite as substantial and as warm as one of heavy fabric—must precisely match the gown in shade, although its feathers or aigrettes may afford a distinct note of color relief. While a few of these spotted net confections are extremely large, they are best in what is, by courtesy, termed a toque, although many times larger than the modest proportions of the original model in this style, because in addition to the yards of material that is massed in gathers and plaits over the crown and frilled about the edge an enormously large tuft of feathers is set against the left side.

Reminders of the Lamp-Shade.

A shape that is aptly named and one that is to be developed by the lavish use of lace, is familiarly known as the lamp-shade, because of the width of its triply-frilled brim and the upstanding wide band of velvet about its distinctly outlined crown. Untrimmed, these shapes are the most ungainly creations imaginable and so viewed one is led to wonder how any milliner ever had the courage to attempt to transform them into wearable—not to say, saleable—headgear. But they are an immense success on the head of a pretty girl after they have been properly trimmed, and this may be accomplished by the amateur who has five or six yards of finger-wide black

The Proper Thing in Dressy

The rogue of long skirts has had a strong effect upon footgear, as the dress that must be raised when its wearer is walking brings the foot infinitely more into prominence than did the straight all-round skirt, that at its shortest was not more than four inches from the ground. As the present trend of fashion is strongly toward matching accessories in a woman's costume, the walking boot naturally comes in for particular attention and great skill is exercised by the makers that those intended for autumn and winter use shall be in accord with the color scheme of the costume and at the same time practical. It is chiefly for this reason that many of the mannishly finished black patent kids, Russians and dull-finished calfskins have satin-faced cloth tops rather than those of doeskin, which are not obtainable in many of the newest shades, particularly those in pastel blue, chandron and catawba red. In the same combinations are some exceedingly attractive bluchers, which some women prefer because they are more readily adjusted to the instep, but for actual hard service there is no shoe to compare with the dull-finished calfskin similar to those used for motoring, with the exception that the tops of the walking boots are several inches lower.

Next in importance to the walking and traveling boot is that worn in the carriage and with the elaborate afternoon costume. This must positively match the color of the dress skirt, and when not to be found in ooze calf or kid should be made up specially in satin or corded silk. A considerable amount of license is permitted the shoemaker in the designing of such footwear, but he should, of course, stick to the two-inch high Louis heels set well toward the arch of the foot, the Spanish curve of the sole, and the pointed toe. Whenever possible the tops should close with lacings rather than buttons, as the extra material in the lapel makes the ankle appear less slender. In the case of some of the bronze kid, the light mode colored suede and the palely tinted wool-backed satin high shoes, the front edges of the tops are bordered with horizontally set Van Dycks in fine black kid, the lacings being run through oblong shaped eyelets bound with kid. This treatment has the effect of making ankle, instep and forefoot appear many sizes narrower than it actually is. In these daintily made "dress" shoes there are some fetching side lace types, which permit the entire front of the boot to be elaborately decorated with stitchings with tiny silk buttons or with diamonds and v's in applique.

For the house during cool weather or for use at the Southern winter resorts, many women prefer the Colonial oxfords to pumps, as they afford somewhat more protection to the front of the instep. The new models of this type show rather more pointed toes and lighter soles than those worn during the summer, and in addition to the big square buckles, further ornamentation is added by means of fancy stitching outlining the edges of the blucher vamp. These shoes are in the polished and dull kids, in bronze and the innumerable shades of suede finished calf. Of the same order is an exceedingly shapely shoe that is a decided novelty in that it combines the best features of the Juliette and the blucher, the central seamed, glove-fitting front forming a tongue which is overlapped by a medium high vamp terminating over the instep in oblong lapels provided with button-holes which fit over buttons attached to either side of the center front seam.

Evening slippers are more than ever attractive and at the same time more elaborate. Perhaps the most serviceable of all, because they may be worn with gowns of any color, are those in cloth of gold or silver, closely strapped with soutache braidings, running straight across the vamp or in parallel lines from edge to sole. Silver ornamentation is used on the gold slippers and gold trimmings on the silver foot gear, while both types of trimming are placed upon the white and black satin and kid slippers usually worn with gowns to match. Many women are adopting the French habit of wearing high-buttoned white shoes during cold weather in the house, as well as with evening dresses, and there are now to be found most attractively finished specimens of such footwear. Those of satin and kid are trimmed similarly to slippers of like materials, but for special use with the white lingerie frock which is now worn the year round for certain occasions, are white and colored embroidered linen boots. These, of course, are decorated by hand as are also the embroidered white linen house slippers and mules.

Boudoir shoes include those of pale pink, blue, green and maize calf having one strap; those in bronze with metallic embroidered cross straps extending well over the instep, and fine French kid having a succession of narrow straps in openwork design extending from within an inch of the toes' points to the top of the instep. For the dressing room are mules done in Oriental embroidery, gold cord finished, in Japanned kid and in all shades and combinations of lambs' wool.

In the realm of neckties are some pretty new fancies of gold gauze, such as may be purchased by the yard, and if the width of this material is turned lengthwise, a quarter yard will be quite sufficient for one tie. The edges must first be firmly roll-hemmed and tinsel thread blind-stitched and the ends gathered into a fine point and finished with small gold bullion tassels. The scarf is then tied into a bow having finger length loops and irregular ends. The advantage of gold gauze over white tulle for this purpose is that it does not soil or crumple as readily as mesh fabric, and for cold weather is more practical, as it is almost impervious to dampness.

WHEN ARCHIE RISKED HIS LIFE ON THE GREAT GULF.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Mr. and Mrs. Laws had gone South for a little fall outing and had taken their son Archie with them. At first Archie declared he would not accompany them, as he very strongly objected to being absent from his school a single day, and as his parents contemplated being away from home three or four weeks, Archie was opposed to going. But his mother explained that she would assist him with his studies for two hours every day and allow him as much time for study as he desired. So Archie was thus persuaded to go for the nice journey and the taste of Southern climate and a sight of the wonderful scenery all along the route.

Their destination was a small town situated on the Gulf of Mexico, a town where orange trees, lemon trees and grape fruit trees grew on the streets, and in the back yards. And all about were tropical plants and flowers. And the air was so soft and soothing that for a few days after the Laws' arrival there Archie felt disinclined to study, preferring to wander leisurely along the little bay, which lay between the great swelling and restless gulf and the lazy town.

"I feel as indolent as an alligator, and want to do nothing but eat, sleep and rest," laughed Archie one afternoon when his mother reminded him of his lessons, telling him that he must not allow himself to drop behind his class. "But not being an alligator, I guess I'd better refrain from following their habits, so I'll try getting back my Northern energy and get at my books again. However, books are a nuisance when one's basking in tropical sunshine, eating tropical fruits and enjoying tropical siestas several times daily."

"Yes, I'm afraid my boy would drift into a lazy fellow were he to remain in this climate too long," said Mrs. Laws. "The reason the people down here are so active and industrious is that they are accustomed to the climate and do not feel its tropical influence as we of the North do."

That evening after supper Archie went for a stroll on the sandy beach which stretched for several miles along the snug, shallow bay. Stopping at a boat house he inquired the price of a small row boat which was to be rented by the hour. Archie had rowed a boat on a northern lake and found it great sport. And he decided to try it in the bay.

"Twenty-five cents an hour," was the boathouse keeper's reply, and Archie felt in his pocket to see if he had the amount. Yes, he had just a quarter in his purse, so he helped the boathouse keeper to untie the boat and to push it into the deeper water near to where it was moored. Then he sprang in and took the oars and pushed out toward deep water.

"Well, it's a bit heavier to row in the bay than in the little lake at home," Archie mused as he tugged right vallantly at the oars, till the perspiration dropped from his temples. "But this is the sort of thing to give a chap muscle all right, all right. Think I'll row every evening while we're here. Won't I surprise the boys at home when I return and show my arms and shoulders? Gee, but rowing is great!"

And on he swept through the water, going toward the gulf. The boathouse keeper had warned him against the gulf, telling him that it was not safe for a small boat with a "kid at the oars," and told him to remain close to the shore.

But Archie was venturesome and decided to go as close to the waters of the old gulf as he might dare, and for that purpose he put straight out seaward instead of following the land line along the bay.

"Well, I reckon this must be the gulf line," he said to himself as the waves began to roll more perceptibly and to cause his little boat to rise and fall rather too much for comfort. "Yes, this is the meeting place of the bay and the gulf, and 20 rods on are billows a bit too wild for me. How deep and blue the gulf looks, while in the bay the water is so pale and quiet, scarcely rippling. I must confess that the gulf holds much attraction for me. I like something doing, I do. The bay is pretty and gentle and so certain. The gulf is wild, menacing and uncertain. If I had thought to ask papa's consent to go into it I would not hesitate to do so. But I guess I'd better turn back now. Besides, I've been out a good half hour, and I musn't keep the boat over time."

Then Archie began to turn the boat homewards, when a small object rising and falling on the waters of the gulf about half a mile from where he was rowing, caught his attention. "Why, that looks like a man in the water," he exclaimed, and standied his boat as best he could while he shaded his eyes from the setting sun and looked intently towards the object. "Sure as I'm a foot high, that speck is a man, and he's clinging to something. I wonder if he is holding to an overturned boat or to a piece of driftwood. Well, I can't go into port and leave a man in danger."

Hurriedly Archie turned his boat about and began rowing in the direction of the apparently drifting object. He was all but exhausted, for the work was heavy, the waves swelling strong and his oars almost helpless against them. But on and on he rowed, weakly but surely. Sometimes the object would drop from sight, to rise again. As Archie drew nearer it he could plainly distinguish the form of a man. And then he saw that he was clinging to an overturned boat, slowly drifting out to sea.

Archie called at the top of his voice to cheer the perishing man. "Hold on for dear life, Mister; I'll soon reach you!"

And he did. A few minutes afterwards he had rowed alongside the man who was too exhausted from his long battle in the water to get into the boat without assistance, and Archie had to lend a helping hand as well as to keep the boat steady. It was no small task for a boy of 15, and when at last the great bulky man was lying in the bottom of the boat Archie felt that he should collapse. He leaned on his oars and breathed desperately, the perspiration dripping from his face. The man looked at him wearily, moved his lips as if to speak; then closed his eyes and dropped his head back like one whose life is about spent.

"Gee, I'm glad I got here just as I did!" was Archie's comment as he noted the man's physical condition. "Another minute in the water and he'd have given up his hold on the boat and gone down. Gee whiz! I am glad I came out to row this evening."

After resting a few minutes Archie turned the boat about, rowing towards the land. But the tide was going out and he had a struggle of it. The sun had dropped behind the water's rim, and darkness was setting in very rapidly. Archie felt anxious about his parents. He knew they would be looking for him every minute and would soon become distressed about him, going in search of him, doubtless. He was more than a mile from the boat house, whose little flickering light he could make out through the growing darkness. And how weary his arms were becoming, almost refusing to wield the heavy oars. And the tide being full against him he made very slow progress.

After a few minutes the man in the bottom of the boat opened his eyes and looked up into Archie's face. "B-r-a-v-e b-o-y," he murmured. Then he closed his eyes again and lay very still. And on and on Archie rowed, his head bursting with pain and a ringing in his ears. Would he ever reach the shore? Ah, he had been foolish to try the heavy water of the gulf. But—what would have become of the man had he not done so? No; he was glad he had come, even if the consequences should happen to be very hard to bear. He would not give up. No; he would FORCE himself to reach the shore.

Then he saw something dark on the water just in front of him. Next he saw the flash of a boat lantern. Then he heard voices—among them his own father's voice. Archie's heart gave a bound. His head grew dizzy. He bent on his oars and, with a mighty effort, came close to the dark object, which proved to be a large rowboat with three men inside it. "Father!" Archie cried. Then he sank back in the boat and his eyes closed. But before he lost consciousness he felt that the rescuers had hold of his boat and were making it fast to their own. Then he knew nothing more for several minutes.

When at last he regained consciousness he was lying in his father's arms in the big rowboat and the two men who were with his father were pulling at their oars like giants, sending the boat through the water like a bird on the wing. And down in the bottom of the boat lay the man Archie had saved from drowning, his eyes still closed, as if his life ran low.

"Father, forgive me for risking the gulf," said Archie in a weak, slow voice. "I hadn't meant to go beyond that buoy—just where the bay and gulf come together—but I saw — him — struggling — away—out — at — sea,—and I couldn't—leave—him—to—perish."

"I understand it all, my noble boy," said his father, his own voice low with suppressed emotion; "and I'm prouder of you this night than I ever was before. Now, we're almost at the landing. Do you feel strong enough to walk to our boarding-house, or shall I go and procure a carriage?"

"I'm all right, Father, thank you," replied Archie, rising to a sitting posture; "but that poor man—what are you going to do with him?"

"If he isn't sufficiently recovered when we land to tell us where he wishes to go we'll send for a conveyance and take him to our place and call in a doctor. I think he'll come round within a short time, however. He's suffering simply from exhaustion. He must have been a long time in the water when you found him. And just think of all the big boats that went past him without seeing him! That shows that men fail where boys win."

Within an hour the rescued man was quite himself again, and sitting in a cozy room of the Laws boarding-house he told of how his little catboat had been capsized in a sudden squall, and how he had been clinging to it for two hours when picked up by Archie.

"And this boy shall never regret having saved my life," the man declared. "I'm not what you call a rich man, but I've got a pretty nice plantation down in this part of the world, and as I have neither chick nor child this brave little fellow shall claim the biggest corner of my heart. And now, as soon as you've seen what you want of this place I shall carry you to my plantation and show it to this boy who shall some day be its owner. I'm not talking to be heard, friends, and anyone in these parts can tell you I'm a man of my word. My name is Sam Bright, and round these parts I'm called the Money King. But till now I've never made the right use of my money. Now it's going to begin working, and working to give this boy all the advantages of learning and study he wants. I tell you a man lives on this globe but once, and that life is the most precious thing he can possess, and this little handful of a boy has saved that life for me. And I want him—and you, his parents—to know that I understand his value."

And the "Money King" kept his word, too, although Archie did his best to explain to him that he had not saved his life with thought of reward. "All the more reason why you should have it," the "Money King" smiled.

"Hold on for dear life, Mister; I'll soon reach you."

Stopping at a boathouse, he inquired the price of a small rowboat.

A CAT

A cat's a funny animal.
It has nine lives, they say;
It hunts and fights and yawl-yawls
By night instead of day.

A cat likes eating meat and mice,
But it ne'er refuses milk;
And though it never takes a bath
It's fur is soft as silk.

If you rub its fur down tailwards
That seems its mood to fit;
But if you stroke it headwards
'Twill growl and glare and spit.

But if you treat it nice and kind,
And rub right way its fur,
'Twill be a friend both good and true
And in your lap will purr.

Chinese Pigeon-Whistles.

A traveler in Eastern lands tells us the following little story of the Chinese and their most unique pigeon-whistles, a story well worth repeating here:

"One of the most curious expressions of emotional life in China is the application of whistles to a flock of pigeons. These whistles, very light, weighing hardly a few grammes, are attached to the tails of young pigeons soon after their birth, by means of a fine copper wire, so that when the birds fly the wind will blow through the whistles and set them vibrating, thus producing an open-air concert, for the instruments in one and the same flock are all tuned differently. On a serene day in Peking, where these instruments are manufactured with great cleverness and ingenuity, it is possible to enjoy this aerial music while sitting in one's room.

"There are two distinct types of whistles—those consisting of bamboo tubes placed side by side, and a type based on the principle of tubes attached to a gourd body or wind chest. They are lacquered in yellow, brown, red and black, to protect the material from destructive influences of the atmosphere. The tube whistles have either two, three or five tubes. In some specimens the five tubes are made of ox-horn instead of bamboo. The gourd whistles are furnished with a mouthpiece and small apertures to the number of two, three, six, ten and even thirteen. Certain among them have, besides, a number of bamboo tubes, some on the principal mouthpiece, some arranged around it. These varieties are distinguished by different names. Thus, a whistle with one mouthpiece and ten tubes is called 'The eleven-eyed one.'"

"The Fairy" Gold Mine.

BY MAUD WALKER.

Nettie O'Brien was seven years old and was the daughter of very poor parents. Her father was the janitor of a large city apartment house and her mother the laundress for the same establishment. And their home was in three small, dark basement rooms, where no ray of sunlight ever penetrated. Indeed, most all day the one gas jet gave a dim light to the "living-room" of the janitor's suite, and this only added to its gloom, for wherever the light of day is so dim that it must be supplemented by artificial light the effect is that of perpetual night. And in this "living-room" little Nettie O'Brien lived, playing there throughout the long and dismal days and sleeping there throughout the longer and more dismal nights, for night is always more dismal than day with the very poor.

But one day while running to the corner grocery store for her poor, frail, overworked mother, Nettie saw a soiled little book lying on the pavement in her path. At first she was about to pass it by, but seeing a most inviting picture of pretty and well-dressed children on the book's cover she stooped and picked it up. Slowly she opened it, and there were other pictures—beautiful and alluring. Nettie could read very well, for a part of each winter she attended the school that was held several blocks distant from her home. But when the weather became too severe Nettie could not go, for her papa was too poor to buy her a nice warm cloak, hood and overshoes, to keep her from suffering from the cold. And her poor, dear mamma would teach her her lessons at night, after her work of washing and ironing the linens for the apartment house was done for the day.

Nettie glanced at the reading matter on the first page and to her delight she saw that the book was one of "Fairy Tales for Boys and Girls."

"Oh, some little girl or boy has lost this lovely book!" she said. "And since it's lying in the dirty street, with people walking over it, I'll take it for my own. I'm sure there's no harm in doing so. But I'll ask mamma when I get back home."

Returning home after having performed her errand Nettie showed the book to her mother and explained how she came by it. The mother looked on every page for some child's name and address, hoping thus to find the owner of it; but no name and address were there.

"Well, Nettie, we'll have papa advertise the book in the 'Found and Lost' column of a daily paper. If the owner reads the advertisement she or he can have the book by calling here for it. And if the owner looks prosperous we'll ask her or him to pay us for the price of the advertisement."

And so the next day an advertisement appeared in the leading morning paper, which told of the finding of an illustrated book of fairy tales. But no one answered the advertisement, and the days went by without a line from a possible owner. Then Nettie began to feel that she owned the book.

During the few days of suspense—days when Nettie expected every hour to see some rich child come in to claim the pretty book—she never allowed herself to look between its covers. The parting from it would be all the harder to bear should she become too fond of it, so she would not touch it nor look at it till a certain time had passed in which its owner might appear.

At the expiration of a week Nettie felt that the book was sure enough her own, and she took it from its hiding place in a drawer and sat down by a window to enjoy it to the fullest. Ah, every story was of a fairy doing something nice for poor children. Nettie drank in the beautiful tales of how little orphans, abused and robbed by wicked relatives, came out victorious over their enemies in the end, through the assistance of some dear fairy.

"Oh, how I wish a good little fairy would come to me," she sighed. "If only one would come some night and lead us—dear papa, dear mamma and me—from this cruel city and from this dark and cheerless basement home I'd be so happy, oh, so happy and thankful!"

Then it was time for Nettie to get ready for her bed, and she begged her mamma to allow her to sleep with the pretty Fairy Book beside her.

Of course, the good mother, whose heart often bled because she could not get pretty books and toys for her darling child, consented to Nettie's having the book on the pillow beside her, and tucking the covers snugly about the little girl she kissed her good night and told her to go to sleep and dream of the fairies.

And Nettie did exactly that. She dreamed that a beautiful fairy came into her little basement bedroom and lighted it up with glorious sunshine, and that she filled their empty cupboard with so many good things to eat. And that she put several golden coins in her father's purse and gave her mother a new silk gown and made her well and rested. Oh, how delightful was that part of her dream—to see the dear, self-sacrificing mother well and rested! Never since her remembrance had her mother's health been good, for she had drudged at hard work so long that her constitution was failing fast and she was always pale and tired-looking.

Then the dream led Nettie into unknown lands, a place where streams bordered by trees and flowers were, and where the sunshine lingered from morning till evening, warming and lighting everything gloriously. The birds sang from the tree tops and winged like tiny flashes through the soft, pure air. Oh, it was all so divine, and Nettie, always led by the fairy, was so happy. And, of course, her parents were with her, happy too, and as boisterous as children on a holiday.

Then of a sudden a loud pounding roused Nettie from her slumber. She was startled at first, as anyone would be when called out of a deep and happy dream. From the sparkling sunshine of the open country, from the singing of the birds, from the music of flowing streams and waving branches, she came to her senses in a cold, dark, uncheerful basement bedroom, with the sound of harsh hammering in her ears. Then she realized that her father was working at the great furnace fire in the furnace room which joined their living-rooms. It was morning, then, and he was fixing up the fire for heating the great seven-story apartment house, which lay over her little room and shut out the light and air.

When Nettie realized that all the pleasant places she had seen, all the happiness she and her parents had felt, were but dream fancies she buried her little face in the pillow and wept. Oh, it was hard to suffer such disappointment! Then her wet cheek felt the cold cover of the book on her pillow. Involuntarily she pushed it from her till it fell to the floor. It had caused the happy dreams and the sad, the heart-breaking awakening.

She wished she might never have read the stories in that book. They had brought such vain hopes, such heartaches at their failure. No, she wanted no more happy fairy tales. Her dreams—so happy while lasting—had made her so miserable at their vanishing.

"Oh, oh, if there really are fairies," she wailed aloud, desperately clasping her hands over her head, "why doesn't one take pity on papa, mamma and me? We're so poor, we're so cold, we're so hungry and live in such a dark, sickly place. Oh, fairies, if you really exist, come to us in this dreary basement place and take us into the sunlight where streams flow and birds sing, and where a little girl like me can romp and play to her heart's content."

In her woeful state of mind Nettie had forgotten to hold her voice low and was crying out loudly, so loudly, in fact, that she did not hear a strange voice talking to her father in the living-room, nor hear her mother's exclamations first of surprise and then of hope, of happiness. And then she did not hear the door leading into her room open, nor know that her mother had entered with a light, hope-buoyant step till her gentle voice spoke to her. Then Nettie looked up and saw in the gray light—which out of doors in the great city was bright sunshine—her mother bending over her.

"Why, Nettie, what are you crying about? Come, dear child, wake up. You must have had a nightmare, you're crying like your heart would break."

"Oh, no, Mamma, I didn't have a nightmare," sobbed Nettie. "I wouldn't mind that, for when I woke I'd find it was nicer than what I'd been dreaming of. No, Mamma, I didn't dream ugly things, I dreamed of beautiful things—of the country, of birds, of money, of good things to eat, of your being well and happy and of papa having plenty, too. And when I woke—oh, it was so hard to find I'd been dreaming."

Nettie's mother took her in her arms and said soothingly: "Your dream will come true, dearie, for papa has just received a telegram from Uncle Jake—away out in Colorado—that at last, after long privation and suffering and hard work, he has struck a rich vein of gold on his claim, and that we're to come right off."

Nettie sat up and stared for a moment; then asked:

"But what's Uncle Jake's good luck got to do with us, Mamma?"

"Why, dearie, papa has been 'grubstaking' him in the mountains, and his discovery of gold is for papa's benefit as well as for his own. You see, that was the agreement between them. Papa and I would stay here and work and send him money to live on while he prospected. And if he found anything we would all share and share alike. So, come, darling; hard times, a cold basement home, freezing and hunger, are to be ours no longer. We're off to the glorious mountains, where sunshine and health as well as gold will be ours."

"Ah, I do believe a fairy was telling me all this in my sleep," whispered Nettie. "And is there a real mine—a gold mine, Mamma?"

"Yes, a gold mine, darling, and Uncle Jake calls it The Fairy."

"Ah, my fairy of the dream!" said Nettie. "I know it now, Mamma."

"I'll take it for my own. I'm sure there's no harm in doing so."

LESSON NO. 32—HOW TO DRAW A BUFFALO.

When Dean Swift Retaliated.

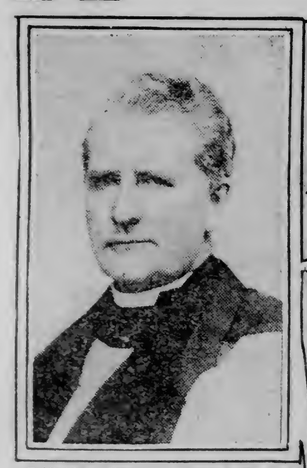

Once during a journey on foot Dean Swift stopped at a roadside tavern, or alehouse, to obtain some refreshment. The landlady was so busy chatting with and serving several wagoners, whom she evidently thought superior persons to the dusty and road-stained Dean, that she obliged him to wait her pleasure to serve him. While waiting Dean Swift walked about the front of the house, and, observing that it was called "The Three Crosses"—owing to the fact that it was at the three intersecting roads leading to various cities—he took from his pocket a diamond and cut on each pane of glass in the best room in the house the following:

"To the landlord: There hang three crosses at thy door. Hang up thy wife, and she'll make four."

Where Our Vegetables Originated.

In 1585 the potato was introduced into Europe by the Spaniards, who found it in Chile. At almost the same date it was introduced into England by the English, who had found it cultivated by the Indians in North America. The sweet potato and the artichoke are also American vegetables. Salsify is found growing wild over Greece, Italy and Algeria. Turnips and radishes came originally from Central Europe. Cabbage, which is of remote origin, is believed to be a European vegetable. Asparagus found its origin in temperate Western Asia. Eggplant came to us from India. The carrot grows wild throughout Europe, Asia Minor, Siberia, China, Abyssinia, Northern Africa and the Canary Islands. The tomato comes from Peru, the cucumber from India and the pumpkin from Guinea.

WHEN an author wants a character he goes and takes what he requires. It may be a president, a general, a bishop, or a street sweeper; so long as the character suits his need the author appropriates him. He will even make his own kindred, or himself, sit as a model if need be. Probably all really great characters of fiction have been drawn with modifications from real persons, or are the result of a skillful blending of the salient points in the characters of two, or possibly more, persons.

Sometimes the author copies his model so closely that there can be no mistake as to the original. Bishop Ethelbert Talbot, the Protestant Episcopal bishop of Central Pennsylvania, is The Bishop in Owen Wister's novel "The Virginian," and the author has stuck so closely to the original that every one who knows the novel practically knows Bishop Talbot; and all who know the bishop recognize his portrait as drawn by Wister. Of course, liberties are taken with the character and story of the right reverend gentleman—the exigencies of the story required that—but the artist has strayed no further from the truth than he was obliged to.

Bishop Talbot was a well-known man when Wister took him up and added to his fame. He is a native of Missouri, and after his graduation and ordination, in 1873, he was pastor in the little town of Macon, Mo., for fourteen years. Then he became missionary bishop of Wyoming and Idaho. From this charge he was transferred, after ten years in the West, to the see of Central Pennsylvania.

The bishop is something of a writer himself, and some day may turn about and put Owen Wister into a book. His experiences in the West are told in "My People of the Plains." He is fond of hearing and telling a good story, but withal has much native dignity. When he was a missionary bishop the people under his charge were primitive and rude, a class of westerners which live now almost nowhere but in books. They had not much respect for ecclesiastical authority or, in fact, for religion, but the bishop soon got on their right side and they came to respect and love him.

Once, during his career in the West, the bishop held services in a saloon the walls of which were covered with cloth to conceal some decorations which were decidedly unecclesiastical; and once, when a drunken man told him he had "got full to celebrate his (the bishop's) arrival," the bishop let the man sit in a front pew. With this awful example before him the bishop began a sermon on temperance. At first the man appeared dejected, but finally brightened up and at last the bishop heard him muttering, "That's right bishop; go for 'em!" By and by he became more "enthused" and, jumping to his feet, exclaimed: "Good, good! Give 'em hell, bishop!"

Another of the bishop's western sermons, which had the Pharisee and the Publican as its text, caused such a noisy protest on the part of one member of the congregation that the man had to be forcibly ejected. "Did you ever hear such rot?" said the man afterwards. "That bishop just boosted the Republicans all through his sermon and didn't say a word about the Democrats."

Bishop Talbot is said to have been the original of the man who, having delivered a humorous address to a British audience, was told afterward by the vicar that he could hardly keep from siling all through, and that he must excuse some of the people from actually laughing. The bishop is now sixty years old, with the prospect of a long life before him. He has had his little trials and tribulations, as notably in the case of the Reverend Irvine about four years ago, but has come through them all right.

Mrs. Asquith a "Dodo" Character.

Mrs. Asquith, wife of the present British prime minister, sat unconsciously as the model for the principal feminine character in the novel of "Dodo," a book which had a vast popularity about fifteen years ago, but which is now almost forgotten. She was the beautiful Miss Margaret Tennant then, daughter of a wealthy Scottish baronet, and a society celebrity. She knew all the prominent men worth knowing—politicians, scientists and authors. She founded a little circle of the elect, called "The Souls," who conversed with each other in a jargon of their own invention. She knew all the reigning monarchs in Europe. She hunted and wrote poetry, and Gladstone wrote poetry to her. When E. F. Benson, son of the archbishop of Canterbury, "went in" for literature and wrote "Dodo" in 1893, he took Miss Tennant for his model and wrote a note to her afterwards apologizing for doing so. She was really such a handy character that how could Benson be blamed any way? But Miss Tennant did not at all object to being written up and for a long time she was known as "Dodo." Now she is the calm and dignified Mrs. Asquith, the premier's wife.

When Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett looked about for a character for a story she pitched upon her son Vivian and gave him to the world as Little Lord Fauntleroy. Vivian's elder brother, Lionel, furnished a few paragraphs for the book, but Cedric was taken practically entire from Vivian. In fact, Mrs. Burnett tried to make her book an almost exact reproduction of the sayings and doings of her second son. It made a good story, but was rather tough on Vivian who, when he went to Harvard was "spotted" at once as the original of Little Lord Fauntleroy and had things made pleasant for him accordingly in that peculiar manner which sophomores know so well how to apply to a "freshie." When Little Lord Fauntleroy was graduated from Harvard he went at once into the advertising business, and now, a man of 30, runs the business end of a children's magazine, of which his mother is editor.

"Mr. Dooley" and Mrs. Wiggs."

The origin of Peter Finley Dunne's Mr. Dooley, as you may ahve heard before, was a saloonkeeper in Chicago named McGarry. McGarry was always ready to pass a solemn opinion upon any subject, spoke with a rich Irish brogue and never smiled. Dunne began to write the humorous things he said in little sketches for the Chicago Evening Post, upon which paper he was then a reporter. Needless to say they "took." He called McGarry McNarry, in his stories.

McGarry took a good deal of pride in seeing his stories in print. One day Alfred Henry Lewis went into the saloon kept by McGarry.

"Did you see the Post today?" said McGarry, in a pleasant voice.

"Yes," sid Mr. Lewis, "I did; and it's a shame for Pete Dunne to treat you in that way. How do you think your fine young daughters can take the place in society your position demands if such sayings as those appear. Everyone recognizes them, too. And worse than anything else, they're in a rich brogue. Why, you've hardly any accent at all."

"Mr. Dooley" took all this seriously. He decided that he must see Mr. Dunne, and the next day he went to the managing editor of the Post and protested, and then went to the author of the sketches and protested. The result was that Mr. Dunne changed the name from "McNarry" to "Dooley." McGarry was quite satisfied, and thereafter read the "Dooley" sayings with as much pride as ever.

The original of that other noted fiction philosopher, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," was Mrs. Mary A. Bass, who lives in Louisville, Ky., in a region known as "The Patch." Miss Alice Hegan (now Mrs. Rice) knew her and used to visit her. Mrs. Bass used to go to school with Miss Hegan's mother. But there was good "copy" in Mrs. Bass, too good for a young lady with literary tendencies to throw away. So Alice took Mrs. Bass just as she was, made a story out of her, and jumped into fame with "Mrse. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Really, Mrs. Bass was the authoress, for Miss Hegan was little more than an amanuensis, taking down what Mrs. Bass said and did and writing it out. Miss Hegan made money out of the story, Mrs. Bass remained in poverty and indignation. It hardly would have bene safe for the authoress to have visited the "Cabbage Patch" after the publication of the story, for the old lady was furious and became more and more enraged as it leaked out that she was the original of Mrs. Wiggs and crowds of visitors began haunting her modest home and wanting to talk with her. She refused to see the curiosity seekers, and once threw dirty water on a too persistent visitor. Mrs. Bass always spoke of Miss Hegan's story as "that fool book," and consulted a lawyer as to how best to keep away curious visitors. He advised her to use a broomstick, and she announced her intention of following the directions of her legal adviser. Also, it was rumored that her son had purchased a shotgun. So visitors naturally fell off, and after a stormy period of celebrity Mrs. Bass was left in peace again. It was a long time before she forgave the daughter of her old friend for "writing her up," if indeed she yet has done so completely.

Cleveland an Indifferent "Original."

It is well known that "The Honorable Peter Stirling" of Paul Leicester Ford's story of that name was Grover Cleveland. Everybody recognized the portrait, so closely was it drawn to the original. It was a clever piece of work but, oh, the ingratitude of great men to the "literary fellers" who strive to add to their fame in print! Mr. Cleveland was not indignant, like Mrs. Bass, at being "put into a book," but, worse still, he was indifferent. When somebody wrote to him and asked if he was the original of the "Honorable Peter," he replied: "I have never read 'The Honorable Peter Stirling.' I believe the author has declared that he had the incidents of my political life somewhat in mind when he wrote the book." And Mr. Cleveland never read it!

The original of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Wild Scotchman" is Thomas Fleming, a trading agent at Arne Island, one of the Marshall group, 150 miles from the nearest white settlement in the South Sea Islands. Fleming left his home in Paisley, Scotland, when a boy of 15 and went out to see the world. He became a sailor and, after roaming about the waters of the earth for some years, finally settled down on Arne Island. When Stevnson went sailing about amid these Southern "Isles of Eden lying in dark purple spheres of sea,' he touched at Arne and found Fleming there. Here, indeed, was "copy" too good to be neglected, and a character just suited to Stevenson's genius. Fleming went into a story—it was inevitable.

Only the other day Fleming, accompanied by his wife, visited San Francisco. It was the first time he had left his island home for twenty-five years, and he gazed with amazement upon trolley cars and electric lights. After his fill of sightseeing, he sailed again for his home in the South Seas. "Perhaps it is a little lonely out there," he said, "but somehow it gets into a man's blood—and he stays on."

Bacheller His Own Model.

An author who has embalmed himself in fiction is Irving Bacheller. He is the "Eben Holden" of his well-known story of that name. The story is, of course, not a detailed account of the author's life, but in it he has "written himself up" pretty closely and has set down an accurate record, as far as he could remember, of the things he said and thought of as a child. The people "Eben Holden" tells about are the people that Bacheller knew as a child. "In my childhood," said the author to me recently, "I was told that my brother—then a baby—had been brought over the hills in a basket by old Mr. Bellows. That was how I supposed the little fellow had come to our home. I think it was that which gave me the notion of the boy's journey through the woods in a basket."

In "Caleb West, Master Diver," F. Hopkinson Smith drew the portrait of Capt. Thomas A. Scott of New London, Conn. Scott was the "Captain Joe" of the story. Smith, among various other callings, is a first class civil engineer, and was associated with Capt. Scott in various engineering enterprises. Capt. Scott was the head of the Scott Wrecking company, and as soon as Hopkinson Smith and he became acquainted it was a forgone conclusion that the captain would go into a book. The captain had all the requisite qualifications for a hero of romance. When he died not long ago, he was sincerely mourned by all who knew him and by no one more sincerely than by the author, who had made such good use of him in fiction.

Race Rock light, at the eastern entrance of Long Island sound, is a monument to the engineering ability of F. Hopkinson Smith. Among engineers Smith is known not as the author of "Colonel Carter," or of "Caleb West," but as the builder of Race Rock Light. But Smith says: "It was really Scott who built the Race Rock Light, not I."

Going to sea when a boy, Scott rose to be a captain before he was 20, and was still young when he became the head of the wrecking company. Once he thought he would leave the sea and settle down at Fort Lee, N. J. It was while living there that he averted a panic and a probable disaster on the Ferry boat Union on the North river. The ferry boat was rammed by a tug and a gash cut in her side. Scott, who happened to be on board, stuffed his body into the hole and thus stopped the inrush of the water until the boat could make her slip. The ferry company gave him $100 to buy a new suit of clothes.

A Churchill Character.

Winston Churchill—our Winston—when he models a character sticks with great fidelity to his original. His Stephen Brice in "The Crisis" is drawn from Henry Hitchcock, who died in 1902 after a career which included many of the stirring incidents told of in "The Crisis." He was a brother of Ethan Allen Hitchcock, until a few months ago secretary of the interior. Hitchcock went to St. Louis in the early fifties, studied law and then became a newspaper man. He first became prominent by reason of a speech he delivered in favor of Lincoln as a presidential candidate. He went into the army at outbreak of the war and went with Sherman to the sea as a judge advocate. When Johnston surrendered to Sherman, Hitchcock was sent with dispatches, formally announcing the event to Washington.

The character of Jethro in Churchill's "Coniston" was drawn so accurately and so clearly from Ruell Durkee, a New Hampshire "boss" that all the Granite state at once recognized it. Ruell Durkee has been dead some years now, but during his active political life he was as Churchill pictured him. The fame of Durkee hardly extended across the borders of his state until Churchill drew him. Now it is spread over the country. He was a good sort of a boss, too,—a lovable, easy boss—but never the less, a boss and could bid railroads come bow to him.

In "Cape Cod Folks" the authoress wrote so closely to actual facts that

Mr. Oakley very feelingly thanked the assembled friends for their expressions of kindness and good will towards himself and Mrs. Oakley, and also expressed the kindliest sentiments toward all the people of Cass Lake. He assurred his hearers that although he and Mrs. Oakley might be living many miles away from them recollections of their many kindnesses would always remain in their hearts, and that the consoling thought about leaving was that a change of residence need not make any change in friendship

MINNEAPOLIS WAGERS.

Some Large Bets Already Recorded on the Election.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five hundred dollars in real money was staked on the election on 'change Friday. The same source from which came the recent offers of $3,000 to $1,000 and $2,000 to $666 was heard from. An offer of $1,000 on Taft to $500 on Bryan was wired out by Sidney Love of New York and called out by R. Frank Stephens. It was covered.

Frank Huhn offered odds of 10 to 5 that E. F. Osborne could not call president, governor and mayor. Osborne named Taft, Johnson and Haynes. Huhn then bet $25 even on the Republican candidate for mayor, who is not a relation although bearing the same name. Later an uptown man appeared on 'change with $100 to bet even on Huhn against Haynes and found a taker without difficulty.

Charles Stevens, proprietor of the Honer hotel at Oakes, N. D., sent $20 down to S. J. McCaull, to bet for him against $10 that Johnson will be elected in Minnesota. Mr. McCaull found a taker.

Man Claiming to Have Been Injured by Train, a Faker.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—About three weeks ago a man named Tom Johnson was found badly battered up on the Northern Pacific tracks near Tenth street. Upon being taken in charge he gave a brief statement to the effect that he had tried to board a train for Duluth and had been thrown and injured. His skull was fractured and he was taken to the Darrow hospital. He recovered rapidly and when he was about to leave the hospital he made a statement to the effect that upon the night that he was injured he was assaulted and robbed by two colored men, who beat him over the head with a beer bottle.

Johnson appears to have had an idea that if he allowed the impression to prevail that he had been injured by a train that he would secure good medical attention. From the time he was taken to the hospital up to the time he left, no one was able to get any statement from him. Agent Stodder tried repeatedly, but without result.

Discovery of the body of Miss Heywood badly mutilated and with the torso separated was made at the direction of some children under an old wood pile, the children having witnessed the crime. SOCIALISM AND WEALTH

The changes in the different forms of production of the present, compared with the methods of 100 years ago, show to a very marked degree the progress made during the period of transition from the years of 1800 to the years of 1900. The present methods of production show to us very plainly the power of man to produce by the aid of the machine. They show us that the labor power of the worker is often multiplied by 10 and 100 and as high as 1,000 times with the use of the modern machine as against the hand process.

In 1850 the average wealth to each and every man, woman and child was $307, while in 1900 the average wealth was $1,318. I shall try to make plain the difference of the individual wealth, as owned by the wealthy members of the years 1850 and 1900.

It can readily be seen that the wealth held by the individual in the year 1900 was four times as much as held by the individual in the year 1850, and now let us look and see what the wealth of the nation was in the same years. I find the census reports of 1850 give the national wealth as $7,000,000,000 and the census reports of 1900 give the total wealth as being $95,000,000,000. A study of these flugres gives us an understanding of the facts which have been concealed from th ordinary citizen. We can plainly see the national wealth in the last fifty years has multiplied thirteen times, while the individual wealth has multiplied itself by four times.

We can now look to the portions of the national wealth owned by the rich people of the same years. The total number of millionaires and half millionaires of 1850 held but $70,000,000 of the national wealth, which was $7,000,000,000, while the number of rich people who control and own the greater bulk of the national wealth is but 260,251 persons, and they possess $67,000,000,000 out of the total of $95,000,000,000. We can now see that one-fourth of one per cent of the people own two-thirds per cent of the national wealth; that is 250,251 persons of 76,000,000 own $67,000,000,000 of the $95,000,000,000 of the $95,000,000,000.

These facts should, it seems to me, be the cause of all the people making a close study of the conditions, and try to solve the problem of whither are we drifting. What can we expect in the next few years, but to become owned ourselves by these men who at that time will own all our wealth and us with it? Are we to become the humble servants of this aristocracy?

In 1854 the wealth of the Astor family was $6,000,000 and in thirty-five years it had grown to $300,000,000 and in the seventeen years following we can safely believe it has grown past the $1,000,000,000 mark. More notable is the growth of the Vanderbilt family.

In 1854 they owned $1,500,000 and in 1889 it reached the sum of $300,000,000.

If the wealth of Mr. Rockefeller was in 1889 $100,000,000 and has grown to-day as believed by many to have passed the $2,000,000,000 mark, as Mr. William Rockefeller's wealth is believed to be round the $1,000,000,000 mark.

We can also look to the other hangers-on of the Rockefeller chariot wheels as having amassed large portions of our national wealth.

Hon. Frank S. Monnett of Ohio is quoted by the press as estimating the holding of the Standard Oil to be $10,000,000,000 or one-tenth of our national wealth. One company of a few men own $1 out of every $10. I must believe, if I have a dollar in my pocket, that 10 cents of it belong to the standard. Now I do not want any of you to fly off the handle and judge me as being crazy for making that statement. I shall try to explain it in another way. There is paid out in the form of wages every year the sum of $5,600,000,000. This in the form of wages paid out, and our national volume of money is only $3,000,000,000 all told, including paper, gold and silver money. We only have a trifle more than one half in money than the total wages paid every year. There is but one conclusion to draw from this fact, and that is the money we receive one month of the first six month is again paid out to us in the last six months, for the reason we only have one-half the amount in money that is paid out in wages, being $5,600,000,000.

Socialism takes a bold stand upon this question of money. We claim that it is possible only for men to accumulate such vast sums as these through the exploitation of the workers. We claim that it is our labor power applied to the raw materials, worked by the use of the modern machine, having been able to produce so much more, but have received no more of the product, that has been the cause of these vast fortunes. The United States reports make the statement that we, the workers, produce to the value of $2,461 per year for each person who works for wages, but in wages we only draw back from what we produce the sum of $437, leaving a balance of $2,024 that is divided amongst the employing class. We hold this to be a criminal libel upon our Twentieth century civilization, we hold our so-called intelligence to be the rankest ignorance.

To whom should the product of his labor belong but to the producer of it? Why should men be compelled to divide that product with men who do not work? From where do we get any moral right to steal from the worker through the so-called legal means a part of his labor? Why should the exploiter, who robs the worker, by legal means of a part of that which his own labor produced, be considered the man of brains? Who should be the judge of the methods of production but the persons who do produce?

We care not for the wealth of our nation as dollars. What we want considered is the future productivity of the mines, mills and factories. We want honest labor performed, not for the sake of the tarnished and blood-soaked thing called the dollar, but for its usefulness to the producer or other members of society.

We do not believe in a set of conditions that will allow men to dictate to other men what wages they may receive, and under what conditions they may work. We believe this right should remain with the useful workers, not wit hthe idlers.

How long will we stand by with all of our wealth, and the possibilities of wealth in the future, greater than the past, and hear the little children cry for bread? What is crime? We should hang our heads in shame. We are traitorizing the little children by linplanting upon their young cheeks the kiss of a Judas, and why?—for our profits? P. G. PHILLIPS.

will treat the ores of the Starless, owned by Col. Wall.

The new steam hoisting plant at the Tintic Standard has been installed. Drifts from the bottom of the 400-foot shaft have been run north fifty-five feet and south thirty-three feet, both in highly mineralized ground.

Tintic Silver Crown owners are elated over assays from samples taken from a twenty-foot tunnel which showed 45 per cent lead, 18 ounces gold to the ton. The company has twenty-five claims, ten of which have surface outcrop carrying values of $19 to $87 a ton.

What is believed by its owners to be the Lost Josephine mine, on what was the Uintah reservation, is disclosing good values in the bottom of its shaft. Concentrates from seventy-five pans show 94 ounces gold and 503 ounces silver, worth $2,256 to the ton.

Sylvanite seems to be improving every day. Recently the owners of the property shipped to the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas, eleven carloads of ore that averaged in value about $500 per carload. They now have four or five more carloads waiting shipment. The property is an old one, having been worked in a desultory way for more than twenty-five years. It was exploited by Anderson originally. In the beginning he worked it with a small force of Mexicans, with whom he attained a depth of about 150 feet, striking his main ore body in a drift about two hundred feet from the shaft. The present company put their shaft 150 feet deeper and caught the same body of ore at the same distance from the shaft. They are now sinking to the 400-foot level, where they will again drift for the ore body, which they believe goes still deeper.

OUTPUT OF BUTTE DISTRICT

several stockholders of the Amalgamated Copper company, were in Butte last week and took their first look at their copper mines. They visited also the Washoe smelter at Anaconda "hill" mines, after which they took a trip underground in the famous Leonard of the Boston & Montana company and saw the bigegst vein of copper ore in the world.

The Trenton company has finished sinking on the Gagon shaft for the present and is cutting a station at the 2,200 foot level. When it is finished crosscutting and drifting will be started.

The sump is being cleared out in the Little Mina, owned by the Parrot company, preparatory to starting sinking. At the Parrot mine crosscutting at the 2,100 has been rather slow and hard work. It was estimated when work was resumed that the vein would be reached during the first week in September, but is now said that it will be several weeks more before it is cut.

The retirement of George Wesley Davis from the board of directors of the Davis Daly Copper company is taken in Butte to mean that F. Augustin Heinze and his close associates are no longer in control. Mr. Heinze remains, however, the head of the new company. The properties are practically idle, awaiting the accumulation of funds under the reorganization. Butte stockholders are not very enthusiastic over the $2 assessment as the hands of stock exchange.

The Barnes-King Development company continues to earn a little money each month above expenses. The bullion receipts for August are reported as $30,345.86. The month's expenses were $23,000.

openings have been made in the conglomerate for several months past, and the stopes are being robbed as fast as possible. The company has one shaft already in operation on the amygdaloid and a second shaft, once abandoned, had again been reopened to a depth of 286 feet. The shaft has been cleaned out, retimbered and further sinking is now in progress. The new lode upon which the company will soon confine its operations is the northern extension of the Pewabic lode upon which the Quincy and the Old Franklin mines are opened.

Superior has completed the construction of a permanent rock house of the typical Calumet & Hecla pattern, under the supervision of which company the property is being developed. The company has a stock pile of nearly 20,000 tons of excellent copper rock, and is preparing to begin milling this month. The No. 1 shaft is being enlarged to three compartment size, which will give it capacity to handle upwards of 800 tons rock daily. The No. 2 shaft has been enlarged recently and will be driven to greater depth. No copper has yet been disclosed in this shaft.

Old Colony Exploring.

Old Colony continues exploratory work with indifferent success. A crosscut is at present being driven across the formation at the ninth level to intercept an unknown amygdaloid lode opened and drifted upon by the Mayflower company the south several years ago. The lode carried considerable copper in spots, but the bunchy character of the ground early decided the company to discontinue further work at that point.

Ojibway is engaged in crosscutting to the lode at the second level, established at a depth of 500 feet. A second shaft is sinking below the 450-foot mark and a crosscut will be run out from it at similar depth. No drifting has been done for several months past, at which time a fair grade of copper rock was encountered at the first level. Drill cores obtained from a depth slightly exceeding 500 feet, show copper in considerable quantity. The company has a very complete surface equipment installed and paid for.

quette range of a scarcity of labor. This is a condition in striking contrast to affairs a year ago at this time, when the mines were beginning to retrench and were curtailing working forces. The Breitung interests, who some weks since largely increased their operations at the Mary Charlotte and Breitung Hematite properties at Negaunee, taking on additonal hands until the crews totalled 350, and who recently announced the decision to give employment to 150 more men, fifty of whom were for the Baron mine at Humboldt, have not been able to recruit a third of the increased force desired. Practically every laborer applying has been given work, but only a very small percentage of these men are miners, and it is this class of workers that are needed most. It is proposed to retain a force of 450 men throughout the winter. The last of the ore in stock is being shipped from both the Negaunee properties, and it is intended to operate each mine vigorously for an indefinite time in future. Additonal men also are wanted at Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Empire property, in the Cascade district. M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Richmond mine, too, is in need of more labor. These two properties are open pits, however, and will suspend operations with the close of navigation. Other Marquette range mines which dispose of their product in the open market have not been as successful in making important sales, and in the aggregate—that at the properties of consuming interests included—a very large tonnage of ore will be carried over the season. However, there is no intention of suspending operations. Stocking grounds are being enlarged to care for the winter's output.

The Gogebic Range.

Shipments from the Gogebic range havo been rushed latterly, both in order to clean up stockpile room and to get as much ore as possible on the lower lake docks before the season closes. The amount forwarded to date approximates 1,800,000 tons, a movement better than was expected a few months ago. A find of ore has been made on lands near Plummer, Wis., on the western extension of the Gogebic, and there is likelihood it will lead to important developments. Sinking test pits in a tract of which he is the fee owner, B. M. Hoppenyan was successful in encountering ore at different points for half a mile along the formation. The mineral lies at shallow depth and appears to be of good quality. The Hoppenyan property was in the hands of a Cleveland concern a year ago, but without the tract being tested and after equipment had been installed and preparations made for much exploratory work, the option was relinquished when the trade depression set in. The Steel corporation, which is developing the Plummer property, west of Pence, Wis., has one shaft down and will, it is understood, sink another one at a point 1,200 feet to the east.

The big North Marquette charcoal iron furnace of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company is resuming operations, after having been out of blast for a number of months, during which time the plant has been given a thorough overhauling, necessitated by the fact that up to the time of the suspension it had been operated continuously for more than five years. There is in progress of installation the Gayley dry blast, but it will be some months before this work is completed and the "refrigerator" system goes into commission. The resumption at the North Marquette furnace does not materially increase the company's pig iron production, for the Gladstone plan is now out of blast, after a record-breaking run of seven and one-half years, and there is no present intention to resume operations at the Carp River furnace at South Marquette, which has been idle now for months. Somewhat more inquiry is reported for pig iron, but the orders are still materially less volume than last year.

The Gleason Exploration & Mining company, of which J. C. McGreevy of Duluth and M. E. Gleason of Ely, Minn., are directors, and which is operating in the Iron River district of the Menominee range, has made a strike of ore, assays of which give 60 per cent iron. The property being tested adjoins the Mineral Mining company's James mine, in Section 3, 43-25.

NOTED FICTION CHARACTERS IN REAL LIFE

she got into trouble. Not content with drawing her characters from the life, she used, in some cases, the real names of the people of the little village which she took for the scene of her story. Then the Cape Cod folks got "mad" and began a suit to have themselves taken out of the book. The matter was compromised by the authoress supplying fictitious names for those characters which at first she had called by their real names. One of her characters was supposed to have been drawn from Bartlett, the father of the Ashmead-Bartlett boys. At one time Bartlett, a man of education and family, did live on the Cape Cod shore and his characteristics were said to have closely resembled those of which Mrs. Sarah Pratt Greene described as pertaining to Mr. Cradlebow. But that must have been before the days of the authoress and "Cradlebow" was drawn from a man probably still living in the village where Mrs. Greene, when "Sally MacLean," taught school.

How Thackeray and Dickens "Wrote up" Real Characters.

Thackeray drew his character of "Henry Esmond" from Thomas Fairfax, sixth baron of the name. It was this Lord Fairfax who settled in Virginia and started the line of American barons which has recently ceased to be American by the naturalization of the present Lord Fairfax as a British subject. Thomas Fairfax inherited from his mother, the daughter and heiress of Sir Robert Berwick, a great land estate in England and also a tract of land in Virginia containing 5,700,000 acres.

As a young man Thomas Fairfax held a commission in the Guards and was one of the best swordsmen and gentlemen of his time. He was an educated man, too, and could be serious as often as gay. But one day Lord Fairfax resigned his commission in the army, gave up his English estates to his brother and crossed the Atlantic to live the rest of his life far from courts, the follies and troubles of Europe. It was a love affair that transformed the growing discontent of Thomas Fairfax with European life into action, and caused him to seek his home in Virginia.

Thackeray makes "Henry Esmond" marry the mother of the girl he had been in love with, but things are different in real life, and Thomas Fairfax never married. He lived and died a bachelor. The title, upon his death, after being held for a few years by his brother, developed upon his kinsman, the Rev. Bryan Fairfax, ancestor of the present lord.

Dickens made use of his relatives and friends liberally, almost openly, and without shame when he wanted to draw a chance character. He used his own father and mother with great success and several times to furnish characters for his books. His father appears as Mr. Micawber in "David Copperfield" and as Mr. Dorritt in "Little Dorritt." As Mr. Micawber the peculiarities of the old gentleman were grossly exaggerated, but it is only necessary to read "Copperfield" and then Foster's "Life of Dickens" to see who served as the original of the immortal Wilkins. As Mr. Dorritt, the elder Dickens appears more true to himself. His great son seems to have sketched him closer to life. Like Mr. Dorritt, Mr. Dickens was in the debtors' prison of the Marshall-sea, and Charles used to visit the family there. It was thus that he acquired as a boy the knowledge of the inside of a debtors' prison of which he afterwards made such good use in "Little Dorritt."

It was Dickens' sister who served as the model for Mr. Dorritt's daughter Fanny. Mrs. Dickens, the mother appears as Mrs. Micawber and as Mrs. Nickelby. As Mrs. Nickelby she is so closely drawn to the life that it was considered a good joke among Dickens' friends and by Charles himself when the innocent lady one day asked her distinguished son—she had just been reading his story of "Nicholas Nickelby"—"Charles, do you suppose there ever was a woman like Mrs. Nickelby?"

As "David Copperfield" Dickens draw, or thought he drew, himself. This is apparent not from any resemblance that one can discover between David and Charles, but that Copperfield was intended to be himself was partially admitted by Dickens, and he utilized in the story of his hero many incidents and phases of his own history.

With the exception of Henry Esmond, probably the character in fiction most closely drawn from a great man is the character of Sir William Ashton in "The Bride of Lammermoor." Sir Walter Scott took John Dalrymple, a picture so like the original that there could be no mistaking its subject. The career and the character of Lord Stair were those given by Scott to Sir William Ashton. This Lord Stair was mainly responsible for the massacre of Glencoe, he being at the time secretary of state for Scotland. Scott, however, rather curiously, does not lay much stress on that, but excoriates Stair under the name of Ashton for his other sins and his general character. Lord Stair has never had a very friendly biographer, but the most unfriendly he ever had was Sir Walter Scott. Yet probably a few million people have known Lord Stair through Sir William Ashton who would never otherwise have been even aware of the existence of the viscount. The novel, and the opera written from it, have spread over the world a knowledge of Sir William Ashton, and in his John Dalrymple is "damned to everlasting fame."

MANY CAMPAIGN NOVELTIES

Strikingly Original Badges, Buttons and Parade Regalia.

The game of politics is in full blast. The children of a larger growth who comprise the voters must have their toys or they could not play the game with the necessary vim. Campaign toys are unusually novel and varied this election season, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Mighty intellects have grappled successfully with the important task of providing badges, buttons and uniform paraphernalia for the political clubs. Much profit will result to the inventors from the grotesque creations soon to be seen on the heads, bosoms and backs of the adherents of the various candidates.

At the last presidential election the fact of Theodore Roosevelt's being a candidate made the work of the badge and button man comparatively easy. Roosevelt had certain characteristics peculiarly Rooseveltian. Roosevelt symbols could be recognized at a glance by any one. For instance, the Roosevelt dental display had acquired an international fame and a novelty of the last presidential election known as "Teddy's Teeth," and consisting of a huge mouth fitted with two perfectly even rows of enormous imitation teeth, scored a bull's-eye with the Republican voters. In the same way Rough Rider suits were the perfectly obvious uniforms for the marching hosts, and as these could be bought cheaply and looked well in a parade, the faithful donned them as a matter of course.

But this presidential campaign is not such an easy matter for the badge and button men. A badge or button with a mere portrait of the candidate is not a ready seller. There must be some distinguishing characteristic that makes it perfectly plain to the man who must read as he runs that the citizen he meets is a Democrat or a Republican.

Hence the creation of campaign novelties have fallen back on the party symbols for ideas, and a Taft badge from which dangles a grotesque figure supposed to represent the elephantine emblem of the grand old party is finding favor everywhere. The portrait of Taft is there, of course, but the pendant elephant alone would show the political faith of the wearer of this badge, without the disk from which it is suspended.

A novel emblem, which is copyrighted by T. F. Gaynor, forms the letters T A F T, and contains many letters, figures and emblems, suggesting words, phrases and ideas of much variety, including initials of famous men, universities, symbols, virtues and epigrams that suggest themselves to the imagination. It is made of four straight lyines, so connected as to show plainly the four letters of the Republican candidate. By turning the emblem around, the various letters or characters will be noted. If they cannot be found in the front, they may be found from the back.

A badge designer of a deeply designing mind originated a Bryan emblem that prompts a sarcastic snicker from the opponents of the former apostle of free silver. From a photographic Bryan button is suspended a celluloid representation of the capitol in Washington. It does not need the legend "For President, William J. Bryan," to explain the connection between the Bryan portraiture and the Washington symbol.

Of floral emblems there are an immense variety. One shows the robust features of the Republican presidential candidate smilingly bursting through the highly colored petals of a big sunflower. The floral emblem is intended to convey the idea that Mr. Taft seeks the golden glory of the White House with the same cheerful confidence that the sunflower seeks the sun.

One of the Bryan emblems, on the other hand, depicts Bryan gazing at the world from the heart of a lily flower, the floral specimen being chosen, possibly, as symbolical of the spotless purity of the candidate's career, political and otherwise.

A more pretentious campaign novely is intended as an appeal to the women. It is a souvenir plate, containing the candidates' pictures in the center, surrounded by a ring of portraits of past presidential selections. The originator of this device proudly points out that his campaign novelty is not a mere passing plaything of the hour, but a souvenir that can be used to adorn a home until it falls from the shelf and meets the usual fate of such things. Variations of this novelty are seen in Taft and Bryan ash trays, card trays, and ecen breakfast ware. The wide-awake originators of such novelties make hay while the campaign sun shines.

The usual harvest will be reaped by those who design cheap uniforms for the paraders. An army of men marching in citizens' clothes is a sad looking sight. But dress the citizens in any kind of grotesque regalia, and as long as it is uniform it is impressive. For this reason the campaign managers provide the marchers with a colored cape or a flaring umbrella, or, if nothing else can be got, a high hat and a tri-colored cane. By an ingenious invention of a campaign novelty, the high hat can be obtained for almost nothing.

The orders are for every man to report for the parade wearing a derby hat. On the derby hat is placed a lid of black cardboard, stovepipe shape, and the illusion of a high silk hat is perfect. When 10,000 men are fitted out with make believe high hat and equipped with colored canes, their appearance in a parade is quite dignified and impressive. The transformation of the derby into a high hat is effected at a cost of about a cent a head, so that the campaign funds are not depleted to any great extent by the provision of a uniform headgear for the hosts.

An immense business is done by the badge and button and campaign novelty men during a presidential campaign. Originality of device and cheapness are the essentials to successful sales. The political clubs buy buttons and badges by the thousands for free distribution. Private individuals like to display their political inclinations by Bryan or Taft watch fobs, chain pendants or stickpins. Novelties casting discredit on the candidates' chances of election are eagerly purchased by voters of both parties and sent through the mails to discourage those of the opposite faith. It is a business in which immense sums are made from the nickels of the masses, but as the great harvest comes only once in four years there are not many competitors.

SURVIVORS TELL HARROWING TALES OF DASH IN FIRE

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 17.—Harrowing stories are told by survivors of the disaster which yesterday cost fifteen human lives, when a relief train that went from here to Metz to rescue the inhabitants of that fire-menaced village, was burned, on the return trip.

As rapidly as possible the people and their goods were loaded into the cars. Some refused to abandon their goods, or the train might have left earlier and have reached Alpena in safety. When the train finally started there were about 100 frightened people aboard. The flames were already sweeping through the village. Engineer Foster started his train for Alpena. Nearing Nowicki crossing he saw blazing piles of cedar ties on both sides of the track. Opening wide the throttle, he tried to dash through at full speed, but the heat had loosened the rails and they had spread and the train left the track.

The terror-stricken people, caught by the peril from which they were fleeing, jumped from the cars and rushed down the tracks. Three mothers and their little ones were cremated in the gondola car, where they were caught. Brakeman William Barrett sprang into the water tank behind the engine, only to be literally boiled to death as the flames swept over it. Engineer Foster and Conductor Kinville fled down the track through the fire and smoke and were the first to reach the village of Posen and report the wreck and ask for assistance.

Behind them straggled a portion of the refugees from the wrecked train. It was a fearful march over the hot ties, with the flames from the burning woods on either side of the track rearing and snapping in their faces. Engineer Foster was terribly burned about the head and face, but it is thought he will survive. Conductor Kinville was badly scorched. James White was totally blind by his burns.

John Nowicki, Sr., and his wife, and Mrs. Albert Hardies and her young son, were also seriously burned.

R. S. Richards, a Bay City traveling salesman, when he arrived at Posen, said:

"As the train left the track the heart-rending cries of women and children sent a chill over my body. I did not wait to see the outcome, as I knew it would be of no avail, and every minute was precious. George Boston, also of Bay City, myself and another man, started together. We walked down the track toward Posen. In some places the flames forced us to run, and Mr. Boston was burned about the face before he reached safety. Several other men left the scene about the same time we did, but when we reached Posen they were not to be seen. They may have perished in the flames.

"There was absolutely no chance to save the women and children from the gondola car. The time was too short. It will probably be a week or more before it is known definitely how many people perished in the village of Metz. The fire had gained a foothold in the town before the train left, and in all probability many of the citizens were cremated."

The dead:

UNION LABOR NEWS

A GUMSHOE CAMPAIGN

Union Labor is Working Quietly for Its Candidates.

Committees Appointed in Each Ward Hold Secret Meetings.

Local organized labor is going to make itself felt in this political campaign. There will be no public meetings or blare of trumpets, but campaigning will be carried on systematically and steadily nevertheless. In fact in the political war, union labor is waging locally this year, it wishes to avoid publicity.

Never before in the history of politics has there been such a concerted movement on the part of union men toward getting the candidates they wish in office. It is so all over the country, and the effort being made in Duluth is but a factor of the whole.

There is a state central committee, which is composed of a representative from each congressional district in the state. This representative is a chairman of his local committee. C. P. Uneapher is chairman of this district and he has appointed a chairman of a committee for each ward in the city. Outside of the city the work is being carried on also.

Organized labor all over the country has endorsed William Jennings Bryan. In this state, John A. Johnson is labor's choice for governor. Aside from that the committee has selected its candidates from both Republican and Democratic tickets.

The candicates for county offices, the local committee has not announced, though it is understood, that for they are supporting Jesmore, Democratic candidate for sheriff.

The local committee holds meetings of the different ward chairmen at stated intervals. The proceedings of these meetings are kept secret.

The local labor campaign is a man to man campaign. Each committeeman is working quietly all the time, canvassing his ward.

FEW JOBS OFFERED

Lumber Companies Slow in Starting Work at Their Camps.

The Wages Paid Are a Trifle Better This Year.

Though far better than at this time last year, the outlook for extensive logging operations this year, is not promising.

Only a few companies have signified their intention of opening up camps this winter, and these only in a small way. Some say that they may start work by the first of the year, but are not certain.

The Virginia Lumber company, which a year ago partially shut down its operations both in the woods and at its mills, has again resumed work, and seems to be the strongest bidder for labor. It is understood that they will be operating a force of about 500 men before the first of the year. Other smaller companies have put in orders with the local agencies for from twenty-five to fifty woodsmen.

The wages offered are a trifle better than they were last year. For general all around work, such as swamping, sawing, etc., from $20 to $26 is paid. If a man stays with the company for more than a month he is promised $26. Of course this includes board. For teamsters, $30 is the average wage.

There seems to be more chance to make money this year in the post and tie camps. A finished tie brings from 9 to 11 cents, while for the making of a post 1¼ cents is the price. Such jobs seem to be favorites with the men, but the demand for piece-workers is not great, by any means.

An order was received last night at one of the local employment agencies for fifty "stationmen." The order came from one of the railroads in the southern part of Wisconsin, and it promises work for fifty men all winter. A stationman is one of a gang which improve railroad right of ways, digging ditches, etch. For such work the railroad offers 17 cents a cubic yard for dirt removed.

TOO OLD FOR SERVICE IN REBELLION, STILL LIVES.

Balton, Minn., Oct. 17.—John B. Shequin of Sodus township was 100 years old the other day, and with his good wife, also celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his marriage.

Mr. Shequin was born Oct. 5, 1808, in Franklin, Vt. When he was 30 he married Miss Louise Ann Bigford, who was born Feb. 8, 1818, at Stanbridge, Canada. In 1866 they moved to Albert Lea, Minn., remaining there seven years. In the summer of 1873 they came to Sodus township, Lyon county, and have lived there since.

Mr. Shequin tried to enlist for the Civil war, but was rejected on account of old age, as he was then past fifty years. They have had three sons and two daughters, of whom three are living. There are sixteen grandchildren and twenty-eight great grandchildren.

Drowns in Wash Tub.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 1-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Beauchene, who reside northeast of Crookston, near Huot postoffice, met death Thursday in a most unusual manner. She fell into a tub of wash suds and before she was discovered life was practically extinct. An effort was made to resuscitate her and a physician was brought from Red Lake Falls in record time in an automobile, but she was past human aid.

STORY NOT YET TOLD

Homeless Settlers From Distant Points Being Heard From.

Many Probably Do Not Know of Relief Work.

The magnitude of the destruction and suffering that has been caused by forest fires in Northern Minnesota is daily being more deeply impressed on the workers at the headquarters of the fire fire relief committee on Second avenue West and First street.

The losses were not alone confined to Chisholm and Grand Marais, but were spread out over the whole country. Every day weary, smoke-begrimed settlers from the forests inland from the north shore, call for aid at the committee's storehouse.

Yesterday Mrs. B. M. Highland, postmistress at Brimson, on the Duluth & Iron Range road, brought word to the city of the work of the fires in that vicinity. Especially sad was one case she told of.

Richard Gillson, a settler living with his wife and family of two children, the oldest a boy of 9 years, sixteen miles east of Brimson, last Tuesday loaded his little family in a cart behind a pair of oxen and went to Brimson to shop. When they returned that evening only a pile of glowing embers greeted them, where their little log cabin had but a few hours before stood. Every possession they had in the world, except the oxen and the clothes they had on their backs, was burned. Even the vegetables in the ground cellar were cinders.

The next day they traveled the rough road to Brimson, and in tears told of their misfortune. Friends took them into their humble homes. It is needless to say that Mrs. Highland returned well loaded with clothing and furniture for her stricken neighbors.

A man was yesterday fitted out with all the clothing he could wear and carry for himself, wife and four children. He had been forced to wear the same clothes for the past six weeks, all the rest of their belongings having gone up in smoke.

The settlers about Grand Marais have been pretty well supplied with wearing apparel. But the settlers of Chicago bay and in the district back from the lake have not been reached at all as yet. One man who was at the headquarters yesterday said he believed that there were at least fifty families in the north shore woods suffering keenly from the devastations of the fires. They are away from communication with the world, and have no way to find out that there is a place in Duluth where they can obtain assistance. Many of them are probably ignorant that the fire has been so far-reaching, and think that they are alone in their misfortune.

RAINY LAKE AS A SUMMER RESORT

Plenty of Pretty Scenery and Ideal Climatic Conditions.

"Minnesota has many popular summer resorts, with unequalled climatic conditions, but the popularity of the Rainy Lake region, now in the early stages of development, promises to eclipse that of all other resorts in the state," said F. H. Clark of International Falls, Minn., yesterday. Mr. Clark is in Duluth on business.

"Rainy Lake has some of the finest scenery in the West, and now that three lines of railroads have made the region easily accsible, the attractions of that country as a summer resort are being taken advantage of. All through Rainy lake there are scores of beautiful little islands, many of them high above the water, and all covered with timber. They are unusually picturesque, and offer exceptional advantages for summer homes and camps. These islands are rapidly being bought up for summer pleasure purposes. It looks now as if the whole lake would develop into a summer resort. There is good fishing and hunting, and the weather is always nice and cool. Fort Francis, on one side of Rainy river, and International Falls on the other, furnish a good base of supplies. Boats run regularly from these points through the river and lake, making it an easy manner to get provisions, etc., to the numerous islands.

"From the viewpoint of business everything is looking fine at International Falls. The work on the water power at the falls is making good progress, and contracts have been let for the construction of paper and pulp mills. With its big water power, international Falls cannot help becoming an important commercial center. Business is brisk at present and real estate is in good demand."

COMMITTEE HERE MONDAY

Congressional Pulpwood Committee Will Investigate Conditions.

Word was received here last evening to the effect that the members of the congressional investigating committee upon the conditions of the pulpwood supply will be in this city Monday. The committee is composed of James R. Mann, congressman from Illinois; James M. Miller of Kansas City, Henry Bannon of Ohio, William Stafford of Wisconsin, Thetus M. Sims of Tennessee, and William R. Ryan of New York. The congressmen are investigating the condition and supply of the pulpwood forests with a view of reporting to the next session of congress.

The committee was appointed by Speaker Cannon at the last session of the house. The question of investigating the pulpwood supply is an outgrowth of the demand of the press of the country for a removal of the duty on pulpwood. The members of the committee have been holding investigations in various parts of the country, and while here will question lumbermen and make a personal investigation of the pulpwood forests.

MOOSE LAKER ROBBED.

Loses Dress Suit Case Full of Clothes at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Lindskog, whose home is at Moose Lake, is looking for the man who stole his suit case and brand new suit of clothes Wednesday evening at the Great Northern station, and if he finds him he will exercise summary retaliation upon his person.

Lindskog, according to his story to the police, had worked near Willmar and with a companion was on his way to Moose Lake. On the way they picked up another fellow and together the three made the trip. When they arrived in this city Wednesday afternoon, they left their baggage at the station and started for the city. The guilty party sneaked away, however, made for the station and succeeded in departing for parts unknown with his own suit case and that of Mr. Lindskog. He has not been located or seen by any one since.

Mr. Lindskog stated that this was the second time he has had a suit case stolen within a year in very much the same manner.

CHURCH ENJOYS LARGE INCREASE

Presbyterian Faith Steadily Growing in State of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Among the interesting facts brought out at the Presbyterian synod, in session here, is the growth of the church in this state in the past twenty-five years of the synod, according to the report made by Rev. R. N. Adams.

In 1884 the synod of Dakota was formed from a part of the synod of Minnesota. This made the bounds of the synod coterminate with those of the state.

Notwithstanding the loss of the large section taken to form Dakota synod, Minnesota rapidly grew and increased from four to eight presbyteries; 141 churches to 308, and from 8,673 members to 25,750, while the whole Presbyterian church increased 75 per cent during the past quarter of a century. In Minnesota the increase was 212 per cent.

He made a strong plea for synodical self-support, so that the boards of home missions need not assist the churches in this synod, but rather pay its own way. This could be done by raising $25,000 for the support of the smaller churches.

Rev. James Godward, chairman of the temperance committee, gave a brief summary of the history of the wave of temperance which is sweeping the country.

While it is not possible to make people sober by law, he held that it is possible to keep them sober. Resolutions offered and adopted, were as follows: "We indorse the effort to obtain local option, and pledge our efforts to elect men who will work for that end; and commend the work of the Anti-saloon league."

The newspapers were commended for their liberal space in publishing temperance literature and those which have refused to publish liquor advertisements were also especially commended.

The Narrative is the paper that is looked forward to with great interest as it sums up the work done and the results accomplished. This report was presented by Rev. C. H. Fleming and showed a wonderful growth along all lines. This being the fiftieth year of the synod, it was noted that Presbyterianism was never in a better condition than now. It has attained self-support and no longer will mission money from other states be sent to Minnesota.

Rev. S. F. Sharpless, D.D., of Fergus Falls, presented the report for the presbytery of Red River. This is one of the smaller presbyteries, but it covers a wide territory which is being settled rapidly.

St. Cloud presbytery reported through its pastor evangelist, Rev. T. M. Findley. He showed a marvelous growth with every church supplied with preaching services.

Rev. David McCashin told of the work being accomplished in St. Paul presbytery and the effort to place the weaker churches in a stronger financial basis.

Winona presbytery is the oldest one in the synod. Rev. L. E. Koenig presented the report. The problem is to supply the weaker churches with the gospel.

The Loveliest Hedges in the World.

Globe trotters agree that the most beautiful hedges in the world are found in the Azores. On the island of Fayal roads and fields are apt to be bordered with the blue-flowering hydrangea which grows to a size unknown in other countries. The intelligent public in general agree that for a pure, wholesome table beverage nothing can equal golden grain belt beer. Serve this delicious liquid bread at the home table and enjoy its benefits. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch of Minneapolis Brewing company.

RAILROAD AGAINST IT.

Great Northern Not Willing to Give Cloquet Adequate Depot.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern Railway company is still reluctant in the matter of affording this city with adequate depot facilities. A short time ago a number of business men drew up and signed a complaint to the effect that the city was in urgent need of such facilities and that the Great Northern was not dealing fairly with Cloquet, considering the amount of business it carries on here. This they forwarded to the state railroad and warehouse commission, who served a copy on the Great Northern, giving the company twenty days to answer it. Now an answer has been filed by the railroad company denying each and every allegation of the complaint.

The commission will investigate the case personally in a short time and then conduct a hearing.

A rally of Republican politicians will be held here Oct. 30, when Congressman C. A. Lindbergh, Senator Clapp and Railroad Commissioner Mills will speak.

Homesteader Olson Dead.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Andrew G. Olson, a homesteader from near Foy, died here this week.

Mr. Olson has been sick for the past six months, and about ten days ago was brought to Bemidji for medical treatment.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the Norwegian Lutheran church, Rev. Kolste having charge.

WORK WAS WELL DONE

E. P. Bicknell Praises Efforts of Fire Relief Commission.

Agent of Red Cross Society Investigating Conditions.

Ernest P. Bicknell of Washington, D. C., executive agent of the National Red Cross society, was in the city yesterday with Eugene T. Lies, superintendent of the Associated Charities in Minneapolis, investigating fire relief measures in the Chisholm and north shore districts. Mr. Bicknell has had considerable experience in work of this kind. He says relief measures in Minnesota were remarkably well handled, and has only words of praise for the endeavors of the committee and others assisting.

"I am not here to recommend that the national society take steps to furnish funds for relief," said Mr. Bicknell. "That is entirely unnecessary, for Minnesota has been so liberal in her response for aid that the fund already raised is entirely adequate to care for the needs of the sufferers. It is customary, however, in disasters for an agent on the ground, and where national assistance is not needed, he is expected to observe conditions, note items of interest in connection with the relief work and its methods, and make a full report to the society. That is my purpose here in this case.

"I find that relief work in Northern Minnesota has been remarkably well done. There is no room for one word of criticism. If an angel had charge of the relief work in cases of this kind, there would be sure to be some discontent expressed, for no matter how well work of this kind is performed, some one always is ready to give voice to his discontent, whether there is any reason for it or not.

"Not only has aid been promptly rendered in the range district, but it has been very efficient. Houses are rapidly being erected to care for the stricken people, and are being given outright to the sufferers. In other disasters somewhat similar assistance has been rendered, but it was hardly as complete as in Minnesota's case. At the time of the San Francisco fire and earthquake, 6,500 shacks were erected in the parks and on other public lands for the use of the unfortunates, and later were removed to private grounds.

"After the Johnstown flood, quite a number of houses were built, and given to the people. After the Chicago fire, the sufferers were given lumber and other building material with which to build their own homes, and some of these houses are still standing, and are still in use.

WILL NEED MANY MEN.

Chance for Employment Offered at International Falls.

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be work here until bitter cold weather interferes for a large force of men upon the construction of the dam and pulp mill to be erected by the Rainy River Improvement company, better known as the Backus-Brooks company, which has floated bonds for $3,000,000, with the privilege of floating more up to $5,000,000, according to E. G. Richardson, the general manager for the contractors. Local men will be given the preference first, but there will probably be work for many more.

Contracts for the construction of the dam have been made with J. G. White & Co., the largest firm of contractors in North America. They have work under construction in different parts of the United States, Canada and England. Their headquarters are New York. F. G. Richardson, the assistant general manager of the company, arrived here Tuesday night direct from New York. With him were H. P. Carter, who will be assistant superintendent in charge of the work here, D. K. Stearns, who will be the master mechanic. Mr. Rich, cashier, and Gordon M. Campbell, timekeeper.

The machinery and material on the ground, used by the Maguire-Penniman company, while they were engaged in the construction work, has been purchased by the new contractors and Mr. Richardson and assistants are busy invoicing the same.

Supt. Doring, who will have complete charge of the work, will arrive in a few days. Mr. Richardson will return to New York as soon as everything is in working order.

GRAND JURY FAILS TO INDICT JOHN MARTIN.

St. James, Minn., Oct. 17.—The grand jury having failed to return an indictment against John Martin, who was accused with Roy Seynard of attempting to rob the bank at La Salle, he was discharged.

WHEAT HAS SICK TONE

Poor Demand and Bearish Weather News Cause Slump.

Flax Well Bought and Closes Higher in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 17.—A poor demand and reports of rain in the winter wheat districts, where it has been needed, were responsible for the slump in wheat prices today. Outsiders seem to be out of the market altogether, and there was little buying during the session.

Practically the only bullish news of the session were reports of damaging frosts in Argentina and higher cables but these influences were ineffective in the face of the bearish weather news in this country and the general apathy of the trade.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to ¾d higher, Berlin 1¾c higher and Antwerp ⅝c lower.

The December option closed ⅞c lower in Duluth, 1⅛@1¼c lower in Chicago, ⅞@1c lower in Minneapolis, 1¼c lower in New York, and ⅜c lower in Winnipeg. Comparisons on the Southwest's close are impossible. The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, 1@1⅛c lower in Chicago, ⅞@1c lower in Minneapolis, 1¼c lower in New York, and ⅜c lower in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ⅛c lower in Chicago and ¼d to ⅝d higher in Liverpool. December oats closed ¼c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—There was a general disposition on the part of shorts to cover, as a result of light offerings, and values at the opening were ½d to ¾d higher than yesterday, with the principal strength in the distant deliveries. During the morning the market held early advance and gained an additional ¼d, with support good. The strength was attributed to the firmness in American cables yesterday, a decline in consols, some apprehension regarding the political outlook and light frost reported in Northern Argentina. At the close the market was firm and from ⅜d to ⅝d higher than yesterday, with shorts nervous, owing to the fact of light offerings and no arrivals either off-coast or awaiting orders, and smaller American shipments indicated by Bradstreet.

"Corn was steady at the start and unchanged to ⅛d higher, and later advanced an additional ¼d. The strength was due to the advance in wheat and an improved spot demand."

Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 752,000 bushels.

Clearances of corn were 7,000 bushels.

Wheat was quiet during the session in Duluth. December wheat opened unchanged at $1.01⅞, went as low as $1.00¾, and closed at $1.00⅞, a loss of ⅞c from yesterday. May wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.06, declined to $1.04⅞ and closed there, a loss of ⅞c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over December for No. as northern.

Flax was quite active and closed at better prices. October flax opened ⅜c higher at $1.21⅜, advanced to $1.22⅜, declined to $1.21½ and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday. November flax opened ¼c higher at $1.21¾, went to $1.22⅜, declined to $1.21¼ and closed at $1.22, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. December flax opened unchanged at $1.20¼, advanced to $1.21½, declined to $1.20¾, and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday. May flax opened ¾c higher at $1.24¾, advanced to $1.25½, declined to $1.24¾ and closed there, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Rye closed ½c lower and other coarse grains closed unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Goes Weak, Due to Prediction of Rains.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—An official prediction of general rains tomorrow east of the Rocky mountains caused weakness on the local wheat market today, prices declining nearly 1c during the first hour of trading. The market was also bearishly affected by a big increase in shipments of wheat next week from Argentina, as forecasted by a well known crop statistician. The slump in prices followed a firm opening which was due to an advance of nearly 1d at Liverpool. December opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at $1.00¼ to $1.00½, and declined to 99⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 773 cars against 1,103 cars last week and 622 cars a year ago.

The market failed to rally from the early setback, sentiment in the pit being decidedly bearish all day. The low point for December was reached at 98⅞c. The close was weak, with December off 1⅛@1¼c, at 99⅛@⅛c.

The corn market opened steady but soon weakened owing to the decline in wheat. Trade was of light volume. December opened unchanged at 63¾c and sold off to 63¼c. Local receipts were 115 cars with 31 of contract grade.

Part of the early loss was regained during the last half of the day, owing to moderate demand by shorts, and the market closed steady, ⅝c lower, with December at 63⅝c.

Selling of oats by cash interests caused moderate weakness in the oats market. The weakness of wheat and corn was the chief factor in the situation. December opened ¼c higher at 45½c and sold off to 45¼c. Local receipts were 196 cars.

Provisions were quiet and easy. The weakness of grain had a depressing effect. Prices at the start were unchanged to 10c lower.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Argentina Frost Report Exhausts Its Bullish Effect.

Minneapolis, Oct. 17.—Mainly on the more favorable outlook for rain in the northwest, wheat was weaker and lower. The Argentina frost report seemed to have exhausted its bullish effect. Berlin and Liverpool were both higher. Liverpool was ⅝@¾ up but the winter wheat situation at home was the main consideration and with showers indicated for Indiana, Illinois and Kansas over Sunday, a good many sold wheat. Receipts here were 510 cars against 277, in Duluth 193 and 210, Winnipeg, 536 and 304. Minneapolis elevator stocks gained 2,037,965 bushels for the week, reaching 10,017,-855 up to today and for one day more will gain 250,000 bushels. Stocks here are now 6,546,868 bushels larger than a year ago. The market was very weak at the close. December opened $1.01⅜; high, $1.01⅜; low, $1.00½; closed $1.00½@⅝. Old December closed $1.00⅝. May wheat closed $1.04⅞.

No. 1 northern was in good demand at 2c over December, and No. 2 at December price, but low-grade wheat was slower. Close: No. 1 northern spot or to arrive, $1.02¼; No. 2 northern, spot or to arrive, $1.00½; No. 3 wheat, 95½@99½c; No. 3 yellow, 75¾c; No. 3 white oats, 45¼c; No. 2 rye, 70¾@71¾c.

Barley—Receipts, 65 cars against 171 last year; shipments, 110. The market was about steady all around. Close, 51@59c.

Flax—Receipts, 54 cars against 70; shipments, 27. Good demand at ½c under Duluth October. Close, $1.20¾.

Mill stuffs steady at $17.50@18.25 for bulk bran.

Flour holds steady, although the undertone today was easier on the weakness in wheat. There is a fair demand. Shipments 63,760. First patents, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $5.90@4.20; second clears, $2.90@3.20.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

Although closing quotations showed no fluctuation from yesterday, there was a weaker tone to the barley market today. Barley has been steadily declining all the week, owing to a poor demand.

The malsters are out of the market and their indifference is one of the causes of the market's depression at this time.

While closing prices today were the same as yesterday's, some local barley men said that the lower range of prices should have been marked off at least half a point.

Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart was a visitor on the floor during the session today.

The decrease in local wheat stocks this week is going to be larger than estimated yesterday. Receipts have been rather light during the last two days.

Yesterday it was estimated that local wheat stocks would decrease about 44,000 bushels, but today it became apparent that they would decrease at least 90,000 bushels.

A NATURAL ERROR.

A group of aeronauts were telling balloon stories in the smoking room of a Chicago hotel. Capt. H. E. Honeywell, who with the "Fielding-Antonio" balloon was later to break all long-distance speed records, laughed and said:

"The great Elyot made a balloon ascent from Charleston one hot summer afternoon. A thunderstorm came up. Elyot, amid buckets of rain, the roar of thunder and the flash of lightning, was blown about like thistledown. On toward midnight he found himself over a plantation, and threw out his anchor—a grapnel at the end of a long rope.

"It happened that a colored man had died in one of the huts of this plantation. The funeral was to take place in the morning. A dozen friends of the dead man sat in the soft summer night before the hut, telling ghost stories.

"Suddenly, in the darkness above them, they heard strange noises—a flapping as of great wings, menacing cries. And they saw dimly a formless black shape.

"All but one man ran. This one man, as he cowered on his stool, had the ill-luck to be seized by the grapnel.

"The grapnel, going at a great pace, whirled him up four or five feet in the air and jerked him along at the rate of fifteen miles or so an hour.

"'Oh, massa, massa,' he yelled, squirming and kicking in that strange flight, 'I'se not de one! I'se not de cawpse! Dick's in de house dah! In de house dah!'"

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Market Started Lower and Additional Declines Were Recorded.

Only the Most Languid Interest Displayed in the Trading.

New York, Oct. 17.—Opening prices of stocks today receded 1 sympathy with the heavy tone of the London market. A decline of a point in Union Pacific was the feature. General Electric fell 1¾, Canadian Pacific 1, and Denver & Rio Grande and Amalgamated Copper large fractions. There were only light transactions.

There was no effective support to prices and the important stocks gradually sank until they ruled about a point below yesterday's closing. The continued pressure against Union Pacific was a large influence in the general weakness. Union Pacific declined 1¾.

The market closed heavy and weak. Belated sales of some stocks made a showing of additional declines, but prices generally were pulled up a fraction. Only the most languid interest was displayed in the market. Tennessee Copper advanced 1½ and North American 1⅝. Westinghouse Electric relapsed to 1½ below yesterday, and St. Paul lost a point. There was some renewal of selling pressure at the last.

AS TO WEDDING FEES.

Humorous Side of Marriage as Seen at the Parsonage.

The Congregational: The bridegrooms do drop the ring in ecstatic moments—a fine time did I have poking one from under a bookcase once while the bridegroom and his best man leered sheepishly at my crimson countenance; do forget to clasp hands and often step on the bridal train at that crucial second when the turn is made aisleward. One unhappy creature pulled my face all askew for one miserable moment by answering "Yes, sir, thank you!" to the query, "Do you take this woman?" A later bridegroom added at a private performance in my own house, "And mighty glad to get 'er, yer bet!"

The answer in a strange town and a strange ceremony furnish the comedy. The clergyman soon learns the faltering step on the porch, the fumble at his bell, the nervously twisted hat, the shy pretense at some other and different business; soon turns confidently and immediately to the nearest street car post to discover the half hid flutter of bridal skirts. Still such wisdom takes time, and madame during the first year of our own wedded life turned three promising five dollar couples from our door. Then came her eye opening.

I was out of town, and when Hattie Parsons, a demure, beauless, domesticated variety of damsel, appeared at 5 o'clock in the company of a young man and asked for me, madame assured her that the minister's wife "always just as well!" a conviction which Hattie failed to share, and even at 6, despite some added vehemence, desperately denied. At 7 I burst through the front door, glanced into the parlor, beheld a new brown silk never yet seen at church, gloves and hat to match, seated close to a youth very black as to coat, white as to tie and radiant as to patent leather.

"Why," cried I into madame's astonished ear, "I didn't know Hattie Parsons was getting married or ever thought of it!"

"How did you know?" she gasped.

Since that day every youthful book agent with the slightest trepidation of manner is bidden: "Come back at 2 o'clock, do! The minister will surely be in." Some conversations are unconfortably thorough.

As to these out of towners, the city of my abiding is full of them. Situated at the corner of two other states it proves a Gretna Green for all lovesick ones. They run to it away from angered parents, suspicious offspring, conventionalities of church weddings—the glory and the splendor and the dear delight is they run to us. It adds materially to our meagre incomes.

EIGHT-STORY STRUCTURE FOR WHOLESALE DISTRICT

New Building on Lake Avenue Will be Occupied by Dewitt-Seitz Company—The Week Has Been a Quiet One in Real Estate Circles, With Prices Holding Firm.

The Lake avenue wholesale district is to have another valuable addition in an eight-story building for the Dewitt-Seitz company, wholesale furniture dealers, now located at 14-16 East Michigan street. Plans have been prepared by J. J. Wangenstein and the Zenith Investment company, which has charge of the erection of the building, will let the contract very shortly. The site at the corner of Buchanan street and Lake avenue is being cleared by the removal of the old buildings and work on the new building will begin this fall.

Plans were originally drawn for a six-story building, but they were later altered so as to provide for eight stories. The building will be of brick, with a frontage of 80 feet on Lake avenue and 100 feet on Buchanan street. It will cost approximately $60,000.

The real estate man is a peculiar individual. He is the embodiment of business activity and persistence. While the people shout and hurrah over John A. Johnson and Jacob Jacobson and dive for each succeeding paper to read William R. Hearst's latest sensation, forgetting that there is such an institution as the real estate market, the real estate man plods along with that same old smile, saying nothing and thinking a lot.

Real estate offices are busy enough. Every clerk is busy with the books and the stenographers constantly beat their typewriters. Perhaps they are only writing "Now is the time, etc," but they're busy and will be kept busy if a square inch of land isn't dealt in for a month. The real estate man has a hearty handshake, a hopeful light in his eye, and a word of prophecy for the biggest and best real estate market in the history of Duluth, but the qualification "after election" is always tacked on to account for the hope.

The truth of the matter is, people are much too busy to deal in real estate very extensively. Politics hold the center of the stage, with baseball just about disappearing in the wings, and football taking its cue. When all the excitement is over, the world will settle down to its normal level and then once more the real estate man will come into his own.

The man who turns aside from the excitement and throws himself into the real estate world in the hope that he will find a low market waiting for a modest outlay of cash to enrich him with a piece of desirable real estate, finds himself up against a stone wall. The holders of land are too busy to talk of selling and, anyway, they want to see how the election comes out. "After election" is the pivotal point, on which everything swings and real estate isn't swinging very hard. A few deals have been made, but the burden of sentiment and talk in the real estate offices is just inspiring, convincing, hope.

A Superior street deal, now under way, it is said, will cause something of a sensation in real estate circles. It will be one of the biggest deals for some time, it is said. The deal is still in the rumor stage, but the rumor is said to be well founded and those who are interested are watching for the details to come out.

The East end apparently lost its grip this week, and but little property has changed hands. Several big deals are still in the air, earnest money having been placed on some of them, and another week or two will probably bring them down to earth. One deal of considerable importance was closed through Manley, Styker & Buck, W. A. Eaton purchasing from H. C. Strong the northwest corner of Fifth street and Twenty-Sixth avenue east for $4,500. Mr. Eaton will improve the property with a modern residence, it is said.

Amelia Sherwood has sold to the Duluth Home company lots 6 and 7, block 93, Endion division, on Fourth street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues east, for $2,100. In the register of deeds office this week, a deed was recorded transferring from Wilson G. Crosby to Percival M. Shaw, Jr., lots 10 and 11, block 7, Harrison's division for $2,800 and from Mary Allen Peck to Mr. Shaw lot 12 in the same block for $1,800. The lots are on the north side of First street between Twenty-Fifth and Twenty-Sixth avenues east.

Out in West Duluth a few deals of magnitude have been swung of late, the most important being the closing of the deal between the West Duluth Land company and the Northern Dredge company, by which the latter secures possession of the old Merrill & Ring dock property on the bay front. The deal was closed yesterday and the consideration is $17,000.

Up on the hill on the west side of Fifty-Seventh avenue west near Eighth street Florence C. Barnes has bought from Nels C. Hendricks lots 1, 2 and 3, block 79, West Duluth, Sixth division, for $4,000. The lot is improved with a modern residence and the price is a good one.

The West end also had a few deals, which indicate that real estate in that thriving portion of the city is in demand and will bring good prices. The southeast corner of Second street and Twenty-third avenue west, being part lot 368, block 75, Duluth proper, Second division, was bought by Joseph Anderson from the Western Land association of Minneapolis this week for $1,250. Theodore J. Sternberg purchased this week from Albert Anderson part of lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, block 1, Walbank's Third street rearrangements, on Exter street, near Twenty-ninth avenue west, for an unknown consideration. Carl F. Johnson purchased from Anna Nelson a piece of property on Third street between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues west, being the undivided one-half of the east one-half of lot 408, block 86, Duluth proper, Second division, for $1,250.

A piece of property out on London road near the fish hatchery, described as lot 8, block 7, Lester Park, First division, was purchased by Ralph J. Davis from Jane Sang for $1,050.

Fourteen lots on Duluth Heights on Linden street between Niagara and Arlington streets, described as lots 1 to 14, inclusive, of block 22, Duluth Heights, Sixth division, brought $2,806. They were sold by the Clarion Land company to Mary A. Miller.

The beautiful fall wether which has prevailed during the past few weeks, has brought smiles to those who have building work under way, and they are making the most of their opportunity. On every building under construction in the city, the largest possible force is at work, as the operations can be pushed much more successfully under present conditions, than if normal October weather conditions prevailed.

At Lakeside, the Lakeside Land company has the construction of four residences under way. Another week of the present weather will find all four buildings under shingle and the interior work may proceed more leisurely, as it cannot be affected so much by the elements, even if the weather may change.

For the reinforced concrete work under way on the Christie building and Elks home, the conditions are especially favorable and full advantage is being take nof the opportunity to push the work.

Austin Terryberry has prepared plans for a new residence for W. E. Wright on Nineteenth avenue east and Sixth street. It will be a frame structure, with stone basement, hardwood finished and thoroughly modern. It will cost about $3,000.

• • •

J. Harry Lewis, well known here as a newspaper man, has given up the game to engage in the real estate business in St. Paul.

Through Stryker, Manley & Buck, J. L. Cromwell, administrator of the estate of John T. Russell, has hold to Duncan McNee, a house and lot 231, Lake avenue, Upper Duluth. The consideration was $1,200.

A FIREPROOF HOME WHICH WOULD COST $7,600 TO BUILD

The very suggestion of a fireproof house calls forth the impression of a costly structure. But the extra expenditure would be equalized by even a small fire, saying nothing of the saving in the fuel bill which fireproof construction insures. Furthermore, consideration of the wear and tear on both exterior and interior must be taken into account, repairing, insurance bills, etc., in the years to come.

This, the first of a series of fireproof houses, is of a type ordinarily published in these pages giving an opportunity to compare the cost of the two types of houses, fireproof and non-fireproof. While there are several styles of fireproofing there is perhaps none better adapted to residence or flat building construction than brick or tile, for the superstructure, and a concrete foundation. Concrete and tile have been used in the design here shown; plaster is applied directly to the tile, both exterior and interior, which is economy.

Lumber is growing scarcer every year. It has gone far above 100 per cent over its cost twenty years ago, while brick, and tile, and cement, and other incombustible and indestructable materials have gone far below their cost at that period.

For instance, a wood partition plastered both sides as generally built in the average house, will average 15 cents a square foot; on the other hand, a four inch partition, fireproof, sound proof and vermin proof will average 18 to 20 cents per square foot, while a tile floor built in a most substantial manner, finished with monolith, cork tile, asbestolithic, or other incombustible plastic flooring may be had for 26 to 28 cents per square foot. Therefore, the general supposition that fireproofing is extremely costly is false.

The doors, interior trimmings, window frames, etc., may be entirely of non-inflammable materials. In fact, there need not be wood enough to make a lead pencil. The interior of this design, however, is to be of wood, this feature being allowed since the construction is of fireproof material throughout. This is done largely for the sake of economy in a small house.

The plans in the sketch have some good points. The living room is large and is fitted with a conspicuous fireplace of tile and a copper hood. The dining room is comparatively large and communicates directly with the kitchen through a double swing door. The kitchen being somewhat larger than ordinarily planned on account of the absence of a pantry, is fitted with an abundance of cupbords, space being left for other accessories, refrigerator, etc. A rear grade entrance gives access to both the cellar and main floor.

In the second story are the customary bed rooms and bath room. Closets are plentiful, and a quaint little fireplace has been planned in the main chamber.

The estimated cost to build a house of this size with fireproof construction, roof of asbestos shingles, including plumbing and heating would be $7,600.

CHECK ARTIST ARRESTED.

Caught in Omaha for Alleged Crime in Mankato.

Mankato, Minn., Oct. 17.—W. W. Martin, alias Keller, is under arrest at South Omaha at the instance of local officials. Two or three days ago he was in Mankato and claimed to be a bookkeeper for the Hamm Brewing company of St. Paul.

He wrote out and secured the cash in three checks against banks where he had no funds, and left after obtaining $26. He was traced to South Omaha by the Hamm Brewing company and arrested there on Wednesday. It is said he is being held for a crime of similar nature committed there, although the Mankato authorities are trying to get him.

BEST EVER, SAY TARS

Yankee Sailors Astounded at Japan's Elaborate Program.

Mikado's Men Say Good Time Is Only Just Begun.

FIRST TO RETURN FROM WORLD TOUR

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 19.—The battleship Maine, the first of the Atlantic fleet to return to the United States after a tour around the world, was sighted off the entrance of the harbor here at 7 o'clock this morning. Tugs were on hand on meet the ship and she docked at the navy yard at 9.

Tokio, Oct. 19.—The American naval officers and men say the reception they are being accorded here beats anything in the line of hospitality they have yet encountered, and the Japanese say the reception in honor of Uncle Sam's tars has not hardly begun, yet.

Monday morning broke calm and beautiful over Yokohama bay, the harbor being bathed in brilliant sunshine which threw into strong relief the great shining white vessels of the American fleet, where they lay at anchor beside the darker Japanese fleet, which showed strongly against the horizon.

The first item in the reception to the Americans was the departure of Rear Admiral Sperry and the admirals and captains of the fleet for Tokio. They were driven to the station in carriages elaborately brocaded with flowers where they entered a special train at 9 o'clock. Even the carriages of the train were especially prepared for this occasion, having been newly painted and draped with American flags and beautiful decorations, while the interior were fitted with flowers. Along the whole eighteen miles of the way to Tokio there was a continual ovation to the Americans.

Lane of Waving Flags.

Admiral Sperry bowed his response from an open window and his officers waved their hats, while the ladies of his party fluttered flags and handkerchiefs from every window of the train. The trip was one long procession through a lane of waving flags. The wonderful inspiration of the massed childrens' voices was evidently a part of a carefully thought out plan. It is the intention of the reception officials

NOAH CRAZY, SAYS SAILOR BROTHER

Pleads With North Dakota Governor to Save Condemned Man.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 19.—Attorney Leighton, acting in behalf of R. S. Noah, the sailor brother of D. M. Noah, who is to be hanged next Friday at the penitentiary for the murder of Gus Johnson, near Kenmare, last November, has applied to Governor Burke for a reprieve for the condemned man, on the ground of insanity. R. S. Noah is a sailor on the Asiatic squadron and has come across the Pacific in this effort to save the life of his brother, who, when arrested for the crime, gave his brother's name and was tried and convicted under that name.

The brother claims that D. M. Noah is insane on the subject of being a bad man, and has written a number of romances to his friends, describing crimes which occurred when he was a child and of which he claims to have been the central figure.

It is not believed here that a reprieve will be granted, unless more evidence than mere say so of an attorney is presented as to the man's mental derangement. Noah is cheerful and looks forward to the day he is to be hanged with seeming cheerfulness, and still maintains that the law is supreme, and that as he killed Johnson, though he says he does not know why, he must pay the penalty.

PASTOR TIRES OF MARRYING PAIRS FOR NOTHING

Boston, Oct. 19.—Rev. Herbert H. Johnson, pastor of the Warren avenue Baptist church, who some weeks ago announced that he would marry for nothing any couple that wanted to get married, and has since been busy with applicants, has retracted his offer declaring he will not marry a man so poor he has not money enough to pay the fee.

TAFT RUSHES TO INDIANA

Half Week Will be Spent Trying to Regain State.

Doctor Says Nominee is Holding Up Well, Despite Throat.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Before leaving Washington today Judge W. H. Taft discussed the demands of the campaign saying that while the program mapped out for him is extensive he hopes to be able to complete the work by conserving his voice.

His itinerary for today covered New Jersey and Deleware, ending with a big meeting in Baltimore tonight at which Secretary Garfield will preside. During the day he spoke at Newark, Trenton and Wilmington, with shorter addresses at smaller places.

Tuesday will be devoted to Maryland, and West Virginia, beginning with a speech in the early morning at Cumberland in Western Maryland and closing with a speech at Parkersburg, W. Va. Tuesday night Taft will spend in

GOMPERS URGES AGAINST WATSON

Exhorts Hoosiers to Elect Democrat to the Governorship.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 19.—That the election of W. J. Bryan as president of the United States and the defeat of ex-Congressman J. F. Watson, the Republican nominee for governor of Indiana, would be the greatest victory organized labor has ever achieved in the United States, was the keynote of the speech delivered in this city by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The meeting here last night closed a hard day of campaigning in the southern part of Indiana by the labor leader.

Mr. Gompers denounced the decision of the United States supreme court, which declared that under the Sherman anti-trust law labor unions are construed as trusts. He said this difficulty is a direct contradiction of the letter of acceptance of W. H. Taft, the Republican candidate for president, which declared that the laboring people had a right to organize.

FATAL STORM IS 48 HOURS LONG

Rain and Snow Cause Death and Injuries in Colorado.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 19.—A storm, accompanid by rain which changed frequently to snow, has prevailed throughout Northeastern Colorado for nearly forty-eight hours.

In sections of the mountains heavy snow has fallen. Considerable damage was done to electric wires, and telephone and telegraph wires are seriously affected.

Railroad and interurban electric lines have been interrupted and at places completely blocked.

Several accidents, and one death, have resulted from persons coming in contact with broken electric wires.

ROSEBUD LAND DRAWING BEGINS.

Dallas, S. D., Oct. 19.—Very few of the 33,000 persons who registered were present when the drawing of the Tripp county Rosebud lands began, shortly after 10 today. Nineteen large iron cans were opened and the contents spread out on the front of the platform.

Ex-Congressman Cale made a short address. He was the second delegate from Alaska and came in the interest of his sons, who desire to draw a claim. After the preliminary arrangement of emptying the iron cans which contained the applications of the 114,769 persons who had registered, the drawing began. Judge James W. Witten made the announcement of the first name drawn.

The first name drawn in the opening of Tripp county was May A. Melsen of Kennebec, S. D.

ATTEMPT TO RAISE HUGE BAIL FUTILE.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 19—The attempts made in Russia and England to raise the $25,000 bail demanded by the Russian government for the release of Nicholas Tschaikovsky, the Russian patriot, who has been imprisoned here eleven months, have been fruitless. Tschaikovsky's relatives in England were able to supply only one-half the amount demanded. An effort will be made to have the amount of bail reduced.

BRYAN'S ELECTION A LANDSLIDE, ENTHUSIASTICALLY PREDICTS MACK

New York, Oct. 19.—Massing all the forces of the militant democracy in the final struggle of the campaign to capture the Empire state, Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, bearing prophecies of victory came from the West today to take personal charge of what he declares will be the hardest fought finish of any presidential campaign in this state. Not only Mr. Bryan, but other Democratic speakers of note, including United States senators, will swing through the state in an effort to capture New York's electoral vote.

Mr. Mack held several conferences today with Eastern leaders looking to the devisement of plans for the final onslaught, and asserts Bryan will be elected by a landslide.

CANNON IS SCARED BACK

Speaker Scurries Home to Save Self at Polls.

Cancels Dates in East, to Fight Growing Opposition.

Danville, Ill., Oct. 19.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon will spend the rest of the time before election in his own district, looking after his own fight, and will not fill his speaking dates in the East. This is the first time since he became head of the house of representatives that Cannon has not toured the country for the Republican national and congressional tickets.

The widespread and growing opposition to Speaker Cannon's re-election and the great popularity of H. C. Bell, Democratic candidate for congress, caused Mr. Cannon's decision to come home.

KERN INVADES SHERMAN'S TOWN

Democratic Nominee is Hoarse—Speaks in Utica Tonight.

New York, Oct. 19.—After five days in and about New York, during which time he addressed ten audiences of varying magnitudes and descriptions, John W. BRYAN CRUSADE ENTERS ILLINOIS

East St. Louis Turns Out Big Crowd of Workmen.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 19.—William J. Bryan began a day's speechmaking in Illinois with a talk to a large crowd of workingmen at the relay depot here today. The Democratic candidate discussed the issues of the campaign generally, but he paid particular attention to the party platform on the subject of court injunctions, and also emphasized the action of the campaign managers in making the contributions to the party's treasury public.

Mr. Bryan spoke for thirty minutes.

"This is an auspicious beginning for my day in Illinois," said Mr. Bryan as he surveyed the crowd, "I believe that it portends defeat for the Republican ticket in this state."

He then plunged into a discussion of campaign contributions and said the Democratic party demands that the Republicans be as frank as we have been and cease hiding their alliance with the money masters, who consistently oppress the people."

The speech closed with a plea that the rival candidates for the presidency be allowed "to fight out the campaign between themselves," so that the people may decide between the issues, "unhampered by executive interference."

SHORTSTOP TINKER TELLS COURT WHERE CHAMPIONSHIP CASH WENT

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 19.—Joseph B. Tinker, shortstop for the Cubs; Harry C. Pulliam and Ban Johnson of the national baseball commission, were in Municipal Judge Hume's debtor's court because the shortstop with the Cubs failed to pay a cigar and liquor bill when he quit the saloon business.

One hundred and four dollars in paying for box seats furnished for friends for the two games of the championship series played in Chicago, $200 borrowed money paid to Manager Chance, $200 given to his wife, and $200 spent for clothing for his wife and paying of numerous debts were the reasons given by Tinker for the disappearance of the $1,400 he received from the championship games.

"Have you any receipts to show for these expenditures?" Tinker was asked.

"I have receipts for some of the debts I paid, but as for the baseball debts and borrowed money, we didn't bother with notes in borrowing or receipts in paying," Tinker responded.

"What did you do with that diamond pin you were wearing three weeks ago?" Tinker was asked.

"I gave that to my wife."

The case then was continued to Oct. 24.

SEEK STOLEN GIRL WIFE

Husband and Posses After Victim of Two Kidnapers.

They Are Captured Playing Cards, But Victim Flees.

Huntington, L. I., Oct. 19.—Twice kidnaped from her home and kept a prisoner in the woods by two men for several days, Mrs. Abbie Meerlongola of this place, is believed to have been crazed and wandered to her death in a swamp, or to be roaming through the woods, while her husband and posses are searching for her. Two men who are suspected of kidnaping her are under arrest. She is only 17 and the daughter of a well-to-do farmer. She was married six months ago.

Mrs. Meerlongola was first dragged from home Oct. 10. A neighbor saw her being led to the woods between two armed men. Three days later, after her father and husband had sought her in vain, she staggered into her father's home, and said that she could remember little that had happened during her absence, except that she had been kept a prisoner in a swamp by two men.

A few days later another attempt to kidnap her from her father's home was made, but was frustrated by the appearance of her husband.

Again, last Saturday afternoon, two kidnapers raided her father's home and, frightening her mother with a revolver shot, again dragged the young wife away. The help of the police was again summoned, and yesterday afternoon two officers found her in the custody of two men in the woods, near Huntington. The girl was lying on a pile of brush, while her captors were playing cards. The kidnapers gave battle to the police, but were overcome and arrested. Alarmed, and apparently half crazed, the girl fled.

WAS NOT RACING.

But Wilson's Chauffeur Refused to Stop for Frightened Horse.

City Attorney Wilson's automobile was not racing on London road Saturday, as announced in The Herald. Although it frightened a horse which was being led behind a buggy, until it tried to jump into the rig, and did succeed in landing its front feet between the shafts, cutting one leg so badly that a veterinary had to be called, the machine did not actually strike the conveyance, which was occupied by Alderman Frank Jordan and Charles O. White of Lakeside.

The first report, telephoned into the police station by an irate resident of Lakeside, had it that the auto had struck the rig, injuring its occupants. The man who telephoned claimed to have been an eye-witness of the affair, and so there was no particular reason why anyone should suspect that his statement of the alleged facts in the case was an incorrect one.

"Mr. Wilson was not in the machine at the time," said Alderman Jordan this morning. "We were not struck, but it seemed rather strange to me that the chauffeur did not stop his machine when he saw how badly the led horse was frightened. I do not know that the auto was speeding. It came up from behind. The horse reared around broadside to the rig, and began prancing about, and when the machine did not stop it reared again, and its feet got between the shafts, cutting one leg so badly that the services of a veterinary were necessary. Still the automobile did not stop. It kept right on going, just as if nothing had happened. Then the horse jumped back from between the shafts. We led the two horses home."

The fact that the auto was not brought to a stop was explained by Mr. Wilson as follows:

"The chauffeur figured that if he stopped his machine the horse would be all the more frightened. He thought that by going right along, and getting out of sight, the animal would quiet down. I think so myself. You see, there are two ways of looking at the affair. I feel that a great injustice has been done me. Occupying the public position I do, the situation the erroneous report places me in is doubly disagreeable."

TAKES LIFE WITH ACID

Despondency Over Loss of Child Leads Father to Death.

Missing From Home Since Child's Funeral, Two Weeks Ago.

Not far from a partially emptied bottle of carbolic acid, A. P. Gaul and William A. Vanasveran, yesterday found the body of Guy Smith, a longshoreman, who had but recently moved with his wife and child from Superior to West Duluth.

For two weeks Smith had been missing from his home. At the time of his disappearance one of his children had just died, and the father was stricken with grief. When the time set for the child's funeral arrived, he was not to be found, and since then had not been seen by any of his friends. It is thought that the loss of his child and domestic troubles caused Smith to become despondent and take his own life.

The body was found in the woods near Seventy-fifth avenue west and Nicollet street. Gaul and Vanasveran were hunting there in the morning with their dog. The dog, while running through the brush came upon Smith, and by barking attracted the hunters to the spot.

The police and W. H. Richter, undertaker, were notified, and the body was taken to the rooms of the latter. Judging from the fact that decomposition had already set in, it is thought that the suicide was committed several days ago. In the dead man's clothes was found a passbook of the Modern Brotherhood; and communication with the Superior police confirmed the identification.

Mrs. Smith could not be located yesterday, but this morning she came to Richter's undertaking rooms and identified her husband. Funeral arrangements will be made later. At present Mrs. Smith is living with her sister-in-law at 5121½ West Third street. Before Smith came to West Duluth he had been working on the docks in Superior, though his membership in the Longshoremen's union had lapsed about a year ago. He had dropped from the Superior lodge of the Modern Brotherhood in August. The insurance which he had with the Red Men had also been allowed to lapse about a year ago.

He was about 50 years old and leaves a wife and one child.

EXPOUND REPUBLICAN ISSUES

West Duluth Republican Club Now Has Membership of 600.

Saturday evening, for the third time this season, the West Duluth Republican club held a rally in the rooms of the Commercial club over the Western State bank. The club has now a membership of about 600, and many new applications for membership are regularly coming in, according to George Cruickshank, secretary of the club.

Saturday evening the club was addressed by James A. Wheaton, who spoke at length on the issues of the campaign. His subject was "Why Are You a Republican?"

E. J. Kenny also spoke, attempting to show that William H. Taft is a friend of the laboring man. Other speakers were scheduled to make addresses but were unable to be present. They sent word that they would be on hand for the meeting next Saturday evening. L. A. Barnes closed the evening by thanking the speakers, and complimented them on their able presentation of the issues of the day.

TIGERS VICTORIOUS.

Three West Duluth Teams Make Winning Scores Sunday Afternoon

Saturday and Sunday the Irving Tigers played two of the hardest games of football they have played this fall.

On Saturday they played a 0-0 game with the Two Harbors city team, and Sunday afternoon they bucked the Superior Maroons on the Wisconsin grounds, defeating them by a score of 12 to 5. A crowd of about 200 backers took the train with the Tigers Sunday for Superior. More interest was displayed than has ever before been shown in any of the West Duluth boys' games.

It was easy to be seen that the hard game of the day before with Two Harbors had somewhat taken the life out of the Tigers, though they played an aggressive game from beginning to end. When the Tigers first secured the ball, Abrahamson got off for a long run, scoring the first touchdown. The next score was made by Drake. Both goals were kicked by Doyle.

The teams lined up as follows:

Tigers.	Position.	Maroons.
Fieldman	re	Wade
Pond	rt	Livingston

Winton	c	Johnson
Beauverage	lg	Branca
Briggs	lt	Robinson
Drake	re	Cmith

Two other West Duluth teams also carried off honrs yesterday. The Longfellow football team defeated the Proctor aggregation, 12 to 0, on the Fifty-second avenue west grounds, and the Irving Juniors were victors against the Proctor Juniors, by a score of 12 to 0, on the Bay View Heights grounds.

MEE TALKS TO MEMBERS

Explains His Views on Freight Rates Before Commercial Club.

Tells How Present Rates Are Unfair to Duluth.

In an address before the members of the Commercial club today, Robert Mee, Democratic candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, told the business men of this city that their interests were being discriminated against by the railroads of the state and that unless some action was taken by the commission to put a stop to this patent discrimination on the part of the railroads, the northern part of the state would continue to lose business that belonged rightfully to this territory.

Mr. Mee stated that the rates were the same from Duluth to Faribault and other southern cities of the state, as they were from Chicago. Chicago is over 400 miles from the territory, while Duluth is a trifle over 200 miles. By this unfairness in rates Mr. Mee pointed that a large percentage of the business that should come via the Duluth territory is routed through Chicago.

He explained to the members of the club that the members of the railroad and warehouse commission had the authority to put a stop to this discrimination on the part of the roads, but efforts to correct this rate inequality had been without avail.

Mr. Mee pointed out the increased business that would result to this part of the state, and to Duluth in particular, should the rates to the southern part of the state be placed upon an equal mileage basis with the rates from Chicago. That would reduce the present shipping rates by at least a third, making a liberal allowance for the increased cost of moving local traffic through St. Paul and Minneapolis to Faribault and other southern towns.

Mr. Mee promised, in the event of his election, to do everything in his power to correct this rate abuse. He stated that Hans P. Bjorge, the other Democratic candidate, held similar views regarding the unjustice of the rate discrimination.

The New Ulm rate case was cited to show that the commissioners held the power to correct the rate discrimination.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—News has been received in Milwaukee from California, of the death on Sept. 23, of Mrs. Milwaukee S. Hockelberg, the first white child born in Milwaukee.

Already plans are being formulated by a number of old settlers to place a memorial tablet on the site of her birthplace, 384 East Water street.

Mrs. Hockelberg was the daughter of Uriel B. Smith, a tailor who came to the village of Milwaukee in the spring of 1835. He established a home and tailor shop on what is now East Water stareet. It was in the combination home and shop that the girl was born in October, 1835.

Col. McCarty, a land speculator from Kentucky, was a noted figure in Milwaukee in 1835, and offered to give the newly born child a lot in the growing village for the privilege of naming her. The proposition was accepted, and the girl was baptized "Milwaukee."

ROCHESTER BANK ROBBER CAUGHT AFTER EIGHT YEARS.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 19.—Word has been received in this city of the arrest of James Johnson, at Cincinnati. He was a former inmate of the county jail in this city, in 1900 on a charge of robbing in the State bank. On the night of May 31, 1903, he, with a companion and outside help, broke jail and got away. A reward of $250 was at once posted for his capture, but nothing was heard of him, until his arrest yesterday. Should it be decided to go after the prisoner, Sheriff Vine will go, and Johnson will have the pleasure of accompanying the same official from whom he made his getaway in 1903.

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY MAKES RECORD CYCLE RUN

WALTER T. TAYLOR.

Walter T. Taylor, a Duluth lad of 15 years, holds the record for the best time between Minneapolis and Duluth on a motor-cycle.

Young Taylor, whose father is chef at the Spalding, left Minneapolis Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock and he kept on riding until he reached Sturgeon Lake, where he lodged with a farmer for the night. Starting out in the morning again, he reached Duluth yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This is said to be the best time ever made on a machine of the kind between the two cities.

Young Taylor has been an enthusiastic motor-cyclist ever since he was 11 years old. He uses an imported cycle.

COUNT HAS THE DOUGH

Skips With Lady and Funds of Joerns Advertising Company.

Former Duluthian Victimized by Titled Foreigner at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the future, when it comes to a case of royal counts, count Arnold W. Joerns, formerly of Duluth, now president of the Joerns Advertising company, out of the running, for he is all through with counts for the rest of his life. Largely owing to the efforts of one count, the Hon. C. E. Staudenmayer Hutchins of London, England, the Joerns advertising firm was forced to close its doors Saturday, for the count has disappeared and with him most of the Joerns company funds.

To be sure, the forest fires about Grand Marais destroyed a large tract of timber owned by the company, which seriously crippled it, but for the Count C. E. S. Hutchins they would have been able to make both ends meet.

The count disappeared last Monday morning and with him most of the company's funds. He has not been seen since and probably won't be, as there are several fast steamships sailing almost every day in the week from points on the Atlantic coast for merry old England.

Married St. Paul Girl.

The Count C. E. Staudenmayer Hutchins, whose mother is said to be descended from the best blood in the German empire, was a most democratic count. He wouldn't stay at home with the other little countlets, but preferred to win his fortune battling against the captains of industry in America. So democratic was he that he scorned the fair and titled ladies of England's court and married an every-day American girl, Theresa Gerster, 397 West Central avenue. The couple were married but a few days ago.

Monday the count, through whose veins runs the blood of several down and out barons and a few half shelled dukes, disappeared from his position as secretary of the Joerns company and with him went most of the funds following the usual American custom of cashing after titles.

Now the firm of Joerns & Co. are out of business and are just waiting for some one to say count to them.

Count C. E. Staudenmayer Hutchins formerly resided at 348 Pleasant avenue, and was engaged to Miss Gerster last winter. The couple were married Monday morning at St. Joseph's church and left the city immediately.

Later Joerns discovered that the firm's coin was gone.

WOMAN IS CONVICTED

Mrs. Peterson Found Guilty of Keeping Disorderly House.

Trial of Charles Wilson May be Last of This Term.

Mrs. Anna Peterson was convicted in district court, this morning, of keeping a disorderly house. The testimony in the case was heard Friday and the arguments were made this morning.

Mrs. Peterson lived at 2805½ Helm street, and was arrested on complaint of neighbors, who claimed that the house was noisy, that men visited it frequently and they were disturbed by the people there at all hours. They testified to those facts. The defense claimed that the noise was caused by roomers in the house. The jury was out about an hour.

Samuel Wilson, indicted under the name of Charles Wilson, was put on trial this morning on a charge of indecent exposure. The offense is alleged to have been committed in a lodging house at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street, on the morning of Sept. 4, of this year, in the presence of two women. There are two indictments against Wilson, the other charging him with having obscene literature in his possession. Attorney Dacey is defending him.

The Wilson case will be the last criminal case called for some time and perhaps the last of this term. Judge Cant will go to Carlton tomorrow to open the October term of court for Carlton county and, if the calendar there is heavy, he may be engaged until the November term of court here. Judge Ensign and Judge Dibell will be busy with equity cases and it is possible that no more criminal cases will be brought to trial this term.

The defection of another witness this morning prevented the trial of a criminal case. Thomas Schuster was to have been put on trial for assault in the first degree. His attorney pleaded for a postponement of the case, as Schuster's wife, the principal witness for the defense, had gone away, presumably to her home on a homestead, in the woods north of Virginia, and no defense could be made without her. The county attorney consented to the postponement of the case. A few days ago, when Dan Salmi was on trial for assault, the complaining witness made a getaway from the courthouse and the case was held up for a half day until he was again located.

CASE STILL DRAGS ALONG

Ore Samples Introduced as Evidence of Mine's Value.

Smelter Return Sheets on B. & S. Ore, Ruled Out.

The introduction of samples from different properties of the company in evidence, arguments on the introduction of smelter return sheets, and testimony of R. C. Davis, superintendent of the Butte & Superior properties, occupied the time this morning in Judge Ensign's court, where the case of the Butte & Superior company against John McAlpine for recovery of $2,000 on a promissory note is on the fifteenth day of its trial.

Attorney Hollister for the plaintiff made a determined effort to get the smelter return sheets in evidence, but failed. He contended that the smelter returns were undoubtedly on ores taken from the Butte & Superior properties, whether by lessees or the company itself, and the smelter returns were designed to disprove Mr. Meany's testimony to the effect that the properties had no value. Mr. Richards contended that the smelter returns had not been identified and were not sworn and could not be accepted as evidence. He said there was no intention of quibbling on technicalities, but he merely wanted to follow the ordinary rules of evidence.

The court ruled against the acceptance of the exhibits. He compared the returns with the grain receipts in Minnesota, which are accepted as prima-facie evidence, but said that the grain receipts are made out by the state weighmaster and supported by the state grain inspector and are given an official character. He held that there was no evidence to show who weighed the ore or who made out the smelter return sheets, which were not sworn to, and they therefore could not be received as evidence of the facts stated in them. Mr. Hollister had a number of smelter return sheets marked as exhibits and the matter will probably come up again.

Mr. Davis was on the stand all morning. He identified several samples of ore, which, he himself secured and they were introduced as evidence. Some samples, which he could not positively identify, were ruled out.

Mr. Davis told in detail of the work done on the property after he took charge in January, 1907. He said he immediately installed a hoist and work was begun in sinking the shaft. He said they first sank the Black Rock shaft from the 500 to the 700-foot level, with three compartments, and then, working up from the 600-foot level to the surface, extended the shaft to three compartments. It had formerly been a two-compartment shaft. From the 500-foot to the 700-foot level, he said they encountered faulty ground and disintegrated granite, with water abounding, and they had considerable trouble sinking through it, taking about six months for the work.

From the 700-foot to the 1,000-foot level, he said they sank through solid granite formation, sinking from seventy to eighty feet a month, working steadily. At the 1,000 foot level, he said they encountered the vein ninety feet south of the shaft. He said the ground in the foot wall at the 1,000-foot level was different from that in any other part of the mine, as the line of demarcation between the foot wall and the vein was clearly defined.

At the present time, he said, the shaft is down to 1,240 feet. At the 1,200 foot level, he said the station is cut into the granite for a distance of about forty-five feet and a cross-cut extends twenty-five feet farther toward the vein, which is thought to be about 150 feet from the shaft at that point, if the dips of the vein continued uniform.

He described in detail the surface equipment of the company at the present time, consisting of a boiler plant of 550-horsepower capacity and engines, compressor, etc. The hoist, he said, will probably be able to care for a shaft 2,200 feet deep, and, in his opinion, the present surface equipment is sufficient to sink the shaft to that depth.

CATCH SUSPECT ON DULUTH TRAIN

Second Arrest Made in Baffling Baden Murder Case.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—After baffling the police of the country three years, the brutal Bader murder case is solved at last and the second of the alleged perpetraters of the crime, James, alias Shorty Murphy, was arrested yesterday afternoon in union depot.

The man was arrested as he alighted from a train from Duluth and was taken to Minneapolis.

"Curly," the other man in the murder, is held by Chief of Police Corriston, of Minneapolis, at Little Rock, Ark.

The crime was one of the most brutal in recent years. On Christmas eve, 1905, Bader was serving a number of merrymakers and celebrators in the buffet of his hotel, when two men entered and ordered all to hold up their hands. Bader, who was going to the refrigerator for more refreshents, continued on his way, disregarding the order, and thinking the command a joke. He had taken but two or three steps when a shot rang out, and he fell forward on his face. He died later. The men fled, after robbing the cash drawer of about $300.

HOMESTEADER DISAPPEARS

May be Lost or May Have Perished in Forest Fire.

Grand Marais, Minn., Oct. 15.—(Special Correspondence).—John D. O'Connor, a homesteader who has been living on a claim near here, has dropped out of sight and it is feared he has perished during the forest fires. A few days ago Julius Peterson, Hans Gulzranson and John Nelson visited O'Connor's claim. They found nothing to show that he had been there for a long time. His cabin had been nearly torn down by a bear and the provisions were scattered everywhere. He may be working somewhere or he may be lost in the woods. He was last seen in company with Otto Erickson some three months ago, on their way to O'Connor's homestead.

LYCEUM—Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins."

"FIRST NIGHT" FOR DULUTH

Lyceum to Have Second Premier Production of Season.

Duluth is to have another theatrical "first night."

For the second time this season the Lyceum theater is to be the scene of the first production on any stage of a new American play.

The first "first night" of the season came with Wilton Lakaye in "The Battle," and the second is to take place Oct. 26, when Willard Mack, Maude Leone and their players will give the initial production of Ferdinand Gottachalk's comedy-drama, "Love and the Law."

The occasion will make Superior street seem a near-Rialto, for it will bring to this city a number of personages prominent in one way or another, in American theatricals.

Besides the author, those who are expected to be p resent include Eugene Walters, author of the great success, "Paid in Full," "The Wolf," and of "The Undertow;" Archibald Selwyn, representing the American Play company, and, possibly, John Cort, the manager.

"Love and the Law" is a dramatization of the late Guy Wetmore Carrol's novel, "The Lieutenant Governor." The author, Mr. Gottachalk is one of the leading light comedians on the stage today, and he has appeared with Amelia Bingham's, Charles Frohman's and other important companies in many successful pieces.

Several leading stock companies were trying for a chance to give "Love and the Law" its first production, and the Mack-Leone Players feel much elated that their organization should have been selected. They will give the play the most elaborate production they can.

"Sis Hopkins."

One of the oddest characters on the stage today is that of Obadiah, the undertaker's assistant, in "Sis Hopkins," which comes to the Lyceum tonight and Tuesday. Obadiah is a clumsy sort of a rustic type, whose one idea in life is to get ready for prospective victims. He goes about with a tape measure, and dreams of death and disaster. The gossip, which tells him of the illness of the oldest inhabitant and the ailments of the countryside people, brings joy to his soul, and he keeps track what the village physician is doing. He wears the most funereal garments, and yet he is funny. Not content with merely being a general calamity howler, he prepares the epitaphs for his neighbors, and their recitation is one of the brikhtest laughing spots in the play.

This is Miss Melville's tenth season as Sis Hopkins, the odd Posey county girl.

BROKERS SUE FOR LOSS ON STOCKS

Gay & Sturgis Seek to Recover From Clients on Stock Deal.

The case of Henry H. Gay, Irving J. Sturgis and R. S. Hall, as Gay & Sturgis, against Samuel Uren and M. F. Kelly, was taken up before Judge Dibell in district court this morning. The company sues for $509.25, claimed to be due on a stock deal.

The plaintiffs claim that Aug. 1, 1907, Uren, acting for Kelly, requested that they purchase 500 shares of Cliff stock at $2.50, which they did, paying $1,250. They claim that when they offered the stock to Uren, he refused to accept it, ordering them to sell it again. They say they secured the best possible price on the market, which was $731.25, and there was due to them $31.25 commission on the deal. A little later, they claim, Uren told them to sell 100 shares of National, for which they secured $72. They say that Uren has refused to pay the difference of $509.25 and they ask judgment for that amount.

In their answer, the defendants claim that Uren was not acting for Kelly in any of the deals mentioned, but for himself. Uren denied having ordered the 500 shares of Cliff and claims that when Gay & Sturgis notified him that they had purchased it for him, he told them he would not take it and advised them to sell it again. He says they waited for some time after that before selling and thus were forced to sell at a lower price He says he gave them the 100 shares of National to prevent hard feelings. He denies liability for the amount demanded by the plaintiffs.

The receipt the latter part of last week by an express company in New York of a package marked, "The Duke of Abruzzi," the value of which was placed at $4,000, gave rise to a story that the duke had sent his engagement ring for the daughter of the West Virginia senator.

A few days prior to this, her irate father again publicly announced that his daughter is not engaged to marry the Italian nobleman, and that she would not be engaged to him.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

This is a story of a second Doll's House.

The list of characters like in that of the great drama of the Norwegian enthusiast on women, is small. There is just a man and his wife, fascinatingly pretty, and some lovely children, and a man of all work.

Any one at all familiar with modern drama will know at once that here in this last-named character, lies the crux of the whole matter. Any one, no matter how little familiar he may be with the ways of the theater, or the modern novel, will know at once that the soul sorrow and introspection and deep trouble and tearful pleadings are all coming about through that last named character, unless, perchance, the last named character should simply step into that simple home life and point out the need of plumbing being done, or some equally necessary attention to household detail.

But to the story of this American doll's house.

Mr. Smith came home. The name, of course, isn't Smith, as all up-to-date writers announce just after telling you that it is. He was weary. All day long he had toiled and moiled in order that he might put money in the bank, in order that the fascinatingly pretty Mrs. Smith and the lovely little Smiths might have all the things they needed, and then some besides.

He laid his weary body on the davenport, and to the soothing gurgle of Mrs. Smith's talk, he went to sleep, awaiting the hour when dinner would be served. Mrs. Smith told him all about her day and the interesting things she had done, and what they were going to have for dinner, and why they weren't going to have something else, and how hard it is to really to keep things going smoothly.

And Mr. Smith slept peacefully on.

"And while we are about it," said Mrs. Smith, "I wish you'd give me $4.52 to pay the man who has been working here for the last few days. He gets done tonight."

Mr. Smith yawned sleepily and dug into his pocket and found just $2.92 which, of course, wouldn't do. "I'll wr—(yawn—)te a check," said Mr. Smith, and went to sleep.

The man finished the work, Mrs. Smith came for the check, it was not written, nobody was looking, the house was quiet, there was his checkbook—and the ink and a pen—and the man was waiting for his money—and Mrs. Smith wrote the check—

And signed Mr. Smith's name.

Here's the only weak spot in the tentative drama.

She told Mr. Smith. By all the laws of thrilling plays she should have mentioned it to no one, and she and the hired man gone in "ka-snooks."

"But she didn't; she told him as soon as he woke up. "I didn't want to bother you," she said tenderly, and he laughed confidently and never thought of the state's prison offense which had been committed in his name.

He just laughed easily and said, "I'll remember to tell them at the bank."

"I shouldn't think it would be necessary," said Mrs. Smith, "if a woman can't write her own husband's name on a check I wonder what the world's coming to."

But Mr. Smith forgot. And the check came to the bank and was recognized as a forgery. The man presenting it was held and the man who presented it to him, and the man who gave it to him, and the man who gave it to him, back to the man who did the day's work were all gathered in before Mr. Smith got into the game and straightened matters out, with apologies to the highly indignant man of all work, and the equally indignant man who had been nabbed at the bank.

"Isn't it too ridiculous?" asked Mrs. Smith, who was rather annoyed that her writing of her husband's name had not been recognized.

And Mr. Smith smiled indulgently.

CHAPTER DAY.

Greysolon du Lhut Chapter Observes Anniversary.

Chapter day was observed today by the members of the Greysolon du Lhut chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the annual luncheon at the Spalding. Oct. 19, 1781, Cornwallis surrendered to Washington, closing the Revolutionary war. The local chapter of the D. A. R. was also organized on the anniversary of that day, and each year these two events are commemorated.

The guests were seated at a "U" shaped table, upon which the decorations were American flags, red roses and ferns. Covers were laid for forty. Following the luncheon a very informal program of toasts was given. Mrs. George M. Smith, the retiring regent, presided. Mrs. W. H. Burris, who was installed as the regent for the year, read an original poem on the flag. The historian, Mrs. Julia M. Barnes, read the history of the chapter for the year, and an informal reunion and social hour was enjoyed.

INTERESTING GOSSIP.

Dangerous and to Be Strictly Avoided.

Gossip, we might as well admit, has a parennial interest for the best of us. Though we listen to it with a guilty conscience and pride ourselves on the fact that at any rate we did not introduce the subject, yet we listen. We know—for have we not read books, and gone to plays wherein the whole catastrophere turned upon a bit of scandal?—we know that gossip is evil, that it speaks no truth and works no righteousness; yet the fact remains that it is most entertaining, says Harper's Bazar. It is the living novel; the play seen at once from behind the scenes and before the curtain.

Perhaps it is no wonder, then, that in spite of all our resolutions we so seldom oppose it successfully. Even those of us who flatter ourselves that our interests are wider than our neighbor's affairs, and declare, with considerable sincerity, that we like life better seen through the medium of Thackeray or Hawthorne than at first hand, even we find ourselves every now and then, unable to stem the tide of personal interest—that invades our parlors and verandas. It is not curiosity merely that catches us, for every well-bred person has been under discipline in regard to this instinct from infancy up; but it is very often a wobbly and uncertain kindliness.

We are unwilling to offend one friend even for the sake of shielding another; and it is, in truth, a difficult matter to check gossip without giving offense. Anything short of downright rebuke or open incredulity seems quite ineffectual. Even this has its dangers, for have we not all of us known social episodes where the effort to defend the absent has led merely to more violent accusations, the tale-bearer having been driven by opposition to justify his original statement by a stronger and stronger array of facts? After one or two of such experiences, many of us content ourselves with as complete a silence as will pass unobserved, and by a resolve not to repeat what we have heard. But alas for frail human nature! At home there are those whom we trust with all our secrets; our hearts are yearning, and we proceed to make them feem. Presently we discover that we ourselves have helped to spread the story.

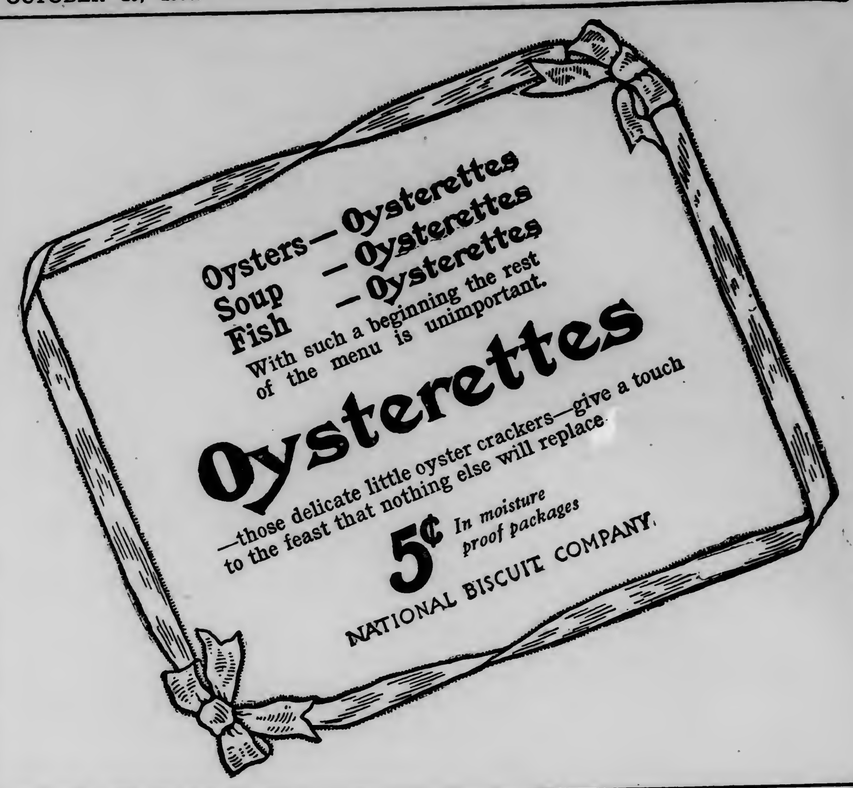

LEADING LIFE MOTIVE.

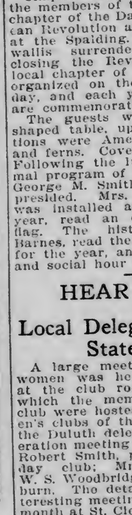

American Woman Should Regard Husband as Such.

A clever widow's reply to one who asked why she did not marry again, was that a husband is an occupation, and that she prefers being a woman of leisure. The reason is amusing, but aside from its jesting significance, expresses a truth that is worthy of consideration in this age when there appears danger that marriage wrecking may become a national habit. Regarded as an occupation the bread winner is doubtless not so romantic a figure as he is pictured in song and story, but as it is the prose and not the poetry of life that the human race lives, it is certainly wise to take facts into account and order life accordingly, says Vogue.

Although the majority of married women, including those who live on farms, as well as urban dwellers, are compelled to much service, the drudge type of servant wife surely cannot be said to be the American man's ideal. More than the man of any other race, he is prone to regard the woman of his choice as a companion in the comrade sense, and to expect of her more than the conventional requirements of the marriage state. He may not put his views into words or seek to enforce them, but he holds them nevertheless, and he is right in the position he takes, that, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, he and his affairs shall be her supreme interest. The increasing independence of American girls is apt to develop in them a sense of self-sufficiency that makes them self-centered, even to the extent of regarding a husband as an incident, rather than as the central figure of their lives, and to this tendency may be attributed much matrimonial discord and wreckage. The American woman is much given to regarding with scorn German and English wives, whose subserviency she deems as beneath contempt, but while she complacently accepts the higher esteem in which she is held, and vaunts herself accordingly, the idea of reciprocity does not always occur to her. Marriage is coming more and more to be an affair of convenience to the younger generation of woman, who place their lives on the individual basis, and apparently object to modifying the scheme enough to give their husbands the status they should hold. Now of marriage, as of Christianity, it can truly be said that one cannot serve two masters—using the word not in the sense of superior and slave, but rather in that of a leading life motive—and in the one case as in the other an attempt to combine self-indulgence with duty ends in duty going to the board. The idea of return service of any kind to be rendered as a just equivalent for material advantages, which their husbands supply, does not appeal to many leisure class wives, nor do they seem to realize that they have assumed obligations in marriage which they are acting in bad faith by repudiating.

"The course of the social reconstruction going on at present is likely to bring sharply to the fore, for analysis and readjustment, the mutual relations of the sexes, the mutual relations and groups, and it is inevitable that the duty of the wife, under the conditions of modern life in the land where the greatest liberty is accorded her will come in for a large amount of discussion in one way and another. A foreword has already been spoken in Woman and Economics, and it is safe to predict that in several regards at least the husband's status will be improved, and a certain large class of women be brought to realize that marriage implies obligations as well as the receipt of cakes and wine.

THE EVENING STORY

THE TWO DRAUGHTS

By C. T. Overman.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Dr. Crowder's professional success was complete. His selection to deliver the address of the meeting of the International association, of which he had been notified but yesterday, vouched for that, even had not his great practice, largely as counsel for other physicians, not settled the matter long ago. But his selection by his fellows in a profession jealous and exacting to the last degree, to represent them in a great international, scientific gathering, put the final stamp of approval upon his achievements.

And so Dr. Crowder whistled merrily as he worked along in his library laboratory gathering data for the address which he had resolved to make the most momentous ever delivered before a medical congress.

One cloud only hung over Dr. Crowder's life. It was a woman, of course. When a mere boy, not yet formed or educated, he had married pretty Ethel Wood, a milliner's apprentice. She was pretty, of course, very, very pretty—and she was good, and tender, and true. But she was ultimately impossible for a man with such a brain as Dr. Crowder possessed. Had he been a bank clerk, or a dry goods salesman, or almost any sort of a fellow except just the kind he was, she might have made an ideal wife for him, and a most happy and conventional home might have been established. But when the great brain in him awakened and he felt the divine call to climb the heights he did that which so many others have done—he went away.

Through all the tollsome years since he had been conscientious in his monthly remittances, even when it had reduced him to the most uncomfortable straits. Yes, Ethel and the little boy had been taken care of physically—that much was taken off his conscience. But many times he questioned within himself whether that covered his obligations.

"But, great heavens, she could not spell," he said to himself over and over again. "She scarcely could read—never read anything worth while. She had no ideals, ambitions, no mental initiative. Life with her would have been mental death. I have been able to be of some service to the race. I never could have been if I had remained tied to her. I might have attained the proud distinction of becoming a registered pharmacist—that would have been all."

Ah! but the boy—he got on. Dr. Crowder's mind many sleepless nights. What right had he to project a human life into the world and leave it to work out the devious course of existence without the guidance and aid of a father's care? These revolts of conscience were not frequent, however, as his splendid brain was fully occupied with problems of great import to the race.

Tonight the memory of his girl wife and the few happy months he had spent with her—before he heard the call to climb the heights—was hot upon him, and he paused in the midst of his experiments and sat with his head in his hands for a long time. Every detail of her glorious face and her trim figure came to his mental vision. The old love and the old desire surged through his veins. He had met the most beautiful women in the world since his professional success had been assured—but here was his woman—the mate he had chosen in his youth—and who had chosen him. He could feel her very presence and his heart throbbed with the thought.

And the boy—he never had seen the boy. The boy had been born after he had left. But he was his boy—flesh of his flesh, bone of his bone—and his very own blood, and the blood of his forebears flowed in the veins of this boy he never had seen and in whose rearing he had had no part. All these things were very much on the mind and heart and spirits of Dr. Crowder tonight.

Of one thing he reflected with satisfaction—as he frequently had done before—he had covered his tracks well. No acquaintance of his youth could possibly identify the great Dr. Crowder of New York as the callow youth of Pottstown twenty years ago known as Tom Billings. For the boy had changed his name when he planned his new career and no human being knew of the connection with the exception of his trusted lawyer, through whom the remittaces were sent—and he did not know very much about it all.

Well, anyway, he had increased the remittances as his income had increased, and the boy had had a chance so far as education was concerned far beyond anything for which the doctor ever had hoped for himself.

Cognizant of the fact that this sort of thing never would do if he were to complete the experiments upon which his great address to the Medical association was to be based, Dr. Crowder shook his tawney mane and arose. He seized a glass of water standing on the table in front of him and gulped it down and turned to his work. The water tasted rather peculiar, and he paused a moment to look at the glass. Right next to it stood another glass containing fluid as colorless and as tasteless as water—but deadly poison. This was the basis of the experiment he was making.

"Great God!" the thought flashed through his mind. "Could I possibly have made a mistake?"

The cold sweat stood on his temples. If he drank the poison he would be a dead man within a half hour—and there was no known antidote. Panic seized his mind and he trembled like a leaf. Instinctively he turned to run.

Then his splendid brain resumed its functions and he laughed aloud.

"Fool!" he said bitterly to himself. "Find out: test the other glass."

Eagerly he reached for it. But his hand trembled and he was unsteady—a thing which had not happened in twenty years—and the precious glass went crashing to the floor.

Dr. Crowder stood looking at the broken glass and the liquid trickling on the floor, a look of stupefied horror on his face. Now, indeed, must he face the ultimate horror of waiting, waiting waiting, for his doom. He knew the torture of it—he who had written so many commanding essays upon the attributes of the human mind and the unalterable and unconquerable influence of fear.

"My God!" shrieked the physician. "I will go insane in a half hour of this sort of doubt."

Then again his splendid brain came to his aid.

"If I am to die," he said, "I must prepare for it." The peculiar feeling in his head left no doubt in his mind that he had taken the poison.

Then his thoughts turned quickly to the wife of his youth and his boy whom he had never seen. He turned quickly to his desk and wrote rapidly for some minutes. He wrote the secret and the history of his life. He explained the change in his name and his relation to Tom Billings and Ethel Wood and—the boy. And then he wrote a will leaving all he had to his wife and boy. Staggering to the door, he summoned the janitor and ordered him, in his old, imperious way, to find a friend—at once. Which, being done, the two signed their names as witnesses and the document was hurriedly placed in an envelope and given to the janitor to mail to Ethel—which the janitor did at once.

Some hours later the janitor found Dr. Crowder stark and stiff on the floor of his laboratory and the greatest physicians in all the great city were summoned.

After he came to, Dr. Crowder looked for a moment into the face of the great doctor who stood over his bed—a colleague and a friend—and said: "No use, Ned; it's the new poison."

The man bending gravely over him smiled indulgently.

"It's only a nightmare, Fred," he said. "I feared it myself when I saw the stuff in your laboratory; but I have tried every test and it is not so. You are overworked; better go somewhere and take a rest."

"Where's the janitor?" asked Dr. Crowder, with sudden interest.

The janitor was found and brought in.

"Did you mail that letter?" asked Dr. Crowder.

Yes, sir," replied Ole Larson. "Within ten minutes of the time you sealed it."

"Um-m-m!" remarged Dr. Crowder. "Yes, Fred, I think I will take a rest. Find when the next train goes to Pottstown. I think I will go and see my folks—and Fred, you deliver this address before the International Medical association. I don't think I will be back in time. I will write the committee explaining it."

CHECK WAS WORTHLESS

Harry Bullock Imposes on Friendship of Lincoln Craig.

Harry Bullock was arrested yesterday, charged with getting $20 on a worthless check from Lincoln Craig, 22 East Second street. While Mrs. Craig and her sister were in Kansas City recently, they met the young man, who claims to hail from Montana. On the strength of this acquaintance, Bullock got Mr. Craig to advance him $20 on a $35 check.

Bullock told the Craigs that he was on his way to Chicago with a carload of horses, which he was resting and feeding in Duluth. Being temporarily out of funds, he presented the check to his host, and asked for the favor of an advance, which was granted.

When the check was presented at the First National bank for payment Saturday, Mr. Craig found that it was no good. The matter was reported to Chief of Police Troyer, and shortly afterwards Detective Irvine had him under arrest. He was found in his room at the Mitchell hotel, operated by the Craigs.

Bullock was arraigned on the charge of getting money under false pretenses. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs this morning, with the alternative of thirty days in jail.

BOY CARRIES CHARRED REMAINS OF SISTER IN HANDKERCHIEF

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 19.—Miss Cassie Howland had twenty-six little children in her school near Millersburg Friday afternoon. At the afternoon recess the air was smoky. Half an hour later the woods about the little schoolhouse was blazing fiercely. The children started for their homes but were compelled to go to a neighboring house for shelter. Miss Howland says she could hardly face the wind during the walk of a quarter of a mile to her home. After she reached it the heat grew so intense that the women were compelled to seek shelter in the cellar while the men fought to save the house.

"Then," Miss Howland says, "refugees, who had escaped with their lives in the plowed fields with their faces burled in the sand, began to arrive. They kept coming all through the night, more or less seriously burned in their flight through the woods.

"A boy by the name of Dust brought in the charred remains of his sister in his pocket handkerchief. His father and mother had already arrived at our house. Their grief was terrible. Then another of their children, a little girl, arrived carrying a baby. The child's dress was completely burned off and her little body was a mass of blisters."

NEW ROAD TO CUYUNA

Thought to be Proposed Branch of the Soo Line.

Ore Docks Will be Necessary at Duluth or Superior.

The intention on the part of either independent capitalists, or of the Soo road, to get into the Cuyuna range district early and be on hand to secure a portion of the ore business, which is expected to result from the development of that district, is made evident by articles of incorporation of the Cuyuna Range Railroad company, filed at St. Paul, Saturday, and in Duluth this morning. The home office of the new corporation is given as Duluth and the incorporators are Cuyler Adams of Deerwood, and H. B. Fryberger and H. C. Fulton, of Duluth.

The articles of incorporation set forth that the company is incorporated for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a line of railroad from Deerwood, Crow Wing county, east to Duluth and Superior. It is incorporated for 999 years, with a capitalization of $1,000,000, and an allowed indebtedness of $1,000,000. The incorporators form the board of directors until the company is fully organized.

The incorporators of the new company are unconfiding as to its intentions and purposes. Railroad men, high in the circles in Duluth, and supposedly conversant with movements in the railroad world, are not slow to pronounce the new company a subsidiary company of the Soo line, soon to be taken over by the latter. They say that the fact that the Soo line intended to enter the Cuyuna field and be on the ground when the shipments of ore from there begin, has been known for a long time and the organization of the new company is no surpise to them. The conjecture is given color by the fact that Mr. Adams is a large holder of lands in the Cuyuna district and is given credit for being one of the discoverers of ore there. Mr. Fryberger is local counsel of the Soo road and has transacted the road's legal business since it entered this field, and Mr. Fulton is an associate of Mr. Fryberger.

The drills on the Cuyuna range have disclosed large bodies of rich iron ore near Deerwood and the development of the district is being watched with interest by mining men and others interested in the growth of the Head of the Lakes mining interests. Predictions are freely made that the Cuyuna range will, in a few years, rival the Mesaba range in production and the move of the Soo line, if such it be, indicates that capitalists have faith in the district.

It is not thought in railroad circles that the new company will build a line direct to Duluth at first, but will connect with the main line of the Soo road at some convenient point, following its tracks to Duluth. At some future time, if the ore traffic warrants, it is believed a through line will be constructed. The shortest distance to the main line of the Soo is forty miles and a line built there would connect with the Soo at a point just west of Lawrence. Another course would bring the connection at Longfellow, about midway between Lawrence and Moose Lake, which would make the length of road to be built in constructing a direct route to the Head of the Lakes very small.

In order to successfully carry out the intention ascribed to it, it will be necessary for the new company, or the company which fosters it, to build docks either at Duluth or Superior, and its future movements will be awaited with interest by those concerned.

"The road will be built; that is all I can say," said H. B. Fryberger this morning, when asked for some details regarding the new venture.

"I can't tell you anything more than is contained in the papers filed today."

"Will the road be a branch of the Soo?" he was asked.

"Well, now, you know, I get troubled with legal lockjaw, sometimes, and can't say a word," replied Mr. Fryberger.

The capitalization of the road is divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each. The first annual meeting is fixed for June, and until that time Mr. Adams will act as president, Mr. Fryberger vice president, and Mr. Fulton, secretary and treasurer.

FLOATER ON LAKE SHORE

Body of Unknown Man Taken From Lake Superior.

At an early hour this morning the body of a man was found floating in the water of Lake Superior at a spot opposite the Wieland flats.

The body was that of a man evidently about 25 years of age. The height was about 5 feet 8 inches, the hair was brown and there was a three days' growth of sandy beard. The clothes would indicate that the occupation of the dead man had been that of a sailor.

From the condition of the body it is believed that it had been in the water two or three weeks. The body was taken to Stewart's undertaking rooms.

BEWARE PNEUMONIA

Accordingly to mortality statistics, pneumonia is one of the most frequent and fatal diseases to which humanity is subject. Its action is so rapid that its victim is often in a precarious condition before realizing that anything more serious is the matter than a severe cold.

This is one of the dangers that may follow neglect of a cough or cold, and is therefore the best of reasons why one should check a cold at the start. A simple, inexpensive and effective remedy that will usually break a cold overnight, is the mixture of one-half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, with two ounces of Glycerin and a half pint of good Whisky. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. It is claimed this mixture will cure any cough that is curable, and provides a sufficient quantity to last the average family an entire year. Get the ingredients separately and mix them yourself.

In preparing this formula it is essential to use only the best quality of Glycerin and Whisky with the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure. The latter preparation is a combination of the active principles of the Pine and Santalwood trees, carefully compounded to retain the healing, health-giving properties for which these trees are justly famous. In order to insure its purity and freshness it is securely sealed in a round wooden case. The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.

BOOSTER TO PUMP SOON

Plant at West Duluth Will be Turned Over to City.

Makes Possible Pumping of City Water to Proctor.

The "booster" plant of the city water system, designed to keep the reservoir on the hill at Sixty-fourth avenue west supplied will be put in operation tomorrow or the next day. The electricians have about completed their work and the plant will be turned over to the water and light department for tests in a day or so.

The plant was expected to be ready for a test Saturday and an expert was in the city to test the plant in company with the department engineers, but the contractors failed to make good and the expert returned to Chicago. Now, the plant will be tested by the city engineers only, unless something is found radically wrong, in which case outside assistance will be called in.

The "booster" plant, which is located at Sixth street and Forty-fifth avenue west, where the large main of the city water system ends, consists of two centrifugal, electric-driven pumps, with a joint capacity of 6,000 gallons a minute. The reservoir is upon the hill, on a level with the main reservoir and the forces of gravity prevent its becoming entirely filled. It is an emergency reservoir, besides supplying West Duluth, and the new plant will keep it filled and the water always fresh.

The "booster" plant makes posible the carrying out of the plans of Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad to supply the village of Proctor with water from the Duluth system. With the big reservoir always full and the "booster," capable of keeping it so, it will be possible for the railroad company to secure water to pump up the hill to Proctor.

The plant is of modern and improved style and it is expected to be successful from the first, supplying West Duluth with pure water at all times and keeping the reservoir full for emergencies.

DISMISSAL IS STAYED.

Attorney Claims That Undue Influence Was Used on Client.

Claiming that the dismissal of the divorce action of Etta M. Kell against her husband, William C. Kell, was obtained by duress, the attorney for Mrs. Kell has secured an order from Judge Cant staying the dismissal of the proceedings until a further order may be made by the court.

The dismissal was filed Saturday. It is a simple statement that the action is dismissed without costs to either party and is signed by Mrs. Kell. The suit was filed a short time ago and was intended to be tried at the November term of court.

Register on Tuesday, the 20th, or Saturday (the last day), the 24th, and vote for me on General Election Day, November 3rd, 1908.

Have resided in the county for 28 years. This is the first time I have asked for a vote. Kindly give me due consideration. "Look me up," and if satisfied as to my character, standing as a citizen, then please support me for this non-partisan office.

I am working to win and am well organized as to workers on Range and all over the city and making a personal canvass with aim of winning in view.

REGISTER ON TUESDAY

Tuesday and Saturday Will be Last Opportunities for Voters.

Committees of Both Parties Arrange for Meetings This Week.

Tomorrow is registration day and those who did not vote at the primaries will have another opportunity to get their names on the voting lists.

There will be put one more opportunity to register after tomorrow.

The polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., so that everyone will have an opportunity to visit them at some time during the day.

There are only two changes in the polling places from primary election day. The polling place in the first precinct of the Fifth ward has been moved to 327 West Michigan street, and that of the third precinct of the Fifth ward has been moved to 707 West Superior street. These changes were necessary, the latter owing to the fact that the old Metropolitan theater is being torn down.

A new Democratic club will be formed in West Duluth this evening. The Democratic sentiment in that portion of the city has been so great that many voters have asked for the organization of the club that will be formed at the meeting this evening. The meeting will be held at the old post-office building, and it is expected that there will be a large crowd present.

John Cashin, Democratic candidate for register of deeds, will address the members of the new club. John Lowe, Democratic candidate for county commissioner in the Fifth district, will be another speaker. The men in West Duluth who have charge of the meeting tonight, have promised other speakers.

Additional meetings are being arranged by the executive committee of the Democratic county committee, and it is announced today that there will be two or more meetings every night from now on until the close of the campaign.

Andrew Nelson has learned definitely that John Lind will speak in this city. It is probable that he will speak before the Democrats of West Duluth and the West end. Both of the western parts of the city have been clamoring for some well known speaker, and it is very likely that the committee will have Mr. Lind speak in one, or perhaps, both of those parts of the city.

The meeting yesterday of the Central Democratic club was held in Rowley's hall in the Third ward, and an enrollment of 124 members was secured. Dr. O. A. Oredson, Deocratic candidate for legislature from the Fiftieth district; Robert Mee, candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner; John Cashin, candidate for register of deeds, and Emil A. Tessman, candidate for county commissioner in the First district, addressed the club.

Another meeting of the club will be held Wednesday evening.

The Republican committee has announced a meeting for Eveleth Wednesday evening. C. B. Miller, Republican candidate for congress, will be the principal speaker of the evning. James Boyle, of Eveleth, will also address the meeting. There will be other local speakers upon the program.

There will be a meeting of the Seventh ward Republicans tonight. Local speakers will address the meeting.

It was announced today at Republican headquarters, that George T. Simpson, Republican candidate for attorney general, and Clarence B. Miller would accompany J. F. Jacobson upon his tour of the range. It was said that other Republicans from the two cities, as well as some of the local workers, would accompany the Republican candidate.

SISTER ELLEN TO PITTSBURG

Former Duluthian Called to the Trinity Parish.

Miss Ellen Adwen, better known in Duluth, where she has a host of friends, as Sister Ellen, through her connection with St. Paul's Episcopal church, has been called to Trinity parish in Pittsburg, and will enter upon her duties there Nov. 1.

Trinity is the leading Episcopal church in Pittsburg, and is said to be the largest church of any denomination in the Pennsylvania city. Sister Ellen left Duluth about four years ago, after being with the local chruch for two years. Altogether she has had sixteen years' experience in institutional church work.

Among important positions held by her were those in Duluth, Philadelphia, New York and Rochester. She was with St. Paul's Episcopal church in Rochester for two years, and in New York she was identified with the work of St. Thomas' Episcopal church on the East side. She was very well liked in Duluth, and has friends here in all parts of the city.

AURORA HAS A GOOD SYSTEM

Vagrants Either Have to Leave Town or Go to Work.

Mayor Haven, who delivered a political address in Aurora the latter part of last week, says this progressive little Northern Minnesota town has as good a system of ridding itself of vagrants as any place he ever heard of.

Despite its newness, Aurora is one of the most orderly towns, as well as one of the neatest-appearing, in the state. The town marshal has a lot to do with this. He is a man of power. There are three or four large mines within the city limits, and whenever these mines need help, the marshal is notified. He wanders down the main street and through the side streets, and any one who is not working, or who hasn't got a job, is offered a place in the mines.

If the individual accused is as foolish as to say he isn't looking for a job, the marshal tells him he will either have to get out of town right away or go to work. The population isn't so large, about 2,500, that the marshal cannot keep tab on everybody, and it is an easy matter for him to root out undesirables, point towards the railroad track, and tell them to get out.

"There are several saloons in Aurora," said Mayor Haven, "but slot machines, roulette wheels and all forms of gambling are under the ban. Gambling is against the law, and so far as I could see, the laws in this respect are obeyed. There is also an 11 o'clock and Sunday closing law, which seems to be pretty closely observed. Saloonkeepers are compelled to lock their side and back doors at 11 o'clock at night, so that if any one enter the saloon after that time it must be through the front door, where everybody can see. I was happily surprised at the good appearance put up by the town. Despite its youth, the buildings, while not elaborate, are pleasing to look at, and everything is well taken care of."

Mayor Haven left this afternoon for Chisholm.

SUPERIOR NEWS

A WALKING ARSENAL.

Wedding Guest Was Prepared to "Shoot Up" the House.

While returning to a wedding, at which he claims to have been mistreated, Frank Matteze was arrested early yesterday morning by Sergeant Osborne on Tower avenue, Superior, carrying two large six shooters, one of which he held in his hand, the other he carried in his hip pocket.

He was returning to the scene of the wedding festivities and evidently meant business.

SEE MENACE IN RULING.

Wisconsin Teachers Think Resolution Will Abolish Kindergarten.

The Northwestern Wisconsin Teachers' association will ask the state legislature to repeal the resolution providing for the school age of children, feeling that it means the abolishment of the kindergarten. At least, the association seeks to have it understood that the resolution shall not affect localities where kindergartens are already a part of the school system.

The Superior delegation to the association's convention at Eau Claire Friday and Saturday, returned home yesterday.

Pipe Exploded.

The exploding of a steam pipe at the Hotel Superior at about 10:15 o'clock last night caused consternation among the guests.

The steam pipe was in the boiler room, and when it blew up, every light in the building went out, leaving the hotel in utter darkness. No one was injured, though the heating plant was ruined, and Engineer Holstrom and his son were thrown from their feet when the pipe purst.

Look Over Park Sites.

A committee which was appointed by Mayor Crumpton from the city council and the park board, on which committee the mayor was also voted a member, Saturday took a walk through the Third ward with a view of establishing a park there and improving some land owned by the city in the vicinity of Twenty-eighth street and Hammond avenue for park purposes. The committee will meet either tonight or tomorrow night for the purpose of making recommendations.

Settler's Home Burns.

Word has recently been received in Superior that the home of S. G. Henderson, a farmer residing three miles north of Wentworth, has been destroyed by forest fires. The fires arose suddenly from the surrounding woods, and were upon the house so quickly that the family barely had time to escape. The Henderson family is now being taken care of at Wentworth.

Stole to Pay Debt.

Allen Spencer, 19 years old, was Saturday given a sentence of one year in the reform school at Green Bay, for breaking into Russell's creamery store and stealing $4.50. The boy's only plea was that he had been forced to steal to pay a debt that he owed. He begged for leniency from Judge Parker, stating that his parents had died some years ago and that since then he had had to make his own way in the world.

Had a Forged Check.

In default of $500 bail, John Kohlman, a stranger, charged with having attempted to pass a forged check, was remanded to the county jail to await trial in the fickle recount. He was given a preliminary hearing Saturday in the municipal court.

Kohlman tried to buy a suit of clothes from a Tower avenue clothing store with a check for $24, signed "Sam Anderson," the name of a local liquor dealer. Anderson claims that he did not make out the check, and the bank on which it is drawn says that it is worthless.

Kohlman on the witness stand stated that he had been given the check by a man in the railroad yards, who told him he could buy a $15 suit with it if he would return the change.

Delegate to Convention.

Mrs. T. V. Badgley, delegate from the women's clubs of Superior, left Superior today for the state convention which will be held at Milwaukee on Thursday. The principal matter of interest to come before the convention is the proposed constitutional amendment regulating the school age of children.

TAME DUCKS COST MONEY

Amateur Hunters Thought Barnyard Fowl Were Festive Game.

Pay Damage for Slaughter of Flock at Eagle Lake.

Duck shooting was splendid yesterday. It was particularly good at Eagle lake.

If you've never been there, you should go; particularly if you are not a very good shot and like ducks that are easy to hit.

Five sportsmen went blithely forth from this city yesterday morning. Last evening they returned to the city, somewhat crestfallen and undeceived of the idea that they were in the regular "Who's Who in Nimrodsville." An old farmer was the medium of the disillusion. He also extracted a few dollars from the enthusiastic hunters.

The party had been scouting the vicinity of Eagle lake eagerly for quarry. Suddenly one eagle-eyed member of the party passed the "shish boys, there's game ahead," around, and upon tip toe the members of the shooting squad advanced in Indian file toward the shore of the lake. Scudding about upon the placid watters of the lake were some of the most beautiful ducks that the members of the amateur gun club had ever set eyes upon. An involuntary exclamation escaped the members.

Stealthily five guns were leveled. In union five shots awoke the echoes of the woodland. In equal uniform manner, five ducks turned their webb toes to the surface of the troubled water and were ushered forth from the cruel world. Again the carnage of shot and shell was repeated and the slaughter went on.

The hunters might have thought it strange that the ducks didn't take wing and fly. They only emitted air-piercing "squaks," that would have made Bedlam sound like a real whist game.

Suddenly another noise was added to the medley of ear-splitting sounds. An old farmer came running on to the amateur shooters, wildly waving his arms and shouting at the top of his voice. The exact words of the farmer are not known—at least the amateur hunters haven't repeated them, but the amateur hunters stopped shooting and the air was left silent to the vituperation that fell from the lips of the farmer.

It was then, and only then, that the amateur squad realized that it had been killing tame ducks, that had never ventured forth into the world further than the little lake and the barnyard of the old farmer.

The old man threatened them with the law. They offered to pay and the treble of vituperation dropped, to a slight degree. To make the story short, suffice it to say that the near-hunters each deposited two round silver dollars into the horny hand of the old farmer, and the gayly decorated hunting bags were empty, and the spirits of the hunters depressed as they reached the city last evening.

MESSENGER BOYS OUT ON A STRIKE

Thought That Management Favored Some New Members of Force.

A number of the Western Union messenger boys are on a strike, which began this morning.

It seems that Charles A. Crane, manager of the local office has had an unwritten rule by which, he regulates the scale of the boys' wages. The boys are paid from $17 to $20 a month, according to the length of time they stay with the company. New messengers just starting in, according to this method, get $17, and the old timers $20.

It was learned by some of the messenger boys that the "boss" has not been adhering to this rule very closely lately, and has started in some boys whom he thought competent, at $20. This aroused the ire of those getting the lower scale, and after due consideration part of the force walked out, after demanding that things be readjusted.

The strike in no way hindered the operation of the local office, for Mr. Crane had no difficulty in finding new boys to fill the places of the strikers.

Specimen Stolen.

A large copper ore specimen from the Shattuck-Arizona mine of Arizona, which weighed in the neighborhood of fifty pounds, and which was upon exhibit in front of the brokerage office of Fred Merritt, has been stolen. Some one has carted off the heavy specimen of copper deposit, which was highly prized by Mr. Merritt. It is presumed that the specimen was stolen either for the copper deposit or for a practical joke.

TEN YEARS OF ECZEMA

Reports on eczema dating back ten years show the value of external treatment. The Lyceum Pharmacy of this city, can tell any sufferer what reports they have been getting from patients who used oil of wintergreen, thymol and glycerine in liquid form, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. It would be interesting to know whether any person cured as much as ten years ago has had another touch of the disease.

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both the old and new addresses.

KEEP IT IN MIND.

When you go to the polls to vote at the general election Nov. 3, you will find at the bottom of the county ballot a proposition upon which you will be asked to pass.

You will be required to vote for or against authorizing the board of county commissioners to appropriate money for the establishment of a county agricultural school.

Don't overlook it, and don't fail to vote "yes."

There will be many matters in your mind when you get into the ballot box, all of them more conspicuous than this; they will seem more important to you than the question whether or not this county shall have a county agricultural school, and some of them are more important. But this is important, too; don't let the other matters crowd it out of your field of attention. When you have settled who shall be president and governor and sheriff and county commissioner, don't stop; go right down to the bottom of the county ballot and vote yes on the county agricultural school.

A county agricultural school is just what its name implies. It is an institution, established and maintained by the county, in which the residents of the county who desire it may be taught how to farm successfully. If you think that farming or dairying or chicken-raising or fruit-growing are things that anybody can do by just going upon a piece of land and getting to work, you are mistaken; they have to be learned just as any other business has to be learned, and the better you learn them the greater your success will be.

Well, then, St. Louis county, so much of whose future growth and prosperity depends upon successful attention to these pursuits and upon a widespreading campaign for the development of the latent riches of its soil, wishes to have a county agricultural school, in order that those of its people who desire may learn the most modern and most scientific systems of winning wealth from the soil. The more accurate the knowledge, the greater the results: the money put into the proposed county agricultural school will multiply itself many times in rich results.

But the county can't have that school unless the voters wish it. They must give their consent first, and that is why the proposition is to be submitted at the coming election. The county board thinks the time is ripe for such a school, and before taking up the work of creating it it has asked the voters of the county what they think about it.

There ought to be no opposition to the plan, and if there is any we haven't heard of it. The only danger to the proposition lies in possible neglect of it on the part of the voters. They ought to think it over and determine whether or not they want the school, and if they do—as we believe they will—they should take care not to overlook that proposition at the foot of the county ballot.

REGISTER TOMORROW.

Tomorrow the polling places will be open, for the purpose of registration, from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. If you don't register you can't vote at the general election. Do it tomorrow; you may be too busy Saturday, when the last chance to register is offered.

ADVERTISING MINNESOTA.

The Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs has inaugurated a campaign to secure an appropriation of $100,000 a year from the legislature for advertising the state.

The Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs couldn't be engaged in worthier or more profitable work.

It is to be hoped that before the legislature gathers in St. Paul next January it will have brought into camp enough members of the senate and house to insure the passage of the appropriation without a word of opposition.

Minnesota has the land, thousands upon thousands of acres of it; all that is needed is people to go upon it and till it and make it fruitful and pay taxes on it and make themselves and the state richer by their labors.

In other states and in other countries there are thousands of people who are land hungry, and who are just the kind of people Minnesota needs to go upon its idle lands of the northern half of the state. But these people do not know about the land awaiting them in Minnesota and the promise of independence and health and happiness and wealth that it holds out to them.

The object of the immigration campaign is to let them know about it; to bring the people and the land together.

Already the state has created a board of immigration, which has employed as commissioner of immigration George Welsh, a capable, aggressive and industrious man with imagination and initiative, who has been doing excellent work with the limited means placed at his disposal by the last legislature. The work is well organized and has already brought about splendid results, but to be made thoroughly effective it must have more money. The Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs has taken up the work of interesting members of the legislature in providing that money. These efforts should have the hearty support of every citizen who wants his state to keep on developing and growing richer.

The Minnesota immigration bureau began its active campaign about Feb. 1, 1908. Since this time it has been in communication with something like 60,000 persons who have received letters and literature, an attractive and convincing array of which has been prepared and widely distributed. Representatives of the bureau have attended many public gatherings throughout the country, exhibiting samples of Minnesota products and reaching thousands of people in addition to those with whom written communication has been had. Thousands of letters have come from men who state positively that they will come to Minnesota in 1909.

With the work organized as systematically as it has been during the last administration of Governor Johnson, its effectiveness seems limited only by the amount of money the state wishes to put into this important work. Within reasonable limits, the more money spent in advertising the state, the larger the results.

The next legislature must deal liberally with the work of advertising Minnesota.

A PENNY-WISE STATESMAN.

To a large extent the "record" upon which Candidate Jacobson is running, and by the parading of which he seeks to evade expressing his ideas, if he has any, upon the live questions of today, relates to economy in state government.

Jacobson was the kind of an economist who won't spend a dollar to earn ten dollars, or who won't spare a penny to stop the waste of a dollar.

The Herald has already shown that he opposed the Duluth normal school and the entire normal school system; that he opposed expenditures for the state university, which he called a breeding place for snobs; that he opposed drainage of state lands, saying there was plenty of time for that when the people had to swim; that he opposed the creation of the state sanitarium for consumptives at Walker; that he opposed paying a bounty on pig iron manufactured in Minnesota; that he opposed rebating state royalties on iron ore smelted in the state. But these are only a few of the things of importance to Northern Minnesota that he fought.

Every proposition to preserve and propagate the forests received his bitter opposition. He opposed the state fire warden law through several sessions of the legislature. In 1899, when he tried to repeal it, Senator Laybourn, then a representative, pointed out that the state had spent a good deal of money in encouraging the planting of trees on the prairie, and it was no more than right that it should spend a little in protecting the magnificent forests of the northern part. That kind of talk, however, was like waving a red rag before a bull. State money was going to be spent for the benefit of Northern Minnesota, and in Jacobson's view the northern part of the state is a place to get money from, but not a place to spend money in.

In 1895 he opposed a forestry bill; in 1897 he opposed a modest bill appropriating $3,000 to promote tree-planting on the open prairie.

Besides measures affecting the preservation and propagation of the forests, Jacobson opposed the wolf bounty bill, saying, when he was told that it was needed to protect settlers from the ravages of the animals, that the settlers would begin breeding wolves for the bounty.

He opposed the protection of game and fish, fighting the appropriations for that work at every turn.

He opposed the creation of a state highway commission to see that road money is properly spent and that local work should be joined with state work in creating a comprehensive and efficient system of roads.

He opposed a bill to appropriate state road money to the counties in proportion to the taxes paid by each, which would have given St. Louis and other Northern Minnesota counties a better deal than they have ever had.

In short, Jacobson's legislative record, upon which he is running, shows him to have been a narrow-minded miser of state money. The policies he stood for, if they had been in effect in this state in the last generation, would have left the state a howling wilderness. Should such a man be made governor and invested with the power to vote every appropriation looking toward state development?

A MATTER OF STATE INTEREST.

Many may fancy that the freight discriminations described in Friday's Herald by Robert Mee of Faribault, a Democratic candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, are of interest to Duluth alone. Not so. Duluth should be interested, because on the showing made it is evident that Chicago is getting business that belongs to Duluth; but the people of Faribault and of other interior communities similarly situated are losing the advantage of lower freight rates that would be theirs if the railroads had not made the peculiar discrimination in freight rates described so lucidly by Mr. Mee.

Therefore, in the endeavor to make the railroad and warehouse commission do its duty in this matter, which it has clearly neglected up to now, Duluth ought to have the support of the rest of the state, and should not be compelled to make the fight singlehanded.

It is 152 miles from Duluth to St. Paul, and the railroads carry coal that distance for a dollar a ton and lumber for 5½ cents per hundred-weight. It is only fifty-two miles further to Faribault, but to carry coal that distance, only a third as far as it is from Duluth to St. Paul, the railroads charge another dollar a ton, and for lumber they charge 13 cents per hundred-weight. In other words, the railroads carry coal 152 miles for a dollar a ton, and for carrying it 52 miles further they ask as much more; while they ask 13 cents per hundred-weight for carrying lumber the 52 miles, against only 5½ cents per hundred-weight for the 152 miles.

Apparently these peculiar rates are arranged to give Chicago coal and lumber dealers access to these interior markets on the same basis as Duluth; for the rates from Chicago to Faribault are the same as they are from Duluth, though the distance is twice as long. If the joint rates from Duluth to Faribault were the same throughout as they are from Duluth to St. Paul, the Faribault consumers would buy altogether from Duluth, because it should be cheaper to do so.

If the railroad commission were doing its duty as well as it used to when, under the appointive system, it was non-partisan, such discriminations as these could not prevail. It seems to be up to the people of Minnesota to see that it does do its duty by giving Duluth and Faribault and other towns similarly situated the advantages of freight rates to which their situation entitles them.

WHY THIS RELUCTANCE?

The News Tribune is much aggrieved because of Governor Johnson's attitude toward Mr. Bryan. Coming from a partisan Republican newspaper of the yellow dog stripe, this seems a high compliment to the governor's loyalty to the national head of the Democratic ticket. Candidate Jacobson has not yet mentioned the name of the Republican candidate for president. Why is this?

But—

Will the morning paper please give a single reason why Jacobson should receive a single vote in Northern Minnesota? It has overlooked this duty up to date.

Congress may lack a joker after Mr. Bede gets out, but there will be some jokes in it yet.

The presidential campaign seems to be subsiding into the doldrums again. Won't Mr. Haskell or Mr. Foraker or Mr. Roosevelt or somebody else please pass the tobasco?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

According to John C. Greenway, who was at the Spalding Saturday, the laboring men of this country, or at least this section of the country, are not in such a restless condition as they were before the business depression of last October.

"For instance," said Mr. Greenway, who knows the laboring man and is a heavy employer of labor, "before the business depression made work somewhat less plentiful, I found that it was very difficult to hold labor. A man would hear that some one out in Montana was receiving four or five dollars a day. That man would wonder why he was not receiving a like amount, if he was receiving a lower wage scale. The result was that many men in the Coleraine district left their positions.

"Now it is different. The laborer who has a job is satisfied to hold it. There is not the moving over the country of labor that there was in the days when work was more plentiful and the wage was often raised, not in proportion to the value of the work, but rather in proportion to the great need of men.

"I find that there is not now a restless feeling among the men employed at Coleraine. I find that they are satisfied with conditions and are staying on the job. The man who is employed, is not wandering to the West, the Southwest or to other sections of the country in search of higher wages."

Mr. Greenway says that the new washing plant will be completed early next summer. The plant is being erected at a cost of $1,500,000, and will be the largest plant of its kind in this state. Mr. Greenway also stated that the fire that threatened the mines and buildings near Coleraine required the greatest efforts of the men employed there to extinguish. Practically every laborer was on the fire fighting line, and Mr. Greenway says that only the good organization of the fighting forces saved Coleraine and some of the other towns from destruction.

T. E. Harris, of St. Joe, Idaho, who was a guest at the Lenox yesterday, states that labor conditions in the mines of Idaho are improving somewhat, but at the present time there are a number of men out of employment.

According to Mr. Harris the conditions in the Idaho mines are showing a gradual improvement. He says that gradually more men are being employed and that the outlook is brighter than it has been for the past few months.

According to Mr. Harris the Western Federation of Miners has been called upon in the past to contribute to the support of many men out of employment. Mr. Harris gives the association credit for assisting the unemployed men in every way it was able.

Mr. Harris says there is no strife between the mine owners' association and the American Federation of Miners, at the present time. The bitter feeling that existed after the miners' strike has, according to Mr. Harris, if not entirely disappeared, been modified to a great extent.

Lines to Noah.

Arrangements are being made for celebrating Noah Webster's centenary at New Haven, Oct. 16.—Press dispatch.

Come all ye countless busy scribes,
And pay ye tribute now
To him who penned more telling words
Than ever ye knew how;
No further need ye look;
The word that reaches heart or brain
Is write in Noah's book.

He bothered with no tiring plots,
No characters he sketched;
He did not turn to novel form
No stories short he etched;
Andy yet great literature he wrote,
If ye but see it out—
And he is stolen from each day
Outrageously, no doubt.

He does not rhapsodize o'er love,
But treats it as a word;
He ne'er gives way to sentiment—
Such weakness were absurd—
And yet his formless book will live
When other books are dead;
He is the only writing chap
Who loves no word unsaid.

Times Have Changed.

New York Sun: How the times have changed from the old! Mr. Taft can't play golf without the fear of an aroused populace before him. Mr. Washington, that shameless old plutocrat, used to go about in a six-horse coach—wasn't it? Four-horse at the very least, with postillons and outriders. And he never apologized.

THE WEATHER.

All signs fail in dry weather. Though conditions point to rain, the rain copy remains in the background. It turned colder yesterday, as the weather man said it would; and it got cloudy, as the weather man said it would, though it cleared up beautifully yesterday afternoon; but the rain which the weather man predicted has not yet come. This morning it was bright and brisk and breezy. A northeast gale, with rain tonight and tomorrow, is promised by the weather man, however, together with colder weather tomorrow afternoon or night. Last night's lowest was 40 legs., and yesterday's highest was 44 degs. A year ago today it was cloudy and threatening.

The sun rose this morning at 6:32 and sets tonight at 5:14, making 10 hours and 42 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr Richardson of conditions: "A storm of considerable intensity is central this morning over Nebraska. This disturbance in connection with another of less energy central over British Columbia caused light to heavy rains throughout the Rocky mountains, eastern slopes and the plateau region during the past twenty-four hours. Areas of high pressure overlie the lake region and California. Freezing temperatures prevail in the Rocky Mountain districts. The easterly movement of the Nebraska storm favors a northeast gale over Western Lake Superior tonight and Tuesday. Northeast storm warnings are displayed at Duluth, Superior, Two Harbors, Ashland, Bayfield and Washburn."

A Cup Defender's End.

Kansas City Times: It's a sad but fitting end that the Mayflower has come to—a smart and able cup defender now a hopeless derelict of the seas. Sept. 19 she sailed from New York with a crew of youngsters just out of a college or two in search for the sunken treasure ship, Good Faith, of Plymouth, wrecked somewhere in the West Indies a couple of centuries ago. But a hurricane came along and it was left to a fruit steamer to rescue the men from the dismasted hulk of what was once the joy and pride of the North shore from Marblehead to Deer Island.

If you aren't too juvenile you will recall the incidents of the eventful year 1886 that produced the Mayflower. Lieut. Henn, R. N., challenged with the Galatea, an iron cutter of 171 tons. To meet her Gen. Paine of Boston got Edward Burgess to design the Mayflower of identical tonnage—the next to the last of the center board cup defenders. The American boat won in straight heats. But she belonged to a vanishing type. Next year the Volunteer was built on the same general lines. But when the first of the Valkyries challenged in '93 the Americans responded with a racing machine, the Virginia—a deep fin-keel sloop that was merely a shell, designed to drive through the water at high speed without regard to the comfort of passengers and crew.

You don't find adventuresome souls sailing to the West Indies or anywhere else in a modern cup defender. "That's the sort of a yes-sel to have," says the scornful Cap'n Osier of Gloucester, "when you don't need no yes-sel."

But the Puritan, a year older than the Mayflower, is still game for a cruise and here is the Mayflower herself, dismantled by a gale o'wind, but still riding the broad ocean—dying, so to switch figures, with boots on. If she had been one of the moderns she would have been broken up and sold for junk long ago. Which, as all seafaring folk must admit, would have been an ignominous close to a fine career.

Something for His Money.

Cincinnati Times-Star: Eddie Foy has a new story of hard luck. "A year or so ago," said he, "I met a friend of mine who was on his way West to take a job with a brokerage house. He was a good fellow, made lots of money and spent it freely. When I met him he had been buying wine in condoling with himself on leaving New York. Within ten minutes of train time he found that he was absolutely broke. 'Lend me some money, Eddie,' he said, and I gave up $30. Well, for a time I looked for a check in every mail. Then I looked for it only on Monday mornings. Finally I got to looking for it just after the first of each month. Then I stopped looking for it at all. The other day I met him on Broadway. 'Hello, Eddie,' he shouted. 'Say, how much do I owe you?' I told him. 'Come into the Metropole with me,' said he, 'I want to write you an I. O. U. for it.' 'Huh,' asked Mr. Foy. 'Me? You've owed me that thing for a year now. What's the use of handing me an I. O. U?' 'Aw, well,' says he, 'I'm going into bankruptcy tomorrow, and I want you to have something for your money.'"

The Emotion of Real Life.

Brooklyn Eagle: Eight hundred people took time to write to Mrs. Flora H. Avery, who has just recovered her daughter, Myrtle, after fourteen years of separation.

Here is a hint for a novelist or a dramatist. The springs of human sympathy that were touched in this woman's experience would melt crowded houses to tears if genius could present upon the stage the experience just as it really made its appeal. But there's the rub. If Dr. Wiley could only tell us how to make tears! "Tears, Tears?" said Balzac's flinty-hearted philosopher; "I have analyzed tears. They contain mucus, chloride of sodium and a little sulphite of chalk!" Those are the kind that get into many plays.

Slums.

Life: Slums, regarded as a necessity, are raised in all large cities and cultivated by the whole people.

As a rule, they require but little care, being extremely hardy, and having once taken root spread rapidly.

Slums are useful in many ways. They furnish material for writers on political economy, enabling them to support themselves comfortably. Slums also help religion and furnish a never ending source of amusement for philanthropists. They are indispensable for settlement workers. They are also invaluable for physicians and surgeons, supplying these specialists with diseases. They are also a source of happiness for the well-to-do, as the distant contemplation of them affords the necessary contrast to the most complete enjoyment. Without them there would scarcely be any real melodrama.

Several times foolish people have tried to get rid of them, not realizing that, although very expensive, they are indispensable. Without them we would have no sense of duty or civic pride.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••At a meeting of twenty-five members of the Gate City lodge, K. of P., in John McKinley's office last evening the following committees were appointed to organize a second division of the uniform rank: Finance, Messrs. Owens, Winship and William McKinley; uniforms, Messrs. McRae, Moody, Hughes and Mattocks; by-laws, Messrs. Hughes, Winship and Sinotte. M. W. Lewis was chairman and F. W. Winship was secretary of the meeting.

•••It is understood that the Eastern Minnesota railway will establish, quite a distance up the St. Louis river, on its easterly shores, immense stockyards, to be exceeded in size and importance by none in the Northwest. They will also have great cold storage and abbatoirs, fertilizing and glue works. It is also stated that the uncompleted vessels of the Northern Steamship line will be specially fitted for the transportation of meat eastward.

•••The annual exhibition of the St. Louis County Agricultural society opened yesterday afternoon in the O'Brien block. In addition to the fruits, vegetables and grain and dairy products, many of the Duluth merchants have exhibits of great beauty. Among the large displays are those made by Panton & Watson of the Glass Block store, Rainey & French and Carl Berkelman. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the formal opening was postponed until this morning, when a speech was delivered by Col. E. C. Gridley. This afternoon there was a baby show, and Walker's Military band gave a concert.

•••It is announced that the Democrat will be suspended indefinitely after the coming election. The Paragrapher will also stop its daily edition.

•••Simons, the St. Paul pawnbroker, is here again and it is understood arrangements have been made with Lottie Wolf to settle for the diamond alleged to have been stolen some time ago.

•••There were 18,000 barrels of oil stored on the Standard Oil company's uptown docks this morning.

•••Duncan MacLeod, for two years connected with the American Exchange bank, severed his connection with that institution yesterday. He will assume the position of receiving teller at the banking house of Bell & Eyster.

•••John Nensen, 31 years of age, committed suicide at the county jail at noon yesterday. He was being held there for examination for insanity. He tore up a blanket and tied it to an iron pipe and hanged himself. He was unmarried and had no relatives in this country.

JOHNSON LYRICS. II.

Johnson on the Rauge.

I'd rather be a Dutchman
At the Sons of Erin ball;
I'd rather hold a four-card-flush,
And have three aces call;
I'd rather be a puppy,
With a bad attack of mange,
Than to buckle John A. Johnson
On the great Mesaba range.

Man was not made to live alone,
Some ancient sage has said,
And forest of human comrades,
'Twere better he were dead.
If solitude is what you seek,
Or a kind that's sure to last,
Try hustling votes for Jacobson,
Where the Johnson special passed.

If life is too prosaic,
When things are running right;
And you're really out for trouble
And looking for a fight;
Just buy a one-way ticket,
And suggest that they should change
"Our governor" for Jacobson
On the great Mesaba range.

—J. E. R.

AS TO MR. JACOBSON.

Crookston Journal: Neither the Republican platform nor Mr. Jacobson is advocating the manufacture of farm machinery by the state, while the Democratic platform specifically indorses such manufacture and Governor Johnson in his campaign advocates it. The fact is that the International Harvester trust is apparently determined to elect Mr. Jacobson, if possible, as he is and has been for years its agent at Madison.

Fairmont Sentinel: The fight for Jacobson in Martin county has reached the point where it is considered futile by his warmest supporters, and now the effort will be concentrated in behalf of McCleary.

Winona Independent: If Jacobson could visit every voting precinct in the state, Johnson's election would be practically unanimous.

Warroad Plaindealer (Rep.): Jacobson was the most useful man that ever sat in the legislature and he will make the same kind of a governor. This the people of Minnesota know and will soon show they know on election day. —Warren Sheaf.

Has the Sheaf forgotten when the city of Warren, and Marshall and Kittson counties used to keep delegations of citizens, besides their regular representative and senator, in St. Paul, during every session of the legislature, to work for state drainage in the Red river valley, and how this same Jacobson, with his wildcat screech and hyena yell intimidated all the southern legislators and held back drainage for twelve years? Either the Sheaf has forgotten these things, or else it hears the crack of the party whip about its ears, and gets into the collar obediently to help drag the interests' latest consignment of political corruptness up to the state capitol.

St. Cloud Times: There is much inquiry as to when Jacobson will speak in St. Cloud—if at all. The opinion is strong that the Republican committee dare not exhibit their candidate in the larger cities. Why? St. Cloud voters are anxious to see and hear the man who seeks to be their governor. If he dare not stand before them—he is unworthy of their votes!

It is up to Jacobson!

Crookston Journal: The time has passed in the political history of this state when all a man had to do was to secure the Republican nomination for an office, and he could count upon it as being his. Character, ability and fitness for the office sought, are demanded by the people and Jacobson is beginning to realize that these are prime requisites that must be prominent in every candidate if he is to receive the suffrages of the people.

Albert Lea Standard: While spouting for reform and railroad regulation two years ago, Jacobson's pockets were stocked with free railroad passes and everybody now knows of it. It proves that Jacobson is a demagogue, that he cannot be trusted and thus he has forfeited the support of every upright American voter.

Roquefort Cheese.

Montgomery News: Roquefort cheese is made in France from the milk of a certain breed of sheep, which are fed on wild thyme and the cheese has a wild time trying to keep from stinking itself to death in its infancy. This wild thyme grows on the banks of the Lot, Tarn and other rivers in the department of Averyron in France, and after it has first been beshrieped and then bechesced it generates a lot of the tarndest smells that ever perambulated down the pike.

Thyme is a kind of an aromatic plant with a pungent odor and after it is converted into Roquefort cheese, it is the pungentest thing known to man. After this cheese is made it is put in solitary confinement until its whiskers began to turn gray and gangrene sets in, when it is taken out and chained to a post. Before it is served it is chloroformed or knocked in the head with an ax. It is then brought to the table in little square sections, about the size of a domino. It is served at the close of meals together with black coffee. It usually has a running mate in the shape of a round cracker that has to be broken with a maul.

Roquefort cheese is of a dull white color, except in spots where mortification has set in. Some claim it is inhabited, but this is not true. Even the intrepid and nephitic microbe flees from it as we flee from a pestilence. We have seen limburger cheese strong enough to shoulder a two-bushel sack of wheat, but a piece of Roquefort the size of a dice can carry an election. Limburger is a rose geranium when compared with Roquefort. There is as much difference between them as there is between the purr of a kitten and the roar of a he lion. Some people, who claim to be civilized, say they like Roquefort cheese, but they only eat it because it is imported and expensive. A man who will eat it is an open sepulcher, and should be quarantined, or driven into the wilderness and never again allowed to look into the face of a human being.

Marital Missiles.

Rochester Post Express: At a Lynn, Mass., wedding last week bright new coins were thrown after the departing bride and groom. This is a decided improvement on the rice and old shoe method of wishing good luck to the departing pair.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Three of my girls are in love."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Order a longer dining room table, I guess."

New York Sun: Knicker—Let's sit out the dance in the conservatory.

Stella—But they say that plants have eyes and memories.

Puck: The Man (new arrival at summer hotel)—I suppose there's no prohibition of kissing at this resort?

The Maid (demurely)—No; merely local option.

Boston Evening Transcript: An Englishman witnessing his first baseball game, was struck by a hot one off the bat. On coming to, he asked, faintly: "What was it?"

"A foul," they told him, "only a foul!"

"My word!" he exclaimed, "I thought it was a mule."

Philadelphia Ledger: "I see they are to have a hookless waist," said his wife.

"And just as I had got to be an expert in hooking them," he growled, being a natural kicker.

Washington Herald: "He talks poor."

"Then he must be rich."

"I don't know. Some men are deep enough to plead poverty, just for the impression it will create."

Puck: Mrs. Nabor—How is your husband going to vote this fall?

Mrs. Hardsense—He will not vote at all. He says that in this age of trained men it is absolutely folly to intrust the country to men who have had no experience in presidenting at all.

The Smart Set: "What possessed her to marry her second husband on the anniversary of her first's death?"

"So as not to have too many dates to celebrate."

Cleveland Plain-Dealer: "Now I want you to meet Miss Dingleberry. She's considered to be remarkably well informed."

"Say, if it's all the same to you, dear boy, I'd much rather be introduced to that baby-faced girlie over there with the blue ruffles."

Houston Post: "I'm a self-made man, but I never brag about it."

"I shouldn't think you would."

Cleveland Leader: Euclid Avenue Man—Hell, they say, is paved with good intentions.

Detroit Avenue Man—Yes, and I'll bet they're all the time tearing that pavement up to lay a new sewer.

Exchange: One day the office boy went to the editor of the Soaring Eagle and said: "There's a tramp at the door, and he says he has had nothing to eat for six days."

"Fetch him in," said the editor. "If we can find out how he does it we can run this paper for another week."

Brooklyn Life: Seaver—My neighbor, Hamilton, is of the opinion that confidence has been restored.

Weaver—Thought you didn't speak to Hamilton.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Women have birthdays; never years.

Every man has to be educated up to making love by the women he does it to.

There is something about a fine mind that seems to ruin all other good qualities.

The average man will take his family to the theater if he can't get anybody else to go with him.

The most successful way for a man to get good meals from his wife is to praise her for them even when they aren't.

A Horrified Critic.

New York Sun: Out of the deafening and blinding whirlwind with which the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt has replaced the sedate and somewhat stupid processes of the campaign we can now gather only the smothered cries of the victims and distinguish their scattered fragments. We hear dislocated screams and imprecations. We see tortured and dissevered members flying through the air. Haskell and Vorys, Foraker and Taft, and Bryan, these contribute to the storm; but of reason and logic, of argument and demonstration, there is nothing—nothing whatever. You catch shrieks of "liar," "whelp" and "villain," but not a vestige of continence and order. The whole situation has been submerged by a wave of frenzy and hysteria.

Honorable gentlemen have been discredited and branded. Men whose whole lives certify to their excellence have been denounced and thrown aside. The customs and established procedures under which this nation has advanced from poverty into opulence are eliminated by a gesture and a bawl, and reckless demagogy triumphant over the shattered wrack of decency rules the hour. The party candidates are dismissed in short order by the newspapers. Columns are surrendered to the rank outsiders. Haskell can obtain an hour's hearing. Unlimited space is accorded to Hearst and Roosevelt and other dealers in denunciation. The country no longer considers the conflicting claims of Taft and Bryan. Men are bent on hearing what the president has to say of Foraker and Haskell, and vice versa.

Politicians Guessing Over Causes Back of North Dakota Suit.

Many Believe Senatorial Feature of Primary Law is Doomed.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—What interests are behind the big political sensation sprung in North Dakota Saturday with the institution of the suit to test the validity of the senatorial features of the North Dakota primary law? That is the question that is being discussed all over the state today and the public curiosity is greatly aroused. The court fixed Oct. 23 for the hearing on the order to show cause.

The secretary of state and the county auditors will probably be represented by Attorney General McCue and as both Marshall and Johnson, the two high men in the senatorial race, are so directly interested, they will have legal representatives at the hearing.

As to the causes leading to the suit the well informed politicians are discussing in their circles, especially those of former insurgent leanings, it is asserted that either or both Senator Hansbrough or Col. Little, the two men eliminated from the race at the primaries were responsible. This is strenuously denied by their friends.

One theory is that Marshall, one of the high men, concluded that Johnson was gaining ground and might prove a dangerous factor at the polls. His friends believing Marshall would stand a better show before the legislature, started the suit.

Still another rumor is that the Johnson supporters found there was an arrangement between the friends of Marshall and the Democrats that in return for Democratic votes for Marshall for senator, the enthusiastic supporters of Marshall would vote for John Burke.

Suit Devoid of Politics.

A further reason for the suit and the one that seems to be most generally credited is that it was brought as a result of the private opinion of certain electors of the state who believe the primary law, as it related to the senatorship, is void. The men behind the suit are understood to be Republicans who are neither office holders nor candidates for office. It is asserted that prior to the primaries last spring five men were discussing the political situation, and as all expressed their belief in the unconstitutionality of the senatorial phase of the law, it was determined to bring the matter before the courts. Efforts were made by the stalwarts and insurgents to head this off, and before action could be taken it was too late to prevent the primary ballot. Interest lagged for some time, but about ten days ago, it is claimed, three of the men met, determined on the suit, communicated with the other two and arranged that each should get nine more, making a total of fifty from nearly every county of the state who are behind the suit, and putting up the money as voluntary subscriptions to confirm their view of the law.

The interest is widespread, and nearly every voter is watching closely the progress of the case. Leading lawyers assert the supreme court cannot help but declare the provisions unconstitutional, and that the senatorial election will be thrown into the legislature as formerly.

SAYS HER MOTHER COMMITTED CRIME

Daughter of Mrs. Gollnik Indicates Jury Made No Mistake.

Little Falls, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury made no mistake last week when it returned a verdict finding Matilda Gollnik guilty of murder in the second degree in killing her husband, William Gollnik, according to disclosures the convicted woman's 13-year-old daughter, Lena Gollnik, has made.

The girl told Miss Anna Hennenletter, deputy judge of probate, the day after Mrs. Gollnik was taken to the penitentiary to begin a life sentence that her mother had told her that she intended to kill her father Monday, and if she heard any shots not to get out of bed.

She also said that on the night of the murder her mother wished the little boy, Otto, to sleep upstairs but this he would not do. Mrs. Gollnik then said that it would be all right if he did stay with her because she could say to him, "See, there go the tramps that killed your father."

She said that her mother changed her first plan of killing her father by shooting him in the eyes because she had read that by hitting him over the head the deed was easier.

Miss Hennenlotter asked the girl to repeat her story to County Attorney Cameron, which she did and added that the day after the murder her mother told her to throw the revolver, which was under the house, into the well. She did not do this and says she thinks the gun is now in the potato patch.

When asked why she did not tell the story before the girl responded that her mother had two good attorneys and that she thought she would be freed and then come home and kill her.

FINDER OF MINE A PUBLIC CHARGE

"Dick" Langford, Who Located Colby Mine, Has Tough Luck.

Ontonagon, Mich., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Blind and penniless, "Dick" Langford, the discoverer of the famous Colby iron mine at Ironwood, has become an inmate of the county infirmary. For the past few years he has been living in a little shack at Lake Gogebic, supported by the county and cared for by A. C. Hargrave and others.

Notwithstanding his more than four score years and his pitiful condition, Mr. Langford has lost none of the hope which abides eternal in the breast of the mining prospector, and he declares that he will yet reveal to the world three copper and one silver veins, traversing through Ontonagon and Gogebic counties carrying untold wealth.

Mr. Langford was one of the first prospectors on what is now the Gogebic iron range. In 1868 he sunk a test pit some distance to the east of where the Colby mine is now located, but he did not put it down deep enough to strike the ore body. In 1872 or 1873 Mr. Langford, according to his story, discovered the Colby mine, and he alleges further that his present financial condition is due solely to misplaced confidence in the integrity of a man. He contends that he was to have a one-fourth interest in the property, but that he was ouchered out of it.

TOO MUCH MOTHER-IN-LAW.

North Dakota Man Driven Crazy by Her Action.

Ardock, N. D., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an effort to solve the mother-in-law problem, according to his own theory, James Hart, has landed in the asylum. Hart was married only a few months ago to a charming young woman and they got along happily, according to Hart, until his mother-in-law tried to conduct their affairs. Hart beat his mother-in-law in an effort to right his wrongs and was fined and jailed for his offense. Finally Hart lost his reason in trying to figure out what wiser heads have often given up.

WILL RAISE LARGE SUM.

North Dakota Methodists Have Problem on Hands.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Methodist conference, which has been in session in this city since last Wednesday will adjourn today after the appointments for the ensuing conference year have been announced.

Perhaps the most important resolution adopted is the one which provides for the raising of $100,000 in the next sixty days in order to comply with James J. Hill's agreement to contribute the last $25,000 of a total of $150,000 as a Wesley college endowment fund.

With the Larimore family donation and other amounts on hand there is considerably less than $100,000 yet to be collected. The matter will be taken up on all the charges in the state and the prospects for success are very bright. The conference also decided to raise $50,000 for claimants and it is understood that Rev. Alexander Carr is to be appointed as agent for this work. It was also decided to have a state Sunday school secretary, and Rev. C. A. McNamara will probably be the appointee.

Yesterday Bishop Wilson delivered the sermon and several new ministers were ordained.

SIX POUND RUTABAGA.

Cass Lake, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin Anderson is extensively farming near Little Wolf lake, and was in town Saturday with a load of garden produce and left at a newspaper office a huge solid rutabaga, weighing six pounds, and brought a barrel of great red onions which beat anything in the onion line ever exhibited in Cass Lake and cannot be excelled anywhere. Mr. Anderson may not be the only farmer who has produced such vegetables in this vicinity, but he is the first and only one who has had the courage to bring in specimens.

PROPERLY WORKED HIS LAND

Good Results Realized by Farmer Near Hallock.

Hallock, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Swenson, who owns considerable farming land west of town, has demonstrated the fact that it pays to work the soil properly. He has fifty-five acres of land that has been in hay meadow three years. Last summer, after taking off the hay crop, he broke it the latter part of September. The land was worked still further in the spring and seeded into wheat. On those fifty-five acres he threshed over 1,800 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat. This goes to show that land, when properly worked, is sure to bring good results. By doing the work right last year he had a larger yield than some farmers would get in three years, and also the satisfaction of having his land in first class condtion for other crops. Land seeded to clover and timothy and broke and back set in the proper season will make the land as good as new and fit to raise good crops for a number of years to come.

"HY" HENRY TAKES LIFE.

Former Minot Man Kills Himself in Montana.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 19.—Earle D. Henry, 25, better known to a wide circle of friends in Minot as "Hy" Henry, was found dead a short distance from Wolf Creek, Mont., last week with a bullet hole in his head. Mr. Henry has ben connected with the civil engineering department of the Great Northern railroad for the past eight years and during two years of his time he made Minot his headquarters.

During the latter part of September he suddenly disappeared from his work near Wolf Creek, Mont., and while a diligent search was kept up it was believed by some of his friends that he had left to take up work elsewhere.

The search, however, was kept up and a party of engineers came across his dead body in a clump of bushes several miles from Wolf Creek. A bullet hole in his head told how he had died. While naturally of a sunny and happy temperament it is said that the young man had been subject to several spells of despondency during the past few months and it is feared that during a fit of temporary insanity he took his life.

"Hy" Henry possessed a wide circle of friends throghout North Dakota and Montana and his sad death will indeed be cause for deep sorrow.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Farmers of Red lake and adjoining counties are planning to attend the annual convention of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association at St. Hillaire, Nov. 11 and 12.

Secretary George L. Austin has prepared the full program which will be mailed to interested parties this week. Subjects and matters of interest to all persons connected with butter or dairy affairs will be thoroughly discussed by men of state and inter-state reputation. Some of the men who will attend this meeting are Prof. T. L. Hecker of the state school of agriculture; J. J. Farrel of Carver county, who is known as the father of dairying in this state; A. D. Wilson, superintendent of the Minnesota Farmers' institutes; C. C. Lillie of Michigan, famous for his experiments and work with milk testing; Prof. Vye, secretary of the Minnesota experimental station and inventor of the present system of bookkeeping for the creameries of the state. This will be a grand opportunity for the patrons of all dairying interests to learn at first hand just what is the proper thing along these lines.

CROOKSTON MARKET DAY WAS SPLENDID SUCCESS.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notwithstanding the lowering skies and the attempts at rain, reinforced with a cold, biting wind from the north, Crookston's third market day, Saturday, proved a decided success from every standpoint, and the streets from early in the morning until late in the afternoon were traversed by hundreds of farmers and their families from every section of the county.

GETS SMALL JUDGMENT; TRACTION CO. TO APPEAL.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—After being out upwards of six hours, the jury in the circuit court, before whom the case of Sarah Clifford vs. the Houghton County Traction company was tried, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, but instead of awarding her judgment in the sum of $30,000, the amount asked, cut it down to approximately one-fifteenth of the amount, the verdict being in the sum of $2,500.

Even this, the traction company feels, is an unwarranted judgment, and it is not improbable an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

It's a Good Sound Common Sense Policy

To use medicines only of KNOWN COMPOSITION, and which contain neither alcohol nor habit-forming drugs. It is foolish—often dangerous to do otherwise. The most intelligent people, and many of the most successful, conscientious physicians, follow this judicious course of action. The leading medical authorities, of all schools of medicine, endorse the ingredients composing Dr. Pierce's medicines. These are plainly printed on wrappers and attested under oath. There's no secrecy; an open publicity, square-deal policy is followed by the makers.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, devised and gotten up by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in treating woman's peculiar diseases and carefully adapted to work in harmony with her delicate organization, by an experienced and skilled specialist in her maladies.

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, which contains neither alcohol (which to most women is the rankest poison) or other injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY for women, the composition of which is so perfect and good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient, in plain English on its outside bottle-wrapper, and attest the correctness of the same under oath.

We have a profound desire to avoid all offense to the most delicate sensitiveness of modest women, for whom we entertain the most sincere respect and admiration. We shall not, therefore, particularize here concerning the symptoms and peculiar ailments incident to the sex for which Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has for more than 40 years proven such a boon. We cannot, however, do a better service to the afflicted of the gentler sex than to refer them to Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a great family doctor book of 1000 pages, bound in cloth and given away gratis, or sent, post-paid, on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps—to cover cost of mailing only. All the delicate ailments and matters about which every woman, whether young or old, single or married, should know, but which their sense of delicacy makes them hesitate to ask even the family physician about, are made plain in this great book. Write for it.

Football Enthusiasts Unexpectedly Treated to Real Gridiron Struggle.

In the first real football game of the present season the Centrals of Duluth put it over the Nelson Dewey warriors, Saturday afternoon, by an 11 to 0 score, after the best gridiron battle seen on the local field in many a day.

Many of the spectators went to the park satisfied that the game was to be another one of those farces that the high school management has been handing the public up to this time. When the Duluth boys trotted on the field they were greeted with laud applause, and when the lighter men of the Superior school made their appearance there was a roar from the anxious Wisconsin rooters, and just a slight titter from the Duluth crowd.

They were short, and timid, and so stout most of them, that it looked as though the South Superior fat man's club had again started to school and organized a football team. It didn't take the Superior men long to satisfy the Duluth rooters that the Centrals were up against the real thing, however, and after the first five minutes of play they settled down to watch a close game.

The boys from Superior played like demons and for every inch that Duluth gained she had to fight, and fight hard. Their line during the first half was solid, there was nothing doing for Duluth around Dewey's end, and during the half there was a liberal exchange of punts. In fact, had it not been for the spectacular playing of Cook, Cummings, Bowen and Boyle, the result might have been altogether different.

Cook the Star.

"Mack" Cook was easily the star for the Duluth team, and he played the game from the blow of the whistle until time was called, after the second half. He was right after his man all the time; he hit the line like a thunderbolt; he tackled, the man went down in his tracks; and his great run of fifty-five yards in the second half furnished more excitement in less time than all the rest of the game put together.

Boyle was on hand all the time, and he ran the team in great shape, choosing his plays well, keeping his head at critical times, running back punts like a veteran, and he rarely, if ever, fumbled.

Cummings played in the best form shown this year, and his run of twenty yards for a touchdown, after getting the ball on one of Superior's forward passes, was a clever piece of work.

For Superior, the two Gordon brothers put up an excellent game, and had Superior a team of Gordons, the long end of the score would have gone across the bay. The playing of the Superior ends was great, and the way they toppled over Central's interference was spectacular. Not until the second half was well under way did they weaken. They used the old Harvard method of letting the man take care of himself and pulling down the whole interference by throwing themselves in front of it.

During the first hlaf of the game, the Centrals seemed dazed, stage struck, and utterly lost. They were lacking in their customary ginger, and they looked helplessly around, as if expecting some help from the sidelines. They failed to gain, and Superior was equally as unlucky along this line. Both sides punted at regular intervals, and when the whistle blew the ball was in the center of the field.

They came out of their trance at the beginning of the next half, however. Cummings running the ball back ten yards on the kickoff. He went through tackle for three more, Bowen tore off five yards through the other tackle, Cook hit the line for ten, and Cummings was thrown for a loss on an end run. Cook again made five, and Cummings punted thirty yards. At this stage of the game Superior fumbled on her twenty-yard line. Bowen, greatly encouraged, circled right end for ten yards, and Cook broke through tackle for ten yards and a touchdown. Crawford failed to kick goal. Score: Duluth 5, Superior 0.

Crawford kicked to Superior's five-yard line and Gordon brought the ball back ten yards. Superior could not gain and was forced to punt, which they did, sending the ball thirty yards back into Central's territory. Duluth lost the ball after a few downs, and Nelson-Dewey punted to Duluth's twenty-five yard line. A forward pass failed to gain for Duluth, and Superior made twenty-five yards on a fake kick. Duluth again got possession of the ball on downs, and Cummings and Cook tore off fifteen yards each. Superior got the ball on a fumble, and attempted a forward pass, which put the ball directly into Cumming's hands, and he crossed the line for the second touchdown. Crawford kicked goal, and the final score was 11 to 0.

Time was called with the ball in Duluth's possession on Superior's twenty-yard line.

SPALDINGS WIN FROM COLUMBIAS

Superior Team Taken Into Camp by the Score of 21 to 0.

Playing in the best form shown so far this year, the fast Spalding team Sunday downed the Columbias of Superior by the decisive score of 21 to 0. This gives the local team the championship of the Head of the Lakes, and is the source of much satisfaction to them.

The visitors outweighed the local men nearly fifteen pounds to the man, but the Spalding players had been coached in the finer points of the game, and after the first five minutes of play it was seen that they were playing the better ball, and there was no doubt as to the outcome.

The features of the game were the sensational 65-yard run of Feeley, the Spalding halfback, and the beautiful drop kick from the 45-yard line by Searles, the plucky little fullback of the same team.

The passing of Quarterback Nelson was one of the features, as he was at all times accurate, and especially on the long forward passing was he particularly brilliant. Capt. Clausen of the Spaldings, the former high school player, was in the game all the time.

The Spalding team well deserves its success, as its players are hard diggers, and as all the boys work, their practice is held under many difficulties.

TIGERS WIN FROM THE CUBS

Take Exhibition Contest at Chicago in an Easy Fashion.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—In an exhibition game, Detroit of the American league, yesterday won from the world's champions, the Chicago Nationals, by a score of 7 to 3. Detroit made fourteen hits off Overall and Reulbach, who pitched for Chicago. Exhibitions of base running, throwing and hitting were given by the players. Cobb of Detroit won the bunt and run to first base in 3 1-5 seconds. Cobb also won the 100-yard dash in 10 2-5 seconds and circled the bases in 13 7-8 seconds. Overall won the fungo hitting contest, 273 feet, and Hofman threw the ball 338 feet.

The score:

Chicago	0	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	0	3	9	1
Detroit	1	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	3	7	14	0

Batteries: Reulbach, Overall and Kling and Moran; Mullen, Winter and Thomas. Umpire, O'Day.

WANTS TO RESIGN.

Captain Burch of Yale is Hurt and Cannot Play.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.— Capt. Robert Burch of the Yale football team, in a talk with the members of the team and coaches, expressed his intention of resigning. The members of the team and its advisors refused to listen to his giving up the captaincy of the team, and it is expected that although he will be able to play but little, he will remain at the head of the team. Capt. Burch has been troubled for a year or so with a lame shoulder, and early in this season's practice injured it severely, which necessitated his retiring from the last two games.

NEBRASKA TEAM HELD

Gophers Are Robbed of a Victory by Costly Fumble.

Minneapolis, Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game between Minnesota and Nebraska Saturday resulted in a tie, neither side making a point.

Never in the history of Nebraska football has she sent such a veteran team as played against the Gophers Saturday. With the team came the major portion of the university. They couldn't figure anything but a victory. How a green Gopher eleven, with but three heavy men, could meet a fast, heavy bunch that had years of experience, and hold them to a tie, is one of the season's mysteries. But that is just what happened. Dr. Williams' squad are wonders. Just where they excel is hard to say. They are light, they play "high," they do not appear to be swift, and yet they play a magnificent game of football. The Cornhuskers are heavy, swift, well-balanced and trained to the minute. Yet the Gophers played them to a standstill and should have had three touchdowns. Three times the Gophers had the ball within two yards of the Nebraska goal, only to lose it on a fumble that never should have occurred. In fact, on straight football the Gophers walked all over the Nebraska boys.

Nebraska made most of her gains on long forward passes and fake plays. She could not get around the Gopher ends, and she could not get through the Gopher line. She made her gains on old-fashioned football two or three times during the game.

Never Gives Up.

The short, snappy yell, "Minnesota never gives up," now so much used by Gopher rooters, seems emblematic of the team. It hardly seems credible that the team Saturday was composed of the same men that plaeyd Lawrence three weeks ago. Three weeks ago the eleven was a joke to those who know the game. Today they are on the way to a top place in Western football. This is the sure result of Saturday's game. The game with; Minnesota is the one big contest for the Cornhuskers, and all her energies go towards beating the Gophers. This year it seemed a certainty. Even the ardent Minnesota admirers admitted that the dope pointed that way, and when the team trotted on the field, it didn't look as if Safford's boys would have a look in. The Nebraska men are veritable giants. But one man on the team has played less than three years, and he has played two. Looking at the bleachers, it seemed as if all of Col. Bryan's town was present. Nebraska colors were everywhere.

At 2:45 the Nebraska team trotted on the field headed by her captain, Chalaupka, the giant right tackle and one of the best men in the business. The team was met by a deafening roar from the thousands of friendly visitors who came up on the specials. They immediately began a little preliminary practice and they made the cold shivers run down the backs of those who are loyal to the ski-u-mah.

At 2:55 the Gopher team headed by Capt. Safford came tearing down the field. Pennants, hats and canes went in the air. Gray haired graduates and chesty freshmen yelled themselves hoarse. It was Minnesota's tribute to a football eleven that have overcome the greatest handicap the game all the time.

The Spalding team well deserves its success, as its players are hard diggers, and as all the boys work, their practice is held under many difficulties.

Sheer Nerve Did it.

Promptly at 3 the players quickly and silently lined up. Nebraska men were smiling and confident. Every Minnesota man had his jaw hard set. His nerves at the highest tension. In the days of old football, beef counted. Then it was that Minnesota smothered the Cornhuskers with a score that looked like a Democratic plurality in Texas. But those days are no more. Saturday it was sheer grit and a grim determination to do the very best that could be done, that achieved the result.

Special credit cannot be given any one. Every man on the team was in his place when he was needed. The greatest attack made by Nebraska was on McGaverern, but the plucky little Irishman more than held his own. The gridiron was hard and fast and the day was a fine one for the spectators, although a little warm for the team.

Perhaps special metion should be made of Pettijohn at left end and Plankers at fullback. Both are new men, but they played all around their opponents Saturday. In the game with Lawrense it looked as if Pettijohn was not of sufficient caliber, but Dr. Williams apparently knew what he was about for today Pettijohn is a whirlwind. Plankers also didn't seem very much, but Dr. Williams again made no mistake. He is heavy, speedy and keeps his eye on the ball all of the time. As a matter of fact he is probably destined to be one of the season's star players. Safford at center played a steady game and had an easy time with the much herlded Collins.

For the visitors, Capt. Chaloupka and Quarterback Cook were easily the stars. Cook especially was in every scrimmage and easily made more gains than any of his team-mates. He handled the men well also. He gave his signals quickly and had his men line up in a way that the Gophers could very well imitate. Coach Cole of the Nebraska team has evidently been trying to perfect a long forward pass similar to the one so successfully used by Carlisle. But it is a failure as tried by Nebraska Saturday. The ball was lost about as often as the play was tried. On the other hand, Minnesota has a very short forward pass, and it seems to work very much better. It was triad a great many times, and only in two instances did it fall to make gains.

Defense is Stronger.

The defense of the Gophers was fine. In the two previous games this feature has been the one that caused the most trouble. In the game Saturday the Gopher line held like a stone wall against the terrific onslaughts of the Nebraska boys. Whether this has been given special attention by Dr. Williams or is simply the rounding out of a great football team realns to be seen.

The tackling on both sides was splendid. Possibly the honors in this as well as in other plays should go to Pettijohn. He made some great tackles and brought down the man with the ball when it seemed well nigh impossible.

The game was a good illustration of the difference between the Ironclad new rules that govern the "Big Eight" conference and the rules governing other institutions. Nebraska is outside the conference and has a training table such as Minnesota formerly had. As a result, her men are in fine physical condition. It seems a hardship to compel a team that has not such advantages to play against a team with every advantage, and pressure will be brought upon the conference to restore the training table.

The work of the referee came in for considerable criticism after the game. Three times the Gophers were under the very shadow of Nebraska's goal posts, when the ball was given to the Cornhuskers under circumstances that seemed unjustifiable to many of the rooters. One instance was toward the latter end of the second half, when the Gophers were playing wonderful football. Getting the ball in about the center of the field, they had rushed it down by a series of tremendous line bucking to the 8-yard line of the Cornhuskers. Young was called upon to carry the ball. The big tackle tore a great hole in the line and stood alone beyond the opponents' line. His good fortune seemed to have dazed him. He paused for an instant, but seeing what was up, he carried the ball straight over the line. Referee King claimed that the progress of the ball had stopped, and accordingly put the ball back, giving it to Nebraska on the theory that Minnesota had been held for downs.

Frequent Fumbling.

The frequent fumbles were not to be excused. Time after time the ball was dropped when the player seemed to have it firmly in his grasp. The proper carrying of the oval is the first lesson in the game. Both sides were weak in this regard. The team play of the Gophers has improved in a marked degree since the game last Saturday. They are rapidly learning that the successful team is the one that is a unit.

"Now for Chicago," was the cry of the Minnesota contingent. Those who have seen both teams play say that, so far as a team is concerned, there is but little choice. The great Stefens, around whom Stagg has built a team, has failed to make good. If comparative scores count for anything the Gophers are strictly in it. The same Illinois team that all but beat Chicago, was wiped all over the gridiron by the same cornhuskers who played against the Gophers Saturday. The Gophers may not win. Any coach in any institution cannot train a team containing eight green men, into championship form in twenty days. Loyal friends of Minnesota hardly dare hope that the team will win from Stagg's veterans. But the team will give a good account of itself. A tie game with Chicago would be a trophy dear to every loyal Minnesota rooter. The members of the team are saying nothing. They realize their newness at the game. It must be said they are winning the respect of everyone by their own attftutde. Silent and unobtrusive when in a crowd of friends, never "knowing it all" when coaches tell them how to play; never playing a rough game in any "scrimmage," they are as popular a team as the university has ever had. Every one wishes them success.

ELY DEFEATS THE INDIANS

Both Teams Play Good Ball; Signals Given in Chippewa.

Ely, Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ely high school football team defeated the Vermillion Lake Indian Reservation school eleven, Saturday afternoon, in a stubbornly fought game on the local high school athletic grounds, by a score of 5 to 0.

The Indians arrived on the noon train and marched up through the principal business streets and created quite a little stir, as this is the first time a team of Indians had ever contested in athletic sports with local teams. The Indians were stalwart looking fellows, averaging 155 pounds. They were accompanied by Superintendent of the Reservation School Dr. Randall and were coached by Editor Sheets of the Tower News.

The Indians kicked off in the first half, and Ely advanced the ball some twenty yards, and in the next three downs the local team had pushed the ball to the Indian's 15-yard line, and it seemed that the Ely team would score, but the first half ended with the ball in that position, after the Indians had gained the ball and lost it.

In the second half, the Ely boys made a touchdown on an end run. Williams of the Ely team failed to kick goal. The ball remained near the center of the field the remainder of the game.

The game was a good one, and there was an entire absence of dispute throughout the game.

The Indian signals were all given in Chippewa, and the team appeared strongest in bucking the line. Editor Sheets and Principal Duffield of the Ely high acted as referee and umpire respectively.

Detroit, Oct. 19.—Gottlieb Bruder and his little son Raymond were drowned in Detroit river when their skiff was swamped by swells from a steamer.

SUTTER IS STILL THE CHAMPION

Wood of St. Paul Loses Fast Wrestling Match to Local Man.

In one of the best wrestling matches ever pulled off in this city Charles Sutter of Proctor, lightweight champion of the Northwest, successfully defended his title at the Temple Roller rink Sunday night, when he threw Alex Wood of St. Paul, who aspired to be champion in straight falls.

It was only after the hardest kind of work and twenty-six minutes of actual time that Sutter got the famous Gotch toe hold, and compelled Wood to give him a fall.

Both men started in on the next bout by roughing it to some extent, but Wood got too anxious, and gave Sutter the chance he was looking for. Sutter got a crotch hold and had the St. Paul boy on his back in one minute and fifty seconds.

In the preliminary bout Young Sago of West Duluth easily got away with Carl Lindblom, winning both falls in less than five minutes.

Students Defeated.

The Central Business College football team was defeated by the Sandstone eleven, Saturday at that place by the score of 11 to 10. Both teams played great football, and the game was fast and exciting throughout.

FOR THE STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

Central Will Meet Husky Minneapolis East Side Eleven Saturdry.

East Side of Minneapolis, the newly created champions of the Twin Cities, will surely come to Duluth next Saturday to settle the championship of the state. Their signed contract was received this morning, and the students at the high school are overjoyed.

This team Saturday sprung the biggest surprise of the present preparatory school football year by defeating the three-time championship team of the state, Minneapolis North Side. The game with the Duluth team will be a real championship affair, and as was shown in chapel this morning at the big school on the hill, the students are wild with excitement. They can think nothing, talk nothing but football, and when Saturday rolls around one of the biggest crowds ever gathered on the local field will witness a real football game.

The game Saturday was the best thing that ever happened the Duluth team, as it was a hard one, and opened the eyes of both the coaches and the players to the weak points. This week Coach Colton will work the boys hard every night, and skirmishes will be in order tonight. The armory will be rented and the boys will have signal practice every morning.

Duluth has an old bone to pick with Minneapolis, and if they don't win the game it will be because Minneapolis has the better team. "Central can come to us for the championship game now," is the talk that is heard on all sides. "They refused to give us a game. Now we'll beat East Side, and Central can worry about a meeting with us."

GREAT MEN & BEER BREWING

The brewers of beer have always been encouraged and often even subsidized by state and colonial governments of this country in the endeavor to curtail the evil effects of real dissipation. The best men of their times were engaged in the business, such as Wm. Penn, who caused the first brewery to be erected in Pennsylvania. Samuel Adams, acknowledged father of the American Revolution, conducted his father's brewery in Boston, Patrick Henry was a jovial host at Williamsburg, in Virginia, the year before he made his famous declaration, "Give me liberty or give me death." Abraham Lincoln even, in his famous debate, turned the table on Douglas with his ready wit, that he had paid his government tax for the purpose of furnishing the flowing bowl to his illustrious opponent.

Surely the brewers and their friends have always been foremost in promoting the public welfare, but never before has such a healthful and enjoyable brew been given the American people as

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE.

Toronto Insurance Man Says Dominion Hurts Private Business.

Henry F. Sullenger, of Toronto, Ont., a well known Canadian insurance man, stated at the St. Louis hotel that the government of the Dominion was hurting the insurance companies of Canada by selling a form of its own insurance.

He says the government will begin to sell old age annuities next month. The annuities run from $50 to $600 a year. The annuities cannot mature before the age of 55, and can be paid for at a single payment or paid for at weekly payments. Interest of 4 per cent will be compounded by the government upon all of the payments and the person taking out this government policy has the guarantee of the government that when he reaches the age of 55, 60 or 65, he can draw upon his annuity, which will continue until his death.

Under this form of the insurance the government will injure the business of the individual companies, according to Mr Sullenger, and will decrease the amount of insurance they will sell.

Crowd at Rosebud.

J. Duff Campbell, of the St. James hotel, has returned from Dallas, S. D., where the big drawing upon the Rosebud reservation land will be held tomorrow. According to Mr. Campbell 20,000 people are camped out under the blue canopy of heaven. He believes he counted at least 1,000 rough and ready restaurants, that catered to the wants of the people, and says shell games and all sorts of gambling games are in full swing. Mr. Campbell said that every train to Dallas was made up of from eight to twelve coaches, and that these trains were packed to the guard rails with people anxious to take a chance in the big government lottery. Mr. Campbell was accompanied by Barney Madden.

ANOTHER TOWN FLAME-MENACED; STATE SOLDIERY NOT NEEDED

Governor Warner Issues Appeal to People of Michigan to Come to Aid of Forest Fire Victims.

Detroit, Oct. 19.—Reports from the forest fire district of Northern Michigan are still rather fragmentary, but there were indications of improvement in the general situation, as far as imminent danger to life and property was concerned. But as to the victims who survived the destruction of their homes and villages, conditions are still pitiful in the extreme with the likelihood of greater distress and many deaths from exposure in the event of a sudden drop in the temperature falling upon the half clad refugees camped in box cars and open fields.

Governor Fred M. Warner issued an appeal to the people of Michigan for contributions and Mayor William B. Thompson of Detroit has called a special meeting of the common council for tomorrow morning to consider the matter of contributing relief. A public meeting will also be held in the mayor's office at noon tomorrow for the same purpose and Bishop Charles D. Williams of the Episcopal diocese of Michigan, who has just returned from the fire district will be asked to describe conditions as he witnessed them. The Detroit board of commerce held a meeting at the Detroit club last night to arrange the details of shipping a carload of provisions and bedding north at noon today and Governor Warner has directed Adjt. Gen. McGurren of the statet troops to take the initiative in similar measures at Grand Rapids. The Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad company has already sent a dozen carloads of provisions, lumber and hay into the district from Bay City.

President J. D. Hawks of the Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad received word that forest fires are seriously threatening the town of Oscoluk, south of Alpena on Thunder bay.

The Western Union Telegraph company now has uninterrupted communication with Alpena and is able to do business twice with Onaway, on the far side of the burned district. The Western Union is also able to establish communication with Posey, in the fire district this afternoon. Long distance telephone communication is good as for north as East Tawas.

Maj. Gen. Gunners of the state troops who was sent into the burned district to investigate conditions, telegraphed to Governor Warner there was no need of troops, as the fire situation is improved temporarily at least. The immediate needs he reported, was for bedding and food for the refugees and fodder for horses and cattle. Governor Warner has already directed the sending of several hundred blankets into the burned district and all the blankets on hand at the armory of the state troops at Alpena, have been forwarded.

ATTEMPT TO DUPLICATE MURDER OF FATHER LEO IN CHICAGO, IS FOILED

CATHOLIC PRIEST ROUTS ASSASSIN

Chicago, Oct. 19.—An attempt to assassinate Rev. J. K. Fielding, pastor of the Corpus Christi Roman Catholic church, was made yesterday afternoon. After twice shooting at the priest in the Sunday school hallway of the church, the would-be assassin, knocking down many children ran into the street and escaped.

The culprit had been seen loitering around the church some time, and was observed writing upon a sheet of paper which he held against the building. Folding the paper he placed it in his pocket and his action then became suspicious. The police believe that the writing was an explanation of his intended act and his identity, which was to be found upon his body, in the event of his committing suicide after killing the priest. A letter of similar purport was found in the possession of Guiseppe Alla, who killed Father Leo Heinrichs in Denver during the church service a short time ago.

Aroused by the man's actions, Father Fielding approached him, saying, "What are you doing here?"

"I'm praying," replied the stranger.

As the priest turned his back the stranger stepped into the hallway and drew a revolver and pressed it against his intended victim.

Father Fielding immediately showed fight, knocking the weapon away just in time to escape a bullet, which grazed his head and clipped a lock of hair from his temple.

At the same time the priest knocked the culprit down by a blow in the face. Hurriedly scrambling to his feet the man rushed down the hallway. At the bottom of the stairway he turned and fired another ineffectual shot at the priest and then, still brandishing the revolver ran into the street.

JAP OFFICERS BOARD YANKEE WARSHIPS, BUT IT IS ALL IN PEACE

Yokohama, Oct. 19.—Storm-battered but magnificent, the American battleship fleet lies in the harbor, the entire assemblage making a display unprecedented in the history of Yokohama. Shortly after the ships came to anchor, the mist, which had shut out their coming, cleared, and a light breeze carried saw ythe smoke from the saluting guns, revealing from the shore front the lines of white American ships of war, backed by the gray of the Japanese. Scores of small craft chartered by individuals darted in and out among the battleships, the American Asiatic association being among those to give the heartiest welcome. Two thousand school children sang the American national anthem.

The ships show the effect of the tremendous battering of the waves, which is described by old officers as the worst they have ever encountered. Rear Admiral Sperry said, immediately after anchoring, that he was glad to arrive in Japan, and that he greatly appreciated the evidence of a sincere welcome, the arrangements for which appeared to be perfect. Commander John A. Dougherty, the American naval attache at Tokio, who came here to take part in the welcome to the fleet, boarded the Connecticut yesterday morning and discussed the program with the admiral.

The moment the fleet dropped anchor the admirals in formal dress hastened from the flagships of the various divisions to the flagship of the fleet, the Connecticut, which also was boarded by Japanese subordinate officers who came to arrange details. Shortly the commander-in-chief and other admirals, accompanied by their staffs, entered a motor boat and proceeded to the flagship Mikasa of the Japanese fleet, to pay an official call upon Sir Gero Ijuin. The Japanese admiral immediately returned to the fleet. Sir Ijuin, resplendent with gold lace and magnificent decorations, was given a hearty welcome by Admiral Sperry on board of the Connecticut. After a brief visit, the Japanese departed, and as they went down the side, the Japanese flag was broken out at the mainmast and the guns belched forth a salute.

A short time later Sir Francis B. Loomis, United States commissioner to the Tokio exposition, accompanied by Mrs. Loomis, J. C. O'Laughlin and Mrs. O'Laughlin and Acting Consul General Babbitt, called upon Rear Admiral Sperry and paid their respects. They were given fifteen guns as they left the ships. In the meantime visits were exchanged between the captains of all the vessels.

The mayor and governor also called upon the admiral, and later the reception committee, the spokesman of which was M. Mate, boarded the Connecticut and bade the admiral and his men welcome in behalf of the entire nation. He thanked the Americans for their evidence of friendship and regard, to which Admiral Sperry responded in a similar vein.

Will Raise Funds.

A. L. Miggs, of Bay City, Mich., a guest of the Spalding hotel, says that all of the peninsula towns of Michigan will come to the relief of the refugees of the town of Metz. Mr. Miggs stated that a mass meeting would be held in Bay City and that the citizens would contribute to the relief of the fire sufferers. In the opinion of Mr. Miggs the citizens of Michigan will come to the rescue of the fire sufferers of their state with just as much alacrity as the citizens of this state came to the relief of the Chisholm refugees.

REFORMATORY TERMS GIVEN

Three Convicted Prisoners Are Sentenced in District Court.

Three prisoners, convicted of crimes at the current term of district court, were sentenced by Judge Cant Saturday afternoon. They all drew sentences on the reformatory plan, their period of imprisonment being based on their conduct while confined.

Raymond Nichols and Benjamin Franklin Willworth, alias Bert Moore, who were convicted of swindling, in fleecing Wallace Lapp out of $20 in a pool game in August, were sentenced to the state prison at Stillwater on the reformatory plan. The court commented on the good appearance of the young men and their evident intelligence, and said that their pursuit of crime was not to be condoned.

Leander Ohman, convicted of burglary in the third degree, was given a reformatory sentence at St. Cloud. Ohman was found guilty of entering a store at Virginia and carrying off a quantity of clothing. He was in company with another man at the time, the other escaping. Ohman is 29 years old and came to this country from Finland two years ago.

Unguaranteed Bank Deposits.

To the Editor of The Herald:

An old "saw" is, in a desperate case retain a good attorney. Governor Hughes was lately circulating through our section, and strenuously advocating that an unguaranteed bank deposit was one of God's choicest gifts to mankind, not so much in it being a deposit, but in its being unguaranteed.

There have been many points advanced in defense of bank guaranty, but the simple fact that my bank deposit was guaranteed to be paid me—no matter the panic—whenever I demanded it, impresses me as showing a lack of intelligence to refuse a certainty, an assurance that whatever I plan can be accomplished, regardless of times, and that should be the beginning and ending of argument.

To whom is bank guaranty offensive, anyway—to the people or the banks?

It cannot be offensive to the people. It is not offensive to the laborer that the suit of clothes he works so hard to obtain the money for is guaranteed all wool and well made, or money back.

It cannot be offensive to the people that the "pure food" law, after years of opposition, passed, "guaranteeing that the food is exactly as the label states.

It cannot be offensive to the people that the $5 national bank note which they have in their pocket is guaranteed to be $5 under any or all circumstances, whether the bank which issues it fails or not; then why should it be offensive or detrimental to the people that the $5 note placed in the bank for safe keeping is guaranteed to be paid back to them under any and all circumstances?

Either $5 has taken the same amount of labor to produce, the same saving, the same self-denial, the same sweat, and the recording angel has checked against us for the possession of either, the same amount of time.

The first we produce and spend in the heyday of our youth, the other we deposit to make the evening of our life less painful—what argument, under heaven, do you advance, as an intelligent man, that you should not demand that the money which you intrust to the bank in your youth for safe keeping should not be doubly guaranteed to you in old age?

It is argued that only a small percent of the banks fail. Granted, but it is conceded that a small per cent do fail, and if your deposit is in that failed bank, in what way does the small per cent lighten your burden? All yours is gone, and that is the 100 per cent to you.

That bank guaranty of deposits would make banks less careful is an assertion but not an argument.

I believe all officers and employes must give bond for honesty, and no other banks are affected by their honesty or dishonesty, only indirectly—the run which it may create.

Then why should banks become less careful regarding honesty and bonds, when not only the broken bank would suffer, but all the other banks would be taxed to repair the loss?

No one for one moment will have the hardihood to say an unguaranteed bank is safer than a guaranteed one. Does not its very English say one is a risk and the other is not? Then why argue against logic?

Unfortunately, the issue has become a political one, and Taft practically says, you must take the same risk with your saving of years as the gambler does with his stake; while Bryan says that the laborer, who may scarcely know where his bank is located, who may not personally recognize a single officer or employe of the bank, deposits on blind faith, not knowledge, and on his own resources would not know a single test for solvency. Bryan says, when he places his labor's proceeds on that bank counter, it must there become a sacred trust, sacred for old age.

In conclusion, I will ask again. Why should the note of the broken bank, which you have in your pocket, be more sacred than a similar note of the same plate, previously placed in that same bank for safe keeping? Either $5 note has taken the same amount of labor to produce, the same saving, the same self-denial, the same sweat, and the recording angel has checked against us for the possession of either, the same less distance from eternity.

Let old age say whether your savings shall be guaranteed and safe, or unguaranteed and the football of circumstances.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE CONSUMPTION CURE

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 18.—What woman, with a ballot in her hand, could do toward alleviating the hardships and suffering in the industrial world, due to injustice and inequality, was told at an industrial mass meeting at the Star theater by delegates to the fortieth annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association.

The report of the committee on industrial problems affecting women and children was given by Florence Kelly of New York. She said in part:

"Votes for working women means shorter hours. Eight hours for men, ten hours for children, unlimited hours for women—such is our practice today in an increasing number of states. Eight hours for all workers would do more to reduce tuberculosis than all the crusades.

"Working women have the working day of eight hours only in the four states in which they vote — Colorado, Idaho, Utah and Wyoming."

Proposed Amendments —TO THE— Constitution —OF— Minnesota —BY— The Legislature General Session, 1907.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1st, 1908.

Hon. Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State—

Sir: As required by Section 25 of the Revised Laws, as amended, I have the honor to furnish you herewith a statement of the purposes and effects of the respective amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota by the Legislature of 1907, and which are to be submitted to the electors of said State at the General Election of 1908.

FIRST PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The first proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 477 of the Laws of 1907. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Sections one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4) and seventeen (17) of Article nine (9) of the Constitution (the latter section being the amendment to said Article nine (9), adopted in 1896), which sections now read as follows:

"Section 1. All taxes to be raised in this state shall be as nearly equal as may be, and all property on which taxes are to be levied shall have a cash valuation and be equalized and uniform throughout the state: Provided, that the legislature may, by general law or special act, authorize municipal corporations to levy assessments for local improvements upon the property fronting upon such improvements, or upon the property to be benefited by such improvements, or both, without regard to cash valuation, and in such manner as the legislature may prescribe; and provided further, that for the purpose of defraying the expenses of laying water pipes and supplying any city or municipality with water the legislature may, by general or special law, authorize any such city or municipality, having a population of five thousand or more, to levy an annual tax or assessment upon the lineal foot of all lands fronting on any water main or water pipe laid by such city or municipality within corporate limits of said city for supplying water to the citizens thereof without regard to the cash value of such property, and to empower such city to collect any such tax, assessments or fines, or penalties for failure to pay the same, or any fine or penalty for any violation of the rules of such city or municipality in regard to the use of water, or for any water rate due for the same; and provided further, that there may be by law levied and collected a tax upon all inheritances, devises, bequests, legacies and gifts of every kind and description above a fixed and specified sum, of any and all natural persons and corporations. Such tax above such exempted sum may be uniform or it may be graded or progressive, but shall not exceed a maximum tax of five per cent.

"Section 2. The legislature shall provide for an annual tax sufficient to defray the estimated ordinary expenses of the state for each year, and whenever it shall happen that such ordinary expenses of the state for any year shall exceed the income of the state for such year the legislature shall provide for levying a tax for the ensuing year sufficient, with other sources of income, to pay the deficiency of the preceding year, together with the estimated expenses of such ensuing year. But no law levying a tax or making other provisions for the payment of interest or principal of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' shall take effect or be in force until such law shall have been submitted to a vote of the people of the state, and adopted by a majority of the electors of the state voting upon the same.

"Section 3. Laws shall be passed taxing all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise, also all real and personal property, according to its true value in money; but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property used for religious purposes, and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and personal property to an amount not exceeding in value two hundred dollars for each individual, shall, by general laws, be exempt from taxation.

"Section 4. Laws shall be passed for taxing the notes and bills discounted or purchased, moneys loaned, and all other property, effects, or dues of every description, of all banks and of all bankers, so that all property employed in banking shall always be subject to a taxation equal to that imposed on the property of individuals.

"Section 17. The legislature may impose, or provide for the imposition of, upon the property within this state of any and all owners or operators, whether corporate or individual, or otherwise, of any and all sleeping, parlor and drawing room cars, or any or either of the same, which run in, into or through this state; also upon the property within this state of any and all telegraph and telephone companies, or owners, whose lines are in, or run in, into or through this state; also upon the property within this state of all express companies, or owners, or any or either of the same, doing business in this state; also upon the property within this state of all domestic insurance companies of this state of any kind; also upon the property within this state of any and all foreign insurance companies doing business in this state of any kind; also upon the property within this state of all owners or operators of any and all mines or of mineral ores situated in this state; also upon the property within this state of all boom companies or owners, and of all ship builders or owners doing business in this state or having a port therein (provided, that this act shall not apply to property owned by railroad companies, their lands and other property); and upon the property of either or any of such companies or owners—a tax as uniform as reasonably may be with the taxes imposed upon similar property in said state, or upon the earnings thereof within this state, but may be graded or progressive, or both, and in providing for such tax, or in providing for ascertaining the just and true value of such property, it shall be competent for the legislature in either or all such cases, to impose such tax upon any or all property thereof within this state, and in either case by taking as the basis of such imposition the proportionate business, earnings, mileage or quantity of production or property now or hereafter existing of any such companies, persons or owners, transacted or existing in this state, in relation to the entire business, mileage or quantity of production or property of such companies, persons or owners as aforesaid; or in such other manner, or by such other method as the legislature may determine; but the proceeds of such taxes upon mining property shall be distributed between the state and the various political subdivisions thereof wherein the same is situated, in the same proportion as the proceeds of taxes upon real property are distributed: Provided further, that nothing in this act contained shall operate to authorize the assessment or taxation of any farm land or ordinary business blocks or property owned by any such corporation, person, firm or company except in the manner provided by the ordinary methods of taxation."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Sec. 1. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property used for religious purposes, and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200 for each household, individual, or head of a family, as the legislature may determine. But the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

This proposed constitutional amendment was submitted and voted upon at the last election and was declared carried. But a contest was instituted by interested parties, claiming that the amendment was not carried. That contest is now pending in the courts, and it was on that account that the legislature decided to re-submit the amendment to the people, so that however the contest may be decided, the next legislature may have the power granted by the amendment. For the purpose of discussing the effect of the amendment I will assume that the same amendment submitted at the last election did not carry.

The purpose and effect of this amendment would be to greatly enlarge the power of the legislature with reference to the subject of taxation. Section one (1) as it now stands provides that all taxes imposed shall be equal—as near as may be—on all forms of property, and all property upon which a tax is imposed is required to have a CASH VALUATION equalized throughout the state.

Section two (2) as it now stands requires the legislature to levy the necessary taxes annually to defray the expenses of the state. That is the duty of the legislature without any constitutional direction.

Section three (3) as it now stands provides that all real and personal property, including MONEYS, CREDITS and INVESTMENTS IN BONDS AND STOCKS, shall be assessed according to their true value in money.

Section four (4) as it now stands provides that property employed in banking shall be subject to a tax equal to that imposed on other property. This is only a repetition of the requirements of Sections one (1) and three (3), as no rational person would claim that banking capital should be exempt from taxation.

Section seventeen (17) as it now stands is not easy to understand, but it was intended by that section to relieve from the operation of sections one (1) and three (3), above quoted, property of the classes therein enumerated, so that a gross earnings tax could be applied thereto instead of direct taxation.

Owing to the provisions of sections one (1) and three (3) of the present Constitution many amendments were from time to time added so as to permit taxes to be imposed on specific kinds of property otherwise than upon a cash valuation equalized throughout the state. We have among these exceptions railroad gross earnings taxes; municipal frontage taxes; inheritance taxes; and the gross earnings taxes authorized by said section seventeen (17).

Several exemptions from taxation are also provided for, but as these exemptions are not changed by the proposed amendment, I will make no further reference to them.

The amendment which, if adopted, would take the place of all of the sections and amendments above referred to, is simple and plain. No provision of the Constitution is necessary to authorize the imposition of the taxes necessary for the support of the state and its various political subdivisions. The power of taxation is inherent in government. This proposed amendment declares that this inherent power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away; that taxes shall be imposed for public purposes and shall be uniform on the same class of subjects. Should this amendment be adopted all property of every kind in the state would be subject to taxation, according to the method the legislature saw fit to adopt, provided only that the tax was levied for a public purpose and was uniform on the same class of subjects. Under this amendment every tax law we now have on the statute books would continue to be valid, because under this amendment all limitations on the power of the legislature would be taken away.

The adoption of this amendment would, as indicated, repeal the so-called inheritance tax amendment, and the gross earnings tax amendment adopted in 1896, as contained in said Section seventeen (17), but in their place this amendment would give the legislature greater authority. Under this amendment the power to impose inheritance taxes would be unlimited, and any form of gross earnings tax would be valid. The gross earnings tax on railroads would not be affected by this amendment, as the Constitution provides that they cannot be changed without submitting the law making the change to a vote of the people. But with this amendment various new forms of taxation could be imposed, notably an income tax, a tonnage tax on iron ore and a registry tax on mortgages. Under the present Constitution we can impose no tax on mortgages owned by non-residents. A registry tax, which would be valid under this amendment, would reach all mortgages alike. While the Constitution requires all subjects of taxation to have a cash valuation with the tax equalized throughout the state, no proper income tax could be

SECOND PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The second proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 478 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1907. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Section sixteen (16) of Article nine (9) of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'State Road and Bridge fund.' Said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-twentieth (1-20) of one (1) mill on all the taxable property within the state.

"The legislature is also authorized to provide for the appointment, by the governor of the state, of a board to be known as the 'State Highway Commission,' consisting of three (3) members, who shall perform such duties as shall be prescribed by law without salary or compensation other than personal expenses.

"Such commission shall have general superintendence of the construction of state roads and bridges and shall use such fund in the construction thereof and distribute the same in the several counties in the state upon an equitable basis. Provided, further, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided further, that no more than one-third (1-3) of such fund accruing in any year shall be expended for bridges, and in no case shall more than one-third (1-3) of the cost of construction or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'State Road and Bridge Fund.' Said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state."

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to levy upon all the property of the state any amount necessary, in its judgment, for the benefit of the roads and bridges therein, and in so far removes the limitation which now exists in the Constitution, whereby the legislature is prevented from levying for such purpose a tax exceeding one-twentieth (1-20) of one (1) mill on the taxable property within the state.

This amendment further authorizes the legislature to provide salary and compensation, including personal expenses incurred in the performance of duty by the highway commission, or any other like officer entrusted by law with similar duties.

Finally, this amendment removes the limitation which now exists in the Constitution upon the powers of the highway commission in the distribution of the road and bridge fund of the state thereby authorized, and the amount which the state may pay from such fund toward the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge, and leaves the whole management of such fund to be provided for by law, as the legislature shall deem wise.

The adoption of this amendment will not interfere with the power of the legislature to create a highway commission and define its powers, nor will it interfere with the appointment and tenure of office of the present commission.

THIRD PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The third proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 379 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1907. By this amendment it is sought to add the following section to Article nine (9) of the Constitution as a new section:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment by the State of Minnesota of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to permit the state to become the trustee in the collection and disbursement of a fund for the payment of damages to growing crops by hail or wind, or both. This fund is to be created and maintained by a specific tax upon the lands of such persons ONLY as shall VOLUNTARILY list the same with their respective county auditors for such purpose. There can be no tax for such purpose imposed on the lands of any owner who does not consent thereto. Its adoption will authorize the legislature to direct that the taxing machinery of the state be used to levy and collect the tax necessary to raise such fund, and to provide for the disbursement of the same by the officers of the state, but any payments to be made by the state by reason of damage by hail or wind will have to be made from said fund and from no other. The state would assume no responsibility beyond the amount of such fund, and could not further be rendered liable.

FOURTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fourth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 480 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1907. By this amendment it is sought to repeal the provisions of Section seven (7) of Article seven (7) of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Every person who by the provisions of this article shall be entitled to vote at any election shall be eligible to any office which now is, or hereafter shall be, elective by the people in the district wherein he shall have resided thirty days previous to such election, except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, or the Constitution and laws of the United States."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Every person who by the provisions of this article shall be entitled to vote at any election shall be eligible to any office which now is, or hereafter shall be, elective by the people in the district wherein he shall have resided thirty days previous to such election, except county superintendents of schools, who shall be required to have educational qualifications to be determined by the legislature, and except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, or the Constitution and laws of the United States."

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to require educational qualifications, in addition to all the other qualifications now required by law, for any person seeking the office of county superintendent of schools. As the Constitution now stands, any legal voter is eligible to the office of county superintendent of schools.

The foregoing four proposed amendments constitute all the amendments proposed for adoption at the ensuing General Election.

Yours respectfully,
EDWARD T. YOUNG,
Attorney General.

INDIANA IS FOR BRYAN

Only Doubt is as to the Size of His Plurality.

Walter Wellman States Factors That Are Working for Bryan.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Walter Wellman says in an Indianapolis dispatch to the Record-Herald: Unless something like a miracle happens during the next fortnight Indiana will give her electoral vote to Bryan this year. As the case now stands, the only doubt is as to the size of his plurality. This is not likely to be large—from ten to thirty thousand—and on that account the Republicans have not entirely abandoned hope. They will, of course, continue the brave struggle which they have made against heavy odds since the beginning of the campaign. Even now, with all the facts against them, the Republican leaders do not openly admit defeat. They still try to hope that some lucky tur not events, some accident, may enable Taft to squeeze through. They are fighting politicians, these hoosiers, and they do not always know when they are whipped; and when they do know it they do not confess it. Down in their hearts those of them who know the truth, in so far as it can be known, feel that the game is about over and the score against them, but there is another inning to play, and they go on with the struggle bearing as brave an outward front as they can under the circumstance. It is a discouraging situation which they face. If one dares tell the plain truth, it is not so much the loss of the state on the presidency that gives them grief as the fact that if Taft goes down the governorship goes with it, the state ticket, the legislature, a United States senatorship.

The Fates With Bryan.

So far as Indiana is concerned, Bryan is this year favored of the gods. The fates are with him. The truth is, with both Ohio and Indiana tending strongly toward Bryan, men actually familiar with the inside facts of the campaign are rapidly coming to the conclusion that Mr. Taft's main chance to win the election lies in carrying New York. He can lose Ohio and Indiana and still win, provided he is successful in New York, and the most trustworthy information as to the Empire state agrees with that which we gave some short time ago, that Taft's chances are better than Bryan's. Therefore Taft must still be considered as in the lead, taking the contest as a whole.

In saying that Taft can win without Ohio or Indiana it is assumed, of course that Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and other Republican states in the agricultural West stand firmly as in the past. Later on we shall have more definite information about these states, and shall be able to form a clearer judgment as to the outcome of the great battle. For the moment our concern is with this state, the third of the decisive triumvirate, New York, Ohio and Indiana.

Factors In His Favor.

The factors which are working to give Indiana to Bryan may be scheduled as follows:

1. The general discontent, the desire for "a change" among that considerable part of the electorate who are not bound to one party or the other by indissoluble ties.

2. The union labor campaign against the Republican party and its candidate because of specific complaints against them, a campaign which is waged with earnestness and power and which constitutes a new element in presidential contests.

3. Sympathetic participation in both of the foregoing by a considerable part of unorganized labor and the salaried workers, due to their state of mind brought about by the prevailing contagion of discontent, short work and high cost of living.

4. The direct effect of all this and other causes upon the rival organizations—Republican lukewarmness and discouragement contrasted with Democratic harmony, enthusiasm and confidence—very important in a state like this, where so much depends upon organization efficiency.

5. The return of the last of the Gold Democrats who voted for Palmer in 1896 or for McKinley eight years ago, giving the Democracy a united party for the first time in sixteen years.

6. The inexplicable but marked indifference of the business people, speaking as a whole, to the outcome of the election, their attitude being in marked contrast with former Bryan campaigns.

7. Business sensitiveness to threatened or feared losses through temperance statutes, this not confined to the liquor interests, but extending to allied and collateral trades and industries.

8. The tendency of thousands of German-Americans, largely Republican in the past, to go to the Democrats this year because of their personal liberty apprehensions.

9. The influence of the saloons, 4,500 strong, upon the floating vote, their motive being essentially local, but their work having strong incidental effect upon the national issue.

10. The Republican defection among the negroes.

11. Bryan's strength and Taft's weakness with the ministers and the church people, particularly in the country districts, due to certain prejudices.

Ship Velasquez a Wreck.

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 19.—Dispatches have been received by the Rio Janeiro officials of the Lamport & Hall Steamship line, stating that the steamer Velasquez is a total wreck at Cella Point, near Santo. Private advices state, however, that she is stranded on the rocks, and though seriously damaged, may yet besaved. All of the passengers on the Velasquez weer transferred to the steamer Milton.

Taft In New Jersey.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 19.—William H. Taft, the Republican nominee for president arrived here early today on the first stage of a day of campaigning, which will embrace three states. A large crowd gave Mr. Taft an enthusiastic greeting. After breakfast Mr. Taft was driven to Blaney's theater, where he addressed a large gathering.

CONEY ISLAND OPEN AGAIN; WARM

New York, Oct. 19.—The sudden and unexpected reversal of every meteorological precedent, which has brought back summer weather at a time when normally furs and overcoats are in active demand yesterday resulted in the reopening of the bathing pavilions at Coney Island and Brighton Beach and the invasion of the sea by hundreds of bathers. All the amusement places along the beach, which could be reopened on short notice, were thronged and the entire shore was gay with a crowd in summer dress promenading and bathing.

COW MOOSE RACE TRAIN

Animals Furnish Lively Entertainment for Passengers.

Two big cow moose had a race with a Duluth, Missabe & Northern train yesterday morning about twenty miles north of Duluth. The moose lost out, but they put up a game fight for half a mile. But for the tender-heartedness of the engineer, who slowed down his locomotive, one of the animals would have been killed.

The speed encounter occurred while the train, due in Dulut hat 10:30 a. m., was humming over the rails at the rate of about thirty miles an hour. At the point where the denizens of the forest were seen there is a large swamp. As soon as the engineer saw the moose, he began wildly tooting his whistle, to let the passengers behind him know that there was something doing in the sightseeing line. There was a long stretch of straight track, and the moose were a quarter of a mile ahead.

Every window in the passenger coaches were opened, and scores of interested heads were thrust through. The moose were plainly visible, and excited passengers fell over one another in an effort to get sight of them.

When first seen, the animals were moving along at a leisurely trot, straight down the middle of the track. The sound of the whistle stirred them into greater action, and they sped down the track, straight ahead of the engine, at a remarkable speed. But steam was too much for their animal muscles, and the train gained on them. The race continued for half a mile or more, the animals gradually losing ground. Very soon it looked as if there would be a collision, which might prove disastrous to everybody concerned, for to the passengers the huge forest kings looked big enough to ditch a train.

When almost upon them, the engineer slowed down. Suddenly one cow swung to one side of the track, and one to the other side, and for a short distance the race was continued. Then the animal that had gone to the right concluded she would join her lady friend on the other side of the track, and suddenly lurched in front of the engine, which missed hitting her hams by a bare three feet. By this time the lady friend in question was smashing through the swamp the way they say a wounded bull elephant does, and cow No. 2 sank to her knees in the mud in the ditch beside the track. And there she stood, fifteen feet from the car windows, while the train swept by.

traveling to his home in Cincinnati, where Wednesday will be given to complete relaxation. The last three days of the week will be devoted to a whirlwind dash through Indiana in company with Vice President Fairbanks, Senator Beveridge and other leading Indiana Republicans. The last week of the campaign will be given to New York and the last speeches will be made at Cleveland and Youngtown, Ohio, on Mr. Taft's way home the day before election.

Dr. J. J. Richardson, the throat specialist, has accompanied Mr. Taft throughout the campaign. When asked regarding the condition of his patient the doctor replied that his general health has remained good throughout and that while he has considerable difficulty with his throat it is no wrose than when he started and there is no reason to believe he will not be able to complete the strenuous work of the campaign with comparatively little inconvenience.

In addition to Dr. Richardson, Mr. Taft's party consisted of ex-Secretary of the Theasury Shaw; United States Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan; Judge H. G. Stone of Chicago; James T. Williams, representing the Republican national committee and Col. Dan Ransdell, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, who is the executive officer of the excursion. Secretary Shaw later left the train. The members of the party, including the candidate himself were quite disposed to congratulate themselves on the record made since beginning their itinerary on Sept. 30.

"We have been on the road less than four weeks," said one of them, "and we have traversed twenty-two states covering about 10,000 miles. Taft has made 251 speeches, an average of almost twelve for each working day and he has never made the same speech at any two places."

KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH

Street Car Accident Fatal.

Kansas City, Oct. 19.—Three trolley cars, on the Troost avenue line, collided at Thirteenth street and Troost avenue here today and were badly wrecked. One man was killed and fifteen other passengers were more or less seriously injured. The airbrake failed on one of the cars at Tenth street and Troost, and it rushed down a steep hill. There were two cars coming up the hill back of the first car, and for two blocks these cars backed away in a thrilling attempt to escape. The cars were crowded with passengers bound downtown, many of them prominent business men. For three blocks before the cars finally collided, men and women jumped frantically to the street and many were hurt in their efforts to escape.

R. L. Smith of Nevada, Mo., was killed when the front end of the rear car was crushed in.

A wrecking car collided with the runaway trolley car after the latter had come to a standstill and passengers were forced to jump to save their lives, the foreman being badly hurt. The seriously injured:

Albert Rupp, aged 40 years, badly bruised and probably hourt internally; R. S. Pollitt, hurt internally; Miss Lelia Chase Perry, cut and bruised; Mrs. W. J. Kline, bruised and hurt internally; thrown from car; E. J. Smith foreman wrecking car, leg bruised; Paul C. Love and his wife, and C. A. Tritz, a board of trade man, bruised and cut.

Four Trainmen Hurt.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Oct. 19.—In a collision between a passenger train east-bound and an extra freight, westbound on the Rock Island road at a siding midway between Ramah and Mattison, three trainmen were severely injured, one slightly hurt and a large number of passengers received a severe shaking up yesterday.

STATES LINE UP IN FIGHT

select congressmen at the coming election. In twenty-eight states governors or other state officers are to be elected; a number of the supreme court or minor state officers. In seven, congressmen only are to be elected, and in two, congressmen and a legislature only.

The terms of thirty-one United States senators, eighteen Republicans and thirteen Democrats, expire March 3, 1909. Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana and Maryland have chosen Democrats, and Kntucky a Republican, while Vermont has chosen a legislature which will name two Republicans. The present senate is composed of sixty-one Republicans and thirty-one Democrats.

Members of the national house of representatives are to be elected. Oregon, Vermont and Maine have already chosen Republican representatives. In some of the Southern states Democrats only have been nominated while in others Prohibition, Socialist and Independence party nominees will oppose Republicans and Democrats. The present house, composed of 391 members, 223 Republicans and 166 Democrats. There are two vacancies.

South Carolina, as usual, has only one ticket—the Democratic. In this state, however, a justice of the supreme court and a railroad commissioner are the only state officers to be elected.

The Prohibition party has tickets in twenty-one states, the Socialist in twenty-seven, the Independence party in twelve, the Socialist Labor in six, and the People's or Populist party in five, including Nebraska, where they have fused with the Democrats.

The two leading candidates for governor in the states which will elect a governor are:

DEAD IN BED.

Heart Failure Causes Sudden Death of Albert Weiding.

Albert Weiding of 107 West First street was found dead in his bed this morning.

Mr. Weiding was 30 years old and was a butcher by trade.

Physicians say heart failure was the cause.

S.S.S. BEST TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

The entire inner portion of our bodies is covered with a soft, delicate lining called mucous membrane; this is kept in healthy condition by the nourishment and vital vigor it receives from the blood. So long as the circulation remains pure this membrane will be healthy, but when the blood becomes infected with catarrhal impurities and poisons this inner lining of the body becomes irritated and diseased, and the unpleasant and serious symptoms of Catarrh commence. There is a tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, watery eyes, buzzing noises in the ears, often slight deafness, difficult breathing, etc. The disease cannot be reached by external treatment, though such measures afford temporary relief in some instances. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impurities and poisons. Then as rich, pure blood circulates through the body, the inflamed, irritated membranes heal, the discharge ceases, headaches are relieved and every symptom disappears. Catarrh, being a disease in which the entire blood circulation is affected, can only be cured by a remedy that goes to the very bottom and removes every particle of the impurity from the blood. And this is just what S. S. S. does. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free.

JUMP FROM CAR TO HIS DEATH

Con Kelly Loses Life at Ball Club Lake, Itasca County.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body was brought here for burial a few days ago of Con Kelly, who lost his life in Ball Club lake, just west of Deer River. Kelly formerly worked for the Itasca Lumber company at Deer River and was returning from North Dakota on the Great Northern. Kelly left his seat as the train pulled onto the bridge over Ball Club lake, thinking it was Deer River and, opening the vestibule, jumped before he could be stopped by the brakeman, who told him the train had not reached Deer River. In falling he struck his head on the pier and being rendered unconscious, fell into the water fifteen feet below among the logs, and drowned before he could be rescued.

County Coroner Russell was notified and brought the body here. Kelly was about 35 and little is known of his family.

IS CAUGHT AFTER EXTENDED SEARCH

Hibbing Boarding House Keeper Accused of Crime in East.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.) — Joseph Bezewrich, known here as Dick Deckman, who has been running a boarding house at the Hull mine, will not look after the wants of his score of boarders until he fulfills an eastern engagement that necessitated his leaving here rather suddenly.

Bozewrich's mission in the East is to explain charges that have been preferred against him in McKeesport, Pa., and he departed for that city yesterday in company with Detective Jacob Schlesinger, who, as stated in The Herald of Saturday, came after the Hibbing man to answer the charge of grand larceny. The accused was arrested Thursday by Chief of Police Wring after the officer got a tip from Chief of Police Troyer of Duluth. Armed with a photograph sent out by the McKeesport authorities Chief Wring went to the Sellers boarding house and notified Deckman he was under arrest. Deckman first claimed the picture was not his, but he afterwards changed his mind and said he would accompany an officer East without demanding the usual extradition papers.

Deckman or Berewrich is said to have been indicted three years ago for being implicated with his brother in the theft of some revolvers and other articles and to have been released on $2,000 bonds. He "jumped" his bonds and since then officers have been chasing him all over the country. About a year ago they nearly caught him at Eveleth by means of a decoy letter dropped in the postoffice. He took the bait, but got out of the building and disappeared before he could be arrested.

TO CUT OUT POLITICS.

Virginia's New Charter to Provide Civil Service.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The charter commission held one of its regular weekly meetings recently when several important matters came up for discussion, among them being the establishment of a police and fire commission to be injected into the new charter. The object is to eliminate these departments from politics and by so doing establish civil service rules for the police force and fire laddies. The commission also recommended that the library and park board rules remain as at present established. However, these subjects are still open for discussion at future meetings.

HAYWOOD AT HIBBING.

Former Secretary of Western Federation to Talk Socialism.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. D. Haywood and M. Kaplan will talk on Socialism at Wasa hall tomorrow night. Haywood is the Western Federation of Miners former secretary, who was tried for his life for alleged complicity in the murder of the governor of Idaho. Since his acquittal it is said Mr. Haywood has reformed, left the Western outfit and joined the ranks of the Socialists. Mr. Kaplan is a Duluth merchant.

LOGGERS GETTING BUSY.

Outfits Going Into the Woods Near Ely.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The various lumber companies operating near here are putting increased forces into the woods, and are looking forward to a busy season.

The St. Croix Lumber company has a force of over 900 men in its various camps, and the Swallow & Hopkins company some 600 men. The past season was a profitable one from the standpoint of the number of millions of feet of timber that was cut and logged. This was due to the fact that there was little snow and the swamps were frozen hard early in the season and remained hard until spring. The roads were made of ice, and many steam haulers were put on. The St. Croix Lumber company will soon begin the returning of their hundreds of horses to the woods from the company's pasture farms near Stillwater. It is impossible to get pasturage near here, and what is to be had is so expensive that the company has to transport its logging teams to the southern part of the state for pasturage during the summer. Almost every train is now bringing crews of loggers who are transported from here to the various camps.

to have 1,000,000 school children this week voice the sentiment of the nations' coming generations.

On reaching Tokio the train was met by a committee composed of representatives of every department of the government. Secretary Jay of the American embassy, and the entire staff were on hand to greet the visitors.

After the exchange of formal greetings on the station platform, a procession was formed, and then came a great surprise, where the band struck up the national anthem and 1,000 school children, massed in a chorus which packed the entire approach to the station, sang the words of the hymn in English. The entire effect of the American naval officers walking through the narrow pass and the walls of Japanese children singing the national anthem in English was such as to stir the inspiration and enthusiasm even of the weather-beaten commander of the American fleet, who, with his officers, bareheaded, passed along.

After fifteen minutes of continuous singing, the band stopped and the leader stepped out and 10,000 voices cheered again, giving the American cheer, three times and a tiger.

The American officers were then conducted to carrages in waiting, and the work of the day was commenced.

Packed by Cheering Crowds.

The twenty-seven officers were taken to the Imperial hotel. The streets leading to both places were packed with madly cheering crowds.

The officers called on Ambassador O'Brien and were then entertained by the legation at an informal luncheon. This will be followed by two garden parties, one at the American embassy and the other at the residence of Baron Iwasaki.

A dinner was given last night by the American ambassador at the Imperial hotel.

One thousand sailors from the fleet will be brought on a special train daily to Tokio, where every form of entertainment will be provided for them. Everywhere the sailors are treated with the kindliest hospitality.

TAFT SPENDS SUNDAY WITH ROOSEVELT, BOTH CONFIDENT

Washington, Oct. 19.—"I expect to be elected to the presidency," said W. H. Taft, standing in the east room of the White House facing thirty or forty newspaper men, who had congregated to meet him after he had spent the day as President Roosevelt's guest. The answer was in response to a question after a brief discussion of Mr. Taft's recent tour through the Southern states, of which he had spoken as a pleasing experience. With reference to that four he would only say he thought it would open the way for improved Republican conditions in future campaigns. Taft expressed a delicacy in revealing the issues which he and the president had discussed and when pressed for a statement as to the president's view of he situation he would only say: "The president is not a pessimist."

"Nor am I," he added.

While not especially arranged for that purpose, the secretary found in his stop here a convenient opportunity for consultation with the president, his especial champion and chief advisor, and that both were pleased with the arrangement and made the most of it, was made evident by the fact that they spent practically the entire day in the company of each other and for the most part with others excluded. While but little information concerning the the tenor of their conversation was given out, it is known that they discussed, although in a purely informal way, most of the subjects that have come to the front since the campaign opened and that the president offered some suggestions on minor points which the secretary will probably adopt.

It was evidently the intention of the president to take advantage of the occasion to emphasize to the country his interest, personal and political, in Taft, and he utilized all the time at his disposal to this end. Not only was the secretary invited to breakfast, luncheon and dinner, but he was taken into the White House as if it were his own home, and in addition, Mr. Roosevelt remained away from his own church in order to accompany Mr. Taft to his church. He also took him for a stroll after the service, and then crowned the day by asking in a number of political and personal friends to meet the secretary and go over the situation.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—as a result of the weaker American cables on Saturday and an improvement in weather conditions in Argentina, the market here was quiet at the opening and ½d to ⅝d loower. The fact that the world's shipments for the week were larger than expected and larger quantity to the United Kingdom caused selling for profits. Later, most of this decline was recovered as offerings became lighter. There were fewer Argentine offerings and some reports that the recent frost has caused damage to the crop. There was a large short interest in both March and May with few sellers and small covering easily higher values. At mid-day, the market was firm and ⅛d to ¼d lower than Saturday.

"Corn was quiet and unchanged, the market was wholly neglected."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Rallies on Fair Demand by Commission Houses.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—The wheat market opened easy today owing to a moderate decline at Liverpool, but soon rallied on fair demand by commission houses, all of the initial loss being regained. The demand came mainly from Northwestern houses and was presumably based on the unsettled weather in the Northwest, which will delay the movement. December opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 99 to 99⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 1,196 cars against 1,530 cars last week and 1,017 cars a year ago.

The market was very nervous all day, but became extremely weak late in the session, on selling inspired by a liberal increase in the visible supply of wheat in the United States and Canada. From 99⅛@99⅝c December declined to 98¼c. The close was weak at almost the bottom, December being ⅜c lower at 98⅜@98½c.

The corn market was firm because of an official forecast of rain tonight generally in the corn belt. Prices at the start were ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, with December at 63½ to 63⅝c. Later December advanced to 64½c. Local receipts were 127 cars, with forty of contract grade.

Buying by shorts held the market firm all day and moderate advances were recorded at the close. December being up ⅛@⅜c at 63¾@64c. May, 48c; July, 82½c. Oats—December, 48c; May, 50c; July, 45⅜c. Pork—October, $13.35; December, $13.45; January, $15.05@15.07½; May, $14.95@14.97½. Lard—October, $9.37½; November, $9.37½; January, $8.15; May, $8.07½. Ribs—October, $8.67½; January, $8.05; May, $8.12½. Rye—Cash, 75¾@77½c; May, 80c; December, 76c. Barley—Cash, 56@61c. Timothy—October, $3.55; March, $3.75. Clover—October, $7.65. Corn—No. 2, 72c; No. 2 white, 72½c; No. 2 yellow, 78c; No. 3, 71½@72c; No. 3 white, 72½c; No. 3 yellow, 78c. Oats—No. 2 white, 49¾@51c; No. 3 white, 44@49¼c; No. 4 white, 43@47c; standard, 49@51c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Rains in Northwest and Winter Wheat States Recorded.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 19.—Cables were ½c to ⅝c lower at Liverpool today, and came ⅛c to ¼c off later, which steadied the tone somewhat. The weather showed good rains in the Northwest and in some places in the winter wheat states. The trade settled back to what the movement would show. Minneapolis got 661 cars against 558, Duluth 47 land 338, and Winnipeg 1,074 and 706. This was a big run of Canadian wheat. Minneapolis elevator stocks increased 450,000 for two days. The market was alternately firm and weak, but the pressure of selling kept on and by 1 o'clock prices were lower and weak at the decline. December opened at $1.00⅝; high, $1.01; low, $1.00⅛; close, $1.00⅜. Old December closed at $1.00¾. May opened at $1.05; high, $1.05⅜; low, $1.04⅜@1.04½; close, $1.04⅝.

Cash demand was excellent. No. 1 northern retained its 2-cent premium over December, but considerable sold at 2¼c over spot and to arrive. No. 2 northern was strong at December prices. No. 1 northern spot, $1.02@1.02¾; to arrive, $1.02¾; No. 2 northern spot, $1@1.00½; to arrive, $1.00¾; No. 3 wheat, 95@98c.

Millstuffs, shipments, 1,779 tons. Market easier and slightly lower. Bran in bulk, $17.50@18.

Although weakness in millstuffs made an offset and operated for price maintenance in flour quotations for patents, patents were 10c lower. Clears were unchanged, and the demand fair. Shipments, 68,574 barrels. First patents, $5.20@5.40; second patents, $5@5.20; first clears, $3.90@4.10; second clears, $2.90@3.10..

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Lemons are a little easier in the market today. Oranges are quite reasonable, although the range of prices is wide because of the many different sizes offered. Cranberries are up. In the meat market, pork continues to decline.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 19.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 5 to 11 points and during the middle of the morning sold 11 to 13 points net lower as a result of disappointing cables, continued wet weather, the failure to reach a labor settlement at Saturday's meeting in Manchester and the estimate for heavy receipts at Houston tomorrow. The market was unsettled late in the forenoon by reports that the price of certain lines of cotton goods had been cut and prices at midday were about 13 to 16 points net lower, although it was stated later that the reduction in prices mentioned was only on one line and in the nature of an adjustment.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Opened Higher in Sympathy With Rise at London.

Early Gains Were Generally Canceled and Close Was Heavy.

New York, Oct. 19.—The more peaceful aspect of foreign affairs opened the way for substantial advances when business began here today. The strong tone of the market was accompanied by only scanty dealings. Union Pacific, Reading and American Locomotive 1 and Great Northern preferred and American Smelting large fractions. Westinghouse Electric sold at an advance of 2½.

Opening prices were not improved upon except in the case of Northern Pacific, the market thereafter falling into a lethargic condition and receding slightly. Northern Pacific gained 2¼ and Tennessee Copper 1. Wisconsin Central preferred fell 1.

The drop in prices left the earlier gains much diminished, and in some cases wiped out. National Lead fell 1 point under Saturday. Bonds were irregular.

A slow upward movement began after 12 o'clock which brought some of the usually active stocks to near their morning high prices. St. Paul preferred yielded two.

A break of 3½ in Third avenue had most to do with the slight decline in the middle of the day. The general speculation was so narrow that a movement in any stock affected the list.

The market closed heavy and dull. Third avenue broke 7½ to below 30, on account of further disintegration of the system to follow a judicial decision. The general level of prices yielded in sympathy, earlier gains being canceled for the most part, but prices recovered slightly in the late dealings.

Bailiklava, probably the strongest curb stock on the board. This issue is certainly coming along from the $8.00 price to much higher levels, for when Horace J. Stevens puts his o. k. on it, you then can expect big things.

Butte & Superior is very strong at $1.00 bid and will sell higher.

Butte & Montana is the one that is now moving along fast. Orders are coming from Butte and other sections for big blocks. With the Minnie Healy only a few feet away and with big leads on this property that will deliver the copper fast, we can all look forward to a big advance in price of shares.

Carmara steady, at 3¼ and should do better very soon.

Shattuck quiet around 14¾. It is a good buy.

Zenith Lead and Zinc is going fast. We believe this one will be one of our best traders.

We will give you the right information on all properties. Give us your business.

TAKES WORD TO MIKADO

Rear Admiral Sperry Conveys the Personal Message of Roosevelt.

Peace the Slogan at Jap Banquet for Americans.

Tokio, Oct. 19.—The audience of American Admiral Sperry with the emperor and empress of Japan will take place tomorrow at 11:30. It will be followed by a luncheon at the imperial palace to the admirals and the captains of the fleet. Ambassador O'Brien will be present.

Admiral Sperry is the bearer of a special message from President Roosevelt to the emperor of Japan.

In proposing the health of United States Admiral Sperry and his officers at the Imperial hotel this evening, American Ambassador T. J. O'Brien said he desired to extend his welcome and greeting to everybody present, and especially to the brave and tried officers of the Japanese navy sitting side by side in fraternal comradeship with the Americans. The co-mingling of such men, he said, was an inspiration. He then referred briefly to the beginning of relations between the two countries. Fifty-six years ago and traced the progress of Japan.

"We cannot close our eyes to the great armies and navies being organized throughout the world," the ambassador continued, "and thoughtful people are sometimes concerned lest some cause, great or small, worthy or unworthy, will bring some of these great forces into conflict. But happily we are assured on all sides that the preparation for war really means peace. Let us be content with this assurance." In conclusion, the ambassador said:

"May I ask you to agree with me in the belief that this memorable visit always will stand as an exalted lesson in the brotherhood of man and as an evidence that we are free from the pride, arrogance, suspicion and greed to which most wars in the past may be traced."

Admiral Sperry responded and expressed the appreciation of himself and his officers of the reception extended to them in Japan.

INTERESTING LECTURE.

George B. Hodge Gives Last of His Talks at Y. M. C. A.

"Brains and Dollars," the subject treated by George B. Hodge of New York Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. assembly hall, was heard by an audience that filled the room, and was greatly enjoyed by all.

Mr. Hodge spoke along the same lines as he did Saturday noon at the Commercial club, telling of the work in other cities, how much is being accomplished, under what difficulties the association has to work, and illustrating his talk with pictures taken in every part of the country, showing the wide field covered by the association.

There are more than 50,000 students studying the Y. M. C. A. courses, and they are maintained at a cost of $500,000.

There were twenty-eight men at the Sunday Breakfast club of the association yesterday morning. The half hour following was devoted to the discussion of "Why Should a Young Man Prepare for Life Work?"

Child Killed While Playing.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19.—While playing in the street making mud pies, Henry Golanski, 4-year-old son of Henry Golanski, Sr., a laborer, was struck and instantly killed by a street car Saturday. The child's head was crushed. The little body was thrown fifteen feet ahead of the car and fell in a mass between the car tracks.

DROP APPEAL OF BILLIK

Supreme Court Justices Have No Jurisdiction in Case.

Sentence of Death Will Now be Carried Out.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The supreme court of the United States today dismissed, for want of jurisdiction, the appeal of Hypnotist Herman Billik from the decision of Judge Landis of the United States circuit court for the Northern district of Illinois, denying the petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Billik, who is under sentence of death in Chicago on the charge of murdering a number of persons by poison.

The petition was based on the plea that Billik had been denied a constitutional right by the failure of the trial court to ask him if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him. By taking the case into the United States courts on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus and appealing to the supreme court from Judge Landis' decision denying of the writ, he obtained a year's delay; but it is probable that he will not get another stay of proceedings, and that the sentence of the trial court will soon be executed.

Billik was a necromancer, and it was charged that he obtained undue control over victims by practicing upon their credulity. A number of offenses were charged against him, but the most serious was that of murdering several members of the Vzral family of Chicago, after robbing them and betraying their confidence in many ways.

MARINE NEWS

STORM SIGNALS FLYING TODAY

Local Weather Bureau Predicts a Three-Days Blow.

H. W. Richardson of the local weather bureau put out the storm signals about 10 o'clock this morning.

The wind is blowing strong from the Northeast, and he expects it will develop into a gale of at least forty miles an hour. With the wind will come rain, and the mercury will gradually drop.

A real northeaster has not hit Duluth in some time. Mr. Richardson says this one is the real thing, and Duluthians are in for the regular days blow.

He expects the mercury will mount again Tuesday afternoon or night.

STILL UNDER WATER.

Sacramento May Not be Moved Until Last of Week.

The steamer Sacramento of the Davidson line, which was sunk last week, as a result of a collision with the Mataafa, is still under water, at the place the accident occurred.

The work of patching her bow, and pumping out the mud and water is going on but slowly, owing to the great amount of mud that has settled in her hold. Two divers and a crew of men are working on her under the direction of Capt. Joseph Kidd, but the work under water is going on very slowly, and the captain says that she may not be moved to the coal docks to be unloaded before the end of the week.

WEST END

WILL NAME OFFICIALS.

Bema Club Will Elect Second Board of Officers.

If they can pause long enough in their political activities to bring out a full membership, the members of the Bema club will hold their annual election of officers at the meeting to be held tomorrow evening in Dr. Oredson's office.

The Bemaites are, most of them, taking a very active part in the present campaign, on both sides of the fence, and they have found it rather difficult during the past two weeks to attend to anything except some political meeting or rally, but the horizon is a little clearer now—the lull before the storm—and they are going to grasp the opportunity for a Bema session. No meeting was held last Tuesday evening.

It is expected that most of the members of the club will be on hand tomorrow evening and, that being the case, a new set of officers will be elected to serve the club, the terms of the present officials having expired. The election will also mark the first anniversary of the club, it having been organized about a year ago to promote interest in debating, public speaking and literature in the West end.

This winter, however, the club is to have its social aspect and a number of functions are being planned in which the wives and friends of the members will have a part.

George M. Jensen is president of the club and he will preside tomorrow evening.

SAMARITANS WILL FROLIC.

Beta Council Will Celebrate the Payment of Its Debts.

Modern Samaritans will make merry in Columbia hall this evening, when Bet council, No. 2, will celebrate its emancipation from debt by giving a banquet, reception and dancing party.

Members of Beta council have invited a large number of their friends and in addition there will be present members of Alpha council, No. 1, and the West Duluth council, as well as members of the Imperial council.

Members of the Beneficent degree have had the arrangements for the banquet in charge and the spread will be an elaborate one. Before the dancing begins there will be an interesting program of speeches and musical numbers.

Quiet Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Anna Grandeen and Robert B. Hough took place very quietly Saturday evening. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the Central Baptist church by Rev. J. Wilfred Loughbridge. Both are residents of the West end, which part of the city they will make their home.

West End Shortrails.

Ladies of St. Luke's Episcopal church are making arrangements for their annual business men's luncheon, to be served in some location up-town.

Fred Austin has returned from Mitchell, Minn., where he has been working for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern.

Special "rally day" services were held in the Sunday school of St. Luke's Episcopal church yesterday morning. The pupils met at 10 o'clock and the special exercises began at 10:30.

Rev. M. O. Stockland, the new pastor of Grace M. E. church, preached his first sermons there yesterday. The former pastor, Rev. J. R. Davies, will leave this week for Litchfield, Minn., to take up the new charge assigned to him by the recent conference.

JOHNSON AT STAPLES.

Governor is Greeted by a Large and Enthusiastic Audience.

Staples, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor John A. Johnson addressed a large number of citizens of this city in Batcher's opera house on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Staples band escorted the governor and his many friends from his hotel to the opera house, where his entrance was loudly cheered and where he was welcomed by music from the band.

The governor in his address touched upon a great number of subjects of interest to the people and reviewed a few of the many good measures which were passed through the legislature during his administration.

The audience, which consisted of farmers, mechanics, railroad employes, merchants and laborers in every field of life, applauded his remarks with zest, thus manifesting their hearty approval of his administration.

Overwork.

Fast living, fast working, fast thinking bring their reward—sickness. Life's struggle becomes more and more intense as the twentieth century progresses. To equip yourself for the test you must have sleep, good digestion, steady nerves and a clear mind. These can be secured and maintained by the daily use of golden grain belt beer, the ideal table beverage. Being brewed of pure barley, malt and hops, it furnishes nourishment in predigested form and acts as a tonic. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch of the Minneapolis Brewing company.

SAME BULLET KILLS FATHER AND SON.

Newton, Tex., Oct. 19.—Because it is alleged that he was refused credit at a small store where he had been trading, Will Hest secured a large revolver and fired at the proprietor, Oscar Brouisard. The bullet passed through Brouisard's body and entered that of his 9-year-old son, killing the latter instantly. Brouisard also died.

ASSAILANT OF PRIEST AT LARGE

Chicago Detectives Think Man Was an Ordinary Pickpocket.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 19.—Search for the man who yesterday fired on Father J. K. Fielding, assistant rector of Corpus Christi church, was renewed with energy today, every available detective in the Hyde Park district being detailed to run down the would-be murderer.

The motive of the man is a mystery. The fact that he fired upon the priest only after the latter had betrayed his suspicions of the loiterer by questioning him, is said by the detectives to lend color to the theory that the man was a pickpocket who made a practice of pilfering from church-goers.

Chinaman Held.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sam Kee, the Chinaman who was arrested at the time of the death of Mrs. Seberger of this city, suspected of selling opium to the deceased, was arraigned by Judge Bailey on a charge of felony and waiving examination, was bound over to the February grand jury. Kee is charged with selling drugs without a license and thereby causing the death of Mrs. Seberger. He was taken into the district court and Judge C. W. Stanton placed his bail at $4,000. Kee furnished a bond with good surety and was released.

JAPANESE EMPEROR IN REPLY TO ROOSEVELT SAYS "WELD THE TIES"

Admiral Sperry Cables Home Answer of the Mikado.

Delivers to Him Personal Message From the President.

American Officers Are Visitors at the Imperial Palace.

Tokio, Oct. 20.—The emperor of Japan at tiffin today received in audience Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, commander-in-chief of the American battleship fleet, the three rear admirals commanding divisions, a score of captains and the chief of staff and flag lieutenants.

The ceremony at the imperial palace, which took place shortly before noon, was one of the most brilliant features of the week's celebration. The American officers in gold-braided full dress, and the magnificent apparel of the functionaries in attendance upon the court made a glittering and imposing picture.

Presented by Ambassador O'Brien, Rear Admiral Sperry delivered to the emperor a message from President Roosevelt, assuring the mikado of the friendship entertained by the American people for Japan. The emperor replied in the most cordial terms, in conclusion saying:

"It is our most constant duty and aim to weld ties of amity uniting the United States and Japan in indissoluble bonds of good neighborhood and perfect accord."

The succession of entertainments for officers and men of the American fleet continues without interruption. Splendid weather prevails today and the streets of Tokio and Yokohama are thronged with a population curious and friendly. The unprecedented cordiality manifested since the first landing of the Americans is increasing with every new feature of the unbroken program.

The Roosevelt Message.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to Rear Admiral Sperry for transmittal to the emperor of Japan:

"Sperry: Flagship Connecticut, Yokohama. Convey to his majesty, the emperor of Japan, my best wishes for his continued good health and happiness, and that of all the inhabitants of his realm. Express to his majesty the high gratification afforded me and the people of the United States at this opportunity, which permits the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet

BANK FAILURES CITED BY BRYAN

Commoner Makes Vigorous Defense of the Guaranty Plan.

Rensselaer, Ind., Oct. 20.—A vigorous defense of the plank in the Democratic platform recommending the guaranteeing of bank deposits was made here today by William J. Bryan. He chose this subject for his speech because of the fact that Jasper county, in which this city is located, has suffered from bank failures, resulting in the imprisonment of several bank officials.

"Instead of the guaranty system making bankers reckless," he declared, "we believe in protecting the depositors and in regulation that will prevent the things which have brought about bank failures."

He insisted that the banker should be prohibited by law from indulging in speculation on the stock market and the board of trade.

The banker handles the money of other people, the speaker said, and should be protected from the temptation that goes with gambling.

"If we had such a law," Mr. Bryan said, "it would have brought gladness and joy into homes that have been plunged into mourning through the acts of those who have been unable to withstand this temptation.

STATE IS ALL AFLAME

Forest Fires Ravage Pennsylvania in Mountain Sections.

Men and Boys Fight Conflagration Four Days.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—From nearly every mountainous section of Pennsylvania come reports of forest and brush fires, the flames in some instances endangering villages that are surrounded by woodlands. Most of these fires are believed to have been started by hunters who have thronged the woods since the rabbit season opened on Oct. 15. The prevailing drought has dried out the leaves and branches of trees and made them fine fuel for flames, fanned by a strong wind.

Near Williamsport, in the central part of the state, the citizens of villages are fighting fires. These are Leetonia in Southern Tioga county; Trout Run in Northern Lycoming and

CONGRESSMEN STUDYING PULPWOOD BUSINESS IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA

CONGRESSMAN MANN.

Committee From Lower House Conducts Hearing in Duluth.

Plans for Reforestization and Prevention of Fires Discussed.

A thorough investigation into the forestry conditions of the northern part of the state was begun this morning by the congressional committee that was appointed by the last congress to look into the pulpwood supply of the country.

The inquiry into the local conditions, was begun this morning by calling lumber jobbers before the members of the committee and asking them regarding the pulpwood supply, the manner of cutting it and the estimated length of the time it would require to exhaust the timber supply of this state. The jobbers were also cross questioned on what means they believed would be of avail against fire loss. Questions on the possibility of reforestizing the cut over lands and plans for forestry conservation, were also part of the hearing this morning.

Congressman James R. Mann of Chicago is chairman of the committee. Mr. Mann did practically all of the questioning this morning. The other members of the party are Congressman William J. Ryan of Buffalo, John Norris of New York; J. W. Shedd of Chicago and J. L. Bennie of the same city. The hearing was held at the Spalding hotel, the men appearing before the committee having been notified to appear before the members of the committee reached this city.

L. R. Martin on Stand.

L. R. Martin, the well-known timber operator of this city, was the first witness to appear before the members of the committee. Mr. Martin told the members of the committee that as a general rule spruce was not cut when it was of less than a four inch growth. The members of the committee seemed to believe that this cutting of small

LAKE NEBAGAMON BANK IS ROBBED

Yeggmen Blow Safe and Escape With About $1,700.

Lake Nebagamon, Wis., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bank of Lake Nebagamon was broken into by yeggmen at an early hour this morning, the safe blown, and about $1,700 in cash taken. Three explosions were heard about 2:30 a. m., arousing the town, but the burglars were not disturbed, and they drove out of town, going west. The force of the explosions wrecked the bank furniture, doing additional damage of about $2,000. The bank is fully insured against burglaries, so there will be no loss to depositors.

The Bank of Nebagamon is a state institution, having a capital of $5,000, and is owned by B. Murray Peyton, of Duluth, who arrived today as soon as notified of the robbery, and prepared to continue business as usual. The work is believed to have been that of professionals and detectives are already working on the case, with hope of catching the bandits.

It is the heaviest registration the city ever knew.

The revision struck 2,799 names off the lists. The unrevised totals were 413,919.

RUSSIA SLOW IN PERSIAN MATTER

Considers Proposal That She Intervene to be Premature.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—The proposal that Russia intervene in Northern Persia to prevent all of Persia falling a prey to anarchy, and to safeguard Russia's commercial and other interests in the country, is considered by the ministry of foreign affairs to be premature.

The government does, however, contemplate taking the necessary measures to protect Russian subjects and Russian trade.

It now contemplates strengthening the guards at the consulate in Northern Persia, and is about to send 100 infantrymen to Tabriz.

BURGLARS LOOT PAIR OF STORES

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two stores in Reynolds were robbed last night, $1,900 in money and jewelry being secured. In B. F. Lavaily's store the men blew open a safe containing $65 in cash and $1,800 in jewelry, taking the entire stock of the store.

CONFESSED TO GAIN FREEDOM

Now Believed Levant Lied, Hoping to Avoid Extradition.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Having discovered that Joseph Levant, known as "Curley," was not the murderer of Charles O. Bader, the Minneapolis saloon keeper who was shot while tending bar at his place of business on Christmas eve 1905, but had simply confessed to the murder in order to avoid standing trial on a charge of forgery at Little Rock, Ark., where he is now confined, the Minneapolis police are once more face to face with a cloud of mystery surrounding the Bader murder, through which there gleams one faint clue.

Records of the Stillwater penintentiary show that Joseph Levant, under the name of Abe Levant, occupied a cell in that institution at the time the crime was committed and for nearly a year afterwards.

It is surpposed he made his confession merely because he desired to get away from Arkansas, knowing that he would be acquitted when brought to trial on the murder charge in Minneapolis and that he believed he could successfully resist extradition back to Arkansas. In consequence of the exposure of Levants confession Judge Smith last night ordered the release of John P. Murphy, who was arrested in St. Paul Sunday night because he answered the description given by Levant of his alleged accomplice in the murder.

NEW WITNESS IN THOMPSON CASE

Man Says He Went Home With Woman, Later Murdered.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—A new witness in the Florence Thompson murder case was discovered last night by whose testimony Luman C. Mann's attorney is said to expect to prove that Mann is not the woman's slayer.

This witness is Charles McCormick Clawater, who, it is said, was employed until recently on a Milwaukee newspaper. He made a statement saying it was he who accompanied Mrs. Thompson to the Michigan avenue rooming house in which she was murdered.

It was Mrs. Thompson, declares Clawater, who suggested that he register under the name of "J. H. Raymond."

Clawater was taken to the house at 1252 Michigan avenue and he readily pointed it out as the one which he and Mrs. Thompson entered June 27. He said he knows nothing of the murder, but he will be a witness for Mann is under indictment charged with the crime.

Edward V. Hannas, a chauffeur, who took Clawater to the scene of the murder, says the latter wept after pointing to the house where Mrs. Thompson was slain.

He says he did not learn of the murder of Mrs. Thompson until after Mann's arrest.

RUNAWAY GIRL.

Fifteen-Year-Old Charge Leaves Her Home at Proctor.

A little runaway girl dressed in blue is in hiding in Duluth or near Duluth this stormy day.

This morning George C. Morsley of Proctor telephoned to the West Duluth police that a charge of his, Florence Holter, aged 15, had suddenly left his home, and he wished the police to keep an eye out for her. She was described as a girl of medium size, wearing a blue cap, a blue coat and a blue dress, and having blue eyes, a fair complexion and light hair.

Mr. Morsley is her guardian. The child was given into his charge until she is 18 years old by the training school at Owatonna, in the southern part of the state.

Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth force sent an officer to watch the Incline cars from Bay View heights, and he himself drove out along the road to Proctor to see if he could not intercept the runaway, but to no avail. It is thought she took shelter from the storm and will later be located.

EARLY LIFE A MYSTERY.

Guy Smith Said to Have Had Another Name.

A mystery surrounds the life of Guy Smith, the longshoreman, whose body was found Sunday in the woods at Seventy-fifth avenue west and Nicollet street, after he had been missing from home for about two weeks.

It is claimed by some friends of his from Superior, his former home, that Smith is not his real name, but one which he adopted before marrying Mrs. Smith. What his name formerly was does not seem to be known, though it is stated that he has a married sister by the name of Mrs. Campbell, residing in New York state. All efforts to reach his sister by telegram to announce her brother's death, have failed, however.

That suicide was the cause of Smith's death was decided by the coroner without an autopsy. Though the man evidently had been dead for some time, there were still signs that death had been brought about by drinking carbolic acid. None of Smith's friends had seen him since the funeral of his child, which took place in Duluth two weeks ago. At that time, it is said, he had been drinking heavily.

The funeral took place this afternoon from Richter's undertaking rooms, and the interment was made at Oneota cemetery.

To People of West Duluth:

HAYWOOD WILL SPEAK AT ARMORY

Famous Character is Brought to City by Duluth Socialists.

W. D. Haywood, one of the ablest speakers in the Socialist party, will speak at the Armory, Wednesday evening, in the interests of that party.

The Duluth Socialists have been planning on the meeting for some time past, and they expect to have the big building filled to capacity.

Haywood, who was for a long time secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, was one of the officials of that organization tried at Boise, Idaho, on the charge of having murdered ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho by exploding a bomb in front of the ex-governor's house. This outrage was the outcome of the famous strike of the Western miners, when United States troops were called into action.

Haywood was acquitted, after a sensational trial, during which time he was brilliantly defended by Clarence Darrow, the Chicago Socialist attorney. He later resigned from the secretaryship of the miners.

SUPERIOR NEWS

RAN AWAY FROM UNHAPPY HOME

Ishpeming Boy Has a Rough Road to Travel.

"I don't care what becomes of the boy," was the message received by the Superior police from the stepfather of Frank Anderson, a 10-year-old runaway from his unhappy home in Ishpeming, in answer to their telegram, stating that they had found his stepson.

The boy has wandered over the country since July 7. He has worked in the Canadian harvest fields, and when taken into custody by the police claimed to be working his way back to Michigan, where he hoped to get work as cookee in a lumber camp.

"My real parents are dead, and my stepfather is cruel to me," sobbed the boy at the headquarters. "I couldn't stand it to stay at home." When he was released yesterday from the headquarters he was questioned as to how he would get along, as he had no money. "I'll have to beg for a few days, until I can earn some," was the pitiful reply. The policemen's hearts were touched and they turned over what small change they had to him.

City's Title Disputed.

Suit was yesterday brought against the city of Superior by Herman Lafitte in the circuit court, to regain possession of ten lots located in the Central park district. It is alleged by the plaintiff that the city failed to exercise its power by taking possession of the property on securing the tax title, and for that reason he claims that the ownership of the lots should revert to him. The taxes and assessments on the lots amounted to $3,000.

Released on Bail.

For the alleged selling of liquor last Sunday, in the rooms above his saloon, Isadore Brelek, a Third street saloonkeeper, was arraigned before Judge Parker yesterday. On depositing $100 bail, he was allowed his freedom until next Monday, when his trial will come up.

Contract is Let.

The contract for building the Duluth Brewing & Malting company's new warehouse, on the north side of Third street, just east of Ogden avenue, has been awarded to A. Dauplaise. The contract provides for a $12,000 structure. Work will be begun tomorrow if the weather permits.

Objects to Taxes.

Claiming that their property is taxed by the state, and is not subject to local taxation, the Northwestern Coal company filed a protest with the board of review relative to the assessment made on its property at Allouez by the city assessor. The total assessment is $45,000, of which sum $40,000 covers the right of way and the balance the rolling stock.

Census of Church Members.

The superintendent of the Sunday School Association of Minnesota, secretary of the Sunday School Association of Wisconsin and an officer of the national association, will arrive in Superior Saturday to start on a census of the church members of the city. The census will be non-sectarian, and is to determine the percentage of church members in the city compared with those who do not belong to any denomination.

Haywood to Speak.

William B. Haywood of the Western Federation of Miners will speak at the Superior opera house a week from tonight on behalf of the Socialistic party.

CHANGE IN ENGLISH RACING.

There has been a great change in the character of English racing in the last fifty years. Away back in 1783 there were held in the United Kingdom ninety-nine race meetings. Of these forty-eight have been entirely abandoned. In 1845 there were 138 meetings held, of which eighty-two are now abandoned.

At the present time, says Bailly's Magazine, we have ninety-two flat race meetings, that is, those held exclusively under Jockey club rules, and 155 steeplechase meetings, under the rules of the National Hunt committee.

The immense increase of steeplechase meetings and the abandonment of many old-fashioned flat racing meetings, which often combined jumping races, is accounted for in a great measure by the rule that no meeting should be permitted that did not give £300 a day in prizes and that no flat race should be of less value than £100 to the winner.

This rule has been the deathblow to country meetings of the old style, and they have in a great measure been replaced by hunt steeplechase meetings, so that now we find that the arenas for steeplechasing and hurdle racing far outnumber those of flat racing and that many of our finest agricultural and old sporting counties have not a single flat race meeting held in them, while in others there are only one or two of them.

CASES OF INTEREST

PRACTICE OF MEDICINE—A "magic healer" who claimed to cure by placing his hands upon the part of the body affected by pain was arrested for practicing medicine without a license. It was held by the Georgia court of appeals in Bennett vs. Ware, 61 Southeastern Reporter, 546, that while he was no practicing medicine within the statute which provides that the words "practice medicine" shall mean to "suggest, recommend, prescribe or direct for the use of any person, and drug, medicine, etc., for the cure, relief, etc.," the physician who caused him to be prosecuted was not acting in bad faith so as to be liable for malicious prosecution.

"HORSE SENSE" BY THE COURT—During an apparently friendly discussion on the merits of horses owned by the parties, plaintiff, in Baumgartner vs. Hodgdon, 116 Northwestern Reporter, 1030, stated, in a good-natured way, that defendant's horse was "a thing of a horse" or "the d—— looking horse" he ever saw. Defendant flew into a passion, and violently assaulted plaintiff, inflicting serious injuries on him. The supreme court of Minnesota held that the remark was no pretext for the assault, and was not a proper subject for consideration in mitigation of damages; that it was, at most, disrespectful to the horse, and he was not present; and that they had a right to assume that the animal was endowed with the usual amount of horse sense, and had the remark been overheard by him he would have dismissed it without reply, as the opinion of one not competent to speak on the subject

RES IPSA LOQUITUR—Plaintiff was injured by an electric shock received from one of the poles of defendant's trolley system. The New York supreme court in Moglia vs. Nassau Electric Railway company, 111 New York Court Supplement, 70, held that a prima facie case was made, and the trial court committed no error in failing to submit the issue of negligence to the jury, where the defendant offered no evidence, and the lower court instructed the jury that the fact of the accident called for an explanation, and as none was offered the verdict should be for plaintiff. Defendant contended that the jury was not bound to believe plaintiff, but should be free to determine whether he was injured in the manner shown, and, if the doctrine of res ipso loquitur was applicable, the inference of negligence was for the jury.

NEGLIGENCE IN CARING FOR UNCONSCIOUS PATIENT—Plaintiff, while under the influence of an anaesthetic, was taken from the operating room of a hospital to the elevator for the purpose of being removed to the room assigned her. The elevator was somewhere below, and the shaft door was open. Both attendants left plaintiff to see about getting the elevator. During their absence the car or stretcher was by some means started (probably by an involuntary movement on the part of plaintiff), causing it to run into the open shaft, causing the injuries complained of. The Iowa supreme court in Haase vs. Morton & Morton, 115 Northwestern Reporter, 923, did not uphold defendant's contention that the movement of the car was something not to have reasonably been foreseen, and that the act of leaving it in the exposed position could not be considered the proximate cause of the injury, and allowed a verdict and judgment for plaintiff.

RESTRAINING PUBLICATION OF PHOTOGRAPH—In construing the statute prohobiting the use for advertising purposes of the portrait or picture of any living person without first having obtained his written consent, or, if the person be a minor, the consent of the parent or guardian, the New York supreme court at special term, in Wyatt vs. Wanamaker, 110 New York Supplement, 990, where a minor asked for damages and an injunction for using her name, held it no defense that the original of the picture gave the defendant the right to sell or otherwise use copies of it, even where the consideration was a reduction in price, as minors cannot evade the plain provisions of the statute requiring written permission from the parent or guardian.

RESTRAINING BOYCOTTS—The supreme court of Montana in Lindsay & Co., vs. Montana Federation of Labor, 96 Pacific Reporter, 127, held that the distribution of a circular urging all laboring men and persons in sympathy with organized labor to withhold patronage frrom plaintiffs was not illegal because plaintiffs had no property right in the trade of any particular person, and that although decisions exist which make the same act lawful when done by one person unlawful when done by several, on the theory that concerted action amounts to a conspiracy, an individual clothed with a right when acting alone does not lose such right merely by acting with others, each of whom has the same right, and that if a labor organization employs a boycott, the means of its enforcement being legal, the courts cannot assist the persons boycotted.

CONFLICTING DECREES AS TO SANITY.—Plaintiff had been adjudged insane by the supreme court in New York, ordered committed to an asylum, and later the court appointed a committee of his person and property. Subsequently he escaped, and took up his residence in Virginia, where he was adjudged sane. He instituted an action setting up the decree of the Virginia court and demanding damages from his committee in New York for conversion of his property. Defendant alleged in the main action that petitioner was insane and that the Virginia judgment was void. Petitioned's presence was necessary at the main trial in New York, and, as he was in danger of being incarcerated there, he asked for an order protecting him while in attendance at trial. In Chanler vs. Sherman, 162 Federal Reporter, 19, the United States circuit court of appeals referring to the peculiar predicament in which petitioner is placed, and that unless relief is granted he must either abandon his action for a quarter of a million dollars or run the risk of losing his liberty, instructed the circuit court to issue a writ of protection prohibiting apprehension of petitioner during the time necessary for him to attend trial.

VALIDITY OF TENEMENT HOUSE ACT.—The Wisconsin tenement house act, which provided that every tenement house must have courts of certain dimensions, and must be equipped with the ordinary modern improvement as to water supply common to cities having public water and sewer systems, and that any person violating the provisions should be subject to a fine or imprisonment, was declared unconstitutional in Bonnett vs. Vallier, 116 Northwestern Reporter, 885. The Wisconsin supreme court held that the statute was such that an ordinary person would relinquish his right to use his real estate for tenement houses rather than take chances of violating the statute, and that the effect of enforcing the penalties would be to take property without due process of law.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF COMPROMISE AGREEMENT—Plaintiff and her brother were the only heirs under their mother's will, which gave the brother practically everything. Plaintiff thereupon entered into an agreement by which she was to receive one-third the estate for not contesting the will. The will having been duly probated without contest, the brother tried to escape the compromise agreement. In Blount vs. Dillaway, 85 Northeastern Reporter, 477, the supreme judicial court of Massachussetts held that, although a will contestant had a statutory standing in the probate court to enforce compromise agreements, it did not prevent equity taking jurisdiction under these circumstances and granting specific performance against the executor.

VALIDITY OF STATE RAILROAD RATE LAWS.—The Alabama statutes of 1907 regulating her freight and passenger rates on intrastate business were declared invalid as denying due process of law by the United States circuit court, in Central of Georgia Railway Co. vs. Railroad Commission of Alabama 161 Federal Reporter, 925. The proceedings were to enjoin the state officers from enforcing these statutes. The defense was that this was an action against the state, and beyond the jurisdiction of the federal courts. The court held otherwise.

LIABILITY OF OWNER OF AUTOMORILE FOR ACTS OF CHAUFFEUR.—In Cunningham vs. Castle, 111 New York Supplement, 1507, plaintiff was injured by an automobile which the chauffeur had been granted permission to use for his own pleasure by the owner. Plaintiff recovered judgment in the lower court, but on appeal the New York supreme court reversed it, on the ground that the chauffer was not engaged in any business of defendant at the time of the injury, and that the permission to use the machine made no difference as to defendant's liability.

The full reports of any case can be supplied by the West Publishing company, St. Paul, for 25 cents.

QUIET DAY IN POLITICAL CAMP

Workers Are Busy Geting Voters Out to Register.

Today was a quiet day in both the political camps.

Workers of both parties were busy hustling the voters to the polls and inducing all those who had not registered, to get their names on the list.

The wet weather kept the usual crowd of visitors at headquarters down.

Both parties are busy arranging ward rallies, campaign meetings and meetings to organize political clubs in different sections of the city and county. Not an evening passes that some new club is not formed in the county, or that a rally of some kind is not held. There will be a big Democratic meeting at Midway tomorrow evening.

The Democrats are making great plans for the armory meeting Friday evening, when G. Fred Williams will be heard here. They will provide a band to escort the speaker to the hall, and it is expected that the armory will be crowded to hear Mr. Williams, who has a national reputation as an orator.

The Republicans will hold a meeting this evening at the courthouse. Harvey S. Clapp and John H. Norton will deliver speeches. There will also be other speakers upon the program.

TAFT REVIEWS LAWS FOR LABOR

Delivers Fifteen Addresses in His Travels in One Day.

Cumberland Md., Oct. 20.—Fifteen speeches were on the itinerary of Nominee Taft today, and all but two were delivered in West Virginia. The people of Martinsburg, W. Va., were at the station an hour before the train arrived, and this fact, Taft told them, made their interest apparent, and he took it as a good augury of Republican success in that state. The itinerary of the nominee today included Keyser, Piedmont, Terra Alta, Rowlesburg, Grafton, Clarksburg, Salem, West Union, Pennsboro, Cairo, with a night meeting at Parkersburg. To an audience which filled the theater here Mr. Taft delivered a speech on labor.

He explained that the administration and congress are limited in their jurisdiction over labor and labor legislation. Nevertheless, he said, there had been a number of important laws passed in the last seven years affecting labor within this jurisdiction, and for the purpose of furnishing model laws for the states to follow. After enumerating these laws and dwelling on their importance, Mr. Taft paid his respects to Mr. Gompers, saying that it was his judgment that the American laboring man had intelligence and independence enough to use his own judgment and not be "delivered" by Mr. Gompers to anyone.

The Paramount Issue.

Bad weather!

Well, it had to come some time.

You didn't thin summer would last all winter, did you?

The clothes question will now be the paramount issue for most of the voters. It comes to the fore.

Bryan and Taft will both be aft.

Trade in protective clothes will move freely.

How to clothe your own son with warm duds will go ahead of clothing Jacob—or John—son with power.

Columbia clothes are the best friends of the people in North Minnesota.

For nigh onto twenty years, we've made the clothes question in this neck-of-the-woods our life study.

Every man that passes The Columbia corner should get off the car and step in the store for a look, try-on, and a chat with our overcoat and underwear men.

They'll show you. They promise nothing but what our clothes will really do after selection.

For the business man winter weight overcoats that even your best tailor can't equal in style or fit.

Raincoats with military collars or with the lapel of a sunshine coat.

For the workingman who has to toil in rain and wind, we have a department with protective clothes of the first quality.

From slickers to rubber boots, here's everything to make one impervious to bad weather. And Mackinaws, duck and corduroy coats of every kind, except poor ones.

NOTHING TO MAKE PUBLIC

Congressman Mann Says Committee's Report is for Congress.

Members Here to Get Information, Not to Give It.

"If I had any idea as to the probable nature of the findings we will report to congress after we complete our investigations. I wouldn't make them public, so there is really nothing I can say," said Congressman J. R. Mann of Chicago, chairman of the committee appointed by congress to investigate the pulpwood conditions of the country, at the Spalding today after the committee had heard the testimony of several men prominent in the pulpwood industry in Northern Minnesota.

"At present, we are just out to see, hear and ask questions, not to form conclusions. We have taken thousands of pages of testimony, have heard the statements of hundreds of people, have seen forests and examined reports, and we have much work yet to do. When we have done all we can to collect facts, we will begin to draw conclusions and until then the probable tenor of our report to congress will be in the dark.

"The testimony we have heard thus far in Northern Minnesota seems to indicate that very little, if any effort, is being made to conserve the pulpwood forests, and people, who should know, place the length of life of the forests at from twenty-five to forty years. We learn that the lands are cut clean, with no effort to promote second growth and the lands are regarded by some as more valuable for agricultural purposes than for pulpwood. The fire wardens can do little with the penny given them by the state, and there is very little fire protection, which may tend to hasten the exhaustion of the pulpwood supply of this section of the country.

"From here we go to Cloquet, and then into Lake county to see the forests of the north shore. We want to see just what there is and what basis is taken for the statements made to us. We will probably go East from here, going into the woods of Maine and probably up into Canada. We will go down into Pennsylvania to examine the mills, where paper is made from wood chips—an article that would be cast off as worthless here in Minnesota. In fact, we want to see and hear everything bearing on the growth of pulpwood, the amount of the supply, the distribution, the tariff and everything else connected with the manufacture of paper and especially print paper. When we have learned all that, we will be in a position to make a report and recommendations to congress and not until then."

FIRE RELIEF FUND AGAIN

St. Paul Sending Men Here to Investigate Situation.

Joseph McGibbon and J. H. Beck, members of the committee having in charge the St. Paul relief fund raised for the range fire sufferers, will arrive in Duluth tomorrow morning to confer with Mayor Haven in regard to the proper distribution of the fund.

A communication received this morning from the Saintly City says it will be the purpose of the two men to learn the desires of the relief commission appointed by the governor, and to get in close personal touch with the range situation, so they will know just what the needs are. There is supposed to be about $30,000 available for the fire fund in St. Paul, if it is needed.

A communication was also received this morning from Minneapolis, saying that those in charge of the relief fund there are entirely satisfied with the work of the governor's relief commission, and that they are heartily in accord with this commission. Minneapolis still has about $30,000 left in the fund, and says that any part of this fund now remaining will be placed in the hands of the commission for use in the burned over districts, if the needs of the poor demand it. The impression appears to prevail in Minneapolis, however, that the needs of the poor will demand no further expenditure from the Flour City, aside from the $20,000 already sent forward. If there are such needs, the communication announces that Minneapolis will be glad to respond to them.

GERMANY FOR PEACE IN THE BALKANS.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—The Prussian parliament was opened by Emperor William today. In his address his majesty indicated the intention of the government to introduce a modification of the existing antiquated three-class electoral system, which has been the object of much agitation of recent years.

Alluding to the Balkans, the emperor said that Germany was less interested there than the other powers, but that the country worked with the others for a peaceful and satisfactory solution of the present difficulties.

DENIES PETITION FOR REMOVAL OF RECEIVER.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20.—Judge Grosscup, in the United States circuit court, today, denied the petition of the minority stockholders of the American Strawboard company for the removal of Receiver Sidney Mitchell. A similar petition was refused by the federal court, in New Jersey, recently. The court ordered, however, that the present relations of the accounts between the strawboard concern and the United Boxboard & Paper company, for both of which concerns Mr. Mitchell is receiver, be not disturbed. The judge made it plain that he was not passing on the accounts of the two enterprises, nor the acts of Receiver Mitchell, but held, however, that no sufficient ground had been shown for the removal of the receiver.

WILL SPEAK ON "WHITE SLAVES"

West Duluth Starting Agitation Against Disorderly Houses.

Fearing that there still remains a possibility that the St. Croix avenue disorderly houses will be removed to the western end of the city, as was suggested by certain interests recently, West Duluth and the West end have arranged to bring H. F. MacLane of Cleveland, Ohio, a man of national reputation on subjects of this kind, to Duluth to speak on "White Slaves."

By starting an agitation now, the West Duluthians hope to create such a sentiment against the so-called red light district that its abolishment will be considered before that of its removal. Mr. MacLane will speak at the West Duluth Commercial club the evening of Oct. 7, and will appear in the West end either the same evening or the evening following. The Cleveland man is said to be a brilliant, spirited and forceful speaker, and has delivered addresses on similar subjects all over the country.

DULUTH MEN TRY HUNTING AT HOME

Many Have Good Time Without Going Out of House.

It's hunting season, and various are the methods the men who are used to going into the woods at least once each year take to content themselves at home when they know that they cannot get away.

One man spent Sunday cleaning his guns, looking over his ammunition, and worrying just as much over the fact that he was nearly out of No. 4 shells, as though he were really going into the woods for a two weeks' hunt. He went down into the basement, found his decoys, blew them up, and even tried them in the bath tub to see if they were working properly.

The duck call was fished out of the bottom of a torn pocket of an old hunting coat, and for a straight two hours this particular house sounded like the barnyard of a Hermantown farmer. After a while he found that it didn't quack as he thought it should, and then it was dipped in water, the ends whittled a little, and after trying it to his satisfaction, he laid it away with a sigh that said as plain as words, "There, thank heaven it's fixed."

During all the operations he was followed from one room to another, upstairs and down, in the basement, out in the barn, and all over the premises by the dog, who had been watching him on many hunts far and near. He stood around watching the proceedings, and wagging his tail, and now and then letting out an occasional yelp as if to hurry preparations along and be off.

MAYOR MAKES NO ANNOUNCEMENT

Nothing in Particular to Say Regarding the Drennan Case.

Mayor Haven said this morning that he did not see how the reappointment of George Drannen as driver of the patrol wagon could be forced unless he and the chief of police were willing that Drannen should be reinstated. The mayor refused to be quoted as to the course he will pursue in regard to the matter. Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon him by friends of the discharged driver, who was acquitted of the charge of theft, to have him taken back, but Mayor Haven said this morning he had nothing to say relative to the matter just now, and whether he will accede to the request, or turn it down, is not known.

As to the power of the mayor in discharging employes of the police department, the city charter says:

"Such chief of police and, subject to the civil service provisions of this charter, all other officers, police matrons, patrolmen, detectives and employes so authorized, shall be appointed and may be removed by the mayor at his pleasure."

The rules governing the civil service state that "the power to remove existing by law on the part of any officer, is not impaired by anything contained in these rules."

NEW YORK IS THE PIVOT STATE

And Congressman Ryan Thinks That Bryan Will Carry It.

"I can't see anything but Chanler in the gubernatorial race, and I can see something of Bryan in the presidential race in New York state," said Congressman William H. Ryan, of Buffalo, a Democratic member of the paper investigating committee of congress, at the Spalding today.

"I believe Chanler's election as governor of New York state is certain. Hughes has personal strength, but the forces against him are too strong. The labor unions are strong for Chanler. Hughes is too narrow for the Public Liberty league, a strong organization, so the strength of neither candidate can be estimated on party lines.

"When I was last in touch with the situation, the odds were in favor of Chanler, 10 to 8, and against Bryan, and I believe there has been no change since. I believe Bryan has a fighting chance. The Republican strength for the national ticket is not as easily overcome as that of the state ticket, so if Bryan does carry the state, it will be by a much smaller margin than Chanler has over Hughes.

"The Democrats of New York state are for Bryan to a man. They are working hard, not only to elect Chanler, but to replace New York in the Democratic column among the states and, if we succeed, we will elect Bryan, as I believe New York is the pivot on which the presidential election will swing."

LENROOT FLAYS REACTIONARIES

Superior Man Jumps Right Onto Cannon, Foraker et Al.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before the largest political audience seen in Ashland in six years, Former Speaker Lenroot last night answered the speech of ex-Governor John Lind of Minnesota. Mr. Lind spoke here Saturday night. Mr. Lenroot indiscriminately denounced Cannon, Foraker, Aldrich and Haskell and unreservedly supported Taft and his platform.

Mr. Lenroot referred to the statement that out of ten speeches he had not referred to Taft once. He stated that he had made ten Chautauqua and non-political addresses, in which no candidate had been mentioned, but that in every political speech that he has made he has mentioned Taft's name many times.

Mr. Lenroot referred to the folly of the attempt of the Democrats to array the La Follette political Republicans against Taft and Davidson in favor of Bryan and Aylward.

An imposing array of vice presidents sat on the stage with Mr. Lenroot and the introduction was made by C. A. Lamoraux. Answering a Democrat in the audience, Mr. Lenroot in an impassioned outburst contrasted the treatment which the Southern Democrats give the negro with the Republican policy relating to the Filipinos. He also criticised Bryan's vote as a member of the ways and means committee in voting for tariff schedule favoring Standard Oil.

BREWERS SUE FORMER AGENT

C. B. Burt Defendant in Two Suits on Trial Together.

Two cases, brought by the Independent Brewing association of Chicago are being tried simultaneously before Judge Dibell in district court. In one, C. B. Burt and Catherine Burt are defendants, and in the other Mr. Burt is the sole defendant.

The first suit was brought on a note for $1,700, given by Burt to secure a loan to purchase equipment for his business, when he entered into a contract with the Independent Brewing association, last March, to sell their beer in Duluth. In their answer, the defendants claim that they paid $1,000 on the note, and admit that there is yet $700 due on it.

The second case brings in complicating issues. The brewing association claims that it sold Burt goods to the value of $2,187.42, of which amount only $1,771.05 was paid, and it sues for the balance of $416.37. In his answer Mr. Burt admits the contract made March 16, 1908, but claims that the company failed to carry out its contract to furnish beer of marketable quality, as, with the exception of the first shipment, worth approximately $500, none of the beer received by him was of marketable quality, and, not knowing the fact, he had distributed it around the city, thus damaging his trade.

For the general damages sustained by him through alleged destruction of his trade by the beer, which he claims was not up to the standard, he puts in a counter-claim of $15,000. He also claims $27.05, as an amount paid in excess of the value of the first carload of beer.

In the reply to the answer in the second suit, the company puts in another claim for $368.05, as an amount still due the company in addition to the amount asked in the complaint.

But Do You Appreciate a Home or Office which is Well Appointed in Its Decorative Scheme,

One that shows true art, exquisite taste and style consideration? One that lends a tingle of pride and cheer to your spirits every time you enter the doorway? The EVENING STORY

The Reformation of Thomas Sargent

By Albert Louis Wood.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Among the four score and odd men who worked under me when I was pit boss in the Black Diamond mine, as far as I can remember, Tammas Sargent was the only total abstainer. The rest all ranged from the most moderate of tipsters to three or four unfortunates all of whose wages, practically, were spent over the bar.

Tammas, however, consistently refused to indulge in strong drink of any kind, under any circumstances whatsoever. As a result of his abstinence and frugality, he had become the possessor of a neat, little homestead, had put his two daughters through the high school, and had accumulated a few shares of stock in a building and loan association.

Tammas was a taciturn, rather gruff character, given neither to receiving nor imparting confidences. He was a typical Yorkshireman, proud of his county, as is the manner of those North of England folk; and it was not until he learned that my forbears came from Leeds, and that I had near relatives still living near Scarboro that he warmed up to me. Once having given me his confidence, however, there sprang up the greatest intimacy between us.

One afternoon a prematurely fired shot projected a ton of coal, more or less, in Tammas' direction, distributing it somewhat impartially over various portions of his anatomy. Fortunately, he was not seriously injured but was forced to lay off several weeks for repairs. As was my custom when any of the men was hurt, I made it a point to drop in on him for a few minutes every day.

"The doctor says," he volunteered to me on one such occasion, "that ma pure blood an' guid habits be better than his physic. That's win' o' the dummy."

"The dummy, Tammas, and what may that be?" I queried.

"I've never told a soul. But I'll gie it to you in confidence. It's the story of ma reformation. Time was when I drank with the best or, mayhap, the worst o' them, as ye say, but the load I could carry! Mony a time I ha' sat from twilight to dawn drinkin' steady, then had my smack o' bread an' taste o' coffee and done my full day's stint o' work. But on a sudden I quit, quit it cauld, as the boys say, married ma Jean, and began to be a mon—why I quit I've never told to this day.

"Them days David Stephens and me was fast cronies. 'Siamee Twins,' the auld boss ca'd us. An eenvisible bond of affinity seemed to haud us together. When one was by t'other needed na callin'.

"One night I had na been feelin' weel the day, David comes to me, as usual, to go to the tavern for a few drams. 'I'll not go the night, David,' I says, 'I'm feelin' a bit dreecy, an' I think I'd best bide to whoam.'

"'Nonsense, mon,' he says, 'you'll be the better for a sma' dram, an' I'll come whoam early with you.'

"So off we started. Come to the tavern, David says, 'Perhaps, as you're not feelin' over weel, a bit o' brandy would be better than ordinar' sixcrit, Tammas.' So I ca'd for the brandy an' feelin' some better after the first one, I kept a callin.' Now, bein' sick like at the start, and the brandy bein' strong and unqualified, it soon went to ma head. By an' by David said summat not to my likin,' and I took exceptions to it. To mak' a long story short, we soon parted in anger.

"I declare I never felt so strange afore nor since as I did when I got the air that night. The whole universe seemed to be a revolvin' panorama. Comics an' meteors flashed in front o' me constant. An' terra groon beneath ma feet seemed like to rise and baste me. The sense of direction left me an' I lost ma way in a place I could ha' mapped out in my sleep. I walked and walked till I was fair knocked up. O, it was a peetiful condition!

"At last my pins gied out beneath me. I sunk down in a stupor. It must 'a been near two o'clock when I awoke, doused wi' dew, stiff an' cauld. My senses were still befuddled but not so bad as ferore. I was lyin' in a ravine near where Hallen's street sewer empties into Williams' creek.

"My first feelin's was of anger with myself an' David. With myself for helin' such a beast, an' with David for over persuadin' me to drink with 'im.

"As I rubbed ma eyes, tryin' to get the cobwebs out o' them, I caught sonne one lyin' on the groon near by. Lookin' close I saw 'twas David. 'Here,' says I, 'ne you followin' me, mon?' There was no answer. 'Haud up yer held an' be ceeyil, else I'll baste tha snoot, mon,' I said. Still no answer. 'I'll mak' thee talk,' I yelled, an' just then ma han' touched a bit stone. In my anger I heaved it at 'im an' it struck him full on his held.

"There was still no soun' from David. I rose up and staggered over to 'im. I put my 'and on 'im. David was cold as deith.

"That seemed to sober me. Ma held cleared up. The 'orrible truth came to me. I 'ad murdered me best friend in cold blood. I could na bide the place but turned an' ran as fast as I could toward whoam. Once there, I went to ma room and fell on the bed.

"I could na sleep. David's face was constant before me. I could 'ear 'is voice. I could feel 'is clammy 'and, as I felt its awfu' touch as I bent over 'im. I pictured some one findin' 'im. I would come out. I could see the judge, the jury. I even choked with the sense o' the 'alter 'roun' my neck.

"When daylight come, I thought every footstep was the constable comin' to 'ale me to jail. The day wore on slowly. I ached in every joint. I thought my poor nut would crack with pain.

"Late in the afternoon I made up my mind that certainty was better nor suspense. I would go to the police an' confess a'. I washed and dressed an' was ready to start out. On a sudden there was a knock on the door an' David entered.

"I was never a believer in ghosts, but at that moment my views changed. All the buried superstitions on' my ancestors was resurrected. 'David!' I gasped, 'ow came you 'ere?'

"'David took ma 'and. I shuddered. But 'twas with relief to find it warm an' human, instead o' clammy an' ghostlike. 'Forgi'e me, auld mon,' he said, 'I was in the wrong last night.'

"'Thank God, you're alive, David,' says I, 'I might a killed you in the drink.'

"'No fear you'd hurt a friend, drunk or sober,' he says.

"'But did na the stone hurt you, David?' I speired.

"He looked at me dumfounded an' edged away. 'Tammas, you're sick an' out o' your head. I'll get a doctor, he says.

"'Na, na, none o' that,' says I.

"'Tammas,' he says again, 'twas an ill trick I had played on me last night. You'll min' it was 'Allow E'en. I left ma door unlocked an' the boys got in to my room, took ma best rig, hat, shoon an' all, then got a dummy from Myers' store an' rigged it out in all ma finery. Then they paraded through toon wi' Meester Stephens, as they ca'd it. They left a note sayin' I would get ma duds by cailin' at the back door o' the Hallen street sewer. Come, Tammas, an' ha' a drink or so.'

"'Na, na, David,' says I, 'I'm through drinkin'. An' I was."

WILL BE SENT BACK TO FINLAND

Nicholas Maenpaa Found to be Insane, Will be Deported.

Mat Nicholai Maenpaa, a native of Finland, three years in this country, and found to be insane, will be taken to Montreal today by William H. Dean, inspector in charge of the local immigration office, where he will be put aboard ship for the land of his birth.

Maoenpaa has been working on the range, and for some time past has been acting queerly. The attention of the immigration officials was called to the case, and after an examination, he was found to be crazy.

He has, it has been found, a wife and four children in Finland, and was insane before he came to the United States.

In these days the greatest care is taken to let only those who are right in mind and body step on Uncle Sam's ground it is very seldom that a person of Maenpaa's type slips through the lines of the immigration officials.

Varno Baric, an Austrian, 20 years old, who came to Duluth from Port Arthur yesterday, on the steamer America was refused admission because it was found that he was a victim of tuberculosis.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Masterlinck, automobiles and Salome!

Not a bad list of conversational subjects to be touched upon lightly, the immediate half hour after you have waked in the morning. Few people there are who would even attempt it with eyes thick with sleep, voice full of yawns and mind rebelling at the idea of ever having to awaken in the morning. Not bad at all!

Most people would want to limit their remarks to the weather and their dissatisfaction with it, a tender word or two relative to the fact that it was nobody's business whether you slept or not, and an expressed wish that the one might die while one was asleep and so never have to wake again. Such is the general trend of unpleasant human nature.

Not so, "Sis Hopkins."

Just as soon as she wakes up in the morning she is ready to talk of Maeterlinck. Of coure she doesn't awaken until along about 11:30 a. m. or 12 m. and naturally any one who is allowed to sleep until such an hour ought to be very bright and mentally alert.

"If you'll take me a la duBarry, I'll be glad to talk," said Miss Melville, this morning, while she cuddled down in bed covers and opened one sleepy eye.

"You've got to sleep late in the morning," she drawled in a Sis Hopkins' drawl, only slightly modified. "When you're up late the night before and then come home and read—I love Maeterlinck, don't you? He's so fanciful and poetic and—come in," she interrupted herself.

A colored gentleman entered. "Good morning, Lee," said Miss Hopkins Melville to the colored gentleman, taking plenty of time about it. "Excuse me, please, while I order breakfast," she said, languidly.

And she ordered a right smart breakfast that involved grape fruit and scrambled eggs, and bacon and corn cakes and "A pot of cawfee."

Nothing languid about that.

"One end of my baggage car is a garage" said Miss Melville continuing the subject after Lee had been dispatched. "And I carry my 90-horse power machine with me. We motored through England and France this summer in this machine and it was love-ly. I saw Maud Allen do her Salome dance in England. People are wild about it. The theater is packed for every performance."

The interviewer yawned.

It was a terribly rude thing to do and it wasn't because Miss Hopkins wasn't interesting, but her voice drawled along so and there were no nervous accents in it nor unexpected emphasis. It was a soft gray voice purling along in the soft gray gloom of the room and it was more than mortal could do to keep from yawning.

"Sometimes," continued Miss Melville, "I think I'll get lazy and just do nothing but rest."

The interviewer sat up. Was "Sis Hopkins" becoming imbued with the ambition of the many ladies who are doing John the Baptist head trophy dances? Goodness!

"Ride around in my automobile," said Miss Hopkins.

The interviewed subsided.

"Co-me in," said Miss Melville.

A colored lady entered.

"Good morning Helen," said Miss Melville. But with the coming of Helen there was no more gentle purling of talk in a soft gray gloom. Helen put up the windows and turned on the lights and cleared off a table and produced a lot of clothes and started the bath water running, and fussed around like a real busy individual.

"I guess I got to go now," said the interviewer.

Rose Hopkins smiled languidly and held out a pleasantly relaxed hand dripping with sparkling diamonds. She murmured into the bed clothes something about "glad" and "come again" and then subsided into a gentle coil of non-resisting rest.

WAGNER'S "PARSIFAL"

Is Subject of Lecture by Dr. Rubinkam.

The third in the series of four evening lectures being presented before the Twentieth Century club by Dr. N. I. Rubinkam of Chicago, the Richard Wagner music drama, "Parsifal," was discussed. Dr. Rubinkam presented a clear and beautiful interpretation of the story of the opera. He was assisted by Miss Berta Schmeld, who played the opera motifs on the piano in a brilliant manner.

"The Ring of the Nibelung' was Wagner's broadest work, 'Tristan and Isodle' was the deepest, and 'Parsifal' was the lightest,' said the lecturer. "Wagner's model in the Parsifal was the Greek stage, where the plays of Sophocles and Aeschylus treated of the sublimest soul aspirations and religious ideas.

"Wagner's 'Lohengrin' had revolutionized his own ideas of the world and of the method by which the human attains the divine. In 'Lohengrin' the movement of redemption was from above downward, in 'Parsifal' from below upward. In 'Parsifal' a simple-minded youth of the forest, by a long evolution of character, attains to the Grail, redeems the Grail king, sick from a sin, and becomes the king of Grail. 'Parsifal' is the combination of two plays, 'Jesus of Nazareth' and 'Buddha's Last Pilgrimage,' which the poet-musician never finished. It contains the Hindu ideas of reincarnation, of illumination and union of man with God and nature, and the medeval legends and symbols of the sacred cup and holy spear. Kundry in the play is an Arabian messenger in Act I, a beautiful temptess in Act II, and a repentant Magdalene in Act III.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock Dr. Rubinkam will lecture on Ibsen's "Rosmersholm."

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION

At All News-stands

DO IT NOW.

As Good a Life Motto as Any.

The woman who takes as her life motto, "Do it at once,' is the woman who is not hounded by an accusing conscience, says the New York Times.

The modern prayer for forgiveness is chiefly for things we have not done. The only time one is sure of is the present; putting off to some more convenient moment is to lay up a reputation o rudeness or slovenliness.

The woman who believes that to apologize is to accuse will rarely have to back water on her belief if she gets into the do-it-at-once habit.

Do it at once is but another name for the "little drops of water" precept of childhood. The "mighty ocean" of accumulated duties will never swamp you if each wave is breasted as it comes. Doing it at once is like oiling a dusty pike. It smoothes the path of life and smothers complaint and criticism.

Much of the fret and nerve racking comes from the postponing the things that might just as well be cleared off at once. One is worried until they are done, and more worried if they are not done.

The girl who sews the first rip never has to take a day off for mending.

The housekeeper who writes down an order when the cook says it is wanted; who cleans off one finger mark rather than huge smears; who believes in straightening up when needed, rather than spasms of cleanliness, is the one whose household machinery never gets clogged.

The woman who puts an advertisement in the papers when the cook first gives warning rarely has to roughen her hands building the kitchen fire and peeling potatoes.

The woman who answers her invitations the minute she gets them never will be mortified by being called up over the telephone to know if she is coming.

The woman who sends her checks as soon as she gets her bills, who returns her obligation calls within a week, who gets off her gifts to a bride the day the cards come, who answers her letter immediately, never has to work the excuse of forgetfulness overtime.

She who takes camphor at the first sneeze and a liver pill when her eyeballs are yellow need not dread the hospital or spend her coin on complexion cures.

The woman who does the nice thing when she thinks of it, who says the kindly words as she goes along, who inquires for the invalid when she first hears she is ill, is not tormented by regrets when reading death notices.

ANY NEW HAT

If It Be Becoming is Fashionable.

Although big hats will continue in favor during the coming season, smaller hats and toques will also be worn and there will be ample opportunity for every woman to find a handsome head cover suiting her figure and style. The small hats are, with few exceptions, high as to crown. In most instances the crowns are large, being either round, square or many-sided. The brims of the small hats take various shapes and turns. Some of them make a very wide turn on one side and run rapidly to almost nothing on the front and opposite side, with a brim at the back, which follows its own will. Most of the piquancy that rests in the small hats is caused by these rather freaky lines in the brims. By these freaky modifications of the brim they can be made becoming for practically every style of head.

The turbans shown this fall are mostly large, but unusually handsome. Some of them have large crowns and scarcely noticeable brims. These hats are made with enormous head sizes and come well down on the hair. To some this is becoming, while others find it trying. Never was there a greater variety in the materials used for covering the hats than just now. And it may be said that scarcely any material can be considered entirely unsuitable for the purpose. The favorite materials will be heavy silks, corded or repped, or the rough pongee silks prepared for winter wear. All the velvets are in favor of course, as they ever have been. Uncut velvet, in particular, will be popular in millinery purposes this winter.

The felt hats are usually varied in form, color and texture this year and more attractive than ever. They come in every desirable color and the texture is uncommonly fine. There are smooth felts that are like satin and there are beautiful fur-felts, more effective, however, in large hats, than in the small ones. Little trimming, and that of a heavy sort, is used on these large fur-felts. One very short, very heavy ostrich plume is happily chosen as the sole ornament in many cases. Wings are not much used with the rough variety of felt.

Among the models exhibited in one of the fashionable shops were a number of pretty toques of guinea hen feathers. They are designed for older women who do not wish to appear in the extreme shapes of hats of the present fashion. The shape is very attractive, rather oblong, and nestling down on the head. The wings are arranged upward and rather ruffled out at the ends, as if the guinea hen had its plumage ruffled by a gust of wind. This gives the hat a pert, stylish look that is even becoming to a face under white hair.

DID JOHNSON WEAR GREEN?

Was the Governor an Irishman Before His Reincarnation.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—An uproar of laughter was caused in Handel hall Sunday evening when a man in the audience put this question to L. W. Rogers, national lecturer for the Theosophical society:

"Do you think I will be born a Chinaman? I'm Irish and want to be born Irish ivery time."

The lecturer smiled and assured the Irishman he would not be denationalized in his next reincarnation.

"I will say, however," he added, "that it is quite possible for a man or a woman to be Irish in one life and Swedish or English and so on in the next earthly life.

"For instance, I should say Bismarck was a reincarnated Irishman. The iron chancellor had all the characteristics of a Celt, which were developed in a former incarnation.

"Certain politicians in Minnesota have seen fit to call Governor Johnson an 'Irish-Swede.' Well, there may be some truth in it. In a previous life the governor might have been as zealous and patriotic an Irishman and wearer of the green as ever breathed. Nationality is, after all, only a minor thing in the great plan of cosmic evolutions in past lives.

"Some of us may have marched with Julius Ceasar in his Northern conquests or suffered with the martyrs of ancient Rome."

One Diamond is Worth More Than Another

of equal weight, first of all because it has BETTER COLOR and is MORE BRILLIANT. The possession of these two qualities adds from 10 to 25 per cent and often more to the value of the gem, and are therefore the first to be considered in the making of a purchase.

In buying a Klein diamond, there is absolutely no risk, for we have considered these valuable qualities in making our selection—and gems of questionable color find no place in our stock.

TWO MURDERED BY NIGHT RIDERS

Lawyer and Friend First Shot, Then Hanged to Trees.

Trenton, Tenn., Oct. 20.—Capt. Rankin, a leading lawyer of that city, and Col. R. Z. Taylor, were taken from Ward's hotel, at Walnut Lodge, on Real Foot lake, last night and murdered by night riders.

Rankin and Taylor left Trenton several days ago to look after leasing some lake land. The bodies were found hanging to trees. Both men, besides being hanged, had been shot.

Governor Patterson today offered a reward of $10,000 for the arrest of the person or persons guilty of the murders.

Governor Patterson has been informed that not only were Taylor and Rankin murdered, but that a surveyor, who was with them, is also missing.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, Glycerine, Etc., Used as a Simple Wash.

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given as great confidence in its merits.

SMOKE PALL ON LAKES

Vessels Keep Fog Signals Sounding on Lake Huron.

Never before in the history of navigation on the Great Lakes has such a pall of smoke hung over their waters as there has been during the last week.

The great forest fires raging in Northern Michigan have cast an impenetrable gloom of smoke over Lake Huron, changing day into night.

Capt. William Landon and Chief Engineer William McCarron of the steamer Sahara, Tomlinson line, which arrived in port yesterday, report that in crossing Lake Huron they were met with such a dense smoke cloud lying low on the water, that they were forced to light their ship lights at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and keep up a continual blowing of their fog horn. Large white, flakey ashes floated down on the deck all day. The Sahara passed up the lake at about the time of the horrible Alpena holocaust, and Mr. McCarron says that until late that night the smoke and heat carried from the shore by a southwest wind were almost unbearable.

Beyond Keweenaw point the smoke cleared to a haze and navigation was not so difficult. Coming up Lake Superior a wind from the northeast sprang up, which blew the smoke back on to the fires.

The captain and chief engineer also reported extensive fires along the south shore of Superior. From on board the Sahara their flames could be seen plainly, and there seemed to be a running fire all the way from Sandy Point almost up to old Superior.

HAVE A RIGHT TO REGISTER

Rules Governing Youths About to Come of Age.

During the last two or three days City Clerk Cheadle has received a number of telephone calls asking concerning the power to vote of young men who become 21 years of age between the last date of registration and election day.

Next Saturday, Oct. 24, will be the last day for registration. Any man who will become 21 years old between Oct. 20 and Nov. 3, the date of the election, has the right to register now, just the same as if he had been voting for years. But if he does not register he will not be entitled to vote. It will be necessary, however, for the registration books to show the exact date upon which he is of age.

MACK ECHOES BUYING CHARGE

Says Republicans Are Certainly Trying to Buy Election.

New York, Oct. 20.—Speaking of the charges made by William J. Bryan that the Republicans are preparing to buy the election, Democratic National Chairman Mack today said that there was no doubt that the Republican organization was obtaining plenty of money with which it would endeavor to repeat the purchasing plans which he alleged were pursued in the campaigns of 1896, 1900 and 1904. Mr. Mack said:

"I think the letters of Mr. Harriman and President Roosevelt prove pretty well what was done in the 1904 campaign in the purchase of votes and there is no question but the Republican organization is preparing to do the same thing this year."

PRESENTS A LEGAL MAZE

Butte & Superior Case is Becoming Very Much Involved.

Famous Question of Extra Lateral Rights Brought Up.

Mining and legal technicalities, abounded in the testimony in the case of the Butte & Superior Copper company against John McAlpine in district court this morning. The lay observer was lost in the maze of questions, answers, objections, diagrams and citations and little intelligible or interesting to the general public was brought out.

Samuel Barker, an engineer of Butte, was on the stand under cross-examination by J. B. Richards for the defense, and he was led through a detailed description of different veins in the Butte camp, and particularly on the Butte & Superior properties. A question from Mr. Richards as to the distance from the collar of the shaft to the point at which the footwall of the Rainbow lode passed through the south line of the Black Rock claim and and the north line of the Elm Orlu brought an objection from Mr. Davis and dragged into the case the principle of extra-lateral rights, which has caused more mining litigation in Montana courts than any other principle developed in Butte mining.

Mr. Hollister objected to the question on the ground that it could have no possible bearing, the principal of extra-lateral rights having been unquestionably established. He accused Mr. Richards of an intention to claim that even if the Butte & Superior company uncovered ore at depth it would have no right to it as the vein passed into the Elm Orlu claim, and he asserted that under the decisions on the question, the Butte & Superior company having the apex of the vein, had the right to follow the dip to the termination, any distance through any number of claims.

The court held that since the question had been raised, arguments would be in order and, after suggesting that authorities be presented, he allowed the question, with the understanding that it might be stricken out later.

Mr. Barker said that the footwall cut the vertical line between the Black Rock and Elm Orlu claims at a distance of about 1,290 feet from the collar of the Black Rock shaft, and at a distance of about 160 feet on a straight line from the Black Rock shaft at that depth.

Mr. Barker said on cross-examination this morning that, though he stated on direct examination that the ore on the Elm Orlu dump could not be profitably smelted in Butte, under present conditions, on account of the great percentage of zinc it contained, he believed facilities would be soon provided in the Butte smelters whereby it would be valuable both for its copper and zinc values. He said that if the ore at present on the dump of the Elm Orlu were sorted, good chalco-pyrite ore in commercial value and quantity would be obtained from it.

Mr. Barker was called to the stand yesterday afternoon by the plaintiff, and, under examination of Mr. Hollister, he qualified to testify on conditions in the Butte camp. He told of cutting the Rainbow lode on the Enterprise with a railroad cut, showing it to a width of 100 feet. He gave a detailed description of the different veins on the Butte & Superior properties, as evident by surface conditions and also described other veins in the Butte camp, in order to show a general knowledge of conditions.

Mr. Barker said that from his knowledge of conditions, he believed the Butte & Superior company would discover copper values at greater depth than the present depth of the shaft.

He was taken by Mr. Richards for cross-examination, just before the close of court yesterday and was questioned on general geological conditions in the Butte district.

PRONOUNCED HIS CASE INCURABLE

Whole Body Raw with Eczema—Life was Intolerable—Was Even Incased in Plaster—Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless.

SUFFERED 14 YEARS CURED BY CUTICURA

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. He was all right until a red rash broke out on his forehead, but we were not alarmed at first. Very soon, however, the rash began to spread over his head and shoulders, and it caused him great discomfort. I took him to a doctor and tried half a dozen other treatments, all with the same result: no improvement at all. The disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. We had to strap him down in bed, for he used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep. The agony he went through is quite beyond words. No one thought we would rear him. The regimental doctor, a very clever man, pronounced the case hopeless; at least, he said the only hope was that he might, if he lived long enough, outgrow it to some extent. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases, if not the worst, ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable; in fact he got worse under the successive treatments. At one hospital they incased him in plaster, and this seemed to aggravate the soreness terribly. He looked so badly that no one liked to go near him and his life was a burden to him. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but we had got almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent Pills and persevered with them. The result was truly marvelous and to-day he is perfectly cured, his skin not having a blemish on it anywhere. FUTURE OF FILIPINOS

Taft and Bryan Express Their Views on the Subject.

Bryan Insists Our Policy Regarding Philippines be Announced.

New York, Oct. 20.—The two presidential candidates, William H. Taft and William J. Bryan, appear as joint contributors in the issue of Everybody's Magazine, published today in an article dealing with the Philippines. Mr. Taft has for his text, "What the United States Has Done for the Philippines," and Mr. Bryan discussed, "Why the Philippines Should Be Independent."

In opening his discussion of the subject, Mr. Taft declares that after the treaty of Paris was ratified, the question as to the wisdom of the acquisition of the islands no longer was an open one. There could be no difference thereafter, he argues, as to the extent of our obligations to the Philippine people.

"Party lines were not drawn in the senate when the vote was taken on the question of the ratification of the treaty," adds Mr. Taft. "The senators voting evidently dealt with the subject from a purely non-partisan standpoint, and as involving a great question of national policy, as they should have done. Democrats were found voting for the treaty, and Republicans against it, and vice versa. Mr. Bryan appeared at the capital and was in conference with doubting and opposing Democratic senators, urging them to vote for the ratification of the treaty; and it does not admit of doubt that but for his efforts and influence, the treaty would have been rejected."

Non-Partisan Commission.

That these circumstances led Mr. McKinley to make the commission which was to establish civil government in the islands non-partisan, is Mr. Taft's conclusion, and he goes on to say that "no consideration of partisan politics at any time entered into the question of appointing the numerous officials and employes of the government. There were perhaps as many Democrats as Republicans thus appointed. This policy has never been departed from, and today the governor general of the Philippine Islands is a lifelong Democrat. The undeviating policy of the commission, however, has been, as fast as vacancies occurred, which could be filled by Filipinos as well as by Americans, to give the former the preference. As a result of this policy, today three members of the supreme court of the islands are Filipinos. The attorney general of the islands is a Filipino. Fully half of the judges of the courts of first instance are Filipinos. The governors of provinces, and a majority of the provincial boards, are Filipinos. All of the municipal officials and at least 85 per cent of the officials and employes of the insular government are Filipinos."

Then the establishment of the Filipino government to take the place of the commission, created by the President, and the inauguration of the popular assembly, a year ago, is described.

"In the light of these disputed facts," declares Mr. Taft, "it is difficult to understand how the action of the chief executive, the congress of the United States, and the commission as above set forth, can be denominated a disastrous experiment in imperialism. So far from its being an experiment in imperialism, it is an experient, and a novel one, in preparing for self-government an undeveloped people, who had for nearly 100 years been under the domination of a medieval monarchy."

Mr. Taft points out that the great majority of Filipinos appreciate that independence would not be a blessing to them in the absence of a protectorate.

"I think it may be truthfully stated," he says, "that the Filipinos generally feel that what we are doing there is not a brake upon their legitimate aspirations, but an impulse given to their growth and development along safe and sensible lines."

Mr. Bryan's Views.

Mr. Bryan thus begins his article: "Honesty requires that our policy regarding the Philippine islands be announced. The Filipinos have a right to know; other nations are entitled to the information; and our own position would be strengthened by a declaration of the nation's purpose. So long as there is doubt there will be discussion; so long as there is uncertainty the Filipinos will suspect the worst, other nations will accuse us of insincerity, and our own people will be embarrassed in the advocacy of the principles of government which we apply here and refuse to apply in the Philippines. A republic cannot hold colonies, for a colonial government rests upon force, while in a republic the government rests upon the consent of the government. To say that the Filipinos have no right to a voice in their own government and in the shaping of their own destiny raises a question as to man's inalienable rights, and the citizens of a free country cannot afford to raise such a question."

Mr. Bryan tersely says then, that improvement in the islands does not mean that a better policy might not have brought greater improvement.

An Expensive Experiment.

He declares the experiment in imperialism to have been an expensive one and he charges the increase in army and navy expenditures to nothing that has happened in the United States to make them necessary, but to the foreign dangers connected with the possession of the Philippines.

"Suppose," he says, "that Japan wants the Philippine Islands—although there is no reason to believe that she does—would we not be in a better position to defend the islands if they were independent? If the Filipinos were in charge of their own government they could have an army and arms and ammunition. We, as a protector, could supply what they needed, and train the soldiers. The Filipinos would be willing to fight for independence, and when we remember how stubbornly they resisted us, we can appreciate the aid they would render us if any other nation should attempt to enforce sovereignty over them. By reserving coaling stations and naval bases, we would have all the advantages that we have now, without the disadvantages of our present position. And then, too, there is the likelihood, if not the certainty, that we could secure the neutralization of the islands by agreement, and thus relieve ourselves from all expense or care."

Mr. Bryan protests that the "Democratic policy does not contemplate immediate withdrawal from the islands, but an immediate announcement of the nation's policy."

RAGGED VICTIMS OF FOREST FIRES AWAIT CLOTHING

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 20.—Pathetic scenes marked the arrival of a carload of clothing and provisions at Metz. Ragged women and children, victims of the forest fire, crushed eagerly about the car door awaiting with outstretched arms whatever contribution might be their portion.

All the pumps have burned and the streams and ditches are dry. The Detroit & Mackinac Railroad company has ordered 150 pumps sent into the fire district. The relief fund here has reached $8,500 and is growing rapidly. Seven carloads of provisions, clothing and lumber donated in Alpena were sent into Presque Isle county yesterday.

Baltimre, Md., Oct. 20.—Advices from the western part of the state tell of forest fires that are raging on South Mountain, Washington county, burning over an area three miles long and a half mile wide. Along the eastern shore of Lake Crystal comes the report that fire is in the woods near Talbot, endangering that town.

In Pennsylvania.

Greensburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—Fires are menacing farms and farm houses on Chestnut Ridge. From Linconler to Somerset the peak of the range is aflame. Near Greensburg, a forest fire which threatens Oakford Park. The towns of New Derry, Engelvale, Kingston and Laughlinstown are also menaced.

Rain Badly Needed.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Forest fires are raging fiercely in this state and threaten to assume larger proportions than at any time this year, according to reports received from the Adirondacks today. Rain is badly needed, but the most dangerous element is the high wind prevailing.

Two fires were reported as having started again on state lands within the boundaries of the Adirondack park.

The fires in the vicinity of Lake Placid are very threatening. A message was received from Lake Placid saying that the fire on Saddleback Mountain was threatening the entire site of the lake.

TAFT'S THROAT SO BAD THAT HE CANCELS DATES

New York, Oct. 20.—That Nominee Taft's voice is in such bad condition that he will have to cancel many of his dates for speaking, was indicated by Chairman Hitchcock on his return from a visit with Mr. Taft at Newark, N. J. This means a rearrangement of Mr. Taft's itinerary, but it will not affect his dates in New York. He will be in this city as arranged.

The rearrangment will cut out all of Mr. Taft's speeches, and one of his night speeches. The latter is the speech which has been planned for Chicago next Saturday night.

It is also expected that most of Mr. Taft's dates in West Virginia will be cancelled. Mr. Hitchcock is at work now on the West Virginia situation so far as Mr. Taft is concerned. The dates for Mr. Taft's speeches in Connecticut also may be cancelled.

SCOTT IS CLINGING TIGHT TO HIS TOGA

Buries Distrust of Chairman Hitchcock

West Virginia Senator Now Tripping Tranquilly Adown the Primrose Path of Political Endeavor, to Retain His Office.

SENATOR NATHAN B. SCOTT.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 20.—Among the rolling quicksands of West Virginia, there one thing towers.

That is the political regularity, the devotion to party of Senator Nathan B. Scott.

Swisher's men may be dissatisfied, Scherr's followers may whet their knives, and the foundations of Republicanism may writhe and convolute and tremble, but the party regularity of Mr. Scott will be forever silhouetted against the troubled sky, a beacon to the lost, an encouragement to the weak.

And this deserves comment and thought. The time was not so long ago when the senator, familiarly known to his friends as "Scotty," paid out much money for railroad fare so that he might race up and down the Atlantic seaboard, pouring into suffering ears the story of how unfit was Frank H. Hitchcock to manage Taft's campaign and dominate the work of the Republican national committee. Not for a moment was the senator influenced by the fact that Hitchcock had passed him over as a man valuable to the campaign. No such small motive ever crowded its way into the capacious bosom of Scott. He viewed the scene and felt that the welfare of the country and the fate of Taft were being pushed into the ocean.

Knocked Hitchcock.

From the way in which he beat his breast and knocked Hitchcock, it was everywhere assumed that never, under any circumstances or by any persuasion, would "Scotty" join hands with a national committee which had not called upon him for help. It was freely said that the senator's active aid had been lost to the campaign.

But now West Virginia is treated to the edifying spectacle of Senator Scott tripping down the primrose path of political endeavor hand in hand with the agents of the national committee. Hitchcock plans what shall be done in West Virginia, and the first man to take hold and carry out the plans is Nathan B. He has buried his distrust in the ability of the national chairman. He no longer feels a lack of confidence in Hitchcock. His energy is unfailing. His party regularity, his devotion to the national cause is a transcending unselfishness, a monument to that forgiving spirit which is one of the grandest attributes of human beings and the rabbit.

His Soliloquy.

Although the fact has nothing to do with the charming picture presented by Senator Scott's change of heart, it does no harm to mention here that the next legislature will decide by its vote whether he is to have another term in the senate. There are those in West Virginia who claim they have heard "Scotty" soliloquize as follows when he gazed on the autumnal mountainsides of his native state:

"The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year. Upon the hillside summer flaunts her most gorgeous garments beneath the cold that woos her to destruction. The blood of dying autumn splashes winter's golden cradle, and the rebellious verdure blushes to its death. The leaves are falling one by one, and in the valley in the evening the palisade of winter's frozen shadows shuts the sun from sight. Something is dying. All creation seems to be dying. Unless the squirrels who inhabit these lovely woods have laid up for themselves food for the winter, they will die. Politics are like squirrels. If they do not lay up things for themselves, they are beaten. I guess I had better get out and hustle."

On the other hand, the friends of "Scotty" say he never indulged in such meditation.

Seeks Another Term.

Regardless of that, the senator is out and hustling for that future store which may yield him another term in the senate.

WEST END

SAMARITANS CELEBRATE.

Beta Council Makes Merry Over Payment of Its Debts.

Beta Council, No. 2, Modern Samaritans, and hosts of its friends participated in the celebration given last evening in Columbia hall to mark the clearing off of the lodge's last indebtedness. More than 600 people were present during the evening and everyone seemed to have a good time.

The evening's program began with a banquet served in one of the lodge rooms by members of the Beneficent degree, an auxiliary body of the Samaritan lodge. After the spread, a short program was given and at its conclusion, the dancing began.

Many members of the West Duluth and Alpha lodges and the Imperial Council of the Samaritans were present, as well as invited guests, who were not members of the order. A. R. MacDonald, of Alpha Council, No. 1, and one of the original members of the order, gave a short address, telling of the growth of the order.

The evening went off without a hitch. W. W. Allen was chairman of the different committees, which had the arrangements in charge. A. Farrington was in charge at the door, and of the music; Ruben Johnson was chairman of the floor committee, and the following ladies were in charge of the banquet: Mrs. Minnie Branscombe, Mrs. Elizabeth Vranier, Mrs. R. Nelson and Mrs. J. Martineau.

WILL INVITE PRINCE.

Adams School Alumni Would Have Him Speak at Meeting.

W. I. Prince, cashier of the City National bank will be invited to deliver the principal address at the next meeting of the Adams school alumni, to be held at an early date. The session will be held in the school house.

It is the plan of the association to secure as a speaker for every meeting, some prominent man whose remarks will be interesting and in a way educational to the members.

At the first meeting of the season, Clarence B. Miller, Republican candidate for congressman from the Eighth Minnesota district, was the speaker.

Will Go Into Vaudeville.

Mrs. J. B. Rogers, who has been spending the past few months in the West end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Disanto of 215 Seventeenth-and-a-Half avenue west, will leave tomorrow for Chicago, where she will study for the stage. Later, she will join her husband in a vaudeville act.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Julia Smith, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Alwin of the United States block for the past week, has returned to her home at Chippewa Falls, Wis.

The services of a physician were necessary, yesterday, to extract a bean from the ear of I. Zanstak's little daughter of Garfield avenue. The child is a pupil at the Adams school, and she and her little companions were made the targets yesterday for the beanblowers of the boys of the institution. One of the beans lodged in the Zanstak girl's ear.

LYCEUM—Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins." (Notice below.)
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill. (Notice low.)

"SIS HOPKINS."

Rose Melville is Making Awkward Country Girl a Stage Classic.

Rose Melville's "Sis Hopkins" has become a stage classic, almost, and she gives every promise of making its popularity as lasting as Denman Thompson has that of "The Old Homestead."

A clever little actress, she hit upnn a characterization which, for uniqueness and genuine humor has outshone many others and last evening's audience at the Lyceum was every whit as enthusiastic, doubtless, as those laughing-crying audiences which saw "Sis" when she made her first stage bow ten years ago.

Ten years is a long life for a play as shallow in many respects as "Sis Hopkins." Many more serious, and many cleverer efforts have long since traveled the road to the theatrical graveyard, but these seems to be every evidence that as long as Miss Melville chooses to play "Sis," the public is willing to accept her in the role and pay it's good money to see her. And the public does not waste its money to see Rose Melville either, for she and her players always furnish enough fun, general entertainment, and smelling-salts doses of old-line pathos to give anyone value received.

Miss Melville has lost none of her art this season. In the earlier scenes of the play, she is a gawky and as eccentric as ever and when she returns from her European trip in the last act, she comes as daintly garbed and neatly shod as of yore.

Miss Melville's support is good. J. T. Ray as the humorous undertaker and George H. Maxwell as "Pa" Hopkins provide two good characterizations, and Frank Minzey contributes a manly personality and a fair singing voice to the role of the rustic lover, "Ridy" Scarboro. Edward Dillon as the college youth and Lewis Medbury as the adventurer, are adequate.

Next to the star, Josephine Haines as "Ma" Hopkins does the cleverest work in the feminine portion of the cast. Grace Hilliard as Miss Van Ness and the numerous other young women in the cast are most accetbible.

"Sis Hopkins" will be the bill at the Lyceum again this evening.

"A JAY CIRCUS."

Clever Comedy Sketch is Presented at the Bijou This Week.

If laughter is conducive to putting on flesh, one should surely gain several pounds after watching this week's performance at the Bijou. "A Jay Circus" threw the audience last night into convulsions, and there was no relief to be had from the beginning of the act until the curtain fell for the moving pictures, which, by the way, were exceptionally good.

Dan Sherman and Harry Belmont, as the two jays at the country circus, can not be described. They have to be seen to be appreciated. Their appearance is ridiculous and their antics are more so. There is no hope of carrying home a grouch after you have left the Bijou this week.

Alice De Garmo in her sensational "Gymnastic Aerial Novelty" is a phenomenon of strength and nerve. Hanging by her teeth for fully five minutes while she disrobes down to a suit of pink tights, she holds the watchers breathless, and frightened little feminine cries of "Oh, I wish she'd hurry" were heard on every side. A sigh of pleased relief is exhaled when at last she swings back on to the bar.

"Early Days West and East," a two-scene sketch by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young and company, is very funny, especially in the violin contest of "Pop Goes the Weasel," when the "rube" suitor stumps his old maid country sweetheart by manipulating the fiddle with one arm hooked between his legs. She was game until then, but there she fell down.

The other acts of the performance were roundly applauded. Amelia Mazet and Payne and Lee, in their singing and dancing stunts, were well received. "Garden of Dreams," Isadore Silver's song this week, is very pretty and the accompanying pictures are most attractive.

HASKELL CONTINUES THE BOMBARDMENT.

Dalals, Tex., Oct. 20.—Speaking in the lobby of a local hotel, Governor C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma declared his intention to call President Roosevelt "to account" in connection with the lease of the Osage oil lands, and reasserted that the president alone is responsible for the pipe line franchise held by the Prairie Oil & Gas company of Oklahoma.

He declared that, as governor of Oklahoma, he would demand an "accounting" of President Roosevelt in behalf of the Osage Indians of Oklahoma.

One More Cholera Victim.

Manila, Oct. 20.—Lewis Connor, a member of the fire department of this city, died today of cholera. This is the first American death reported in some time. The average of new cases reported has fallen to two daily.

$1000.00 Reward.

It has been a struggle to get before the people the dangerous facts, the hidden underground facts, relating to the plans for control of the liberties and affairs of the common citizens by the adroit managers of the huge "Labor Trust," known as the American Federation of Labor.

These managers are seeking power even superior to that of the President of the United States.

"Nonsense," some one says. Well, let's have a look.

When I started publishing these articles discussing labor masters, nearly the entire list of papers published them, but there were a few afraid to print them, altho offered full pay.

Afraid the labor leaders would boycott them, afraid the unions in their own printing department would strike and afraid on general principles.

Here was a sample of the "muzzled press," the subtle enemy of the common people.

Fair Union Men.

To the credit of the typographical union let it be said the majority of its members are too intelligent to refuse to set type on either side of the discussion of a principle, realizing that the columns of a newspaper must be unhampered.

However, in some offices less wisdom was shown and the papers refused to print the discussion.

In one article I invited readers to scan the pages of various papers of that date and if the announcement failed to appear, write and ask the publisher "why."

His only good excuse would be "no contract with Post." But when he got angry and began to offer various and sundry reasons, it became plain to the enquirer that it was left out through pitiable fear.

The discovery by readers that a favorite newspaper feared to print matter written for and in the interest of the thirty-nine citizens out of every forty (only one union man in every forty citizens), produced a disgust and distrust hard to overcome. When the rights of the common people cannot be defended in the newspapers because of fear of some organization, either of capital or labor, the enslavement of citizens has reached a dangerous point, and the papers which refuse to stand for the rights and freedom of the great reading and thinking public, should be known and rebuked by the public they ought to serve.

Those readers who would like to have printed the names of a few papers and public servants who have been lax in support of the rights of the people when assailed by class organizations are invited to make known their wishes by mail addressed to the undersigned.

Have You Noticed

Reader, how adroitly the Leaders of the Labor Trust work to gain more and more control over the liberties of the people?

Do you realize they are aiming at absolute domination of the daily affairs of citizens?

Do you think it would be safe to allow yourself to be gradually tied hand and foot until your inherited freedom and liberty was taken from you? Have a look at their methods and draw your own conclusions.

Threats are made to City, County, State and National officers and public men, either of defeat or violence for judges and jurors, and the number of citizens assaulted or murdered and property destroyed in an active Labor Trust year exceeds by far the amount of violence which ever occurred in any one year during pro-slavery days. The black man was not his own master. The present day union man is not. He must quit when the Labor Trust leader "orders." Involuntary idleness is no less deplorable than involuntary servitude.

The disobedient black man was at times driven with a whip, back to his work. The disobedient "union" man has, in thousands of cases, been driven away from his work, with clubs, missiles, revolvers, and knives; assaulted, slugged unconscious, maimed for life, or murdered. Or perhaps his steps dogged for weeks, he and his family subjected to insults innumerable, homes destroyed and property blown up. The most damnable cruelty and brutality that hate could devise and ruffian outlaws execute has been put upon American workmen, who have dared to disobey the "orders" of the Labor Trust leaders.

There were above 5,000 citizens assaulted in one city (Chicago) during one strike (the teamsters) and many men crippled for life. Some 12 or 14 were wilfully murdered outright, and yet there have been but few convictions and trifling if any punishment.

Uncle Sam's Way.

If only ten Americans had been slugged and maimed and one killed in a foreign port, ample apology would have been made and ample funds exacted for the support of the injured families, at the muzzles of Uncle Sam's 12-inch guns, or some people and some things would have been blown off the face of the earth. But 5,000 citizens injured, with a schedule of rewards for broken legs, ribs and arms and so much for eyes gouged out, paid by members of the Labor Trust is passed with but slight comment and absolutely not one cent of contribution or support for the destitute families of victims.

It has been noticed that when union criminals are on trial for murdering independent workingmen, they sometimes bring in their wives and mothers, and have their children clamber about their knees to impress the jury with sympathy. So much for the brutal murderer, but who brings into court the destitute, fatherless children of the poor workman murdered in cold blood because he obeyed the instincts of an almighty Father, who impelled him to seek work to feed his little ones? What play is ever made by them to sway a jury? The murderer is supported by the funds of the Labor Trust. The orphans of the victim have no money to help them obtain justice.

Impudent Pretense.

The Labor Trust leaders proclaim peaceful intent and publicly decry violence. Such bare faced assertions as that of the President of the American Federation of Labor that "Organized Labor is one of the most potent factors for the preservation of peace," is only interesting as in illustration of the extreme impudence of these leaders with a most terrible record of criminal proceedure behind them. It lately became public that this Trust expended upwards of $150,000.00 to defend its members in the Haywood-Moyer trial, securing acquittal by a frightened jury, notwithstanding the fact that the judge who presided at the trial announced afterward that the testimony implicating the members of the Labor Trust in the deeds of violence was in his opinion true.

The Labor Trust shouts for the public ear, and winks in another direction while it finds it necessary to rush to the support of its criminal members, in order to "keep up the work."

Without certainty of protection the slugger would quickly become discouraged. The victims of the Labor Trust dare not publicly protest even if he lives through the entertainment by the "entertainment committee" and the wives, widows and children have no way to bring their wrongs to the public ear. The poorhouse may take care of some and the streets of some, but the suffering, terror and agony put upon the children, wives and widows of independent workingmen is known only to themselves and their God and no one seems to have the humanity or bravery to speak in their defense.

Thousands of individual members of organized labor have hearts as tender as can be found in all human nature but they seem powerless in the iron grasp of impudent and desperate tyrants who hold them bound and who extort from them not only money but "obedience" and bring reproach on the very name of Labor.

Honest Union Men Helpless.

Let an honest union man raise his voice in protest at a union meeting and the "men of violent tendencies" cry him down with shouts to "throw dat guy out de window" and if he don't shut up he may expect to be violently and effectively shut up. Some day let us hope that organized labor will get rid of the present leaders and conduct the sale of its product (labor) in the peaceful legal manner of business men who sell the ordinary products of humanity, and when they cannot sell their labor at satisfactory price to one man, do as the farmer does who offers his wheat to another buyer and either sells it at the highest price the market will warrant or keeps it for a higher market, but does not picket the mill, assault other farmers who prefer to sell their wheat, or blow up the mill whose owner cannot at that time buy at the price asked.

The man who has saved money with which to purchase wheat or labor should not be maimed, murdered or his property destroyed because he does not feel like parting with that money to buy wheat or labor when he either does not want it or knows the price to be to high to warrant its purchase. Any attempt at coercion should be promptly and effectually punished by the courts and the bullies put where they cannot again tyranize over independent Americans.

This rapid growth of anarchy and evident purpose of the Labor Trust to dictate just what persons shall be employed, how long and at what price and how much pay to the managers has taught every man who has saved a dollar and wants to build a house or establish a factory, that he had better keep his money in some safe investment, instead of going into something where he would be actually forced to buy labor when not needed and to employ men he don't want.

In other words, the man who has a little money to invest don't propose to have any trust, even the Labor Trust tell him how or where to pay it out. This widespread attack of the Labor Trust on citizens who would have money to invest in labor if allowed to invest peaceably, has been one of the strongest elements which brought on the panic.

Men who have money to build, don't like to be harassed to death by continued impudent interference, and expensive delays by labor union tangles, therefore hundreds of them don't build. So with proposed factories and other enterprises.

Between the loud mouthed political demagogues and the Labor Trust leaders, the steady attacks on industries dried them up and the panic came bringing idleness and misery to thousands.

The demand by the Labor Trust dealers for an anti-injunction law, is quite in keeping with the purposes of the tyrannous leaders. A careful investigation of the records of all Federal courts for the past 5 years discloses the fact that only 20 injunctions have issued in labor disputes and in not one of these cases has the superior court reversed or failed to approve. No other subject handled by our courts has been as free from mistake. Humanity is prone to weakness and error, and our courts are human, but fortunately for mankind we find less error and weakness in the handling of restraining orders or "injunctions" in labor cases than in any other department of legal procedure, and the most remarkable fact in all this anti-injunction agitation is that thus far not one single case has been shown where an innocent man has been harmed.

What Are Injunctions?

"Now what is an injunction" someone asks. When it becomes known that the trust leaders plan to have their slugers waylay other workmen and assault them, or picket and spit on and insult or attack American citizens going to or coming from work, or plan to destroy some machinery, blow up a factory, mine or workman's home or do any other act of violence or crime, the courts established by the people and for their protection can issue a "restraining order" or "injunction" ordering these men not to do the acts they intend, until the court can have time to enquire into the rights in the case.

Every man with his mind set on revenge or violence, and every single inmate of every penitentiary in this country hates a court injunction like a mad dog hates water.

What does the man who fears an injunction have in his mind?

Do you believe he is seeking peace?

No citizen who was at home or on the street on a peaceful, lawful mission has ever been troubled by a court order to prevent men from attacking property or persons. It has been common for Labor leaders (?) and a few politicians to say that courts have "abused" the right to issue injunctions in labor cases. After a careful search of the records Hon. Charles E. Littlefield made open request of President Roosevelt to cite one single injunction wherein peace intending citizens had been harmed and our estimable President was put in the embarrassing position of having stated that "abuses had arisen" because some interested persons had so told him, but on demand for the cases, they could not be produced.

I now again offer $1,000.00 in cash for evidence of a single case in the past five years in labor disputes where court injunctions to protect persons and property have been opposed to the public good. No person can produce one. Why therefore, should the Labor Trust leaders so strenuously demand that the courts be stripped of the right to issue injunctions to protect people and property.

These leaders want to be free to order the sluggers to proceed with their work and their dynamiters to blow up homes or property before the courts can intervene to protect. That's exactly what is meant by the proposal to prevent any court from issuing a restraining order without five to seven days' notice. That would give time to the intending criminals to do their work and get into hiding before the court can protect those whom the sluggers intend to harm. The independent workingman's home could thus be blown up and he taught the danger of disobedience of "orders" of the Labor Trust.

It's a pitiable condition that of workingmen, both union and non-union, when they dare disobey any Labor Trust managers order, however impudent or tyrannous.

Shall we nourish the further growth of such power centered in the hands of a few misnamed "Labor leaders" now seeking to tell Union men that they must vote for the party pledged to enact any law these trust leaders ask looking to more power, if they will "deliver the labor vote?"

Trade on Labor Vote.

That trade was a humiliating insult to every liberty-loving workman in America and they are quite justified in the general resentment against it.

The political managers of both great parties wish "Post would keep still." "He talks too plain." "He don't know any more about politics than a rabbit." But amidst all the word twisting, pretense, cowardice, side-stepping, and boot licking of politics before a National campaign, it is refreshing to take a few long deep breaths, wipe the cobwebs out of one's eyes and take a good, keen, close look at exact facts.

Post as President of the National Citizens' Industrial association has a duty to perform without fear or favor of any political party or class organization either of Capital or Labor, and when these facts are placed before the 20 to 30 million readers of this article and they realize the danger to their properties and personal liberties by voting for class legislation and privilege, that duty will have been done. It may interest you to know that Post was lately elected an Honorary member of one of the highest Trade Unions in America, the National Association of Stationary Engineers in recognition of his services in trying to stamp out the criminal and tryannous control of affairs by the present misnamed Labor Leaders (?) and to bring the labor movement to a more peaceful and lawful management and therefore back to the respect and esteem of the public and to wipe from the sacred name of "Labor" the odium and disgrace these trust leaders have smeared upon it. A better time is coming and every honest American can do his part to bring it about.

There's a Reason.

SCOTT IS CLINGING TIGHT TO HIS TOGA

Buries Distrust of Chairman Hitchcock

SENATOR NATHAN B. SCOTT.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 20.—Among the rolling quicksands of West Virginia, there one thing towers.

That is the political regularity, the devotion to party of Senator Nathan B. Scott.

Swisher's men may be dissatisfied, Scherr's followers may whet their knives, and the foundations of Republicanism may writhe and convolute and tremble, but the party regularity of Mr. Scott will be forever silhouetted against the troubled sky, a beacon to the lost, an encouragement to the weak.

And this deserves comment and thought. The time was not so long ago when the senator, familiarly known to his friends as "Scotty," paid out much money for railroad fare so that he might race up and down the Atlantic seaboard, pouring into suffering ears the story of how unfit was Frank H. Hitchcock to manage Taft's campaign and dominate the work of the Republican national committee. Not for a moment was the senator influenced by the fact that Hitchcock had passed him over as a man valuable to the campaign. No such small motive ever crowded its way into the capacious besom of Scott. He viewed the scene and felt that the welfare of the country and the fate of Taft were being pushed into the ocean.

Knocked Hitchcock.

From the way in which he beat his breast and knocked Hitchcock, it was everywhere assumed that never, under any circumstances or by any persuasion, would "Scotty" join hands with a national committee which had not called upon him for help. It was freely said that the senator's active aid had been lost to the campaign.

But now West Virginia is treated to the edifying spectacle of Senator Scott tripping down the primrose path of political endeavor hand in hand with the agents of the national committee. Hitchcock plans what shall be done in West Virginia, and the first man to take hold and carry out the plans is Nathan B. He has buried his distrust in the ability of the national chairman. He no longer feels a lack of confidence in Hitchcock. His energy is unfailing. His party regularity, his devotion to the national cause is a transcending unselfishness, a monument to that forgiving spirit which is one of the grandest attributes of human beings and the rabbit.

His Soliloquy.

Although the fact has nothing to do with the charming picture presented by Senator Scott's change of heart, it does no harm to mention here that the next legislature will decide by its vote whether he is to have another term in the senate. There are those in West Virginia who claim they have heard "Scotty" soliloquize as follows when he gazed on the autumnal mountainsides of his native state:

"The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year. Upon the hillside summer flaunts her most gorgeous garments beneath the cold that woos her to destruction. The blood of dying autumn splashes winter's golden cradle, and the rebellious verdure blushes to its death. The leaves are falling one by one, and in the valley in the evening the palisade of winter's frozen shadows shuts the sun from sight. Something is dying. All creation seems to be dying. Unless the squirrels who inhabit these lovely woods have laid up for themselves food for the winter, they will die. Politics are like squirrels. If they do not lay up things for themselves, they are beaten. I guess I had better get out and hustle."

On the other hand, the friends of "Scotty" say he never indulged in such meditation.

Seeks Another Term.

Regardless of that, the senator is out and hustling for that future store which may yield him another term in the senate.

WEST END

SAMARITANS CELEBRATE.

Beta Council Makes Merry Over Payment of Its Debts.

Beta Council, No. 2, Modern Samaritans, and hosts of its friends participated in the celebration given last evening in Columbia hall to mark the clearing off of the lodge's last indebtedness. More than 600 people were present during the evening and everyone seemed to have a good time.

The evening's program began with a banquet served in one of the lodge rooms by members of the Beneficent degree, an auxiliary body of the Samaritan lodge. After the spread, a short program was given and at its conclusion, the dancing began.

Many members of the West Duluth and Alpha lodges and the Imperial Council of the Samaritans were present, as well as invited guests, who were not members of the order. A. R. MacDonald, of Alpha Council, No. 1, and one of the original members of the order, gave a short address, telling of the growth of the order.

The evening went off without a hitch. W. W. Allen was chairman of the different committees, which had the arrangements in charge. A. Farrington was in charge at the door, and of the music; Ruben Johnson was chairman of the door committee, and the following ladies were in charge of the banquet: Mrs. Minnie Branscombe, Mrs. Elizabeth Vannier, Mrs. R. Nelson and Mrs. J. Martineau.

WILL INVITE PRINCE.

Adams School Alumni Would Have Him Speak at Meeting.

W. I. Prince, cashier of the City National bank will be invited to deliver the principal address at the next meeting of the Adams school alumni, to be held at an early date. The session will be held in the school house.

It is the plan of the association to secure as a speaker for every meeting, some prominent man whose remarks will be interesting and in a way educational to the members.

At the first meeting of the season, Clarence B. Miller, Republican candidate for congressman from the Eighth Minnesota district, was the speaker.

Will Go Into Vaudeville.

Mrs. J. B. Rogers, who has been spending the past few months in the West end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James DiSanto of 215 Seventeenth-and-a-Half avenue west, will leave tomorrow for Chicago, where she will study for the stage. Later, she will join her husband in a vaudeville act.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Julia Smith, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Alwin of the United States block for the past week, has returned to her home at Chippewa Falls, Wis.

The services of a physician were necessary, yesterday, to extract a bean from the ear of I. Zanstak's little daughter of Garfield avenue. The child is a pupil at the Adams school, and she and her little companions were made the targets yesterday for the beanblowers of the boys of the institution. One of the beans lodged in the Zanstak girl's ear.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins." (Notice below.)
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill. (Notice low.)

"SIS HOPKINS."

Rose Melville is Making Awkward Country Girl a Stage Classic.

Rose Melville's "Sis Hopkins" has become a stage classic, almost, and she gives every promise of making its popularity as lasting as Denman Thompson has that of "The Old Homestead."

A clever little actress, she hit upon a characterization, which, for uniqueness and genuine humor has outshone many others and last evening's audience at the Lyceum was every whit as enthusiastic, doubtless, as those laughing-crying audiences, which saw "Sis" when she made her first stage bow ten years ago.

Ten years is a long life for a play as shallow in many respects as "Sis Hopkins." Many more serious, and many cleverer efforts have long since traveled the road to the theatrical graveyard, but there seems to be every evidence that as long as Miss Melville choses to play "Sis," the public is willing to accept her in the role and pay it's good money to see her. And the public does not waste its money to see Rose Melville either, for she and her players always furnish enough fun, general entertainment, and smelling-salts doses of old-line pathos to give anyone value received.

Miss Melville has lost none of her art this season. In the earlier scenes of the play, she is a gawky and as eccentric as ever and when she returns from her European trip in the last act, she comes as daintily garbed and neatly shod as of yore.

Miss Melville's support is good. J. T. Ray as the humorous undertaker and George H. Maxwell as "Pa" Hopkins provide two good characterizations, and Frank Milnzey contributes a manly personality and a fair singing voice to the role of the rustic lover, "Riddy" Scarboro. Edward Dillon as the college youth and Lewis Medbury as the adventurer, are adequate.

Next to the star, Josephine Haines as "Ma" Hopkins does the cleverest work in the feminine portion of the cast. Grace Hilliard as Miss Van Ness and the numerous other young women in the cast are most acceptable.

"Sis Hopkins" will be the bill at the Lyceum again this evening.

"A JAY CIRCUS."

If laughter is conducive to putting on flesh, one should surely gain several pounds after watching this week's performance at the Bijou. "A Jay Circus" threw the audience last night into convulsions, and there was no relief to be had from the beginning of the act until the curtain fell for the moving pictures, which, by the way, were exceptionally good.

Dan Sherman and Harry Belmont, as the two jays at the country circus, can not be described. They have to be seen to be appreciated. Their appearance is ridiculous and their antics are more so. There is no hope of carrying home a grouch after you have left the Bijou this week.

Alice De Garmo in her sensational "Gymnastic Aerial Novelty" is a phenomenon of strength and nerve. Hanging by her teeth for fully five minutes while she disrobes down to a suit of pink tights, she holds the watchers breathless, and frightened little feminine cries of "Oh, I wish she'd hurry" were heard on every side. A sigh of pleased relief is exhaled when at last she swings back on to the bar.

"Early Days West and East," a two-scene sketch by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young and company, is very funny, especially in the violin contest of "Pop Goes the Weasel," when the "rube" suitor stumps his old maid country sweetheart by manipulating the fiddle with one arm hooked between his legs. She was game until then, but there she fell down.

The other acts of the performance were roundly applauded. Amelia Mazet and Payne and Lee, in their singing and dancing stunts, were well received. "Garden of Dreams," Isadore Silver's song this week, is very pretty and the accompanying pictures are most attractive.

HASKELL CONTINUES THE BOMBARDMENT.

Dalals, Tex., Oct. 20.—Speaking in the lobby of a local hotel, Governor C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma declared his intention to call President Roosevelt "to account" in connection with the lease of the Osage oil lands, and reasserted that the president alone is responsible for the pipe line franchise held by the Prairie Oil & Gas company of Oklahoma.

He declared that, as governor of Oklahoma, he would demand an "accounting" of President Roosevelt in behalf of the Osage Indians of Oklahoma.

One More Cholera Victim.

Manila, Oct. 20.—Lewis Connor, a member of the fire department of this city, died today of cholera. This is the first American death reported in some time. The average of new cases reported has fallen to two daily.

RAGGED VICTIMS OF FOREST FIRES AWAIT CLOTHING

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 20.—Pathetic scenes marked the arrival of a carload of clothing and provisions at Metz. Ragged women and children, victims of the forest fire, crushed eagerly about the car door awaiting with outstretched arms whatever contribution might be their portion.

All the pumps have burned and the streams and ditches are dry. The Detroit & Mackinac Railroad company has ordered 150 pumps sent into the fire district. The relief fund here has reached $3,500 and is growing rapidly. Several loads of provisions, clothing and bedding donated in Alpena were sent into Presque Isle county yesterday.

A revised list of the dead follows:

Baltimre, Md., Oct. 20.—Advices from the western part of the state tell of forest fires that are raging on Scuth Mountain, Washington county, burning over an area three miles long and a half mile wide. Along the eastern shore of Lake Crystal comes the report that fire is in the woods near Talbot, endangering that town.

In Pennsylvania.

Greensburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—Fires are menacing farms and farm houses on Chestnut Ridge. From Ligonier to Somerset the peak of the range is aflame. Near Greensburg, a forest fire which threatens Oakford Park. The towns of New Derry, Engelvale, Kingston and Laughlinstown are also menaced.

Rain Badly Needed.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Forest fires are raging fiercely in this state and threaten to assume larger proportions than at any time this year, according to reports received from the Adirondacks today. Rain is badly needed, but the most dangerous element is the high wind prevailing.

Two fires were reported as having started again on state lands within the boundaries of the Adirondack park.

The fires in the vicinity of Lake Placid are very threatening. A message was received from Lake Placid saying that the fire on Saddleback Mountain was threatening the entire site of the lake.

TAFT'S THROAT SO BAD THAT HE CANCELS DATES

New York, Oct. 20.—That Nominee Taft's voice is in such bad condition that he will have to cancel many of his dates for speaking, was indicated by Chairman Hitchcock on his return from a visit with Mr. Taft at Newark, N. J. This means a rearrangement of Mr. Taft's itinerary, but it will not affect his dates in New York. He will be in this city as arranged.

The rearrangment will cut out all of Mr. Taft's speeches, and one of his night speeches. The latter is the speech which has been planned for Chicago next Saturday night.

It is also expected that most of Mr. Taft's dates in West Virginia will be cancelled. Mr. Hitchcock is at work now on the West Virginia situation so far as Mr. Taft is concerned. The dates for Mr. Taft's speeches in Connecticut also may be cancelled.

It has been a struggle to get before the people the dangerous facts, the hidden underground facts, relating to the plans for control of the liberties and affairs of the common citizens by the adroit managers of the huge "Labor Trust," known as the American Federation of Labor.

These managers are seeking power even superior to that of the President of the United States.

"Nonsense," some one says. Well, let's have a look.

When I started publishing these articles discussing labor masters, nearly the entire list of papers published them, but there were a few afraid to print them, altho offered full pay.

Afraid the labor leaders would boycott them, afraid the unions in their own printing department would strike and afraid on general principles.

Here was a sample of the "muzzled press," the subtle enemy of the common people.

Fair Union Men.

To the credit of the typographical union let it be said the majority of its members are too intelligent to refuse to set type on either side of the discussion of a principle, realizing that the columns of a newspaper must be unhampered.

However, in some offices less wisdom was shown and the papers refused to print the discussion.

In one article I invited readers to scan the pages of various papers of that date and if the announcement failed to appear, write and ask the publisher "why."

His only good excuse would be "no contract with Post." But when he got angry and began to offer various and sundry reasons, it became plain to the enquirer that it was left out through pitiable fear.

The discovery by readers that a favorite newspaper feared to print matter written for and in the interest of the thirty-nine citizens out of every forty (only one union man in every forty citizens), produced a disgust and distrust hard to overcome. When the rights of the common people cannot be defended in the newspapers because of fear of some organization, either of capital or labor, the enslavement of citizens has reached a dangerous point, and the papers which refuse to stand for the rights and freedom of the great reading and thinking public, should be known and rebuked by the public they ought to serve.

Those readers who would like to have printed the names of a few papers and public servants who have been lax in support of the rights of the people when assailed by class organizations are invited to make known their wishes by mail addressed to the undersigned.

Have You Noticed

Reader, how adroitly the Leaders of the Labor Trust work to gain more and more control over the liberties of the people?

Do you realize they are aiming at absolute domination of the daily affairs of citizens?

Do you think it would be safe to allow yourself to be gradually tied hand and foot until your inherited freedom and liberty was taken from you? Have a look at their methods and draw your own conclusions.

Threats are made to City, County, State and National officers and public men, either of defeat or violence for judges and jurors, and the number of citizens assaulted or murdered and property destroyed in an active Labor Trust year exceeds by far the amount of violence which ever occurred in any one year during prosslavery days. The black man was not his own master. The present day union man is not. He must quit when the Labor Trust leader "orders." Involuntary idleness is no less deplorable than involuntary servitude.

The disobedient black man was at times driven with a whip, back to his work. The disobedient "union" man has, in thousands of cases, been driven away from his work, with clubs, missiles, revolvers, and knives; assaulted, slugged unconscious, maimed for life, or murdered. Or perhaps his steps dogged for weeks, he and his family subjected to insults innumerable, homes destroyed and property blown up. The most damnable cruelty and brutality that hate could devise and ruffian outlaws execute has been put upon American workmen, who have dared to disobey the "orders" of the Labor Trust leaders.

There were above 5,000 citizens assaulted in one city (Chicago) during one strike (the teamsters) and many men crippled for life. Some 12 or 14 were wilfully murdered outright, and yet there have been but few convictions and trifling if any punishment.

Uncle Sam's Way.

If only ten Americans had been slugged and maimed and one killed in a foreign port, ample apology would have been made and ample funds exacted for the support of the injured families, at the muzzles of Uncle Sam's 12-inch guns, or some people and some things would have been blown off the face of the earth. But 5,000 citizens injured, with a schedule of rewards for broken legs, ribs and arms and so much for eyes gouged out, paid by members of the Labor Trust is passed with but slight comment and absolutely not one cent of contribution or support for the destitute families of victims.

It has been noticed that when union criminals are on trial for murdering independent workingmen, they sometimes bring in their wives and mothers, and have their children clamber about their knees to impress the jury with sympathy. So much for the brutal murderer, but who brings into court the destitute, fatherless children of the poor workman murdered in cold blood because he obeyed the instincts of an almighty Father, who impelled him to seek work to feed his little ones? What play is ever made by them to sway a jury? The murderer is supported by the funds of the Labor Trust. The orphans of the victim have no money to help them obtain justice.

Impudent Pretense.

The Labor Trust leaders proclaim peaceful intent and publicly decry violence. Such bare faced assertions as that of the President of the American Federation of Labor that "Organized Labor is one of the most potent factors for the preservation of peace," is only interesting as in illustration of the extreme impudence of these leaders with a most terrible record of criminal procedure behind them. It lately became public that this Trust expended upwards of $150,000.00 to defend its members in the Haywood-Moyer trial, securing acquittal by a frightened jury, notwithstanding the fact that the judge who presided at the trial announced afterward that the testimony implicating the members of the Labor Trust in the deeds of violence was in his opinion true.

The Labor Trust shouts for the public ear, and winks in another direction while it finds it necessary to rush to the support of its criminal members, in order to "keep up the work."

Without certainty of protection the slugger would quickly become discouraged. The victims of the Labor Trust dare not publicly protest even if he lives through the entertainment by the "entertainment committee" and the wives, widows and children have no way to bring their wrongs to the public ear. The poorhouse may take care of some and the streets of some, but the suffering, terror and agony put upon the children, wives and widows of independent workingmen is known only to themselves and their God and no one seems to have the humanity or bravery to speak in their defense.

Thousands of individual members of organized labor have hearts as tender as can be found in all human nature but they seem powerless in the iron grasp of impudent and desperate tyrants who hold them bound and who extort from them not only money but "obedience" and bring reproach on the very name of Labor.

Honest Union Men Helpless.

Let an honest union man raise his voice in protest at a union meeting and the "men of violent tendencies" cry him down with shouts to "throw him out by the ear window" and if he don't shut up he may expect to be violently and effectively shut up. Some day let us hope that organized labor will get rid of the present leaders and conduct the sale of its product (labor) in the peaceful legal manner of business men who sell the ordinary products of humanity, and when they cannot sell their labor at satisfactory price to one man, do as the farmer does who offers his wheat to another buyer and either sells it at the highest price the market will warrant or keeps it for a higher market, but does not picket the mill, assault other farmers who prefer to sell their wheat, or blow up the mill whose owner cannot at that time buy at the price asked.

The man who has saved money with which to purchase wheat or labor should not be maimed, murdered or his property destroyed because he does not feel like parting with that money to buy wheat or labor when he either does not want it or knows the price to be to high to warrant its purchase. Any attempt at coercion should be promptly and effectually punished by the courts and the bullies put where they cannot again tyranize over independent Americans.

This rapid growth of anarchy and evident purpose of the Labor Trust to dictate just what persons shall be employed, how long and at what price and how much pay to the managers has taught every man who has saved a dollar and wants to build a house or establish a factory, that he had better keep his money in some safe investment, instead of going into something where he would be actually forced to buy labor when not needed and to employ men he don't want.

In other words, the man who has a little money to invest don't propose to have any trust, even the Labor Trust tell him how or where to pay it out. This widespread attack of the Labor Trust on citizens who would have money to invest in labor if allowed to invest peaceably, has been one of the strongest elements which brought on the panic.

Men who have money to build, don't like to be harassed to death by continued impudent interference, and expensive delays by labor union tangles, therefore hundreds of them don't build. So with proposed factories and other enterprises.

Between the loud mouthed political demagogues and the Labor Trust leaders, the steady attacks on industries dried them up and the panic came bringing idleness and misery to thousands.

The demand by the Labor Trust dealers for an anti-injunction law, is quite in keeping with the purposes of the tyrannous leaders. A careful investigation of the records of all Federal courts for the past 5 years discloses the fact that only 20 injunctions have issued in labor disputes and in not one of these cases has the superior court reversed or failed to approve. No other subject handled by our courts has been as free from mistake. Humanity is prone to weakness and error, and our courts are human, but fortunately for mankind we find less error and weakness in the handling of restraining orders or "injunctions" in labor cases than in any other department of legal procedure, and the most remarkable fact in all this anti-injunction agitation is that thus far not one single case has been shown where an innocent man has been harmed.

What Are Injunctions?

"Now what is an injunction" someone asks. When it becomes known that the trust leaders plan to have their sluggers waylay other workmen and assault them, or picket and spit on and insult or attack American citizens going to or coming from work, or plan to destroy some machinery, blow up a factory, mine or workman's home or do any other act of violence or crime, the courts established by the people and for their protection can issue a "restraining order" or "injunction" ordering these men not to do the acts they intend, until the court can have time to enquire into the rights in the case.

Every man with his mind set on revenge or violence, and every single inmate of every penitentiary in this country hates a court injunction like a mad dog hates water.

What does the man who fears an injunction have in his mind?

Do you believe he is seeking peace?

No citizen who was at home or on the street on a peaceful, lawful mission has ever been troubled by a court order to prevent men from attacking property or persons. It has been common for Labor leaders (?) and a few politicians to say that courts have "abused" the right to issue injunctions in labor cases. After a careful search of the records Hon. Charles E. Littlefield made open request of President Roosevelt to cite one single injunction wherein peace intending citizens had been harmed and our estimable President was put in the embarrassing position of having stated that "abuses had arisen" because some interested persons had so told him, but on demand for the cases, they could not be produced.

I now again offer $1,000.00 in cash for evidence of a single case in the past five years in labor disputes where court injunctions to protect persons and property have been opposed to the public good. No person can produce one. Why therefore, should the Labor Trust leaders so strenuously demand that the courts be stripped of the right to issue injunctions to protect people and property.

These leaders want to be free to order the sluggers to proceed with their work and their dynamiters to blow up homes or property before the courts can intervene to protect. That's exactly what is meant by the proposal to prevent any court from issuing a restraining order without five to seven days' notice. That would give time to the intending criminals to do their work and get into hiding before the court can protect those whom the sluggers intend to harm. The independent workingman's home could thus be blown up and he taught the danger of disobedience of "orders" of the Labor Trust.

It's a pitiable condition that of workingmen, both union and non-union, when they dare disobey any Labor Trust managers order, however impudent or tyrannous.

Shall we nourish the further growth of such power centered in the hands of a few misnamed "Labor leaders" now seeking to tell Union men that they must vote for the party pledged to enact any law these trust leaders ask looking to more power, if they will "deliver the labor vote?"

Trade on Labor Vote.

That trade was a humiliating insult to every liberty-loving workman in America and they are quite justified in the general resentment against it.

The political managers of both great parties wish "Post would keep still." "He talks too plain." "He don't know any more about politics than a rabbit." But amidst all the word twisting, pretense, cowardice, side-stepping, and boot licking of politics before a National campaign, it is refreshing to take a few long deep breaths, wipe the cobwebs out of one's eyes and take a good, keen, close look at exact facts.

Post as President of the National Citizens' Industrial association has a duty to perform without fear or favor of any political party or class organization either of Capital or Labor, and when these facts are placed before the 20 to 30 million readers of this article and they realize the danger to their properties and personal liberties by voting for class legislation and privilege, that duty will have been done. It may interest you to know that Post was lately elected an Honorary member of one of the highest Trade Unions in America, the National Association of Stationary Engineers in recognition of his services in trying to stamp out the criminal and tryannous control of affairs by the present misnamed Labor Leaders (?) and to bring the labor movement to a more peaceful and lawful management and therefore back to the respect and esteem of the public and to wipe from the sacred name of "Labor" the odium and disgrace these trust leaders have smeared upon it. A better time is coming and every honest American can do his part to bring it about.

There's a Reason.

Fat Women's Troubles.

If you try to get the fat off with the exercise, tell me, please, where's one going to find the time? I haven't any faith in it, anyway, as a reducer. It hurts the fat person's weakest spot—the heart. As for dieting, that is out of the question, altogether. Better be fat than have cancer of the stomach.

The safest and quickest way to reduce excess fat is also the cheapest and easiest. Go to the druggist and get ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3½ ounces Peppermint Water. They cost but a trifle. Take them home, shake them together in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. If you are not losing a half to a pound of fat a day inside of a month, your case will be one in a hundred. Try it—makes you feel better all over.

FOUR MEN MEET DEATH

Are Literally Cooked in Explosion on Steam Barge.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 20.—Four men were literally cooked to death on board the steam barge Margie Marshall, from Manistee in mid-lake off Kenosha at 10 o'clock last night when a steam pipe in the engine room burst and escaping steam literally burned the men to death before they could make their way out of the room.

The list of dead is not known at this time as three members of the crew who reached Kenosha just after 11 this morning, after swimming a mile against a north wind, could not give the names of the dead. Those who swam to shore are N. C. Thompson, Otto Frank and Alex Forstran.

It is known that one of the dead is Chief Engineer John Peterson, of Manistee, and the others were his assistants in the engine room.

The Kenosha life saving crew, in charge of Chief Fountain, left for the vessel at noon. It is not expected they will return with the dead until late this afternoon.

Excessive Drinking

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system.

The drinking man is often heard to say: "I can stop of my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way—it's too late, the craving has secured a firm hold and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result we all know.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orrine is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orrine No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Orrine No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orrine costs but $1.00 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. Write for free booklet on "Drunkenness," mailed in sealed envelope by The Orrine Company, Washington, D. C. Sold in this city by F. W. Kugler & Co., 108 West Superior street, Duluth, Minn.

A Question of great importance just now before the Duluth public—the solution of the stove problem. Like all important questions it has but one correct solution—that solution lies in the line of

Universal Stoves and Ranges

The Solution of the Heating Question is

The Imperial Universal Hard Coal Base Burner

The Finest Base Burner Made

A Great Heat Giver and Great Fuel Saver

The heat giving properties of any Base Burner are measured by the amount of radiating surface the stove possesses. In the IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL BASE BURNER by actual measurement are over 300 square inches more radiating surface than in any other Base Burner. Think of it—of the greater heat-giving possibilities possessed by this Heater.

And the Imperial is a Heater constructed along strictly modern lines. The IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL is a three-flue stove—the heat travels down the two descending flues around both sides of the bottom to the extreme front of same, there uniting and returning through the center bottom flue and up the ascending back flue, thus being equally distributed over the entire back and bottom and giving it more direct radiating surface than any other Base Burner. The Hot Air circulating flues are between the descending and ascending back flues, and the heat passes over all four sides of same, which is a feature found only in the IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL and greatly increases the hot air circulation, making it the best floor heater ever made.

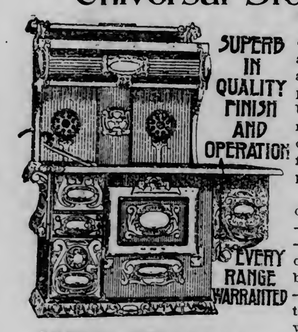

The cold air is drawn from the floor and in its upward passage becomes intensely heated, then passes to the upper outside flue back which is pocketed and conducts the heated air to the double heating attachment.

The UNIVERSAL is fully guaranteed and sold on payments of $1 a week or $5 a month, and a liberal allowance for your old stove as part payment.

IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL

Universal Steel Range

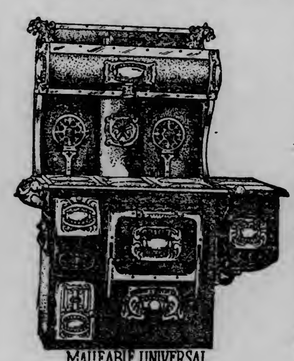

SUPERB UNIVERSAL

A Steel Range that is, in every way, far superior to any other on the market, as a comparison will readily prove to you. The superb Universal is a thoroughly modern range in every sense of the word, fully warranted for wear and guaranteed a perfect baker.

The body of range is made of extra heavy polished steel—oven doors porcelain lined—firebox is adapted for both coal and wood—cast iron flue back, which will not rust out—nickel trimmings guaranteed—oven guaranteed not to warp. If you would solve the range question for all time, let your choice be a Universal.

Universal Malleable Range

MALLEABLE UNIVERSAL

Another line in which the Universal certainly puts all others decidedly in the shade—and that is in their line of Malleable Ranges.

Good to look at—superior bakers and cookers. Body of range made of heavy cold rolled steel—flues asbestos lined—all outside parts liable to breakage are of malleable iron — These include Oven Door Frame and Jamb, Fire and Ash Pit, Door Frames, Main Top, Key Plates, Covers, etc. Cast iron flue back, will not rust out. A Universal Malleable will last you a life time and give you better service than any other stove on the market. They are fully warranted.

Easy Terms of Payment on Any Universal

We will gladly arrange terms of payment to suit your convenience on any Universal you may wish to buy. We will take your old stove as part payment, make you a liberal allowance for it, and you can pay the balance $5 a month or $1 a week—in fact, we will arrange to meet your requirements on any Universal Stove you may wish to buy.

SPLITTING THE TICKET.

Candidate Jacobson says that the voters of Minnesota do not know enough to split their tickets, and that they are presumptuous and reckless to think of setting up their individual judgments as better than the combined judgment of the party machine.

In other words, Mr. Solid Citizen of Madison or Minneapolis or Mankato has no right to use his personal judgment in making a choice between Governor Johnson and Candidate Jacobson, but must bow to the wishes of Messrs. Dunn, Reese, Warner, Shevlin et al., the same being the members of the party machine which nominated Jacobson and destroyed Attorney General Young for affronting the "interests" in the pursuit of his official duty.

The last four years of state government in Minnesota will tell the story, and will furnish a conclusive reply to Jacobson's charge that the people do not know enough to "split their tickets." So will the next two years of state government, during which Governor Johnson will continue the administration which has meant so much to the peace and security and prosperity and growth of the commonwealth.

But speaking of "splitting tickets," there are some interesting exemplifications of the new spirit of individual judgment, that has replaced the old confiding spirit which left it all to the bosses, in this campaign. Not only is this true of individuals, but of newspapers.

For instance, here is the Breckenridge Gazette, which has always been a Republican newspaper, running at its masthead a national, state and congressional ticket containing four Democrats and six Republicans. The Gazette is for Bryan and Kern on the national ticket, and for Congressman Steenerson, a Republican, on the congressional ticket. On the state ticket it is for Governor Johnson, a Democrat, and for one of the two places on the railroad and warehouse commission it picks H. P. Bjorge, one of the Democratic nominees. For the other place on the commission it favors C. E. Elmquist, one of the Republican candidates, and it favors all the other Republican candidates for state offices. In short, the Gazette has ceased being a party newspaper. Instead, it decides its choice for each office according to its judgment of the candidates. It prefers Bryan to Taft, Johnson to Jacobson, Bjorge to Mills, etc.

Again, here is the Brainerd Arena, another Republican paper, which splits its ticket even more interestingly. For president it picks Taft, and gives him its hearty support because it believes in him. For governor it picks Johnson, also because it believes in him, and it gives the governor its best advocacy. For lieutenant-governor it picks the Prohibition candidate, because it thinks Lieutenant Governor Eberhart didn't do the right thing by county option in framing his committee on temperance legislation.

These are the most striking examples, but there are scores of others, all testifying to the rich fruits of individual judgment and independence that changes of recent years have happily brought about in this and other states. There are Bryan and Johnson papers, there are Taft and Johnson papers, there is everything but a Bryan and Jacobson paper; which is also significant.

TWO WEEKS FROM ELECTION.

This is the day of multitudinous claims and estimates and straw ballots, and innumerable people are trying to make out that they know all about how the national election is coming out. The truth today is that it is a very close and a very pretty fight, with Bryan coming aggressively to a finish the prospects of which are very alarming to Republican managers. More than that no man can say; for the truth lies not in the vaunting claims of campaign managers, not in superficial estimates based on straw ballots, but in the hearts of the voters.

Speculation now confines itself largely to three states —Indiana, Ohio and New York. Bryan's chances are excellent for carrying both the former states; the most sanguine Republican managers have to admit that they are doubtful. In New York Taft seems to have a shade the better of it, but it is a shade so faint that there is no fun in it for Taft. There are rumors that Tammany, bent chiefly upon defeating Hughes, is trading the presidency for the governorship; as to the truth of this little can be said except that Tammany is quite capable of it.

It is clearly going to be a tight finish, and the safest prediction that can be made is that the candidate that is assured of New York may feel fairly comfortable; but neither Bryan nor Taft is assured of it yet.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The News Tribune came awfully near attempting this morning to respond to The Herald's oft-repeated invitation to say something good about Jacobson. But it didn't, after all; not even by the lefthanded, roundabout method of saying something nasty about Governor Johnson, a thing that it got in the habit of doing four years ago, and can't stop.

Governor Johnson in his Duluth speech mildly intimated that it was only fair to the people that Jacobson should take them into his confidence at least once during the campaign as to where he stands on the vital issues of the day. This was in reply to Mr. Jacobson's flippant statement that he doesn't have to tell where he stands every two weeks, because he has a record. Of course his record is six to twenty years out of date, and most of the vital issues have arisen since that time; but in view of the manner of his nomination, by the very interests opposed to the popular side of these issues, it is not surprising that he speaks softly when he touches upon them.

But the morning paper says that Governor Johnson does didn't tell the truth, and then goes on to show what Jacobson is saying about these issues, or some of them. He says he will let pending suits against the railroads proceed, but he doesn't promise anything further along the line of railroad regulation; he says there is no enmity anywhere toward the railroads but that on the contrary if the rates that have been established are too low he has no doubt they can be raised, which sort of talk is vastly different from that which used to come from Jacobson in the legislature, when he used to burn railroads in effigy every day; he says that if any state employe tries to get his salary raised he will discharge him, though this is hardly one of the burning issues of the day; he says he voted for "the only wise and complete drainage law" introduced while he was in the legislature and that he voted against one measure only, while the record shows that he voted against at least three, and that there was no complete drainage law until Jacobson got out of the legislature and Johnson became governor.

But—

Will the News Tribune try to give a single reason why Jacobson should receive a single vote in Northern Minnesota? It has strangely neglected doing so thus far.

THE PUBLIC PLAYGROUND MOVEMENT.

It is pleasant to know that all through the nation the movement to establish public playgrounds for the children of the cities is receiving warm support, and that it is growing very rapidly. The establishment of playgrounds means to drag children out of the slums and to put them in places where they can find wholesome and upbuilding recreation in safe and cheerful surroundings; it means to take children off the streets and away from danger and temptation; it means, by improving the environment of the children, to make the coming generation stronger and better.

Henry S. Curtis, secretary of the Playground Association of America, shows in his annual report, published in Charities and The Commons, that the sixty-six cities maintaining playgrounds a year ago have been increased to 185, all but sixty-nine of which are supported publicly. Along with this multiplication have gone an intensive growth in the lengthening of the playground season, notably in Boston, Washington and Baltimore, and, in some playgrounds, provision for night play by electric light.

Another evidence of growth is in the establishment of two new companies to manufacture playground apparatus, the doubling of the sales of a New York company, and a gain of 200 per cent in the sales of a Chicago manufacturer. Increase in public interest is clearly shown in the growth of clippings from newspapers and magazines furnished by an agency. Eighty-three found in November increased to 1,566 in July, scattered over every state in the Union. Gifts of playgrounds by wealthy men and women total an important amount both in the value of the real estate involved and in the number of gifts made.

There has been a gain in the number of field houses, Los Angeles, Dayton, Pittsburg, Dallas, Washington, Newark and Philadelphia having either followed Chicago's example in constructing them or planned to do so. Boston has now twenty-eight school playgrounds and six park playgrounds, and it has added swimming lessons at the beaches and story-telling on the playgrounds. In New York, the Metropolitan Parks and Playground association has succeeded an older organization, enlarged its scope and maintained seven playgrounds, eleven ball fields and a summer camp, while the municipal playgrounds have been opened at night for the first time. Pittsburg plans to spend $2,000,000 for recreation centers with field houses; in Baltimore there has been formed an athletic league, in Philadelphia a playground association, in Cleveland a playground commission; the city of Milwaukee has bought a series of sites, and the Chicago park boards have added notably to their system. In Washington the loss of the congressional appropriation was made up by private subscription so that eight new playgrounds were opened up with an increased attendance of 50 per cent. Five California towns have made large appropriations, while in Canada the movement has taken hold of Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton.

The movement had a satisfactory start in Duluth this season, and will certainly make a large advance next summer. By the way, it shouldn't overlook the winter needs of the children.

WHAT MR. HEARST THINKS OF OTHERS.

Collier's Weekly has been at the pains of compiling a few samples of William Randolph Hearst's opinions of other eminent men of his time.

The result is far more illuminating as to the nature of Mr. Hearst's mind than it is as to the character of those upon whom he has passed his opinion. Here are a few of Hearst's passing remarks upon his contemporaries:

Mr. Roosevelt is a baboon.

Mr. Roosevelt is a servant of the trusts.

Mr. Roosevelt tried to steal the Republican nomination from Mr. Taft.

Mr. Hughes is "not a bit different, in his way of making a living, from the most spotty lawyer you ever saw."

McKinley was a "coward," "an abject, weak, incompetent poltroon," and, next to Grover Cleveland, "the most despised and hated creature in the hemisphere."

Mr. Jerome is a "petty larcenist" and a "political Croton water-bug."

Mr. Chanler is a servant of the bosses.

Mr. Bryan is a donkey, a raven, an insincere and crooked politician.

Charles J. Bonaparte is a "cab horse" and a "snob."

President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard is "a man whose mental course is run."

Thomas B. Reed was "the coldblooded servant of mercenary interests."

Joseph Choate is "the servile lickspittle of the trusts."

Robert Fulton Cutting is "a worthless poodle."

Mayor McClellan of New Yoirk is a "dead cat" and "a wretched little sneak thief."

Grover Cleveland was "a living, breathing crime in breeches."

Adds Colliers': "There is only one bright spot; one gem of purest ray serene. Guess; who is that? Listen: 'Mr. Hearst is a candidate for office because he wants to render good service to the state.' 'Mr. Hearst is going to succeed because sincerity and intelligence combined do not fail in the long run.'"

If, referring to all the accumulated epithets that Hearst has hurled at people of prominence and power in this country, somebody should say to Hearst "You're another," we guess that would hold him for a while.

It is going to be a tight finish of a generally dull national campaign.

Jacobson is coming to Duluth, which reminds one of the letter sent to Johnson headquarters by a Southern Minnesota Democratic committeeman: "Send us Johnson for a speech; if you can't, send Jacobson."

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The entire range is united for Johnson," said J. H. Horrigan at the Lenox last night. "The best demonstration we had of the Johnson following up on the range was the visit of the governor to Virginia last week. The governor struck our town at a time of day when it is very difficult to get a large number of men together. He reached Virginia at about 1:30 in the afternoon. He spoke at the opera house and there were about 800 people crowded into the auditorium to hear him, and over 1,000 who couldn't get into the house.

"There is no doubt of the way political sentiment is going upon the range. The ranges are solid for Johnson. As to the national ticket, however, it is a very hard thing to say. I believe that Taft will carry the county. In my opinion it will be Taft and Johnson. I am of the opinion that the governor will carry every town upon the range. I am also of the opinion that Taft will receive a large majority of the votes upon the range."

Mr. Horrigan stated that business conditions upon the range have shown a very great improvement since the panic a year ago. "The thing that forcibly recalls that panic to my mind," said Mr. Horrigan, "was the fact that I wanted some ready money to go down to the football game between Chicago and Minnesota. I went to one of the banks of Virginia and the cashier laughed at me. That was just about a year ago. You couldn't get money, no matter how much credit you had in the bank. Today you can get all the money you want providing, of course, that you have some standing.

"Business is looking better in our part of the state, and in every way we are better off than we were a year ago. The outlook upon the range is very good, and in my opinion the business of the country will improve decidedly after election."

Judge D. H. Lawrence of Two Harbors, at the St. Louis last night, expressed the opinion that the present election was the quietest in the history of Lake county.

"We know that both parties have organizations in the field, and we know that both parties are working hard, and that's about all," said the judge.

"For some reason the people are not talking about the election. They are not giving their opinions upon the result. I think that there is less talk upon the outcome of the approaching election than any election that I can remember.

"Johnson will carry Lake county, in my opinion, and I am also of the opinion that Taft will carry the county by a heavy plurality.

"You understand that there are a large number of the voters up our way who are not saying a thing. They are not saying the way they are going to vote. Some of them may vote for Johnson and some of them may vote for Jacobson. But judging the results of the coming election from what we can draw from general talk, it will be Taft and Johnson at Two Harbors.

"The politicians are doing some hard work up our way, but at the same time, if it were not for the fact that we saw something in the papers to the effect that we had a political battle in our midst, we would be unaware of the fact that there was an election about to occur at Two Harbors."

W. D. Fee, a commercial man at the Lenox hotel, states that before the harvesting of the present crop, money was so hard to get in South Dakota, that 25 per cent upon short loans was not an uncommon occurrence. According to Mr. Fee's statement, the farmers of the state are prosperous, yet at the same time they were in need of money before the harvesting of the fall crop, and in many instances paid very high rates to get it.

Mr. Fee says that the farmers of both Dakotas are now in a very prosperous condition.

Local hotel men yesterday received a formal notice of the opening of the new Washington hotel at Seattle. Duluthians are interested in the opening of this hotel through the fact that John H. Langton, formerly manager of the Spalding hotel, is the manager of the new hotel. The Washington will be opened tomorrow, according to the announcements that were sent to this city. It is the finest hotel upon the coast and the many friends of Mr. Langton wish him every success in his new position.

THE WEATHER.

The northeaster factory hasn't entirely gone out of business. The northeast wind predicted by the weather man came, and it got up to forty miles an hour. After blowing nearly twenty-four hours, it brought rain this morning, and the weather man expects the rain to continue into tomorrow. The wind will remain strong, too, but it may shift to southerly. The temperature will not change much. Last night's lowest was 44 degs., and yesterday's highest was 46 degs.

A year ago today glorious fall weather prevailed.

The sun rose this morning at 6:53 and sets tonight at 5:12, making 10 hours and 39 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The storm in the West has developed great intensity, the center overlying Western North Dakota. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance has caused light to heavy rains in all districts west of the 90th meridian except near the Mexican border. Temperatures have risen somewhat over the Northwestern states and Western Canada, but cooler weather prevails in the New England states, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Northern Texas. Freezing weather continues in the Rocky Mountain states. The barometer is high over the North Atlantic and Pacific coast districts. The easterly movement of th North Dakota storm will be attended by further rains and strong winds at the head of the Lakes tonight and Wednesday."

•••R. H. Sharsick, who is known in Minneapolis as "Dick, the labor orator," has been in Duluth for a few days. He is quite a politician in the Flour City and says himself he has had some tough times in the last few years, but is again on top and intends to remain and will deal out vengeance to his enemies.

•••Miss Alice Smith, daughter of James Smith, Jr., attorney for the St. Paul & Duluth road, is in the city from St. Paul visiting Mrs. S. C. McCormick on Second street.

•••Dr. John Scott, who left a few days ago with his wife for their Eastern home after a long stay here, died suddenly on the train en route to Pittsburg on Oct. 18. Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Cash and son have gone to Pittsburg.

•••J. L. Thurston of Memphis, Tenn., is in the city and may conclude to locate here if he can stand the cold weather this winter.

•••H. A. Swason of Red Wing, at one time chief engineer of the St. Paul & Duluth road, is in the city.

•••The heaviest frost of the season occurred early yesterday morning. There was a slight snow flurry also, and the thermometer got down to 38 degs. It was the first snow of the season.

The test was not satisfactory.

•••The members of Company K, the Duluth representatives of the state militia, have almost given up the idea of ever drilling again. They cannot secure an armory and see no prospect of one in the future.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Princeton Union: The more people study the wide open tax amendment the fewer votes it will receive.

Eveleth News: The Duluth Herald continues to ask the News Tribune whether it is for Jacobson or just against Johnson.

Bigfalls Compass: Southern Minnesota has awakened to the fact that a boost for the northern section of the state is also a boost for the southern part, and drainage of state lands did the business.

Austin Transcript: The suggestion that the next legislature extend the primary election law so as to include state officers and thus make it so repugnant that the whole law will be repealed is a poor one. Better amend it radically so that one party cannot nominate the other party's candidates or else repeal the whole business at once.

New Ulm Review: The Pioneer Press says hundreds of people kept walking out of the auditorium in Minneapolis while Governor Johnson was speaking. The Pioneer Press lies and every man who has ever heard Governor Johnson talk knows it.

Anoka Union: If our united senators were as prominent in Washington as they are at home, some benefit might accrue to the North Star state.

Ada Herald: Republican newspapers throughout the state are supporting Johnson for governor. In Polk county there are only two newspapers supporting Jacobson.

Walker Pilot: It's some consolation to know that the politician who persistently dodges the issue finally gets it in the neck.

Winona Independent: From a political point of view, Archbold's style of openwork correspondence is never likely to become popular.

New Ulm Review: If your banker asks you why you think the deposit you leave with him should be guaranteed, just ask him why he thinks the note which you give him for money loaned should be indorsed, or in other words guaranteed?

Brainerd Arena: So far as we are able to call, Mr. Bryan is the only public man who ever answered the question: "Where did you get it?"

Cannon Falls Beacon (Rep.): In reply to the question of the News Messenger: "Can the Republican party afford to hazard the risk of losing the head of the ticket and seriously reducing the vote on the national ticket by inflicting the lesson in a presidential year?" The Beacon would ask: When, pray, will it be safe to administer this much needed rebuke if not in a presidential year? When, pray, are we going to break away from this precious band of kidnapers, who have handed the party bound and gagged over to the railroads, the brewers' combine and the Steel trust, if not in a presidential year, when we have the inertia of a national campaign to help us?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: You can tell when a girl isn't really in love by the way she acts as if she were.

One woman's natural sense is worth fifty men's trained reason in a predicament.

The average man would rather be notorious for evil than never noticed for anything.

The best help to self-control is to have somebody big enough and strong enough to sit on you.

No matter how sorry a woman is that she married a man, she can be glad that she kept some other woman from getting him.

JOHNSON LYRICS. III.

A Duluth Publisher's Soliloquy.

Licked again!
Cursed by that milignant fate,
That like a puppy to a shoe,
Doth hang upon my footsteps,
Dog me day and night, until my name
Doth cause a dark cold shudder to chase down the spine
Of candidates for public office;
Not for fear of vemon-dipped pen,
But from dread of the most blighting warmth
Of my affections.

Curse the fate.
That led me from the unaccustomied joy
Of one glad victory, snatched by chance,
To back another dead one.

In wrong again!
And all the yellow journalistic slush,
Belshazzar's feast, and countless lies,
Aimed at his record on the tonnage tax,
Fall back upon my head and bury me
Beneath the weight of their putridity.

Better far,
If I had lain low within my hole,
And chewed the barren husks of power
That one poor victory cast my way.
Than venture forth again so soon
Into the dark and devious ways of politics
To back this human frost called "Jake."

Newest Tariff Idea.

Saturday Evening Post: If Mr. Bryan could manage to focus attention upon this huge tariff graft—if he could get such a hearing of it as he got for the silver question in 1896—his chance of winning, would no doubt, improve. But even with small Democratic aid, by the slow weight of fact, we are gradually and painfully approaching the truth about it.

When the necessity bred of war had passed, the tariff, as we now know it, was defended as needed to foster our infant industries. They fostered amazingly, and, presently, became the greatest in the world. We still needed the tariff, it was then alleged, to insure good wages to American workmen—notwithstanding our labor cost, in some lines, was lower than in England, and workmen in non-protected callings, comprising the great majority, got as high or higher wages than workmen in protected industries. This year a new and franker defense has been introduced.

Duties, says the Republican platform, must equal the difference between cost of production at home and abroad, "together with a reasonable profit to American industries."

That is, we must be taxed enough, not only to protect American labor, but to make sure that the trusts will have a satisfactory profit. One by one the specious and fraudulent reasons have fallen away, until, at length, in this year's platform, we are given a candid glimpse of the real reason. Being ever friendly to candor, we welcome the advance, and hope it will continue. In the Republican platform of 1912 we expect to find a simple and entirely honest tariff plank, as follows:

"Duties must be high enough to produce satisfactory dividends upon several billion dollars of watered stocks."

BRYAN PROMISES HE WILL ADD TO CABINET A LABOR SECRETARY

Says Republicans are Preparing to Purchase Election

Chicago, Oct. 20.—William J. Bryan arrived in this city in a blaze of glory, after an all-day trip through the state. Thousands assembled at the union depot to greet him as his special pulled in, an hour and fifteen minutes late, and in the crowd to do him honor were a large delegation from the Cook county Democracy, members of the national committee and all of the local Democratic candidates, including the candidates for congress, who escorted him in fifty automobiles to Pilsen Park, where he addressed a great throng.

As he emerged from the station a great quantity of red fire and Roman candles were set off, the crowd all the while wildly cheering. As the long procession of motor cars passed down the street, their occupants continued the pyrotechnic display. From Pilsen Park the Democratic candidate was escorted to Arcade hall, where another big crowd was on hand, and accorded him an ovation. Many in the Pilsen Park audience were laboring people.

"If I am elected president," said Mr. Bryan, "and the more I travel and mingle with the people the more convinced I am that I will be elected—I intend to have a secretary of labor as a member of the cabinet. The affairs of the working men of this country are too great not to have a representative on the president's advisory board. From this secretary I should seek advice on legislation of interest to the working man."

Taking up the subject of publication of campaign funds, Mr. Bryan said:

"I asked a large audience whether they were in favor of the Republican method of publishing campaign contributions after the campaign, or the Democratic way of publishing them before. I asked all in favor of the Republican way to hold up their hands. Not one hand was displayed."

Preparing to Purchase.

Bryan's journey through his native state of Illinois was the accusation, repeatedly made, that the Republican party was now preparing to purchase the election. The statement, first made at Alton, caused a distinct sensation. The Democrats, he said, were asking only for $100,000, with which to finish the work of the campaign, while the Republicans were asking for $1,000,000. "What do they need the money for now?" he inquired, and, answering his own question, he declared that it was for use on election day, "as they have used it year after year."

The trip to this city from Lincoln was made via St. Louis, and the Democratic candidate for president all along the line of travel through this state was accorded enthusiastic demonstrations by large, cheering crowds. He delivered sixteen speeches in all, some of them of considerable length. Stops were made at East St. Louis, Granite City, Alton, Carlingville, Girard, Virden, Springfield, Lincoln, Bloomington, Pontiac, Dwight, Joliet, Lemont and several other places not on the schedule.

At Bloomington he met Mr. Stevenson, and both spoke to an immense audience.

The Daily Bread.

One of the surprising features of the trip was the monster demonstration accorded him at Joliet. But ten days ago he spoke in the same place. He talked mainly on the labor question. Vociferously he was greeted when he said:

"My friends, I think too much of the next generation to stop my efforts to rid this country of the evil of private monopoly. I am willing to go down on my knees every morning and say to my Father in Heaven 'Give us this day our daily bread,' but God forbid that I should make my countrymen go down on their knees at morning and say to a trust magnate 'give us this day our daily bread,' and have him answer 'I will if you vote the ticket I want you to.' You cannot afford to favor that sort of system in this country or in any other country."

BRYAN EXPECTS TO BE IN WASHINGTON

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 20.—"I am more interested in the election of Democrats to congress than the Democratic candidates themselves are, because I expect to be in Washington after the fourth of March."

A mighty shout from a sympathetic crowd greeted this utterance by William J. Bryan, who spoke here for thirty minutes from a platform near the station. It was one of the best audiences of the day and cheered themselves hoarse. Bryan declared that he wanted a Democratic congress to work with and he urged the voters to bend every effort to elect the Democratic candidate for the house of representatives from this district. He made a plea also for the state ticket and spoke in commendatory terms of his former running mate, Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois.

WRIGHT MIXES ATTACK ON BRYAN WITH PRAISE

New York, Oct. 20.—Addressing a Republican rally here last night, War Secretary Luke E. Wright said in part:

"Bryan seems to think, as do some other shallow thinkers, that better results can be obtained by referring every question of importance directly to the people than by having the people select their agents, supposedly because of their fitness for legislative work, to act for them after investigation, deliberation and discussion.

"In referring, as I have done, to Mr. Bryan's crude and dangerous financial policies, to his economic and social fallacies, it is not for the purpose of attacking his honesty or imputing to him insincerity. As a man and citizen he is entitled to the highest respect and I cheerfully accord to him integrity and personal worth. My judgment is that in all the wild and dangerous measures he has proposed to the public, it was in the belief that he was acting for the general good. I also believe from my studies of his utterances and career that he is a man of intense convictions, invincibly opinionated and temperamentally incapable of changing his mind.

"The most that can be said to the contrary is that he has at last realized the necessity of shoving into the background his political eccentricities and follies, and now for the first time we find him essaying the role of conservative."

In order to show himself both safe and sane, he tells the sensible workingman and all that great body of men who work for a fixed wage, as well as the business men and capitalists who fled in wild alarm from him and his policies in 1896 and 1900, that now he is no longer dangerous, and that he has voluntarily gone back to the reservation and from this time forth will be and remain a good Indian. To emphasize this he declares in the first sentences of his speech of acceptance of the Democratic nomination, that the platform binds him not only by what it contains but by what it omits. To my mind, this very utterance, intended to reassure those who fear him because of his past record, furnishes, if possible, the strongest evidence of his unfitness for the presidency."

Farm Hand Writes Interesting Letter to President Roosevelt.

Hours Too Long and Order and Systems Are Lacking.

Washington, Oct. 20.—An Indian farm hand has written a letter to President Roosevelt about the work which the Country Life commission is carrying on. The president has turned the letter over to the Country Life commission and the comission has asked the farm hand to write some more.

"I have been a farm hand just long enough," says the president's correspondent, "to learn the cause of so many sons and daughters and well-meaning, reliable farm hands leaving the beautiful farm and country and going to the city. A lack of order and system on the farm and too long hours for a day is what is driving the best minds on the farm to the city and shop. What can we expect of a hand, or the farmer's wife and her posterity, in the way of intellectual development when they get out of their beds at 3:30 in the morning and work from that time until 8 or 9 p. m.? And no attention paid to the sanitary conditions of the home, and necessary conveniences on the farm for doing the farm work with the least labor and time.

Sixteen Hours a Day.

"The majority of the farmers are eight-hour men—that is eight hours in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon. Eight or ten hours on the farm cannot be well adapted in all cases, but it need not be from fourteen to sixteen hours.

"If the family arose every morning at 5 o'clock and the wife and daughters attend to the household duties, and the farmhands and sons attend to the chores and go to the field at 7 o'clock and work until 11 or 11:30 and go to the field again at 1 and keep at it until 6 o'clock and go to the house and eat supper and then do the evening chores, they have done a farm day's work.

"Regular hours for work, regular hours for meals, regular hours for sleep and regular hours for rest and recreation, with plenty of standard papers and books and a full faith in God, and good grub is wanted.

"The family should rise at 5 o'clock on Sunday morning as well as on week days and do the necessary Sunday morning chores, and then go to church and show the business man in the city that Sunday on the farm does not consist in changing the stock from one field to another, or salting it or unloading a load of hay that was brought in on Saturday evening.

"Coming to the meals at the meal hour makes it easy on the wife so she can arrange her household duties in order as can also the husband his farm work.

Wants Sunday Off.

"Men of worth and standing in the shop and city tell me that if order and system were used on the farm they would go back to the farm. If the farmer wants to keep his sons and daughters on the farm he must not lengthen the hours for a day's work at both ends. Limit the hours of work on the farm to twelve or thirteen, with pay for overtime, and freedom to the hired man on Sunday."

DIXON LEAVES TAFT CAMPAIGN

Montana Senator Resigns Chairmanship of Western Speakers' Bureau After Final Row With Hitchcock.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 20.—The resignation from the chairmanship of the Republican Western speakers' bureau of United States Senator Joseph Dixon, following the resignation of DuPont of powder trust fame from the chairmanship of the Eastern speakers' bureau, is just announced here, although the resignation took place several days ago. Senator Dixon, according to the story, was not eliminated, as was Du Pont, but quit because he tired of the mismanagement of National Republican Chairman Hitchcock.

The card-index fad of young Mr. Hitchcock proved particularly irritating to Dixon, who clamored to have some real old-line campaign work done. There were two or three out-and-out rows between them, and now Presidential Nominee Taft has lost the support of his chief Montana henchman in this mapaign.

And Montana leaning Democratic was this campaign year, too!

HEPBURN ACT IN OIL HEARING

Railway Officials Testify to Its Effect on Traffic.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Two witnesses occupied the stand before Judge Franklin Ferris yesterday in the hearing of evidence on the railroad phase of the government suit to dissolve Standard Oil. Testimony was introduced relative to the freight tariffs in force on oil and oil products and the bearing of the rules of the interstate commerce act on the railroads shipping oil over their lines was discussed.

W. D. Hurlbut, formerly general traffic manager of the Illinois Central Southern lines, on the redirect examination testified that the Hepburn act was considered by traffic men to change the existing rules relative to filing schedules of state rates which were used in through shipments.

Rred Zimmerman, assistant general freight agent of the Michigan Central, testified along the same lines as other railroad officials who have been on the stand and declared that the general custom of the railroads was not to file state rates even when used in through shipments prior to 1906 when the Hepburn act went into effect.

JAP AND YANKEE TARS LIKE BROTHERS AS THEY MINGLE ON STREETS OF TOKIO

Tokio, Oct. 20.—The reception accorded the American Atlantic fleet by the government and people of Japan is conceded by the American naval officers to be the heartiest and most perfectly carried out of the receptions received by the fleet since it sailed from Hampton Roads. Rear Admiral Sperry said to the Associated Press that he was utterly unable to say how it had been accomplished, but that the welcome given the fleet and its officers and men here has been so carefully planned and carried out to the most minute detail that a lasting impression has been stamped upon the mind of every American who has witnessed it.

The men of the American and Japanese fleet are fraternizing everywhere in Tokio and Yokohama. Every wish of the American sailors is anticipated, and each bluejacket finds an English-speaking guide among the Japanese sailors. The American uniforms is the "Open Sesame" everywhere, the cordiality of the Japanese extending to the inhabitants of the most remote villages.

It is impossible to doubt the sincerity of the Japanese. The American officers and sailors are already beginning to understand the fact that the evident desire on the part of the Japanese for the friendship of America is not founded on opportunism, but finds its source in a sincere wish to show that such friendship, at least in part of the Japanese, has existed always and that this visit of the fleet has merely afforded the Japanese an opportunity to express that friendship.

SALOON AS REAL SUFFRAGE FOE

Women Would-be Voters Hear Brewery Interests Arraigned.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The problem of financing the work of the National Woman's Suffrage association cropped out and for a time clogged the machinery of its convention. The question first came up in executive session where President Anna H. Shaw talked to the delegates in no uncertain way as to their failure to provide the national organization with the means to carry on its work.

It was finally decided to make an effort at the afternoon session to raise at least $5,000 by voluntary subscription. The contributions had reached $3,350 when a messenger handed President Shaw a letter from Mrs. Catherine B. Lewis of Buffalo, enclosing a check for $10,000.

Miss Laura Gregg of Kansas, a suffragist organizer, related some of the struggles for enfranchisement in Western states and especially in Oregon and Oklahoma, where it was found that "The real enemy to woman suffrage is the saloon and brewery interests."

TELLS WHAT TO PREPARE

A Very Fine Prescription for Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder.

Save This or Hand to Some One, Which Will be an Act of Humanity.

The following prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles has no doubt been filled millions of times, viz: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflicitons, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings.

A well-known authority states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses these spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

If your back or sides ache and you suspect kidney trouble it would be wise to try this for a few days.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The First National bank of Belle Plaine, Minn., which was closed last August, after the death of John G. Lund, who held a controlling interest in its stock, will reopen for business the middle of the week. The bank has been reorganized principally through the efforts of Jesse Van Valkenburg, executor of the Lund estate, and the Union Investment company of Minneapolis, which has put up $64,000 to take the place of the doubtful or useless paper of the late John G. Lund. This sum the stockholders of the old bank have guaranteed to the investment company.

The capital of the reorganized bank will be $25,000, and all the old depositors will get credit for the full amount of their deposits.

THE COME AND SEE SIGN

This sign is permanently attached to the front of the main building of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

What Does This Sign Mean?

It means that public inspection of the Laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the business which is not "open and aboveboard."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify any and all statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Is it a purely vegetable compound made from roots and herbs — without drugs?

Come and See.

Do the women of America continually use as much of it as we are told?

Come and See.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any Mrs. Pinkham now to whom sick woman are asked to write?

Come and See.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential?

Come and See.

Have they really got letters from over one million, one hundred thousand women correspondents?

Come and See.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women?

Come and See.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who know from their own personal experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female ills will still go on using and being benefited by it; but the poor doubting, suffering woman must, for her own sake, be taught confidence, for she also might just as well regain her health.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MAY SOLVE OLD CRIME

Arrest of "Shorty" Murphy in St. Paul, Looks Important.

Believe He Was Accomplice in Minneapolis Murder Mystery.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The arrest in the union depot here by Minneapolis detectives of "Shorty" Murphy, thought to be an accomplice in the Mill City murder mystery of three years ago, is believed to have been a most important capture.

Murphy is said to be the pal of the mysterious "Curly," the self-confessed murderer, who gave himself up to Little Rock, Ark., authorities last week, and who is thought to have "welched" and placed the police on the trail of Murphy.

Should the arrest of Murphy prove to the satisfaction of the authorities that he was an accomplice of the man known as "Curly," one of the most baffling murder mysteries in Mill City police circles will have been cleared.

The crime was one of the most cold-blooded and daring of police history, and was perpetrated on Christmas eve, 1905, when Charles Bader, proprietor of a saloon near the Milwaukee depot, was shot down in his tracks without a word of warning.

Prompted Murder.

Robbery was the motive, and it was during a social gathering of a number of Bader's friends in the buffet of his establishment that two masked men carrying revolvers suddenly burst into the midst of the merrymakers and commanded them to throw up their hands. Bader was busy, and believing it a practical joke, laughed and started for the refrigerator to procure additional refreshments. He had taken but a few steps when three shots rang out and Bader fell to the floor mortally wounded.

The holdups again repeated their commands to the startled guests and after placing them in a position against the wall and forbidding them from approaching the dying man, they rifled the cash register and eventually disappeared through the back door. Bader was hastened to a hospital and died shortly afterward.

The police of both cities were placed upon the case and every effort made to apprehend the fugitive murderers, but to no avail. The mystery gradually deepened, but regardless of the fact that the authorities throughout the country joined in the search the murderers succeeded in enjoying their liberty for nearly three years.

STEARNS COUNTY LIKES GOVERNOR

Popularity of Both Executive and Bryan is Beyond Question.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no question about the popularity of Governor Johnson and William J. Bryan in old Stearns county, as was attested at the last meeting of the Bryan-Johnson-Gilkinson club held at Democratic headquarters.

There was a large attendance. Reports were received from more than twenty precincts in Stearns county telling of the organization of campaign clubs to carry on the work of getting out the votes on election day. Nearly all of the clubs reported that many life long Rpublicans would this year vote the Democratic ticket. The farming communities, particularly, are strongly in favor of the Democratic plank for the guaranty of bank deposits and there is a strong demand for literature on this subject. Mr. Bryan's address on the guaranty of bank deposits and Senator Nelson's speech in the senate are frequently asked for.

All the reports received were of a most optimistic nature. One of the most encouraging being the large number of letters from old time Democrats who say that they are again out on the fighting line.

Prof. P. M. Magnusson delivered an able and inspiring address and congratulated the Democrats upon the ability and high character of its candidates in this campaign, particularly Mr. Bryan and Mr. Johnson, and created much enthusiasm by concluding his address with the remark that the people of Minnesota did not have to apologize for their governor whose voice spoke for all the people, unlike Mr. Jacobson, who had a voice for the people of some places but none for the people of St. Cloud.

AITKIN REGRETS LOSS,

But Rejoices That Its Minister Comes to Duluth.

Aitkin, Minn., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is a mater of general regret that Rev. M. O. Stockland is to leave Aitkin for a new and wider field of activity, having been assigned to the pastorate of Grace church of Duluth at the late Litchfield conference.

Already, he is preparing to move to his new home, and plans to take his family there some time this week. Rev. Mr. Stockland has by his energy and devotion to his work built up a strong church here, and the fact that he is called to greater responsibilities must therefore be regarded as a fine tribute to his worth and ability.

DEADLY CORN SHREDDER.

Elk Mound, Wis., Young Man Loses an Arm.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The deadly corn shredder has claimed another victim. Rudolph Nelson, a well known young man from Elk Mound, has been brought from Colfax, where he had lost a hand and a portion of the arm in one of the machines. He is now at the Sacred Heart Hospital.

Nelson was working on a shredder on a farm near Colfax. In some manner his hand was caught in the maws of the machine and in a jiffy it was so badly chewed up and lacerated that it was found necessary to amputate the arm just below the elbow.

Passing of Todd County's Oldest Woman, Mrs. Brower.

Long Prairie, Minn., Oct. 20.—Mrs. Mary Brower, grandmother of Senator Ripley Brower, of St. Cloud, and the oldest resident of Todd county, died at her home in Round Prairie township, Sunday. Mrs. Brower was a woman of fine intellect and retained her faculties until her death. She had written several stories of early pioneer days, and the Indian troubles. For several years the Brower and Van Cleve families were the only white people living at or near Long Prairie. Mrs. Brower was 94 years of age.

STEAMER STRIKES LAUNCH.

One of Craft's Four Occupants is Drowned.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 20.—The steamer John A. Donaldson, while off Nine Mile Point, in Hay lake, Sunday night, struck a launch in which Mr. and Mrs. Donald Seaman, their son Clyde, aged 17, and James Burns were riding.

The boy was drowned and his body has not been recovered. He was on watch in the stern of the launch and went to sleep and did not see the freighter as it approached. The law does not require launches to carry stern lights, so the captain of the Donaldson was unable to see them.

Others in the launch were picked up by the crew of the steamer Mary C. Elphicke. The woman was ill and was on a bedtick. It is believed that had it not been for the tick, which helped to buoy them up, all would have went down.

HARRY MITCHELL

My store in Duluth is commencing to look quite metropolitan. There is nothing too good for me or for my customers. Every hour new additions to my stock here will be made.

You see, I get my goods here direct from the mill by the thousands of bolts from the great loom center of the Scotch and English mills. The very latest, up-to-the-minute patterns come direct to me with the smell of ocean still on them. Then with my force of over 200 tailors, I can make better garments, and out of better cloth and in better style, and for less money than the little jerk-water-tailor can buy his cloth for.

Come to my store and I'll explain to you how I can beat any tailor in the country at his own game, and how I can make hand-me-down, ready-made clothing dealers look like a plugged dime.

The best suit or overcoat made to your order with a guarantee of satisfaction or no pay, out of the best materials for $15.00, $20.00 or $25.00, that can't be duplicated in the city of Duluth for less than $35.00, $40.00 or $50.00.

Just watch me corner the trade. The best trade. I'm going to make these guys' heads swim. Come and see.

Yours truly, HARRY MITCHELL

OFFER ODDS ON JOHNSON

Bookmakers Are Betting Even Money on Plurality of 15,000.

Bets on Governor Johnson's plurality are now about the only election wagers that are being made, as the Jacobson supporters refuse to be tempted to risk their money unless very heavy odds are offered.

There is a standing offer of 20 to 10 on Johnson in a Superior street store, and there are few takers. The bookmaker is now offering even money that Johnson's plurality will be 15,000 in the state.

Odds of 20 to 10 are also offered that he will carry Hennipin county; odds of 20 to 19 that he will carry Ramsey county and odds of 20 to 19 that he will carry St. Louis county.

Jacobson is evidently looked upon by the bookmakers as a long shot, for it is seldom that a bookmaker is tempted to bet on pluralities unless he is thoroughly convinced that his man will be elected.

CREDITORS MAY PROTEST.

Affairs of North Butte Extension Pending in Bankruptcy Court.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 20.—Judge William H. Hunt in the United States district court has issued an order directing that all of the creditors of the North Butte Extension Copper Mining company be notified that involuntary bankruptcy proceedings have been brought against the company. Creditors who wish to oppose the motion to dismiss the proceedings, which was made a few days ago by the petitioning creditors whose claims have been satisfied, are summoned to appear in court on Oct. 27 at 10 o'clock in the morning to show cause why the proceedings should not be dismissed.

From the expression of some of the creditors who were interviewed yesterday, it is probable that the motion to dismiss the proceedings will be opposed and in that event the company will be forced into bankruptcy and its affairs will be settled up.

Thursday the company defaulted in a payment of $10,000 on the Michigander and Third Sphinx claims, on which an option was held from Alexander Leggat. All that the company now has left are three small fractions, including the Black Crow claim, on which the shaft has been sunk, for which the sum of about $65,000 was paid at the time the company was incorporated.

The Insurance Trust.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There is no recourse in Minnesota against excessive insurance rates. The question is, what is a trust? Does the fact that rates for Duluth and all other cities in the state are made through an office maintained in Minneapolis, and announced through a paid representative in each city, who furnishes the local insurance agents the rates they must charge on various risks, constitute a trust? If so, whose duty is it to investigate, give relief and punish the wicked?

There is no doubt that the matter belongs first to the county attorney's office, whose duty it is to bring the matter before the grand jury, and after ascertaining the facts, report the matter to the state insurance commissioners, who may have to ask more power from the state legislature to enable him to regulate the rates. In the meantime, all insurance agents doing business in the state are liable to punishment, and the grand jury alone has the settlement of this question, excepting in case of damage suits which may be brought by individuals against local agents under the Sherman act.

A VICTIM OF TRUST.

CALLS IT A FINISH LABOR-CAPITAL FIGHT.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 20.—Robert Bandlow and other Cleveland labor leaders gave their depositions here in the Washington case in which the Buck Stove & Range company of St. Louis seeks to have President Samuel Gompers and other officers of the Federation of Labor adjudged in contempt of court for continuing to print the "We Don't Patronize" list after Justice Gould had ordered them to stop it.

Bandlow is business manager of the local labor paper. The "Unfair List" is said to have been printed in it after the injunction forbade the American Federation of Labor to publish it.

"It's a fight to the finish between capital and labor," Bandlow testified. "The National Manufacturers' association, Van Cleave, Post and their kind, not only war on labor, but they control political parties and conventions, dictate platforms and boss nominations."

ETHEL ROOSEVELT'S DEBUT ON DEC. 28

President's Daughter Will Formally Enter Society at a Small Dancing Party—Young Woman is Popular at School and Has Many Friends Among All Classes in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The one social topic of Washington is the announcement of Miss Ethel Roosevelt's debut at a small dance on Dec. 28.

This clears the way for the season's buds to announce the dates of their comings out. The young people are all delighted with the idea of a dance and merry plans are being laid to give Miss Roosevelt a gay social season. It is not only because she is the daughter of the president that so much interest is taken in the coming debut of Miss Ethel Roosevelt, but that she has made so many real friends in Washington among all classes. At the National Cathedral school from which she was graduated last year, she was the idol of the girls.

"It is not because Ethel is the president's daughter that we all love her," said an admiring schoolmate, but because she is so honest and square. Why when one of the girls was threatened with suspension for writing verses which were really innocent and which we all knew about, Ethel was the only one who had the courage to stand for the right. She just told the teachers the schoolmate was suspended that she would suspend herself for the same period of time and she would have done it, too."

Ethel is extremely fond of her brothers and takes an unusual amount of interest in their sports. She can tell you the names of every boy on Archie's baseball team and just how Quentin is getting along in his music. One summer when it was impossible to secure a proper music teacher for the boys in Oyster Bay, Ethel said she would teach them herself rather than let them get behind and she did, too, much to their improvement. At the end of the summer, the president gave her the same money compensation he would have had to pay for a competent teacher. She is very fond of ancient history and has written many little stories of school day life, which have been read by admiring relatives and a select circle of friends. She stood second in her class at the National Cathedral school and the valedictorian was only a half of a tenth in advance of her.

FORTY HOUSES BEING BUILT

By the efforts of individuals and the state relief committee, the city of Chisholm is again rising from the ruins to which it was reduced Sept. 5 by the big forest fire. Business places and residences are springing up like magic.

R. J. Borland, superintendent of the construction work of the relief committee at Chisholm, was in Duluth yesterday and he reported to Mayor Haven that some of the houses under construction will be ready for occupancy the latter part of this week. Forty of the sixty houses originally planned by the committee are under construction and many of them would be occupied now but for vexatious delays in the delivery of some of the materials by the railroad companies. The railroads have promised to use all possible speed in hurrying the necessary materials to the town, and, with the force of men at work, it is expected the sixty houses will be completed in good time.

The 200 stoves, to be distributed among families who lost their all in the flames, have not yet arrived from the factory, and they, with other articles of household furniture, purchased wholesale from factories by the committee, are expected to arrive soon. The committee has abandoned the plan of giving sewing machines to a large number of families at Chisholm, as some of the people refused to accept the modest-priced article the committee decided on. Some worthy housewives will be supplied with machines, however. The money, which was to have been used in the purchase of sewing machines, will be used to purchase other articles of household furniture to be distributed to the needy people.

GUS ROGERS, COMEDIAN, DIES OF APPENDICITIS.

New York, Oct. 20.—Gus Rogers of the stage comedy team of Rogers brothers died here late yesterday of appendicitis. Rogers had an attack of appendicitis in Chicago in 1902, but he deferred the operation. He improved and soon was able to resume his work on the stage. He was taken sick in Utica three weeks ago.

Gus Rogers was one of the best known low comedy actors on the American stage. The brothers, Max and Gus, started on the stage in Austin & Stone's music hall in Boston in 1889. They did German dialect and knockabouts acts. Rogers was said to be worth $300,000, most of which he invested in theater property in this city.

A widow, Maude Raymond, a vaudeville player, and two children survive him.

QUESTION OF SITE AGAIN

Aldermen Consider Many Matters of a Routine Nature.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Failed to decide whether or not to purchase site for West end police station. Matter laid over for one week.

Gave first reading to amendment to ordinance calling for a change in the boundaries of the West end fire limits.

Decided to open Main street in West Duluth to the water front.

Authorized board of public works to spend $167 in installing a heating apparatus in one of the cabins on the aerial ferry bridge.

Ordered rearrangement of lumber piles at Twenty-ninth avenue west, to lessen danger from fire.

Authorized payment of $1,081.50 into the American Exchange bank for the redemption of old village of Duluth bonds.

Although the idea of a police station for the West end has been abandoned for the time being, in favor of an auto patrol wagon, the question of the purchase of a site, to be used for building purposes in the future, is still before the council. Last night there was quite an argument at the meeting as to whether the city should go ahead and buy the tract of land, which it entered into verbal contract to do, or whether it should wait until a later date to purchase a site. The question was finally laid over for one week.

Before an auto patrol was decided upon for central police station, the council voted to construct a station in the West end, and there was quite a discussion as to the site that should be secured. One was bought and later sold in favor of a new location, lot 318, block 16, Duluth proper, Second division. This site seemed satisfactory to everybody concerned, and Mayor Haven, on the strength of the approval of the council, made a verbal agreement with the owner to buy, the price to be $3,800.

When the decision to buy an auto patrol came, it was declared that the new apparatus would make a police station in the West end unnecessary for a few years, but some of the aldermen favored the purchase of the site anyway, on the ground that it would be needed later on, as the city increased in size. The argument was advanced that the property could be secured much cheaper now that in the future, so the expenditure of the $3,800 at this time would be a good investment.

The arguments last evening hinged on this point. Assistant City Attorney Morgan said that though the city had entered into a verbal contract with the owner to purchase the site the mayor was not legally bound to live up to it. He further told the council that the owner thought it a very shabby trick for the city to back out of the deal after morally binding itself to purchase the property.

The purchase of the property was favored by Aldermen Olson and Kennedy, as a guarantee that there will be something done in future for West enders in the line of a police station. Alderman Shartel explained that the money with whic hit was originally intended to buy the site had been split up for other purposes with the approval and consent of the West end aldermen. He moved that the matter be laid over for one week, but the motion was lost when put to vote.

Alderman McKnight took the view that it was not a question of whether the city intended to put a police station there or not, but it was a matter of the utmost importance that the council stand by the mayor after it had authorized him to secure a site for the proposed station. Alderman Shartel moved that a committee of three be appointed to confer with the owner and ascertain if he would be willing to release the city from the implied contract to buy the site. This was lost by a 7 to 6 vote. After a little more discusson, it was decided to lay the question over for one week.

The committee on ordinances and resolutions, under the signature of Alderman McKnight, reported adversely on the proposition to amend the city ordinance so as to change the boundaries of the fire limits in the West end, so as to make it possible for R. C. Sloan to move a building from the north side of Superior street between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues west across the street to the south side. The building is of wooden construction, and with the ordinance the way it stands at present, it would be unlawful to move it to the site desired. The amendment to the ordinance was given its first reading last night, and will be voted at the meeting next Monday.

A communication from the West Duluth Land company stated that recent sales of land in West Duluth made it necessary to open Main street to the water front, and also said it was desirable to open a highway from Main street to the shore line at Forty-ninth avenue west, along the right-of-way of the Northern Pacific. It is proposed to make the streets sixty feet wide. The land company said it was willing to dedicate all the land necessary for the improvement, with the exception of a small strip owned by the railroad company, and urged the council to arrange with the railroad people for that portion of the land. E. C. Blanchard, superintendent of the Northern Pacific notified the council that his company was ready to do this.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the payment of $1,081.50, with interest from Jan. 1, 1908, into the American Exchange bank for the redemption of some outstanding bonds of the village of Duluth. The bonds ae now held by Caroline E. Brown and their ownership is claimed by the heirs of the William Branch estate, which has notified the city not to pay the bonds until the courts determine the rightful owner.

The property owners owning land fronting on Minnesota avenue, in lower Duluth, petitioned the council not to authorize the building of a new sidewalk there on the permanent grade line, until a cement walk can be put in. The matter was referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks.

Upon a resolution introduced by Alderman Moe, the Scott-Graff Lumber company was instructed to rearrange its lumber piles in the yard at Twenty-ninth avenue west, between Superior and First streets, so that no pile should be within a distance of sixty feet of any building. This was done as a precaution against fire. Several people residing in the vicinity complained that there was great danger to their property in case of fire, and asked that the change be brought about.

The Duluth-Edison Electric company was directed to place a cluster of incandescent electric lights at the intersection of Highland avenue and Niagara street, and at the corner of Hugo street and Linden avenue, in the West end.

The council approved the plan of the board of public works to spend $167 in installing a heating plant in one of the cabins on the aerial ferry.

The heads of all city departments and all the city officers were ordered to appear before the council on or before Oct. 31, with a list of all the employes and the salaries paid to each.

• • •

The services of an expert auditor, now employed on the city's books, were authorized to be continued for not more than two weeks longer.

A. Holzberg was granted a license to operate a moving-picture show at 1850 West Superior street, and applications for liquor licenses were received from Henry Casmir, 101 East Superior street, and Louis Desanto, 701 West Superior street. The renewal of a saloon license was granted L. R. Birch, 1540 West Superior street.

The Young Men's Republican Club of Duluth was given permission to use the council chamber for a meeting tomorrow night.

The contract for the construction of a sanitary sewer from Elinor street to Highland street, in Division six, West Duluth, as awarded by the board of public works to Eklund & Nordquist, was approved by the council. The price was $3,801. The council also approved awarding the contract for the construction of another sanitary sewer on Highland street from Fifty-seventh avenue west to Central avenue, to John Bergman, the price being $452.

BATTLESHIP GIRDLES GLOBE IN 309 DAYS

New York, Oct. 20.—Through a dull brown curtain of haze and smoke, which overhung the tortuous entrance to New York harbor, the great white hull of the battleship Alabama crept cautiously into port and dropped anchor off Tompkinsville, completing a voyage around the world in 309 days. More than 35,000 miles of all the seas of all the world lay behind her. Except in one particular, the Alabama finished her long swing around the great circle as fit for fight as when she sailed from Hampton Roads on Dec. 16 last, as one of the great fleet which went forth on a mission of peace. Seven years of steaming has put the boilers of the great ship to a severe test and repairs are necessary. In a few days the Alabama will go to the navy yard at Brooklyn to undergo an overhauling.

The Call of Nature

When Nature is abused she first calls lightly and then in trumpet tones to the thoughtful man to "get right."

A slight "touch of indigestion," feeling "a little indisposed," "not so well," etc., are the first whisperings of trouble—the warnings.

One can then turn to

Grape-Nuts

and be sure of good results. It is Nature's food improved. Worn out tissues are renewed, weakened digestive organs are strengthened. Good health is quickly wooed and won. Coupled with these certain good results the pleasure of eating Grape-Nuts is a pleasure-plus.

DAME NATURE HINTS

When the Food is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit the old coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice. I began using them three months ago.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

FOUR-INCH KNIFE CUT DURING ROW

Joe Patramovich Injured During Brawl in Aurora Saloon.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A stabbing affray took place here Monday morning among some Austrians in Filonovich's saloon, and as a result, Joe Patramovich is laid up with a four-inch cut in his right arm, and the officers are looking for the man who did the job.

Filonovich, the saloonkeeper, is said to have witnessed the fight, but would not tell the officers who handled the knife. As a result his saloon has been closed until he gives the evidence.

Filonovich had his saloon closed two years ago for refusing to give evidence as to a fight in which a man was struck on the head with a hatchet, but told all he knew later.

IMPROVING EVELETH PLANT.

Changes Being Made in Electric Lighting System.

All these improvements were mostly to help to secure day current which has been badly needed by a number of local concerns and which was promised July 1.

The new steam headers were received last week and are now in place. The old chimney will be taken down in about three weeks, as the 100-foot stack that was put up a little while ago is proving more than satisfactory.

On improvement in steam boilers has been put in use which is claimed to be the latest thing in steam boiler improvements. It is what is known as a Henry line cleaner. Two of these are used locally and are operated from the rear of the boiler. It is no watsolutely certain that day current will be on in Eveleth in less than a week.

The electric wiring to the fifty houses on the Adams location which will be supplied with electricity will soon be completed, as will also the new line to the graded Adams school, which is at present without electricity.

STATE IS ALL AFLAME

Nordmont in the eastern part of Sullivan county.

Fire Wall Four Miles Long.

At Trout Run every available man and youth has been fighting flames continuously since Friday night. The wall of fire which was four miles long and almost encircled Trout Run became such a menace that women began to prepare their households for quick moving.

The fire fighters have made all their fighting at back firing and digging trenches. The latter have been dug around three sides of the fire.

At Leetonia the fire has not yet advanced sufficiently to immediately endanger the town.

Town is Surrounded.

At Nordmont, forty men have been fighting fire since Sunday. The thick woods run almost to the doors of this village's houses and completely surround the town.

The fires on the Allegheny mountains are burning with renewed vigor and all efforts to check them have been unsuccessful. No rain has fallen in that part of the state in two months.

In the Pocono mountains, in the eastern part of Pennsylvania, flames are sweeping over a great area in defiance of the fire fighters.

CARBOLIC ACID IN HIS WHISKY

Ole R. Hanson None the Worse for Strange Drink.

Carbolic acid, said to have been purchased for use in exterminating vermin in a cheap lodging house, in some manner became mixed with whisky in the pocket of Ole R. Hanson, and when he was arrested for being drunk, and was taken into the warm atmosphere of the police station, the odor of the acid could be smelled on his breath. The police thought that possibly he had attempted suicide.

Dr. Abbott was called, and prescribed an antidote. The man did not seem to be any worse for his dose of polson, and it is thought the amount of acid diluted with the intoxicant was so small as to be harmless. The doctor said there was no danger of his dying.

The odor of carbolic acid naturally alarmed the police, and in searching his pockets the whisky was discovered. It smelled strongly of the acid. The man was too drunk to talk coherently. Later on he explained why he bought the acid, but said he couldn't understand how it got mixed with the whisky.

Leavnig Madison early in the morning, he addressed a meeting at Mount Horeb at 9:30, one at Verona at noon and one at Oregon at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

In all his speeches La Follette indorsed the national Republican ticket and urged his audience to support it.

He spoke highly of Bryan as a man and as a citizen, but he always concluded by showing that the Democratic candidate would be powerless to accomplish anything of value if he were elected because he would have a senate which was certain to be politically hostile to him.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S GRANDSON IS SUSPENDED FROM SCHOOL FOR HAZING

Waterbury, Oct. 20.—While "pairing off" a number of "fresh" students at the Taft school at Watertown in the wash room, a master intruded and put a sudden end to the sport.

The upper classmen did not like the actions of some of the new boys, and so, after the latter had retired, the older students went to their rooms and took them from their beds, naked, to the wash room below.

Yesterday afternoon the faculty met and the following suspensions for hazing were ordered: John N. Garfield, Washington, D. C., son of the secretary of the interior, and grandson of the late president of the United States; Kenneth Monteagle, San Francisco; Fred Andrews, New York; Henry Fowness, Pittsburg.

Garfield is suspended for three weeks and the others for six.

THUMB MARK IS NOW USED

New System Installed by Uncle Sam in Land Offices.

The growth of the use of the thumb mark in all departments of the government has been rapid. It started with the secret service department, found its way into the army and navy, and is now being used in the land offices throughout the country in place of the "X" formerly used, where the applicant could not write.

The first papers on which the thumb marks were used in the local land office are those of some Indians, and are applications for patents for lands in the northern part of the state.

The government thinks that this is the best scheme hit upon up to this time for the identification of a person. They say it is even better than a photograph.

The method of obtaining the mark is very simple. An ink pad is used, and the applicant is made to put his thumb on it and transfer the impression to paper.

POLLS CLOSED TO THIS WOMAN VOTER

New York, Oct. 20.—Justice Truax in the supreme court denied a motion on behalf of Dr. Julia Seaton Sears that the registration board be reconvened and ordered to register Dr. Sears as a voter for the presidential election.

The board at its regular session had refused to register the complainant as a qualified voter. Miss Mary Coleman, who appeared for Dr. Sears, argued that as the latter had voted at three presidential elections in Colorado she refused to register her here, was in effect a denial of the provision of the United States Constitution that no citizen shall be deprived of rights acquired under that instrument.

Miss Coleman did not claim for her client the right to vote for state officers here.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BURLESQUE AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Association Plans for Big Entertainment on Nov. 4 and 5.

A burlesque circus by the members of the Y. M. C. A. for the entertainment of their friends is the latest stunt which has been planned by officers of the association. Nov. 4 and 5 are the dates and from present indications it will be the biggest thing in the athletic line pulled off under the auspices of the association.

The big gymnasium will be turned into a circus ring, with all the sawdust and incidentals that go to make up an entertainment of this kind. There will be clowns, a rube band, a burlesque ball game, an acrobatic family, high in the air slack wire performance, strong man, and a big cage of the wildest of wild animals, which will be taken out singly to do their stunts.

There will be everything on hand that goes to make up a successful circus.

"It's going to be the best thing we have ever attempted," said Physical Director Frey this morning, "and from the way all the boys are taking hold, and the enthusiasm shown our reputation as circus managers is made."

Prominent Duluthians will implore the audience to buy colored lemonade; others will sell peanuts; there will be side shows with fat ladies and freaks, and after the whole performance there will be the usual band concert.

There will be about as much friendship shown in that football game to be played out at Athletic park Saturday between Minneapolis and Duluth as the ordinary house dog has for the neighbor's cat.

In more than one way the students have an old score to settle, not with East Side in particular, but Minneapolis teams in general.

A more determined bunch of high school gladiators will never step on the field of battle than the eleven men who will trot to their paces on the field Saturday afternoon to represent Duluth in a game which means a championship to one side or the other.

It may be remarked right here that, while Duluth looks on this contest as a championship affair, Minneapolis looks at it from another angle. Just a fairly stiff game is what they think down there.

Duluth students say that they have received shabby treatment at the hands of all the Mill City schools in every possible way.

In addition to this, the students say they got an unfair deal this year in regard to games, and if Central could only be made to come to Duluth and ask for a game to settle the state championship, the high school management would enjoy the situation hugely.

The team will be in first class shape by Saturday. Helmer will be back in the game, and the boys are being put through their paces each night as though their lives depended on it.

There will be no hard luck tale of disabled men. Everybody will be in the game, the team will be in the best possible shape, and if Minneapolis wins the visitors will be entitled to the victory, for they will be the better team.

MINNESOTA GIVEN BOOST

Chicago Critics Pick the Gophers as Favorites Over Maroons.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The Record-Herald says:

"Football enthusiasts had plenty of surprises handed to them in Saturday's games at Marshall field. Most of the rooters had picked Chicago by a big score, owing to the previous work of the two squads, but the downstate men showed up wonderfully strong.

"Minnesota surprised even its most ardent admirers in the powerful fight it put up against the strong Nebraska bunch. With only four veterans on the team, and none of them behind the line, the Gophers literally walked all over the husky Cornhuskers. The result of this game, in the actual playing, shows the Gophers entitled to much consideration this season in figuring out championship dope.

"Down in Bloomington, Wisconsin again proved that it has taken on a new lease of life, walking away with Sheldon's clever Hoosiers. This trio of Chicago, Minnesota and Wisconsin appear to have the title between them."

Minnesota Team a Favorite.

The Examiner says:

"As a result of Saturday's games, Chicago, Wisconsin and Minnesota are now left in the race for the big eight football honors.

"Iowa has left only one game of any importance in big eight circles. That is with the Illini, and, judging from the latter's showng here on Saturday, the Hawkeyes are booked for a thorough cleaning. Minnesota was tied by Nebraska Saturday, but that has no effect on the Gophers' standing among the conference schools.

"The Maroons and Gophers will work hard during the next twelve days to be at their best when they come together. If Minnesota has a line approaching in strength the ones usually turned out by Coach Williams, they should be favorites over the Chicago eleven. The Maroon forwards looked weak against Illinois, and the fast backfield was unable to do much. Stagg will pay more attention to building up his wall of forwards from now on. It looks from this distance as though the Maroons have the edge on the Gophers in the backfield, and vice versa in the line."

Another Boost for Eleven.

The Inter-Ocean says: "Contrary to general expectation, no surprises were sprung in Saturday's football games, and that in spite of the fact in several instances the so-called big eight battled with opponents who were doped as uncertainties and who might possibly be of the boomerang type.

"Minnesota, Wisconsin and Chicago all were glad to escape by a narrow margin from the onslaughts of their enemies.

"Chicago by its showing against Illini, Minnesota by holding the strong Nebraska team to a tie score, and Wisconsin by overwhelming Indiana to the tune of 15 to 0, earned the right to be considered the three leaders in the race for championship honors.

"Minnesota has played none of the big eight school so far, and hence it is difficult to get a line on the Gophers' strength. As usual, however, it is certain that Dr. Williams has a strong and heavy line, with a pair of good end men in Radenacher and Pettijohn."

INDIANS NEXT ON THE PROGRAM

Haskell Team Will Play Nebraska at Lincoln Next Saturday.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 20.—King Cole's Cornhuskers are in a badly battered condition. Lacking a full crop of desirable substitutes, Cole was compelled to send several men against the Gophers who were not in satisfactory trim, and the Cornhuskers' hospital list was augmented by the injury of others.

The Haskell Indians are to appear in Lincoln as Nebraska's next opponents, and Cole, considering the recent battering that his pupils have undergone, will be quite content if the aborigines are beaten by a low score. Cole's men must take matters fairly easy during their preparations for Haskell. Iowa and Ames come after Haskell, and Cole is exercising himself to get his proteges back in prime form for their arguments with the Hawkeyes and Aggies. The two latter contests will figure in the Missouri valley championship, and if Nebraska is to claim this honor, the Cornhuskers must be in trim.

Nebraska supporters are well satisfied with the results at Minnesota. Coach Cole goes so far as to say that he is pleased.

"I never authorized any prediction prior to the Minnesota game," declared Cole on his return to Lincoln, "that we expected to win. Neither did I say after the game that I was disappointed because we did not win. As a matter of fact, I am well satisfied that the Nebraska boys kept the Gophers from scoring. It was a remarkable football game in many ways, and I do not recall having seen two football teams that were more evenly matched. There was no muckerism, and we left Minneapolis feeling that we had been nicely treated by the Minnesota players, the management and the rooters."

REFUSES TO SEE MINNESOTA TEAM

Eckersall Says Gophers Stick Too Closely to Old Game.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Results of Saturday's football games in the West had a great bearing on the Western championship. Illinois was eliminated and Wisconsin sprang up as a formidable contender. Minnesota, although it played good football, is not now strong enough to defeat either the Maroons or Badgers, but may improve enough by the time these contests are played to win.

The surprise in Western circles was the unexpectedly strong showing of Illinois against Chicago. The downstaters were known to be strong, but they exceeded all predictions.

The game showed that there is plenty of room for Chicago to improve, and this it must do before the final and crucial games are played. There must be more dash and drive in the back field, the interference for the forward passes must be perfected, and Steffen must learn to stand back farther behind the weak Maroon line on kicks, as a blocked punt in any one of the coming contests is liable to mean defeat. Wisconsin, in its second game of the season against Indiana showed up poing, and everything points to the Chicago-Wisconsin contest being the crucial game of the West. The Badgers decisively defeated the Hoosiers and showed up well in offensive play.

Minnesota met a worthy foe in Nebraska, and were held to a 0 to 0 score. The Cornhuskers put up a great game, but the Gophers had the better of the argument. Minnesota showed little of the new game and appeared content to try to win by old tactics. Nebraska made gains by use of the forward pass and other plays of the new game, but could not get within striking distance of the goal.

The Gophers will improve enough in the two weeks intervening between the Chicago game to give the Maroons a hard game, but it is hardly likely they can win on old football, but must be taught formations of the open variety.

Iowa suffered a defeat at the hands of Missouri in a hard fought game. The Hawkeyes were supposed to be strong this year, but they played poorly Saturday, and did not display the form they showed in former games.

Michigan was given a scare by Notre Dame, and it was only through the clever goal kicking of Allerdice that the Wolverines were able to squeeze out a victory of 12 to 6.

Captain Resigns.

St. Louis, Oct. 20.—Eddie Murphy, captain of the football team of St. Louis university, resigned from the team yesterday afternoon. He said that his action was due to parental objection to his participtipn in the game.

BUSY WEEK FOR LIGHTWEIGHTS

Terry McGovern Is Anxious for Another Chance for Ring.

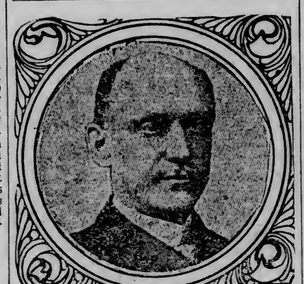

New York, Oct. 20.—This will be an active week for the lightweights in the East. Packy McFarland is to meet Leach Cross Wednesday and Owen Moran is now trying to take the place of Joe Gans, who is not likely to meet Tommy Murphy next Friday. Moran wants a try at the Harlem boxer.

Terry McGovern has again been heard from. Although he showed by his work in the lightweight division that he is only the shadow of the "Terrible Terry" of yore, he wants to have another chance in the ring. Joe Humphrey is urging his claims for a bout.

WILL TRY TO GET BACK ON FORCE

George Drannen Thinks That He Should be Reinstated.

Attorney M. H. McMahon, acting for George Drannen, recently declared guiltless in district court of the charge of stealing $39 from a prisoner at the central station, says that an attempt will be made to get the former driver of the patrol wagon back on the police force. He was discharged at the time of the alleged theft.

This is the first case of the kind that has ever come to the attention of the local civil service commission, and if the commission should refuse to take Drannen back, it is understood that he will, through his attorney, take the fight into district court. If it should be decided that Drannen is entitled to be reinstated, it is understood that he can collect back pay for the period extending from the time of his discharge from the force to his reinstatement.

A district court jury declared Drannen not guilty of the charge lodged against him.

MARKET IS ERRATIC

Wheat Closes Firm in Duluth With Fractional Gains.

Flax Has a Slight Advance in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 20.—Wheat was firm during the early part of the session today, but toward the end of the session lack of interest caused an easier undertone and prices went off, but recovered by the end of the session, which showed slight fractional gains everywhere.

Liverpool closed ⅛d lower to ¼d higher, Antwerp unchanged and Berlin 1c higher.

The December option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, Minneapolis and New York, a shade higher in Chicago, ⅛@¼c higher in St. Louis, unchanged in Kansas City, and ⅝c higher in Winnipeg. The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, Chicago and New York, ⅛@¼c higher in Minneapolis, ⅜c higher in St. Louis and Winnipeg, and a shade higher in Kansas City.

December corn closed ½@⅝c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅜c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool: "Wheat—The effect of the weaker American cables yesterday was offset by reports of frost damage in Southern Argentina and continued light offerings, cargo arrivals both off coast and awaiting orders being nil, and values at the opening were ¼d higher. Following the opening and during the early morning there was a further slight advance. Later, however, pressure developed on the favorable European crop outlook, predictions of liberal shipments from Russia and the Danube and the free offering of new La Plata, which were ½d lower. There was also free liquidation in December. At midday the market was dull and ⅛d to ¼d higher, with the exception of December, which showed a decline of ½d from Monday.

"Corn quiet and unchanged. Market was neglected."

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,234,000 bus, last year 1,263,000 bus. Shipments 546,000 bus, last year 648,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 242,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Advance in Wheat Price is Met by Free Sales.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Active demand by shorts caused a firm opening in the local wheat market, initial quotations being a shade to ⅝@¾c above the previous close. The advance, however, was met by free sales by many of the leading commission houses which resulted in a loss of nearly all the opening gain. The selling was based chiefly on wet weather in various sections of the winter wheat belt. December opened at 98½c to 98¾c and sold off to 98¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 933 cars against 981 cars last week and 886 cars a year ago.

The market was unsettled the balance of the day. A liberal increase in the world's visible supply of wheat had a depressing effect late in the day. After selling at 99c, December declined to 97¾@97⅞c, but again regained nearly all the loss. The market closed steady with December a shade higher at 98½c.

The corn market opened firm on an official prediction of rain for the corn growing states, but weakened on selling by pit traders induced by the weakness of oats. December opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher at 64c to 64⅛c and sold off to 63⅝c. Local receipts were 249 cars with 86 of contract grade.

The market failed to rally from the early depression, continuing weak all day. The low point for December was 63⅛c. The close was weak with December off ½c at 63⅜@63½c.

The feature of trading in oats was liquidation of the May delivery by local holders which caused moderate declines in all options. December opened unchanged at 48c and declined to 47⅝c. Local receipts were 322 cars.

Provisions were easy because of a 5c decline in live hogs. There was not pressure on the market, however, trade being light. Prices at the start were unchanged to 5c lower.

Close—Wheat: December, 98½c; May, $1.01⅞@1.02; July, 97c. Corn: December, 63⅜@63½c; May, 62¾c; July, 62⅛@62¼c. Oats: December, 47⅛c; May, 46¼c; July, 44⅝c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Firmer Tone Given by Steady Opening at Liverpool.

Minneapolis, Oct. 20.—The fact that Liverpool opened steady to ¼d higher gave a firmer tone to the market. There was more rain and it was heavy where it was most needed. December wheat below the dollar line, rallied ¾c, but went under the dollar again later. The world's visible increase of 7,504,000 bushels was a depressing showing. Minneapolis got 435 cars against 295. Duluth 284 against 526; Winnipeg 456 and 258. Local elevator stocks increased 750,000 bushels for three days. There was much pressure on the near-by but some long wheat persistently held was let go. Near the end of the session the market rallied on short covering. December opened $1.00⅜; high, $1.00⅝; low, 99⅝c; close, $1.00⅜. Old December closed $1.00½. May wheat opened $1.04¾; high, $1.05; low, $1.04¾@⅞; close, $1.04¾@⅞.

Good cash demand ruled for choice wheat, but low grades and especially any wheat that was frosted was harder to sell. No. 1 sold at 2@2½c over December and No. 2 northern at December price to ½c over.

Close: No. 1 northern spot or to arrive $1.02¾; No. 2 northern spot $1.00@⅜c; to arrive $1.000⅜. No. 3 wheat 96@98c.

No. 3 white oats 44⅜c.

No. 2 rye 69¾@70¾c.

Barley receipts 63 cars against 116 last year; shipments 99 cars. Malting grades were 1c lower and feed grades 1@1½c with a good many sales at 50c and some as low as 48½. Close 48@57c.

Flax receipts, 65 cars against 47 last year; shipments, 12 cars. There was a good demand at 2c under Duluth October. Close, $1.21¼.

Millers dull and quiet; millers quoting bran in bulk at $17.50@18.00.

Flour, although quoted unchanged, was weak in undertone and both the local and country mills reported a less active general demand. Shipping directions are not coming in so freely for old orders and the outward movement is lighter. Shipments, $36,394 barrels. First patents, $5.20@5.40; second patents, $5.00@5.20; first clears, $3.30@4.20; second clears, $2.90@3.25.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR

James A. Rankin of Chicago Inclined to be Bullish.

James A. Rankin and Walter Fitch were in the city today and they spent a part of the morning on the floor of the board of trade.

Mr. Rankin is known as one of the keenest traders on the Chicago board of trade and has been known so for years.

While not expecting immediate bulges and anticipating a readjustment of prices before the market settles on a steady basis, Mr. Rankin expects that a high level of wheat prices will be maintained for the present crop. In regard to the outlook for the latter part of the season, he is distinctly bullish, although inclined to look for easiness and an unsettled condition as long as the heavy movement keeps up.

Mr. Rankin expressed himself as delighted with the new trading floor at the board. This is his first trip to Duluth and he had many kind words to say of the city and her institutions.

Mr. Fitch is also a familiar figure on the Chicago board. He is a former president of that exchange and the head of the well known firm of Pringle, Fitch & Co., which has an office in the city. Walter G. Hall is the local manager.

Messrs. Rankin and Fitch left this afternoon for Minneapolis.

Charles Kennedy, a prominent grain broker of Buffalo, was a visitor on the floor of the board today. He spent the morning in conference with local grain men with whom he has connections.

• • •

H. A. Tuttle of Minneapolis, general manager of the North American Telegraph company, spent a part of the session on the floor today.

Barley prices continue to sag, another slump being shown in the Duluth close today. The malsters are still showing an aloofness to come into the local market to buy, and the market is in a rather stagnant condition.

It was announced today that C. M. Lanster, Argentine manager for H. F. Avery & Sons, had been appointed correspondent in Argentina for Finley, Barrell & Co., during the coming crop season.

Bradstreet's reported an increase of 7,664,000 bushels in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada there was an increase of 5,664,000 bushels, and afloat and in Europe an increase of 1,700,00 bushels.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Opened Lower But Rallied on Buying by Shorts.

Strength of Northern Pacific Was the Chief Bullish Factor.

New York, Oct. 20.—Third Avenue opened today at a further decline of 2 and had an unsettling effect on the tone of the stock market. Dealings were on a very limited scale and changes were small and mixed. Advances of a large fraction in Northern Pacific and Great Northern preferred were features.

Strength in dividend paying stocks overcame the unfavorable effect of the break in Third Avenue. Northern Pacific was pushed up 1⅝; Union Pacific, 1¼, and St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Reading, American Sugar, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric, 1. Third Avenue fell 2½ before the buying by the shorts took effect and it rallied 1½. Trading was very dull at the high range of prices.

Northern Pacific was the influencing factor with its rise of 2¾. When its advance was checked the general list also paused. Atlantic Coast Line and St. Paul preferred gained 2, Union Pacific 1¾, Northwestern and United States Steel preferred 1¼ and Southern Pacific, Chicago & Alton, Louisville & Nashville, Iowa Central, American Smelting, Union Bag and Western Union 1. Kanawha & Michigan Trust receipts sold at an advance of 3½. Prices were at the highest at noon. Bonds were steady.

Purchases were smaller, but the list made additional progress upwards. Illinois Central gained 2½ and New York Central, Chesepeake & Ohio and Amalgamated Copper 1.

The market closed strong but only moderately active. There was moderate profit taking, but strength developed at new points and carried prices up to the highest again. St. Paul and Southern Pacific rose 2¼, National Lead and American Smelting 2, United States Rubber 1⅜, Southern Railway preferred 1⅝, Amalgamated Copper 1½, American Can preferred 1⅝ and Pennsylvania, Atchison, Rock Island preferred, Reading, Railway, United States Steel, Anaconda and some others a point.

OCTOBER 20th, 1908.
Ballaklava strong and hard to find at $8.00 a share. We can look forward to big things in this proposition. The same leads that have made the North Butte what it now is, will make Ballaklava one of the greatest producers of high-grade ore in this country.
Copper Queen looks good at $1.00. Think this one should be bought at this level. It should soon sell much higher.
Butte-Montana is one of the greatest chances ever brought to Duluth. This one has got to come along very soon. They have copper on many levels, and on the 1,000 and 1,200-foot levels this one should open up very big. The Colusa and Minnie Healy are nearby and the big leads of the Amalgamated cross the property.
Carman traded at $3.25 today, and should do better very soon. Red Warrior looks good and we think it should be bought.
Butte & Superior is strong at $1.00 bid. We can use big blocks of it.
Calumet & Sonora is quiet around $9. Shattuck well taken at $15.00.
Market is in good condition, and when election is over things should move fast.
Zenith Lead & Zinc stock should be one of our best traders. Mine is located in Joplin, Mo. Joplin has the greatest zinc and lead mines in this country.
